SUNDAY MORNING, VOL. XXXIX. SEPTEMBER 5, 1920.

Liberty Under Law—Equal Rights—True Industrial Freedom.

JAP LAUDS PRESIDENT.

Honor Americans at Luncheon.

Differences Must be Avoided by Frank Intercourse Says Harris.

Doesn't Believe Immigration Question Will Mar Permanent Friendship.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

TOKIO, Sept. 3.—The entire Cabinet and 600 Japanese and American women attended the luncheon given in honor of the visiting American Congressmen at the Imperial Hotel today. Takashi Hara, the Premier, toasted President Wilson, Edward Bell, American Charge d'Affaires, and the Japanese Emperor.

Addresses were delivered by Senator Harris of Georgia and Representative Small of North Carolina, both dwelling on the courtesies the American Congressmen had received in Japan. Mr. Harris said he would leave with strong feelings of friendship for and belief in the Japanese. "There is not an enemy of Japan who would like to see differences arise between Japan and America," Mr. Harris declared, "but differences exist and will be avoided through frank intercourse."

Mr. Small said a Japanese newspaper had asked what the American Congressmen were doing here, and the answer to this was, who would not come to Japan if he had the chance?

HOLD TO FRIENDSHIP.

"We flatter ourselves that any impression we receive will be a distinct contribution to public opinion which makes for good government," Mr. Small said. He added that differences exist between Japan and the United States and that more may come in the future. He did not believe, however, that questions of immigration or the treatment of Japanese in the United States would permanently mar the friendship between the two countries. The American people, he declared, believe in peace and the friendly spirit of Japan would not lightly be [illegible].

The cardinal factor of America's dealings with other nations, Mr. Small continued, were righteousness and justice. He pointed out that another Japanese journal had spoken of America as a menace to Japan, but declared that anyone who said that, or proclaimed Japan a menace to America, must be a [illegible]. Mr. Small credited Japan with the same qualities of righteousness and justice in its dealings with America and other nations.

If Japan and America continued to deal with each other frankly, he said, no differences would arise which could not be adjusted in the [illegible] of truth.

FEARS NO TROUBLE.

President Oku of the House of Representatives, after declaring that if both sides did their utmost with due regard for the principles of justice and fair play he had not the slightest doubt all troubles actually existing and all those which might possibly arise between the two nations could be solved to the entire satisfaction of both, continued:

"Japan is a country with a history of [illegible] years. The Japanese constantly are fond of talking about the past. For instance, the port of Shimonoseki, where you first touched the shores of old Japan, reminds us of a deed of generosity o nthe part of your country that makes us feel grateful. Then again your great country added one of the most fateful pages to our history by introducing us to the world sixty years ago. Bound together by ties of history like these, it is my earnest hope that the relations of the two countries will forever be friendly and [illegible]."

President Oku's mention of Shimonoseki constituted an allusion to America's return of the indemnity growing out of the Shimonoseki bombardment incident in 1864.

MUSKOGEE (Okla.) Sept. 14.—What is said to be the first kidnaping policy ever issued by an American insurance company was delivered today to B. Frank Wood, president of an oil company here. The policy is for $15,000 and insures his daughters from kidnaping.

LEBANON STATE IS PROCLAIMED.

Beirut is Seat of New Government Set Out by Gen. Gouraud.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

PARIS, Sept. 3.—Proclamation of the new state of Lebanon was made at Beirut on September 1 by Gen. Gouraud, French high commissioner for Syria. The new state will be bounded on the north by the River Kebir, from which it will extend southward to the frontier of Palestine. Its eastern boundary is fixed along the hills to the east of Lebanon.

Beirut is named the seat of the government, which has been granted administrative autonomy. The national flag will be the French colors, with the cedar of Lebanon on the white part of the banner.

DRUGLESS HEALERS ASK DELAY.

Chiropractors Now Facing Prosecution Would Wait Election Verdict.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 4. — One hundred and twenty-five chiropractors from all parts of Californir waited on Acting Governor C. C. Young today and asked that prosecution of members of their profession on charges of practicing without a license be suspended by the State Board of Medical Examiners until after the November election. Mr. Young informed the delegation he would pass on their request to Gov. Stephens upon his return from Marion, C.

An initiative measure that would create a board of chiropractic examiners will be voted on in November.

A. W. Richardson, president of the California Chiropractic College, San Francisco, who acted as spokesman for the delegation, said it was impossible for chiropractors to obtain a license to practice in California.

"The law provided that to get a license a chiropractor must have a diploma issued by a college approved by the Board of Medical Examiners. As there are no drugless schools approved by the board, chiropractors are refused a license. Those who practice without a license are arrested," he said.

The step taken by the executive is commented upon with unanimous approval by the newspapers.

Army Chief Whose Strategy Turned Tide

[Copyright, Keystone View Company.]

Gen. Joseph Haller.

The above photograph was taken in Gen. Haller's headquarters in the north of Poland when his army was being beaten back by the Bolshevik hordes. Shortly afterward the tide of battle turned. Since then his forces have been driving ahead, at times facing stiff resistance, but never letting up in the heavy blows dealt the soviet armies.

NEW OFFENSIVE OPENED.

Gen. Wrangel, South Russian Anti-Bolshevik, Begins Drive.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 2.—Gen. Wrangel, head of the South Russian anti-Bolshevik government, has announced a new offensive in the regions of Orokov and Melitopol, north of the Sea of Azov, according to dispatches received here. It is said the soviet forces have been driven out of Novo Alexievna.

REDS CALL INFANTRY.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

WARSAW, Sept. 4. — Gen. Budenny, the Russian soviet cavalry leader, is bringing up infantry reinforcements, apparently designed to check the Polish successes northwest of Lemberg.

An official statement says Budenny's army is concentrating under cover of newly arrived infantry.

HOPING FOR PEACE.

According to present plans, the Polish peace delegates hope to start about September 9 for Riga to resume negotiations with the Russians.

It is understood the delegation which will go to Riga is virtually the same which met the soviet representatives at Minsk.

Diplomatic circles are more hopeful than at any time since the beginning of the negotiations that at least an armistice will be the outcome of the conference.

LOOKING FOR TRADE.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

MOSCOW, Aug. 29.—Santeri Nuorteva, until recently in the United States as secretary to Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, "Russian soviet Ambassador to the United States," has been given charge of a recently organized department of the Foreign Office, the object of which is to furnish assistance and information to representatives of American and British firms desiring to do business in Russia.

This department will deal with commercial and political problems arising from trade relations with Great Britain and the United States.

An important deal for construction of refrigerating apparatus is reported to have been closed with a representative of a Chicago packing concern now in Moscow. Negotiations are said to be almost completed for the sale of large quantities of manganese and furs in America.

PLANS MISCARRY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Industrial disorganization has prevented the Russian soviet government from carrying out more than a small part of the 1920 program for mining gold and platinum in the Ural and West Siberian regions, according to official advices received by the State Department today.

The report said strenuous efforts were being made to bring about the return of workmen who left during the Kolchak retreat. A shortage of 23,000 men was reported.

The 1920 program, it was stated, contemplated production of 4000 pounds of gold and 3500 pounds of platinum.

DISCUSSION NOT ENDED.

Although it was said today at the State Department that no immediate reply was contemplated to the notes received from the Polish government in connection with the correspondence over the Russian-Polish situation, officials do not believe the last word has yet been said in the discussion.

It was intimated that the American government was not inclined to press its point on a matter requiring poise and calm reflection at a time when Polish officials are fully occupied with military measures.

"Sure. I'll Fly to Help G.O.P." Says Roosevelt.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—"Sure I'll fly and be delighted to do it," said Lieut.-Col. Theodore Roosevelt at Republican National Committee headquarters in Chicago when he was told that the citizens of Okmulgee, Okla., were extremely anxious to have him speak there.

Capt. Victor Heintz, assistant to Chairman Will H. Hays of the Republican National Committee in Chicago, received a telegram from the Republican officials in Okmulgee asking that Col. Roosevelt address them on his forthcoming trip with Raymond Robins to the West. The original tour provided for speeches in Tulsa, Okla., Tuesday afternoon, September 8, and Wichita, Kan., September 9. Okmulgee is south of Tulsa, and on account of train connections it was impossible to visit that city.

"If you will have Col. Roosevelt come," wired the Okmulgee Republicans, "we will provide him with a fine Curtis Oriole machine. He can leave for Tulsa after his afternoon meeting and be in Wichita in plenty of time for his speech next day."

Col. Roosevelt today canceled a speaking engagement at the Hamilton Club because, he said, he could not speak in Chicago without saying what he thought of Mayor William Hale Thompson and the Republican National Committee had requested him not to take sides in the State factional primary fight.

The late Theodore Roosevelt once refused to speak at the same club because William Lorimer was on the list of invited guests, but Lorimer's invitation was withdrawn and Roosevelt spoke.

LIKE FEAST OF WOLVES.

Haggard Humans Bear Burden of Rags, Filth, Hunger and Cold.

Correspondent Tells Inside Facts Regarding Rule of Bolsheviki.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

[Since the Bolsheviki seized control the vast Russian empire has been virtually inaccessible to newspaper correspondents. There is no record of any unprejudiced writer ever penetrating into the interior of Russia and reporting what has been the actual effect of communism on the real people, the mujiks. What has been so inaccessible now, however, has been brought to the windows of western civilization and Mr. Gibbons is the first writer to give America a clear view of retrogression of the human race under Bolshevism.]

BY FLOYD P. GIBBONS.

AYRS (East Prussia) Sept. 4. Forty thousand haggard humans bearing their burden of rags, vermin, mud, filth, hunger, cold, disease and despair—this is the blight of near-life that is crowded into three square miles of green hillside and pine groves on the edge of this town.

When the Poles valiantly drove northward into the face of their Russian foes they accomplished more than a military victory when they annihilated the entire Red Fourth Army. Greater, they expelled into the light and vision of the western world 40,000 examples of what a human being looks and acts like after she or he has submitted to Bolshevism as idealistically practiced in Russia. In all of the refugee camps along the East Prussian frontier western civilization has an opportunity to see that rarest of varieties—propaganda truthful and uninternational.

COMMUNITY OF MISERY.

Here is real communism—the leveling of estates and conditions—a community of misery in which the bottom rung of desperation has been touched by all alike—in which there appears to be an equality for all in the common sharing of all the ills, troubles, discomforts and hopelessness to the exclusion of all things that man is presumed to desire for himself and his brothers. Taking these interned prisoners as a representative delegation from the land of the soviet, the unflaunted, unprinted banner they carry blazes no other slogan than "disorder, confusion and chaos."

The camp here is the concentration point for the smaller ones in the vicinity. Before the war this camp site was used as a maneuver grounds across which the Kaiser moved his divisions in mock attack. During the war it was used as a training camp where the younger classes were taught trench digging, dugout construction and the methods of modern attack. Today this expanse, once so orderly as a national park, now literally seethes with the scum of Asia, ill fed, unkempt dupes of the Red regime.

SKIES LEADEN GRAY.

The skies over this scene are leaden gray. There is a wet wind off the Baltic and there is a mean drizzle of cold rain. Thousands of wisps of smoke are rising from the miserable small fires of green wood. Underfoot, a sea of mud is churned up by the ceaseless moving of the prisoners.

All types of Asiatics are here. Pock-marked Chinks with sleepy eyes leering out from under bulky fur hats. Volga fishermen with heads bare. Swarthy Jewish faces with cigarets limply projecting from thick lips. Northern boys with long straight golden hair and blond eyebrows. East Indians, Caucasians, Ukranians, Siberians, Tartars, Mongols, with raggedness as the only uniformity in their varied costuming, all go to make up this congress of anarchy.

A walk through the camp leaves one with the individual impression of wet matted hair growing far down on brows, beneath which peer eyes of fanatical brightness. Hands, with talonlike claws are scratching the earth for roots or tearing the flesh from the carcass of some dead horse. Broad, flat, stumpy feet, with gnarled toes protruding from dirty bandages, squash through the black mud. And from all rises a babel of hundreds of dialects.

GUARDED BY TROOPS.

Two thousand orderly Prussian burghers, with the law's "verboten" as their bible, live next to this confused mass, while 2000 German troops with polished boots, buttons and leathers, endeavor to restrict the visitors to the confines of the camp. A complete enumeration of the camp and its contents has been impossible up to date, but the German general, Ehrhart, who is commanding, estimates the number between 40,000 and 50,000 men.

The number of horses is unknown. The animals are running at large over the entire country. I saw one German farmer with a whip trying to drive these horses from his fields and gardens. Along the roads everybody is leading one or two horses. The Reds are selling some for as low as 200 marks, but apparently anybody can have as many as they want by simply haltering and leading them off. The Germans are unable to separate the horses stolen from the Polish farms, the return of which has been demanded, from the Russian ponies. The present plan is to ship as many as possible to the interior of Germany for work on the farms until their ownership can be settled.

RED REVOLUTION SWEEPS ITALY.

Important Cities of Country and Great Plants are Seized by Workmen, London and Paris Hears; Government's Soldiers are Balking.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, Sept. 4.—A Red revolution on a large scale is reported to have broken out in Italy. Most of the leading cities have been seized by the revolutionary forces, according to advices received here. The Italian merchant marine is said to have been confiscated. The Reds apparently seized control all over the country and the coup d'etat is reported to have been well done.

BOLSHEVISM RAGING.

By Henry Wales.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, Sept. 4.—Bolshevism is engulfing all Italy and is threatening to establish itself in power and overthrow the government, according to advices received today by the French Foreign Office from expert observers in the principal Italian cities.

The French government is alarmed over the conditions in Italy and the impotency of the Italian government to restore order and deal with workers. Gravest fears are entertained over the development of the outbreak, which is expected to move swiftly.

Today was pay day throughout Italy. Reports arriving in Paris this afternoon indicate that the unpaid workers are in ugly temper and are either demonstrating or threatening violence tonight in many cities.

GOVERNMENT POWERLESS.

So far there has been little bloodshed anywhere, but the reason for this is significant—because the government is powerless to take action, as the troops and police are making no attempt to protect property and are permitting the workmen to seize factories and to commandeer foodstuffs.

Milan, Turin, Bologna, Genoa and Naples are hotbeds of Bolshevism, and the movement is taking root in Rome. Practically all the factories have been closed in these cities or are believed to be operated by workers, who have strung high voltage electric wires around the plants and are barring entry to all outsiders. Former superintendents and proprietors are being held as hostages.

EXPERTS KIDNAPED.

Engineers and expert specialists have been kidnaped from their homes by laborers in some places, dragged by force to the factories and forced to keep the plants in operation, the workmen declaring that they will divide the profits among themselves.

At Genoa Bolshevik longshoremen headed by Capt. Gioiatte seized all the shipping in the harbor and announced they would mount cannon anu bombard any warships attempting to enter the port.

ARSENAL SEIZED.

The arsenal was seized at Venice, the workmen distributing among themselves rifles and ammunition. Half a dozen members of the board of directors of the automobile factories at Milan were imprisoned in the factory as hostages to be held until payment of the men's salaries was guaranteed.

The workmen at Turin completed twenty-four automobiles in the Fiat factory and announced they would sell the machines and divide the money unless their wages were paid this evening.

SOVIETS SET UP.

Miniature soviets have been established in about 100 former munitions factories, now utilized as commercial plants, which the workmen seized with the announcement that they would operate them themselves.

Many silk factories are included in the list, but none has any reserve of raw silk on hand. Trouble is expected when the present stock is depleted.

The Paris Bourse is closed on Saturdays, but the banks are unwilling to buy lire at any price. A sharp decline is expected Monday.

Railway communication has not been interfered with, but the workmen intend to tie up the traffic if the government attempts to send troops in any direction.

The army and navy are reported to be thoroughly in sympathy with the Bolshevist movement. Premier Nitti's policy of seeking the support of the revolutionaries and espousing the cause of soviet Russia is blamed in French official circles for the present outbreak.

ONE DIES IN CLASH.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MILAN, Sept. 4.—In the storming of factories in Genoa today workmen came into conflict with the royal guard stationed inside. One man was killed and six others were wounded.

A night attempt on the part of the police to enter the Fiat-Lingotto works in Turin to remove machine guns was frustrated by the defenders with revolvers and hand bombs.

Dissensions have arisen among the metallurgical workers of Rome as to the opportune line of action, but in Palermo, Naples, Spezia, San Pier d'Arena (a suburb of Genoa,) Savonia, Alessandria and Bergamon nearly all the important establishments have been occupied more or less peacefully by workmen flying Communist banners.

Preparations have been made for taking over those in Florence tomorrow.

MACSWINEY IS WEAKER.

Wife of Cork's Lord Mayor Appeals to Wilson; British Give Irish Views.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LONDON, Sept. 4.—The condition of Lord Mayor MacSwiney of Cork was tonight described as critical. He was in the last state of weakness and unable to talk, but was conscious and his will power still strong. His wife left him at 7 o'clock this evening, apparently deeply anxious.

Annie MacSwiney, the Lord Mayor's sister, on leaving Brixton jail at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, said her brother was at his very lowest.

APPEAL TO WILSON.

Mrs. MacSwiney has sent a cablegram to President Wilson in behalf of her husband, Lord Mayor of Wilson to "use your influence with Wilson to "use yur influence with the English government to prevent the perpetration of an outrage on civilization." She declares her husband is dying.

Mayor MacSwiney apparently was weaker this morning. The prison doctors expressed great alarm.

Senator Harding and Gov. Cox today were asked by the American Commission for Irish Independence to cable Premier Lloyd George of England a protest against allowing Terence MacSwiney to die.

EMBASSIES VISITED.

Mrs. MacSwiney and the Lord Mayor's sister, Mary, today called at the American, French, Spanish, Italian and Belgian Embassies to ask them to make urgent representations to their governments. None of the ambassadors was in town. The Belgian Secretary alone was found, and promised he would report Mayor MacSwiney's case to the Ambassador on his return.

GOVERNMENT'S VIEW.

The reasons why the government will not release Lord Mayor MacSwiney of Cork are given on an official statement issued today. They are that fresh attempts would be made to "continue with added activity the long series of murders of policemen," and "would open the way to any person imprisoned for any similar offense to use the case of the Lord Mayor as a precedent with good hopes of securing release and the opportunity to repeat the acts which led to his incarceration."

CAMPAIGN NEEDLESS.

The statement continues:

"Unless the object of the Lord Mayor and his associates is to secure the secession of Ireland—in which case no compromise between them and the British government is possible—the sufferings of the Lord Mayor, together with the whole campaign conducted by him and his associates of violent usurpation of the machinery of the government of Ireland are entirely unnecessary."

It is pointed out that "the government has not only presented to Parliament a measure conferring on Ireland a degree of self-determination in advance of any scheme proposed or accepted by the elected representatives of Ireland in the past, but the Premier has declared explicitly his willingness to discuss with any body which can claim to represent Irish opinion any proposals they put forward, so long as these proposals include separate treatment for Ulster and do not involve the secession of Ireland from the United Kingdom or risk the security of these islands in time of war."

BELFAST IS QUIET.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

BELFAST, Sept. 4.—Belfast continued quiet today and for the present further trouble is not expected. Another contingent of soldiers and several pieces of field artillery have arrived from England. The military authorities are taking precautions to prevent resumption of the rioting.

In recently disturbed areas soldiers are on watch with machine guns. No efforts have been made to remove the piles of stones and bricks placed at convenient intervals in the streets by the opposing factions.

The correspondent was informed that the authorities fear a renewal of the trouble if any attempt is made to take away these "missiles of denfense."

MEETINGS PROHIBITED.

A football match and public meetings scheduled today were prohibited, in line with the policy not to permit crowds to assemble. A number of mills and factories which were closed because of the disorders will resume operations Monday.

A delegation of shipbuilders will go to London Tuesday to urge Mr. Bonar Law to grant ship workers permission to go armed to and from the plants unless the government can guarantee the men protection from attack.

William Connolly, a recently returned Irish-American, has been detained in connection with the murder of William McDowell, the driver of a motor car which was attacked by armed men yesterday while carrying the wages of factory workers.

FRENCH STOP DUFFY.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

PARIS, Sept. 4.—George Cavan Duffy, "ambassador of the Irish republic to France," was informed by an agent of the Department of the Interior yesterday that his activities as propagandist for the Irish republic had reached a point where further tolerance of his work here might be regarded as unfriendly to Great Britain.

Duffy replied that he would leave France, thus obviating the necessity of a decree of expulsion. He was informed the French government had no objection to him personally, and that it would not object to his return here in a purely private capacity.

LEGION CABLES PREMIER.

The loyal coalition announced today that it had sent a cable to Premier Lloyd George asking him to ignore a message from Mayor Hylan of New York, urging the release of Lord Mayor MacSwiney. The society asserted that the Mayor did not represent any considerable body of citizens. The society has been actively oposed to the Sinn Fein.

MODERATES MAKE PLEA.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

DUBLIN, Sept. 4.—The standing committee of the conference of Irish Moderates, convened here recently to settle the Irish question by agreement, today sent the following telegram to Premier Lloyd George:

"Once more, while there is yet time, we implore you in the name of the Irish peace which you invoked our aid to secure, and in the name of common humanity outraged by the spectacle of the law demanding its pound of flesh, to order forthwith the release of the Lord Mayor of Cork."

ACTING MAYOR CABLES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BOSTON, Sept. 4.—James T. Moriarity, president of the City Council, as Acting Mayor of the city, today sent to Premier Lloyd George of England the following cable message regarding the hunger strike of Lord Mayor MacSwiney of Cork:

"Overwhelming sentiment citizens of Boston that Mayor MacSwiney's death would be crime against civilization, and repudiation of every principle for which the great World War was fought."

ACTION VOLUNTARY.

The Foreign Ministry announces that France's action in inviting George Gavan Duffy to leave France was entirely voluntary, the British government not having made any representations.

UNDERFED TOTS CALL "STRIKE" THAT CLOSES IN MERRY ROMP.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—So much newspaper space was devoted to the B.R.T. strike here yesterday that news of a smaller, though no less significant, strike did not get into print. It was a children's strike—boys and girls walking out to emphasize their demands. They were striking against disease and darkness and crowded city conditions which poison the existence of youngsters born for brightness and a fair chance for existence.

Like those of grown-up strikers, their demands were printed on placards which they carried in their demonstration. The banners read: "We must have fresh air, sunshine, play and exercise; more open schools, health and happiness; we want hot school lunches and the like."

The agitators were not accused of Bolshevism. Officials of the New York Tuberculosis Association were responsible for this strike and they qualified as walking delegates at the side of the procession of children as it wound from the exhibit of the Tuberculosis Association at 150 Third avenue up to Central Park.

But most of the children being small and many of them frail and undernourished, auto busses were provided for the greater part of them.

When the park was reached some of the boys and girls, dressed in overalls, mounted boxes and shouted their demands for sunshine and play, cleanliness and plenty of milk.

After the meeting the delegates adjourned to merry-go-rounds and romped on the grass. Chorus singing, dancing and ice cream and cake helped pass the afternoon.

CRUISER PITTSBURG IS RECALLED FROM DANZIG.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—The United States cruiser Pittsburg, recently sent from French waters to Danzig because of disorders at that port, has been recalled to her station. State Department officials said today that restoration of order at Danzig had made presence of the warship unnecessary.

STATE PRINTERS RETURN TO WORK

Johnson is to be Tried for Insubordination.

Telfer Ready to Disprove Charges, He Says.

Hearings by Board of Control to Begin Soon.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 4.—One hundred and fifty employees of the State Printing Department, who walked out Thursday, causing a complete tie-up, returned to work this morning. This followed a favorable vote last night when it also was decided each employee would contribute one day's pay every two weeks to a fund for Carlston Johnson, head of the proofroom, whose suspension caused the walkout.

Johnson, as "attorney for the employees," had signed a communication to the Governor, charging lax methods in the printing department and making personal charges against Robert Telfer, State Printer. Johnson will be given a hearing before the State Civil Service Commission on charges of insubordination preferred by Telfer.

PRINTING IS DELAYED.

At the meeting last night Johnson urged the workers to return "out of loyalty to the State." Supplies for the November election were tied up by the walkout and quantities of printed material for the California State fair, which opened today, were delayed.

Hearing of charges made by Johnson against Telfer will start next week. Clyde L. Seavey and H. Stanley Benedict, members of the State Board of Control, sent notices to Telfer and Johnson today to present immediately to the board names of their witnesses.

"Just as soon as names and addresses of witnesses for both sides are in our hands," Mr. Seavey said, "witnesses will be subpoenaed and hearings started at once. If it is possible, the investigation will commence next Tuesday morning. It will be impossible to start Monday as that is a holiday."

TELFER IS READY.

Telfer today denied he would resign and added "I would be a coward to quit under fire." Three times during his tenure as State Printer he has tendered verbally his resignation, Telfer said, but each time was urged by Gov. Johnson and later by Gov. Stephens to remain.

Charges of improper acts by employees of the bill room with knowledge of the State Printer during the 1919 legislative session will be wholly disproved by the investigation before the State Board of Control, Telfer declared.

cavalry divisions have been identified. German agents working among the prisoners report that 90 per cent of them are non-Bolshevik, but these are prevented from asserting themselves by the secret Communist spy system which enforces authority by terror.

Most all of the Russians carry a red enameled star pinned on their hat, while some wear on their left shoulder a brass wreathed red star with a reproduction of a plough and sledge hammer. Several units have established headquarters in stables where Red officers hold forth, but there is no Russian management apparent.

The Germans issued 57,000 rations in camp today. Long lines were standing in the rain and mud in the front of the distributing huts. I saw several haggard women, thin, wild-looking creatures, wearing gaudy pins of green and white, standing bareheaded in the lines, seemingly entirely ignored by the crowding and eager men in the lines. The prisoners carried old tin cans in which they received their soup. There are numerous disorderly elements among the crowd, as evidenced by frequent clashes and knife duels over food. The food is prepared by each individual over fires which are built in the mud.

SIGN OF BOLSHEVISM.

One symbol of Bolshevism was shown in the act of a simple-faced mujik, who was designated to obtain firewood from near-by trees, but who, instead, took a wheel off a fine military wagon and by hard work hacked the wood away from the ironwork and made a fire of it. The ground was strewn with the iron skeletons of wagons from which all the woodwork had been sonsummed. Each wagon once represented the skillful toil of a worker and as such undoubtedly appealed more to the Bolshevik as more suitable for destruction than firewood in the forest.

Peering over the shoulders of a circular group, bending over some object, I saw that they were engaged in attacking the body of a horse which just had died, as was evidenced by the steam arising from the rain-soaked flanks. The men and women went at the body, some with knives, more with their bare hands, tearing the meat away in chunks. It looked like a feast of wolves.

Returning half an hour later, we found nothing was left but the cleaned red and white skeleton lying in the tramped mud circle of bones and the hide. Swarthy men, squatted on their haunches, were holding strips of red flesh on sticks over the fire.

In a field which once held a potato crop, hundreds of others poked and scratched in the soil, occasionally finding an overlooked tuber which promptly was grabbed and hidden in the inside pocket. Extremity seems to have the effect of establishing a covetous theory of private ownership even among Communists. Barter and trade goes on garrulously over the fences surrounding the camp.

The Germans are not averse to trading sugar, coffee, cakes and money for precious stones, jewelry and household articles looted from the fallen and from farmhouses and city homes during the Polish invasion. The questionable origin of these valuables was not considered.

NOTHING MORE TO LOSE.

The attitude of the prisoners is mostly one of resignation to their fate. They have nothing more to lose. Disillusionment is dawning on most of them. Others simply are sick and fed up on war.

One disgusted Moscow workman said this was his second time advancing with an army into Germany and that he was through with war forever. He wanted only peace, a place to work and to keep his family, and to spend the rest of his life in quiet.

The Germans are unable to prevent any groups of these prisoners from leaving camp almost at will. The roads of the near-by country are dotted with bunches of from three to ten Bolsheviki plodding along carrying bundles or riding horses.

German farm wives are locking their homes securely at night and the farmers are guarding their barns against this visitation of a people from a land where private property is not supposed to exist.

The present plan for handling the motley problem calls for transhipment of all interned prisoners to camps farther north in East Prussia and some to be taken by sea around the Polish corridor into Germany proper, where they will be held once more in camps. It is believed German workmen will fight any plan on the part of the German government to put these prisoners out of work, which would have a tendency to increase the already general dissatisfaction.

government has been notified of France's position in Duffy's case and that the action of the French apparently meets with its aproval. The paper adds that the incident which provoked action occurred when Duffy communicated to the French press a letter he had written to Premier Millerand asking the Premier to intercede with the British government to obtain the release of Lord Mayor MacSwiney.

The newspaper remarks that "it does not seem that the American government has yet adopted the same policy as France, although the activities of Irish propagandists in America are more intense than those of Duffy."

PIER IS GUARDED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Police and special guards were thrown around the White Star Line piers here today prior to sailing at noon of the steamer Baltic, at which a demonstration was made a week ago by Irish-American women pickets and 4000 longshoremen.

Women pickets in front of the Baltic's berth carried banners protesting against British imprisonment of Terence MacSwiney, Lord Mayor of Cork, and the removal from the ship of Archbishop Mannix by British authorities.

Sir Thomas Lipton sailed on the Baltic, bidding another good-bye to America and reiterating that he would challenge again for the America's cup.

Sir Thomas received a letter of adieu from the Mutual Welfare League of Sing Sing prison, which the Irish baronet recently visited, assuring him that "the doors of the prison always will be open to you, welcoming your return to America."

A party of Irish-American women pickets accompanied the Baltic down the harbor in a tug, giving the big liner a wide berth.

Off the Battery the Baltic stopped and took on board from a lighter seventy-five men recruited to fill gaps in her crew caused by failure of firemen and seamen to report for duty before she sailed.

DISMISSED POLICE CAPTAIN WINS SUIT.

COURT DECLINES TO REVIEW WRIT OF MANDAMUS IN OAKLAND CASE.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 4.—The right of Capt. Walter J. Peterson of the Oakland police department, to be restored to his position following his dismissal by the Commissioner of Public Health and Safety, was upheld by the State Supreme Court here today when it declined to review a writ of mandamus which returned Peterson to his post. The writ was secured by Peterson in the District Court of Appeals and it was then taken to the Supreme Court by his opponents, who sought a writ of review.

Peterson held that the action of the commissioner was based on bias and was in contradiction of civil service statutes under which the police department operates. He was former chief of the department. His dismissal followed charges of insubordination.

While chief, Peterson secured a leave of absence to enter the army during the World War. He served as captain in charge of the military policing at Bordeaux.

Railway Official Suing for Many Millions Because of Revolution.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

TORONTO, Sept. 4.—An order rendered today by Justice Middleton approves the action of R. Homer Smith, receiver for the Mexican Northwestern Railway, Ltd., in filing a claim for $5,000,000 gold against the Mexican government for all damages to the road during revolutionary disturbances. The claim was filed with the commission appointed by a decree of the Mexican government in 1917. Smith was appointed receiver for the road in 1914, in an action by certain bondholders to enforce a mortgage.

The receiver, after communicating with Ottawa and the British Embassy at Washington, accepted the advice of Louis Riba, company's attorney in El Paso, and filed the claim.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 4.—Revolutionary activity by followers of Felix Diaz has been begun in the vicinity of Misantla, State of Vera Cruz, according to press dispatches. This action was taken following a promise from Provisional President De la Huerta to intervene and assure a just settlement of the controversy.

THOUSANDS STARVING IN INDIA.

Economic Conditions Worst in 45 Years, Says Missionaries' Report.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Economic conditions in India are the worst in the past forty-five years, according to a survey by the American Baptist Foreign missionary society, made public today.

The report describes a state of unrest, with political and social disorders such as India has not known for centuries, if ever.

"Conditions in South India have equalled the worst ever known to the inhabitants of that poverty-stricken country," it continues.

"Our mission stations, besieged day and night by throngs of hungry people crying for food, were able to offer but slight aid, the appeal was so great. Men and women through sheer weakness staggered about like drunken people. Suffering was intensified by lack of drinking water, while an epidemic of cholera took great toll of human life.

"Historic old shade trees were stripped of all foliage to provide fodder for the cattle. In ordinary times the lopping off of a single branch of one of these would have been considered a crime.

Women in Three States May Lose Right to Vote.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Louisiana, New Jersey and Mississippi are the only States in which women may find themselves unable to vote in the coming general elections, according to suffrage leaders here. All other States were said to have either officially held that adequate provisions for this purpose already were on their statute books or to have arranged for passage of enabling legislation.

Atty.-Gen. Roberson of Mississippi has written the National Woman's party headquarters that the State constitution requirement of registration at least four months prior to an election precluded any hope of women voting in that State.

The party leaders said they had received no replies from the attorney-generals of Louisiana and New Jersey to requests regarding the status of women voters.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 4.—The Attorney-General of Louisiana has ruled that no additional legislation is required to permit women to vote in the Presidential election in Louisiana.

CHARLESTON (W. Va.) Sept. 4. A call for a special session of the West Virginia Legislature to assemble on September 14 to amend registration and election laws so that women of the State may vote in November is issued Monday, Gov. Cornwell announced tonight.

NEWARK, Sept. 4. — The statement of suffrage leaders in Washington that New Jersey is one of the few States in which women may find themselves unable to vote at coming general elections, is erroneous, Atty.-Gen. McCran announced tonight. In this State, he said, women will be privileged to register and vote at coming elections on exactly the same basis as men.

PASADENA BOY IN TEXAS JAIL.

Sixteen-Year-Old Lad Makes Bond Theft Admissions.

Arrested With Comely Woman About Twice His Age.

Police Think Her Story of Hold-up Was "Framed."

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

FT. WORTH (Texas) Sept. 4.—Following disclosures made to the police by Reginald Cruse, 16-year-old Pasadena boy, who was in the company of Mrs. Margaret E. Orr Friday night when she says she was attacked and robbed of $1100 by footpads, both Cruse and the woman were arrested here by Federal authorities late today. They were taken before the United States Commissioner to answer a charge of illegally disposing of Liberty Bonds. Mrs. Orr waived examination and was held under $2000 bond.

The examination of Cruse was postponed until tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock to await word from his home in California. His guardian, who the authorities say is a prominent Pasadena banker, was at once communicated with and it is expected that he will take charge of his defense. In default of a $2000 bond the boy was ordered held in the juvenile ward at the County Jail.

Police declare the case to be one of the strangest in Ft. Worth criminal annals. Cruse is only sixteen years of age and a cripple and is still wearing knee trousers.

Mrs. Orr is a woman in her thirties and is said to have a son twelve years of age. She is quite attractive and was dressed fashionably when brought to the Federal Building.

She reported to the police last night the facts of the supposed hold-up, saying she was knocked to the ground by a blow from behind and her pocket-book was seized in the melee. It contained a $500 Liberty Bond, a $50 check and between $500 and $600 in currency, she said.

Mrs. Orr's story was corroborated this far by young Cruse. Neither of them, however, was able to furnish a description of the assailant. The woman accounted for the fact of having so much currency about her by stating that she was unable to lock her house securely and was afraid to leave it there during her absence.

Detectives who handled the case were not satisfied with the seeming facts of the hold-up. Young Cruse was taken to detective headquarters again and after a short examination disclosed his connection with the case. He told the detective he had left his home in Pasadena several weeks ago, taking with him $3000 in Liberty Bonds which belonged to his grandmother, Mrs. M. Cruse. The grandmother at the time was very sick, he said.

On the boat going to San Francisco he met Mrs. Orr, he declared. She was good to him from the start, he told the detectives, and he soon agreed to come with her to Ft. Worth. In the meantime, however, he had turned $2000 in bonds over to certain relatives he asserts. One of the remaining bonds was sold in California, to provide funds for the trip to Ft. Worth and the other was disposed of in Dallas several days ago, according to the boy's story, the money being turned over to Mrs. Orr.

SUSPICIONS COME.

"Mrs. Orr was always kind to me," Cruse told the detectives. "She would never let me be away from her, but I never minded that because she always treated me nice."

The boy had no suspicion concerning the hold-up until Saturday morning. He began to lose faith in Mrs. Orr when she gave him $75 and told him he had better get out of town as soon as possible, he declared. He had the money when taken to the station.

"I decided then that I had better make a clean breast of the whole thing," he said.

The police are looking for the man in the case, who is believed to have staged the hold-up. The boy says he has been living at Mrs. Orr's home since coming to Ft. Worth.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Harding and Coolidge will be elected by an overwhelming popular and electoral vote, according to canvasses made under direction of chairmen of Republican State committees in every State in the Union.

The canvass, which was made at the instance of Will H. Hays, while not completed in all States, has gone far enough to cause the officials at national headquarters to predict the election of Senator Harding and Gov. Coolidge by an electoral vote of 346 to 185 for Cox and Roosevelt.

The canvass made in twenty Western States has been completed and six of them, which went Democratic four years ago, will go heavily for the Republican ticket this fall, the figures show.

SUBMARINE S-5 TO BE BUOYED.

Battleship Finds Towing is Impracticable.

Will Call in Wreckers to Save the Vessel.

Report of Accident Shows Bravery of Crew.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 4.—The thirty-seven members of the crew of the S-5, who were snatched from death by the narrowest margin from the sunken submarine early yesterday, arrived tonight aboard the destroyer Biddle at the Philadelphia navy yard. They were transferred from the battleship Ohio today.

Unofficial reports were that the men are suffering more or less from the chlorine gas they inhaled. Three are in the sick bay.

COURT IS HELD.

Lieut.-Commander Charles M. Cooke, Jr., commander of the S-5, is still aboard the Ohio where, it is understood, a naval court of inquiry is being held.

It was unofficially reported today the S-5 again broke away from the battleship Ohio, which was towing her, and sank in 150 feet of water some distance off the Delaware Capes.

VALVE FAILS.

The undersea boat went to the bottom off Cape Henlopen because a large air intake valve failed to close when the craft made a practice dive in navy parlance, a "crash dive." There were thirty-eight officers and enlisted men aboard. This was revealed in the official report of the accident made by the commander of the destroyer Beaver.

PLIGHT DESEPERATE.

Briefly, but revealing the desperate plight of the imprisoned men, the Beaver's report tells of the accident and the work of rescue.

It discloses that it was largely through the work of the imprisoned men under the direction of Lieut.-Commander Charles Cook, Jr., that they were saved, and that it was their own desperate efforts that attracted attention of the rescuing ships.

The crew learned that the stern of their ship was above water. Then, working as they never worked before, they gouged a small hole through the steel hull. To do this they climbed up the side of the ship standing at an angle of about 60 deg.

Through this hole they thrust a pole, a sailor's white undershirt tied to it, and wigwagged the signals of distress that were seen by the steamship Alanthus, the first vessel to pass, twenty-seven hours later. The report of the Beaver showed that the accident occurred at 2 p.m., Wednesday.

GOES TO BOTTOM.

With the boat at the bottom in 168 feet of water the men worked desperately. Some of the water was expelled and the stern rose slowly, but the storage batteries had been flooded, releasing chlorine fumes, the same gas that the Germans used in the World War.

The fumes drove the crew from the compartments. With the batteries flooded they presumably were forced to work practically in darkness, aided only by small flashlights.

The men worked in two-minute relays. They could not stand it for a longer period. The chlorine sank to the bow of the ship, but there was no fresh air and the oxygen was rapidly being exhausted.

Sweating and panting, the men worked at the hull. It was slow work, but finally a hole was made and a thin trickle of fresh air floated in.

FULL REPORT GIVEN.

The report is as follows:

"S-5 made quick dive for exercise 2 p.m., Wednesday. Large valve in air intake failed to close. Admitted large quantity of water to living spaces.

"Boat went to bottom in 165 feet of water. Got valve closed and expelled all water possible. Whereupon stern lifted barely out of water, bow on bottom, inclined down sixty degrees.

"Water ran into forward compartments. Storage batteries gave off strong chlorine fumes.

COMPARTMENT SEALED.

"Forward compartment vacated and sealed. Continued all possible efforts to expel water. No success. Chlorine also forced vacating control room after the thirty-eight officers and men crowded into two small machinery spaces aft and soon began to suffer from bad air.

"Finding stern just clear of water Lieut.-Commander Cooke and crew began drilling through with small hand drills. Very slow work. Could only work two minutes at a time, bad air.

"At 3 p.m. Thursday, steamship Alanthus saw submarine, came close, attention attracted by calling and waving through small hole by now through submarine. Made fast and hung to submarine until relieved Friday morning, no tools. Could not enlarge hole, but saved lives of crew by pumping air in with small water pump.

"Steamship Gen. Goethals next arrived. Her chief engineer clung to submarine stern. Worked small hand drill eight hours. Splendid work.

HOLE IS DRILLED.

"Finally got hole large enough at 3 a.m., Friday and all officers and crew escaped without permanent injury. All suffering from thirty-seven hours bad air. Some temporarily incapacitated. The captain and some others soon revived and began assisting in salvaging submarine.

"Naval vessels that started from Hampton Roads, Philadelphia, New York and New London, began arriving Friday morning. Ohio now attempting to tow S-5 inshore.

"Consider saving personnel was splendid feat. Slightest mistake after accident on part of officers would have resulted loss of some or all."

According to the crew of the destroyer Overton, which arrived at the Philadelphia Navy Yard tonight after having been sent to the scene, the accident was due to the negligence of some member of the crew. Officers of the Overton would say nothing, referring all inquiries to Washington, but all commented on the bravery of the officers and crew of the S-5.

BELIEVES SUFFRAGE LAW VALID.

Former President Declares Measure Was Legally Enacted by Tennessee Legislature; Declares Refugee Legislators Are Poor Losers.

BY WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT.

In the columns with which correspondents of leading newspapers have favored the public, describing the scenes in the houses of the Tennessee Legislature during the suffrage fight, we find only indefinite statements of the legal questions made, and very little review of the facts and the constitutional provisions upon which the validity of the ratification must depend. If correspondents would only add to the tears and shouts and other dramatic incidents some solid information as to the Tennessee constitution and its construction, so that one would not be obliged to spell this out, it would help intelligent consideration and comment.

The Tennessee Senate passed the resolution of ratification by a decisive majority. It was in the House where a contest was close. One can infer that the House of Representatives has ninety-nine members and that by the constitution the presence of sixty-six, or two-thirds of the whole, is necessary to make a quorum. With a quorum present in the House, a motion to table the resolution to ratify was lost by a tie vote of 48 to 48. Then the resolution was passed by a vote of 49 to 47, which by a change of vote of Mr. Walker, the Speaker, was made 50 to 46. There were only three members absent. Mr. Walker changed his vote in order to enable him, as one who voted for the resolution, to move to reconsider it. This he had to do within twenty-four hours. He made the motion in due time. Pending the motion, the officers of the House were forbidden by the rules of the House to certify the action of the House to the Senate, where the resolution originated.

ABSENCE OF QUORUM.

Mr. Walker did not bring up his resolution for two days, evidently because he could not secure the needed majority. After that time anyone could call up the resolution under the rules. The vote was taken and a motion to reconsider made on Wednesday. On Thursday and Friday nothing was done, as already said. On Saturday, the leader of the suffrage supporters called up the motion to reconsider and asked a vote upon it. An antisuffrage member suggested an absence of a quorum and the presence of only fifty-nine, seven less than a constitutional quorum, was disclosed. Mr. Walker, the Speaker, ruled that in the absence of a quorum of sixty-six, a mere majority of the House could not do business to consider the motion. The majority on appeal, overruled the Speaker. He called another member to the chair, who ruled with the majority, entertained the motion to reconsider and it was voted down by a vote of 50 to 7.

Then, by a viva voce vote, the officers of the House were directed to certify to the Senate that the resolution had passed the House. This was done. The officers of the Senate have completed the certificate to the Governor and the Governor has certified the passage of the resolution to the Secretary of State. Secretary Colby has acted on the Governor's certificate and proclaimed the amendment as ratified by thirty-six States and a part of the Constitution.

The leader of the suffrage forces contended that as the function was a Federal one the constitutional requirement that a quorum of the Legislature should be two-thirds was inapplicable to a vote upon a Federal amendment and that a majority was sufficient. One may venture to question such a proposition. The Legislature referred to in the Fifth, or amendment, Article of the Federal Constitution, is a legislative body created by the State constitution, and its provisions as to what the Legislature is are fundamental. Therefore, if the State constitution requires the presence of two-thirds of the members of the House to be a quorum for all business, that House is not capable of acting, under Article V of the Federal Constitution on amendment as part of the State Legislature until the required quorum is present.

CERTIFICATE IS VALID.

But this does not decide the question as to the passage of the resolution. The resolution did pass both houses with constitutional quorums present. The question of reconsideration and of certificate is merely a matter of rules.

By a viva voce vote the House directed the officers of the House to certify to the Senate that the House had passed the resolution. The record does not disclose whether at this vote a quorum was present or not. The presumption is that it was. Every intendment is taken against one attacking a record of this kind. Even if in so doing the House was breaking its own rules as to reconsideration and a certificate, it does not destroy the validity of the certificate.

Those who attack the record cannot deny the truth of the certificate that the resolution did pass the House and the Senate with constitutional quorums and constitutional majorities. Their complaint is that after a constitutional passage of the resolution there being a motion to reconsider and the rules of the House requiring a vote on it before its passage could be certified to the Senate, no valid vote was had on its reconsideration.

But these are merely rules of procedure that the House may suspend or ignore without violating any constitutional duty or limitation. Moreover, the certificate of the officers appointed by law to make such certificates, especially the Governor and the presiding officers of the two houses, is likely to be given conclusive weight by the Supreme Court of the United States. It has refused to permit the Journals of Congress, which showed clearly that the McKinley Tariff Bill did not pass both houses in the same form, to contradict and invalidate the certificate of the presiding officers of both houses and the signature of the President.

It has made the same ruling as to a territorial statute. It gave similar effect to such a certificate when it was contended that there was no quorum present to pass a bill because the roll call did not disclose by the answers of the members that a quorum was present and the clerk counted it.

ARE POOR LOSERS.

Thirty-six legislators went out of the State to avoid being brought into the House to make a quorum for the vote on reconsideration. This was a disgraceful and an anarchical method of opposing legitimate action by a minority of a legislative body. Every presumption and intendment which can be safely indulged should be used to defeat such a conspiracy. The curious provision that a quorum must be two-thirds of all the members of a House, although a majority may pass a bill, lends itself to such abuse. The history of the State shows that unscrupulous minorities of both parties have done what these antisuffragists have done. It should be a flaming lesson as to the demoralizing effect, as a precedent, of every flagrant defiance of lawful authority and every refusal to "play the game" of government according to rule. The legislative refugees in Decatur, Ala., are poor losers. In their desperation they are willing by a scaly trick to involve the whole country in the throes of dangerous uncertainty as to the result of a Presidential election. Fortunately they are likely to be entirely blocked in their scheme.

RAILROAD EXECUTIVES APPEAL TO ATTORNEY.

ALLEGE ORGANIZED SABOTAGE CAMPAIGN BEING WAGED BY STRIKING MEN.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—Railroad executives here today announced they had appealed to Dist.-Atty. Clyne to stop "an organized campaign of sabotage" by railroad strikers.

"Engines are being stolen almost nightly and turned loose to run wild through the yards; Thursday night an entire train was stolen; workers are being beaten and one was recently killed; families of workers are intimidated and rooming-house keepers have been threatened with having their places bombed if they harbor nonunion men," the rail chiefs charge.

Wednesday night a Rock Island engine was turned loose on the main track and a collision with a passenger train narrowly averted when a pursuing switch-engine crew succeeded in boarding the runaway.

The plan provides that the bituminous coal operators through a committee will pledge themselves to furnish sufficient quantities of coal to take care of domestic needs, which apporximately is one car daily to every 5000 population.

The plan will first be submitted to the Interestate Commerce Commissin, Atty.-Gen Palmer and district attorneys in the territory affected.

EUROPE BOILING WITH TROUBLES.

British Industrial Life is in a Very Bad Way.

Threats of Coal Miners Cause Apprehension.

Aims Are Political, Says Correspondent.

BY ARTHUR S. DRAPER.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, Sept. 4.—The European situation is more unsettled today than at any time since 1918, not excepting the weeks of the German revolution or the perilous days when the Bolsheviki were at the outskirts of Warsaw.

Politics and economics are so confused that it is almost impossible to say whether the unrest is due to a desire to seize control of the machinery of government or simply an effort of the masses to change industrial conditions.

The English industrial situation is a case in point. Within the next few days the country will learn whether its life is to be disrupted by a national strike or whether a compromise will be reached between the coal miners and the government.

FEELING AGAINST STRIKE.

The miners seek a reduction in the price of coal which will reduce the cost of living and an increase in their own wages. The first demand might be expected to win the sympathy of all classes, but national feeling is against a strike because of its paralyzing effect on industry generally.

Robert Smillie and some other British industrial leaders are working not only for better labor conditions, but for greater influence in political affairs. A few of these leaders are real revolutionaries who would have a change in the government, but the majority believe they must obtain their claims through constitutional methods.

Unquestionably there is much labor agitation in Europe today of a political rather than economic nature. To date the salvation of Great Britain has been the spirit of compromise existing in all classes. Fierce battles of words have been fought, but a solution of industrial problems has been generally found without resort to violence, or the destruction of the economic life of the nation.

In the last few months I have visited France, Italy, Germany, Czecho-Slovakia and Belgium, and have had opportunity to compare conditions in these countries with life in England. All over the continent the masses are living an artificial life. Cafes are crowded and and there is music and dancing everywhere. Prices are unbelievably high, but money seems plentiful.

Strikes, revolutionary meetings and Socialist parades are treated almost as if they were a normal part of the country's life. In Antwerp Socialist demonstrations drew more attention than the Olympic Games. In London, games between American and English athletes received newspaper notice second only to the threat of a national strike.

The clerk of the exchange bureau in Brussels explained his lack of francs on a Monday morning by saying that most of the company's funds had been deposited in bank vaults Saturday as a revolutionary attack had been feared on Sunday.

There is no such fear in London. Great Britain has plenty of trouble industrially, and other troubles in Ireland. India, France, Poland and Mesopotamia, but only extreme pessimists are seeing visions of revolution here. Nevertheless, a profoundly important movement is taking place. A year ago England had the railway strike which fizzled out. This September it is threatened with a more serious stoppage of industrial life.

Interest in the Polish situation has rather died down, largely because of serious developments within the United Kingdom, but still a watchful eye is being kept on the rest of Europe.

German statesmen are not missing any opportunity to take advantage of the Polish situation and the divergence in the policy of the Allies. Foreign Minister Von Simans made a speech in the Reichstag in which he said that Germany had rejected a tempting Bolshevist offer, intended for French consumption.

France and England are drawing a bit closer together in their attitude toward Poland, but it is France, not England, which is now altering its policy. Von Simons had the Geneva conference in mind when he made his speech, for the discussion will center around the question of reparation.

GERMANY SEEKS MERCY.

Germany is going to make a stiff fight against paying the full claims and the Foreign Minister thinks his argument will be stronger if he shows he has spurned an offer to fight on the side of one of France's enemies.

Apparently a more moderate official policy toward Germany is being followed now, proof of this being found in the satisfaction which the French have expressed over the German shipments of coal.

Despite the changed military situation the British are anxious for a speedy settlement between Poland and Russia.

A straight declaration of war, with a pitched battle between the king's soldiers and the supporters of a republic would be preferable to the fierce struggle now taking place in Ireland. Impartial observers think real war is now only a matter of a few weeks at the most, and that the first battle will be between the Catholics and the Protestants in Ulster.

Whatever the government does to Ireland or to Irishmen, it rouses indignation, not only among Sinn Feiners but among their sympathizers outside the country. The French are beginning to watch Ireland with the interest which America shows.

HAYS TOLD LIE IS COX CHARGE.

Falsified Under Oath, Says Democratic Nominee.

Alleges He has Exposed Plot to Buy Presidency.

Asks Opponent in Race to Answer Questions.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 4.—The direct charge that Will H. Hays, chairman of the Republican National Committee, had deliberately perpetrated a falsehood under oath at Chicago in denying statements regarding a campaign quota list, was made today by Gov. Cox, Democratic Presidential candidate, in an address at the State Fair grounds.

"I charge that there is a quota," said Gov. Cox, referring to the Senate committee's investigation. "And I charge that Mr. Hays deliberately perpetrated a falsehood under oath when he said there was not a quota."

Gov. Cox also declared that conference scheduled today at Marion, O., between Senator Harding and members of the Republican Ways and Means Committee, had ben called off because he, Gov. Cox, had "exposed the plot to buy the Presidency."

ASKS HARDING QUESTIONS.

Gov. Cox also asked Senator Harding some questions concerning his stand on the League of Nations. Calling attention to the Senator's speech of August 28 in which he said that Congress, technically, could keep the nation out of war, but morally could not do so, Gov. Cox said:

"Answer this, Senator Harding, yes or no, do you mean that you are opposed to our assuming any moral obligation in our international relation?"

"Then in the same speech you say: 'It is not uncommon for the advocates of the League of Versailles to contrast unfavorably The Hague tribunal, upon the ground that the tribunal lacks teeth. Very well, let's put teeth into it.' Please answer yes or no, in the face of your statement, to this question:

CRUX OF ARGUMENT.

"Does the putting of 'teeth' into it mean the assuming of an obligation to exert moral or physical force, or both?' In one part of your speech you say this nation will not be made to appear as a 'welcher' because no obligation will be assumed. How do you reconcile this with your program of putting 'teeth' into The Hague tribunal? This approaches the very crux of the whole argument, and the American people are entitled to know your mind. There can be no evasion. It was possible in the Senate for you to escape 1161 quorums and roll calls, but you cannot do it either as candidate or as President. You must answer yes or no. Executive duties, unlike legislative, make either absenteeism or clear evasion impossible."

To a rear platform crowd at Kenosha en route to Milwaukee, Gov. Cox asked the Kenoshans to vote "as the American soldiers shot—to end war."

BURY BEACH GUN VICTIM ON TUESDAY.

Two More Witnesses Found Who Verify Inquest Story of Shooting at Venice.

Funeral services for McCullough G. Graydon, the real estate dealer who was slain at Venice last Wednesday and for whose death two men and two women are held in the County Jail on murder charges, will be held at 2 o'clock next Tuesday afternoon at the undertaking parlors of Sharp and Sons, Twelfth and Flower streets. Dean MacCormack, rector of St. Paul's Pro-Cathedral, will officiate.

Investigators from the District Attorney's office and the Sheriff's office were combing Los Angeles and the Santa Monica Bay district for additional witnesses and information on the fatal shooting of Mr. Graydon. Their investigation was aided when two invalid women, witnesses to the struggle, told what they had heard and seen. The statements, Deputy Sheriff Anderson said, verified testimony given at the Coroner's inquest to the effect that Mrs. Maybelle Roe had fired the fatal shot.

Capt. Hunter, chief investigator from the District Attorney's office, left for Venice yesterday afternoon to search for the missing gun that killed Mr. Graydon. He left word that he would not return until tomorrow.

The hearing of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Doano, Oscar A. Bowers and Mrs. Harrigal, alias Mrs. Roe, was set yesterday by Justice Forbes for the 13th inst. They were arraigned yesterday morning.

FIND UNKNOWN MAN'S BODY; SKULL CRUSHED

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

LOS CERRILLOS (N. M.) Sept. 4.—The body of a man whose skull had been crushed, and who, papers in his pocket indicated, was either from Los Angeles or Philadelphia, has been brought hree from Domingo, forty miles south of here.

An envelope in one of his pockets bore the name of D. M. McBride, 767 Merchant street, Los Angeles, Cal. Other papers indicated that he was a member of the Knights of Columbus at Philadelphia.

Two grips filled with clothes of good quality were found near the body, but no money or other valuables were found.

The skull appeared to have been crushed by a heavy blow on the side of the head. The man apparently was about 55 years old.

Her Fits Stopped.

Mrs. Dellia Martin, a resident of Wurstboro, N. Y., writes that she stopped her fits with a free bottle of medicine which she read about in the paper. She says she has not had a fit since she took the first dose and that she wants every sufferer to know about this wonderful medicine and what it did for her. If you, a friend or relative suffer from these dreadful attacks, you are invited to send name and address at once to R. P. N. Isn't It Comforting to KNOW

That You Own the BEST?

Whatever it is that you own, you like to know that there is none better.

It is for this that men are willing to pay almost any premium.

But Thomas A. Edison has so provided that no one need pay any premium whatever to secure the very BEST phonograph.

The NEW EDISON

costs no more than a "talking machine."

But how much better it is than a "talking machine" was strongly demonstrated during the recent series of Tone Tests held under the auspices of the Fitzgerald Music Company, when Glen Ellison sang in direct comparison with the New Edison at Trinity Auditorium, and in Pasadena, Torrance, Long Beach and other surrounding cities.

To further prove the supremacy of the New Edison we invite you to hear the New Edison in your own home, and to ask other dealers to send any make of "talking machine" to your home for a comparison with the New Edison.

HARDING WILL AVOID ABUSE.

Puts Country Before Own or Party Interests.

Pays Heed to Building Up, Not Tearing Down.

Will Not Make False Appeals to Gain Votes.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MARION (O.) Sept. 4.—A determination to guard against "clamor, insincerity and abuse," in his campaign for the Presidency, was expressed by Senator Harding today in a talk to a marine band which serenaded his residence during a visit here on recruiting duty. The nominee said he felt it a duty to be tolerant of those who differ with him and not to drag the attention of the people "into the mire."

"As I see it," said Senator Harding, "I must not, as I seek to gain votes for my party, yield to the temptation which often comes to men who are candidates, to make false appeals which, though they might be successful at the moment, do not serve truth nor meet the requirements of our national dignity.

"As I see it, I must not drag the attention of the American people into a mire when it is their wholehearted desire that their attention should be centered upon the problems which we all wish to face bravely and wisely and together. As I see it, I must concentrate my attention upon construction and not upon abuse. As I see it I must be patient and tolerant with those Americans who may differ with me.

"As I see it, if I were to stoop to insincerity, to mere clamor, to political expediency, to appeals to special classes, I would be failing in that purpose which I trust shall always be mine; not my own interest; not even the interest of my party first, but America first."

The speech was delivered from the front porch in the midst of a busy day spent by the nominee in preparation of his Labor Day address. He conferred with Representative W. J. Burke of Pennsylvania, former official of the Order of Railway Conductors, and Daniel Winters of Pittsburg, former president of the National Window Glass Workers. Afterward both said they would support Harding and Coolidge wholeheartedly.

Mr. Winters declared Samuel Gompers could not deliver the labor vote to the Democratic ticket and that many thousands of laborers over the country would line up for Harding.

INCREASE SENATE LEAD.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Senator Poindexter, chairman of the Republican Senatorial Committee, issued a statement today upon his return to Washington from a Western tour declaring that the Republican majority after the November election would be certainly increased by two. "Excellent prospects," he added, existed for its increase by a total of seven.

Republican candidates for Senator in Idaho and Colorado, he predicted would win, while in Arizona, California, Nevada, Oregon and Kentucky, the committee also expected success.

"The people realize that the election of a Senator in any one State may determine possibly the control of the Senate," he said. "They are so indignant at the conduct of the present administration, whose policies Gov. Cox has pledged himself to follow, that there will be no doubt about the return of a Republican Senate.

"I have made a very careful examination of conditions in all of the States where the Senatorial election is at all uncertain, and upon this I feel satisfied that the Republicans will retain all of the States they now hold and gain several from the Democrats."

PRINCE DE BOURBON'S FILM PLANS CHECKED.

STOCK-SELLING PERMIT IS CALLED OFF: WASHINGTON SAYS HE'S NOT ROYAL.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 4.—State Corporation Commissioner E. C. Bellows has temporarily suspended the stock-selling permit issued to Prince Louis de Bourbon, who says he is a brother of King Alfonso XIII of Spain, as head of the Louis de Bourbon Film Corporation of Los Angeles, according to an announcement made by the Governor's office.

The stock permit was suspended by Mr. Bellows at the request of Secretary of State Colby, the Spanish Consulate at Washington, and Deputy Spanish Consul Arthur Brand at San Francisco. In letters to the Governor these officials declared the self-styled prince is masquerading under false colors.

Bellows will investigate De Bourbon and his company and if the charges are found to be true he will cancel the company's permit to sell 10,000 shares of stock at $50 a share.

Prince De Bourbon says that when his father was on his death bed he was brought before him and recognized as heir to the Spanish throne. Subsequently the present King was born and recognized as the lawful heir.

STRIP PRUSSIA OF HER POWER.

Decentralization Program of Germany Outlined.

First Plan is to Quell the Province's Arrogance.

Will Also Form States of Nation in One Union.

BY GEORGE SELDES.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BERLIN, Sept. 4.—The first results of the decentralization program outlined for the German empire, is the formation of a great Thuringen, thus doing away with a half dozen former small states and the union of Coburg with Bavaria. But more important is the plan to strip Prussia of its power, which at present sways the entire nation, and the smoothing of differences between the central government and Bavaria which will cure Germany's present so-called Irish problem.

The details of the national commission's work for the reorganization of Germany were given to me by the Ministry of the Interior's councilor, George Knisenberg, who said:

STATES' HOSTILITY.

"The troubles in Germany arise not from differences between the states, but from the hostility on the part of the states to the central government. There is the Rhineland country, for instance; there is Bavaria—there is Hanover and likewise component parts of Prussia who are not antagonistic to one another, but yet want to end the central dictatorship and assume greater self-government.

"That is exactly what the commission plans to achieve. Its members are sure that the present unrest in the Rhineland and Bavaria, especially will be cured when territorial and economic realignment becomes a fact.

DESIRE EXAGGERATED.

"I consider that the Bavarian desire to break away from Germany is exaggerated in foreign countries. Much had been made of the arrival of the French envoy, M. Dard, at Munich, who was sent according to the rights given France by the treaty of Versailles. But the Bavarian peoples party, which is in the majority, and President von Kuhr of Bavaria, although they received Minister Dard respectfully, refused to have any official dealings with him.

WILL DISAPPEAR.

"However, I can state that Bavarian differences, as well as the Rhineland's, arise out of their opposition to the central dictatorship and naturally they will disappear when the revolution is complete. Our greatest task is in Prussia. Upper Silesia surely will be given Statehood and we will hold plebiscites, where ever the people using the initiative and the referendum, as you do in certain parts of America, demand them."

MUST REMAIN REPUBLIC.

I asked Herr Knisenberg what he proposed to do in the case of Hanover, where there is a monarchistic movement.

"According to the German constitution every state within the republic must remain a republic," declared Knisenberg, "therefore neither Hanover nor Bavaria could proclaim a dukedom or principality. According to the treaty of Versailles, Germany must remain a republic, so you see it is a matter of putting our own house in better order and building up friendship between the members of the family instead of having distrust as at present.

"The reorganization commission consists of representatives of the government, business men, lawyers and workmen. Frequent meetings of the commission are planned to take place in Berlin, while the main work goes on in the various states. The next general session will take place in October, but it will take months, and perhaps a year before the plan is completed."

KIDS OF NINETY HAVE HIGH TIME

Main Attraction to Throngs at Old Folks' Picnic.

Century-Old Bridegroom Gives Secret of Youth.

Fife and Drum Furnish Tunes for Steps of Long Ago.

With a bright "1920 sun" smiling out of a blue California sky and the world-old aroma of coffee filling the air, "kids of 1820 and 1840 and thereabouts" frolicked under the sycamores at Sycamore Grove yesterday afternoon at the annual reunion of the Jolly Old Folks.

In every nook and corner of the old picnic stamping grounds groups of the "youngsters" gathered and talked of old times, the Civil War, and when "John and Mary kep' steady company in the old buckboard."

Of all the 6000 and more picnickers who gathered in the park hardly a face was to be seen which had not watched seventy-five summers come and go. Upon the platform from which Dr. A. N. Morrison, the centenarian who recently married a bride of seventy-two years, and Dr. J. M. Peebles, aged 98 years, spoke, were gathered twelve persons who had carried school books over their shoulders before the dawn of 1836. C. H. Parsons, secretary of State Societies, presided.

To prove that a mere matter of seventy years of so makes little difference to those who have come to watch the sunsets in the Southland, the Jolly Old Folks established a record for the grove by tossing off 150 gallons of coffee.

FIFE AND DRUM THERE.

With the inner man sustained and congenial relations promoted, the frivolities centered about the platform where the Pasadena G.A.R. Fife and Drum Corps opened a snappy speaking program with the stirring music of "Dixie" and "The Girl I Left Behind Me."

One of the "youngsters," Maj. A. E. Weed, with a record for pulling out the whiskers of Father Time, announced as he gaily danced about the drum corps that though he might have "left his girl behind him" he wasn't a bit nervous in gettin' acquainted."

"Old?" he asked, astonished. "Huh, boy, I've been married three times, been through fourteen battles in the Civil War, wounded in the right thigh, been a prisoner in 'Libby,' been twice across the continent and through Mexico on a bicycle since I was 53, and there aint a wrinkle on my forehead. Old? say, sashhay the cornets!" And Maj. Weed was the center of a laughing group of his friends until the last beat of the drum.

Dr. Morrison, who was accompanied by Mrs. Morrison on the platform, declared that the reason some folks grow old is because they talk too much about their neighbors.

EVIL WISHES REACT.

"Every evil wish that you express against another," he said addressing his playmates, "is a serpent to sting your own soul. That which makes a man or a woman older more than anything else is to say uncomplimentary things about one's neighbor." Col. F. W. Hart, secretary-treasurer of the Jolly Old Folks also spoke.

Those who occupied that portion of the platform marked off for "All Kids of 90 or Over" were Mrs. Abigail Fuller, aged 90 years, of New York, G. C. Lowry, aged 93, of Connecticut, Mrs. Mary J. Jackson, aged 91 years, of New York, Gilbert Tillapaugh, aged 90 years, of New York, Samuel Hedges, aged 91 years, of New York, Silas Judd, aged 94 years, of New York, Mary W. Wright, aged 91 years, of Connecticut, Galusha M. Cole, aged 94 years, of Connecticut, Cyrus E. Hull, aged 90 years, of New York, Mrs. Charlott Zinn, aged 92 years, of Virginia, and Charles C. Hobart, aged 91 years, of New Hampshire.

Unable to resist the temptation of jiggling feet as the Fife and Drum Corps played the "Irish Washerwoman" the members of the Virginia State Society, who were picnicking in another part of Sycamore Grove joined the Jolly Old Folks during the progress of the musical program, and swelled the crowd to nearly 7000 persons.

The Sun Drug Co.

-A Greater Sun Drug Co. Store will soon be ready at Sixth & Broadway

neteen years ago, when The Sun Drug Co. was organized, our e at Sixth and Broadway was perhaps the least important of "The " chain. But as the years went by this location became the es ished "hub" of the city—the very nerve center of its business activities.

Our original store at this point point was very small, but, when it proved inadequate, more floor space was acquired. This expansion was but temporary and finally it was determined that "The Sun" standard of service demanded a new structure, built to meet the particular needs of our business.

Therefore, we secured a long term lease on the property and upon it we are now erecting our own building, expressly contrived for drug store purposes. With its completion our patrons will enjoy an establishment which embraces every good modern idea in drug store facilities, equipment and comfort.

The Sun Drug Co. will occupy the large corner store, which will provide ample space to serve our patrons promptly and satisfactorily. We have sublet the remaining space in the building to reputable firms who appreciate the advantages of being located with us.

Watch for opening of this new "Sun" store, which we believe will be the handsomest and most efficient drug selling establishment in America.

AUTO GIVES FATAL HURT TO OLD MAN.

Octogenarian Walks Around Street Car and is Struck; Another Badly Injured.

Lewis Kann, 86 years of age, was fatally injured last night when he was struck by an auto driven by Webster Cullison, director of the Ben Wilson Film Company, of 5123 Harold Way, as the elderly pedestrian was crossing Sunset Boulevard at Bronson avenue. He was taken to the Receiving Hospital, where he died. The body was taken to Godeau and Martinoni's parlors.

Detective Sergeant MacMahan of the Hollywood Police Station, an eyewitness of the accident, stated that it was unavoidable. Mr. Cullison was driving east on Hollywood Boulevard when the elderly man stepped from behind a westbound street car directly in the path of his machine, according to the police report.

Another pedestrian was seriously injured, when John Bill, a lumberman, 55 years old, 1600 East Forty-ninth street, was struck by an automobile driven by Harry King of 1009 South St. Andrews Place, at Vernon and Alameda streets. Mr. Bill was taken to the Receiving Hospital, where it was found that his left leg had been fractured in two places and that he had many cuts and bruises. He was later removed to the County Hospital.

Consul Thinks Obregon Rival Nurses Revolt.

Efforts of Alfredo Robles Dominguez, Conservative candidate for the Presidency of Mexico, to discredit Gen. Obregón as a candidate by quoting sections of the Constitution which he says disqualify Obregon, were scored yesterday by Eduardo Ruiz, Mexican Consul here.

"Speaking as a member of the Liberal party," said Senor Ruiz, "I view this latest maneuver as an attempt to have an alibi for a revolution after the election of Obregon. But Dominguez and his followers will find that things have changed in Mexico and that revolutions cannot be started so easily as in the old days. A new regime is in power in Mexico now, a regime that is progressive and awake to the needs of the people.

"The article of the Constitution which Dominguez quotes, saying that it excludes any candidate who has had part in any uprising, riot or military coup, is from the present Constitution which Domingues and his Conservative party refuse to recognize. They hold to the old Constitution and thus it is ridiculous for them to single out one or two articles in the other, which they wish to follow."

Struck from his motorcycle by a truck driven by W. A. Hall of 1217 Central avenue, Edward Krone, 20 years of age, of 4646 San Carlos street, was perhaps fatally injured yesterday at Alameda and Jackson streets. "HOLD-UP" OF ESPEE TRAIN IS EXPLAINED.

FARMER MADE "RECKLESS" BY HOME BREW, BREAKS OPEN DANGER SIGNAL BOX.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

OGDEN (Utah) Sept. 4.—The mysterious stopping of a Southern Pacific express train near Ogden Thursday night, which resulted in a report to Ogden police that a hold-up was attempted, was solved today with the arrest of John W. Ross, 29 years of age, a farmer who lives near here.

Sheriff H. C. Peterson says Ross made a "clean breast of the affair" to the Sheriff, H. H. Cordon, railroad special agent, and Robert Burk, captain of detectives, after the three had arrested Ross.

Ross says that he and three companions went to Little Mountain Thursday in an automobile in which there was a liberal quantity of home brew. They were looking for old railroad ties.

He says he grew reckless and broke open the block signal box, disconnected the wires and crippled the battery, causing the signal to register danger.

When the train stopped he was questioned by the flagman and admits he fired one shot with his pistol. Ross was discharged from the Army two months ago and was in uniform at the time of the trouble.

NAVY YARD WORKERS GIVEN PAY INCREASE.

AWARD WILL AVERAGE FIVE PER CENT TO ALL CLASSES OF EMPLOYEES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—A wage increase of 5 per cent was awarded all classes of civil employees in the naval establishment under a new pay schedule approved today by Secretary Daniels, which will go into effect "on the nearest pay day to September 15."

The increase, based on the difference in the advance in cost of living and the Congressional bonus authorized since the last readjustment of wages a year and a half ago, affects more than 286,000 employees.

Several classes, including practically all clerical forces and four mechanical trades, will receive increases considerably above the general 5 per cent advance through a readjustment of the entire wage schedule to correct inequalities in the present scale. The new schedule will be announced next week, the Secretary said.

Outside of the increase, the most important provision of the new schedule is a reduction of working hours to four on Saturday, the year around, the employees to be paid for the half day's work at the hourly rate. While this provision offsets to some extent, the increases applying on hourly pay, it was said, the employees had approved the provision through their representative on the recommending board, which submitted a unanimous report.

BRITISHERS TIE YANKEES.

Each Team is Victorious in Five Events.

Earl Thomson Captures Fast Hurdle Race.

Paddock is Taken Ill, but is Feeling Better.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LONDON, Sept. 4.—The British Empire and the United States divided honors evenly at the post-Olympic meet at Queen's Club today, each nation winning five events. Three of Great Britain's victories were won by relay teams, representing the whole empire, the high jump by an Englishman, and the other, the 120-yard hurdles, by a Canadian—Earl Thomson, Olympic champion.

The mile relay in which Rudd, the South African, spurted to a spectacular victory by three yards, was the prettiest event of the day.

The Americans gave an exhibition of javelin throwing, J. C. Lincoln, New York A. C., covering 196ft. 10in.; Brutus K. Hamilton, University of Missouri, 164ft. 8in., and Everett L. Bradley, University of Kansas, 160ft. 10in. The Americans also gave an exhibition in pole vaulting, E. E. Meyers, Chicago A. A., and E. J. Jenne, Washington State College, both clearing twelve feet.

Charles W. Paddock, Los Angeles, the 100 meters Olympic champion, whose inability to take part in the meet caused disappointment, is reported much better this evening. The attending physician, however, thinks he should remain in bed for another day or two. It was at one time feared that Paddock was developing pneumonia.

The crowd, which kept surging in after the meet was under way, overflowed the grand stand and packed the track side. It cheered the winners and outrivalled in numbers and enthusiasm the attendance on any save the opening day in the Olympic stadium at Antwerp.

In the half-mile relay race Kirksey pulled a muscle in the first 100 yards when he held a two-yard lead. Coach Moakley of the American team kept him from participating in the other events.

The 120-yard hurdles was won by Earl Thomson, representing Canada, by one and one-half yards in 14⅘s. This is a new world's turf record.

The summary:

880-yard relay: Won by British Empire (Oosterlaap, South Africa; Butler, England; Manly, England; Davidson, New Zealand;) U.S.A. second (F. J. Shea, navy; M. M. Kirksey, Stanford; J. V. Scholz, Missouri; Allen Woodring, Meadowbrook.) Time, 1m. 29 3-5s.

120-yard high hurdles: Won by Earl J. Thomson, Canada; H. E. Barron, U.S.A., second; Walker Smith, U.S.A., third. Time, 14 4-5s. World's record on turf.

440-yard relay: Won by U.S.A. (J. Merchant, California; F. J. Shea, navy; Allen Woodring, Meadowbrook; J. V. Scholz, Missouri;) British Empire second (Oosterlaap, South Africa; [illegible], New Zealand; Dansey, England; Manly, England.) Time, [illegible].

Two-mile relay: Won by British Empire (Hector Phillips, Canada; P. J. Baker, England; E. H. Mountain, England; B. G. D. Rudd, South Africa;) U.S.A. second (J. W. Driscoll, Boston; Mike Devanney, Millrose; Ivie Ray, Illinois; Don Scott, U.S.N.) Time, 7m. 53 1-5s.

High jump: Won by B. H. Baker, England; R. W. Landon, U.S.A., second; no third. Height, [illegible] 8¼in.

Two-mile run: Won by H. H. Brown, U.S.A.; Ivan C. Dresser, U.S.A., second; Nicholls, England, third. Time, 9m. 30 1-5s.

Four-mile relay: Won by U.S.A. (E. B. Curtis, navy; J. J. Connolly, Boston; J. W. Ray, Illinois; L. M. Shields, Meadowbrook;) British Empire second ((H. L. Locke, England; Seagrove, England; Hatton, England; Baker, England;) Time, 18m. 6 1-5s.

One-mile relay: Won by British Empire (Davis, England; Dafel, South Africa; Butler, England; Rudd, South Africa;) U.S.A. second (Schiller, Los Angeles; Bretnall, Cornell; Driscoll, Boston; Emery, Chicago. Time, 3m. 19 2-5s.

B. RUTH WALLOPS PAIR OF HOMERS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BOSTON, Sept. 4.—This was Babe Ruth day at Fenway Park and the New York batsman cracked out two home runs to celebrate. His total for the season now stands at forty-six. His first circuit drive of the day came in the third inning of the first game of a double-header, and in the sixth inning of the second game he gained his second homer, both lofty drives into the right-field stands.

When Ruth today knocked his forty-sixth home run he broke all known world's records for circuit drives in a single season.

Ruth last season broke Buck Freeman's major-league record of twenty-five home runs in a season by driving out twenty-nine. This, however, was not a world's record, for Perry Werden, playing with Minneapolis, then in the Western League, made forty-five four-base hits in 1895. Werden was a first baseman and, like Ruth, was unusually large physically. Most of his home runs were made in the Minneapolis park, however, which had very close right and left-field fences. He seldom drove the ball over the fence on foreign fields.

Ruth this year has made at least one homer in every ball park in the American League, although he has made more in New York than in any other city.

FIRST SACKER BLUE LOSES TO THE UMP.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 4.—First Baseman Blue of Portland and Umpire Byron started a fist fight at the end of today's 1-to-0 victory for San Francisco and the services of four policemen were necessary to stop the battle royal that followed. Byron called Blue out at the plate when he slid for home to make the tying run.

Schick made the only run of the game, doubling in the fifth inning, stealing third and scoring when Koehler threw the ball into left field in an attempt to catch him in the steal. The score:

JOHNSTON TO MEET TILDEN.

National and World's Title Holders Mingle.

Caner of Harvard Gives Hot Battle to Champ.

Tilden and Wallace Johnson Play Carefully.

BY FRED HAWTHORNE.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—William M. Johnston of California, national playing-through champion, and William T. Tilden II of Philadelphia, world's champion, will meet on the championship court of the West Side Tennis Club of Forest Hills Monday afternoon in the final round of the annual championship singles lawn tennis tournament.

CLEAN VICTORIES.

Johnston came through today by defeating J. Colket Caner of Boston by a score of 6-3, 4-6, 7-5, 6-3 and Tilden gained his place by vanquishing Wallace F. Johnson of Philadelphia by a score of 14-12, 6-4, 6-4.

A crowd of about 8000 persons sat in the hot sun and cheered every flashing rally as the men struggled for the mastery. Both matches were filled with spectacular periods, but Johnston and Caner put up the soundest exhibition of tennis all through the four sets, while Tilden played in streaks, bringing off astounding shots as it seemed to suit his fancy.

TWO TYPES.

You could hardly find two games more distinctly different in character and execution than were Johnston's and Tilden's today. The champion brought about the defeat of Caner by straight-forward, unadorned tennis, tennis distinguished chiefly by terrific speed on every forcing shot.

Caner played the greatest game of his career against the Californian taking the aggressive continually until forced on the defensive by the sheer power of Johnston's tremendous attack. Tilden, on the other hand, evidently supremely confident of his ability to tame Johnson, worked every variation of shot in his match, alternating chops, cuts and slices with low bullet drives, spectacular smashes and lightning fast volleys and half volleys.

STRONG CONTRAST.

He and his opponent formed a striking contrast, too, in their court manners. Tilden was always ready to bring off a circus shot for the edification of the great crowd and at times, when Johnson would score on a placement ace, following a furious rally at the net position, Tilden would stand still in his tracks and laugh and make playful remarks to himself, Johnson or the gallery.

Johnson was quite different in his behavior. Realizing that a defeat would probably be his portion when he went on the court, the chop stroke expert went about his task with a quiet air of concentration. Whether he won a point or lost it there was no change in Johnson's attitude. He was there for one purpose, to play tennis, and that he did.

DETERMINATION.

But for the very picture of concentrated purpose he had to look to "Little Bill" Johnston, the champion. The slender Californian knew he was in a fight shortly after he began his match with Caner, for the six-foot three-inch former Harvard athlete was going great guns, and trying fully as hard as Johnston was.

I do not think that the champion showed us all he had in reserve today. As I watched the match, it seemed to me that Johnston was content to make his openings by the aid of his tremendous ground strokes alone. There was no wild rushing into the volleying position behind his service, but instead, the champion stayed back until certain his path had been blasted through the medium of a great forehand drive, and then when he had placed Caner on the defensive, Johnson went in charging, taking his opponent's drives overhead or with a wonderfully sharp, low volley that usually earned the point.

YANK HORSES IN WORLD CONTESTS.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

ANTWERP, Sept. 4.—American Army horses are entered for some events of equestrian competition, the concluding event of the seventh Olympiad, which began today. They will continue until September 12.

Extraordinary feats of horsemanship, particularly designed to show the agility and endurance of the mounts, were proposed. Each nation was permitted six riders in the individual events and four in the team events.

CARPENTIER NOW ON HIS WAY HERE.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

PARIS, Sept. 4.—Georges Carpentier, champion heavyweight pugilist of Europe, left Paris today to sail on the steamship La Torraine for New York. The steamer leaves Havre this evening.

INSISTS ON REFEREE DOUGHERTY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BENTON HARBOR (Mich.) Sept. 4.—Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey, tonight declared that "there will be no fight Monday between Dempsey and Billy Miske unless Jim Dougherty of Philadelphia referees the bout."

His statement followed the announcement of Chairman Bigger of the State Boxing Commission that Dougherty could not referee because he was not licensed in Michigan.

Floyd Fitzsimmons, promoter of the fight, later said that he had arranged a conference between the fighters' managers and Bigger for tomorrow and that "there was every indication that the matter would be smoothed over."

MAJOR LEAGUE RESULTS.

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

GIANTS COP TWO.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—New York's victory over Philadelphia on the afternoon of July 5 was affirmed with emphasis today. Under a ruling of President Heydler of the National League the teams today took the field as of the first half of the seventh inning with two out. Stengel was on third and Fletcher was on second. The final score on July 5 was 6 to 0 in New York's favor, but today in the replay of the eighth inning, the Giants added seven more runs, making the score 13 to 0.

New York, after convincing Philadelphia of the soundness of the Giants' victory of July 5, today shut out Cravath's men in the regularly scheduled game, 1 to 0. The scores:

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 4.—The incognito cricket team from England overcame the big lead piled up by the Philadelphia Cricket Club eleven yesterday by the time the luncheon gong sounded today. When play began today the home team was ahead by 255 runs to 85. But when stumps were drawn, the Briton had a total of 311 and had lost only five wickets for both days.

BIG SQUABBLE OVER REFEREE.

Michigan Boxing Commission Against Dougherty.

Offer List of Eleven Officials for Selection.

Dempsey and Miske Finish Their Training Grind.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BENTON HARBOR (Mich.) Sept. 4.—A bitter wrangle developed tonight over a referee for the ten-round fight between Jack Dempsey and Billy Miske, Monday, after Chairman Bigger of the Michigan boxing commission refused to issue a license to Jim Dougherty of Philadelphia, whom Jack Kearns, manager of Dempsey, wanted as third man in the ring.

Bigger held several conferences with Kearns, Jack Reddy, Miske's manager, and Floyd Fitzsimmons, promoter.

Bigger offered a list of eleven ring officials from which, he said, a selection could be made. The list included Ed Smith of Chicago and Matt Hinkle of Cleveland, the only two referees living outside the State, who hold Michigan licenses.

"I did not expect to encounter such a situation," Bigger said. "I had no inkling that either fighter desired a referee from outside the State. If the managers cannot agree, I can exercise my authority and name the referee myself."

While the managers were wrangling, Dempsey and Miske finished their training. Miske boxed two rounds with Jack Heinen. Dempsey took only light exercise.

The advance seat sale indicates that the receipts will total $150,000.

MANY COMPETE IN PRELIMINARY TRIALS.

GOLFERS GETTING IN STROKE FOR THE BIG DEL MONTE TOURNAMENT.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DEL MONTE, Sept. 4.—"How are you going," or "are you hitting 'em on the nose?" is the hourly question here in anticipation of the twelfth annual amateur golf championship of California, but the question is addressed not only to champions, but is discussed between some two hundred and odd golfers, who have no championship aspirations, but who are as deeply concerned over their daily performances.

Today's preliminary event consisted of an amiable amble against par on the No. 1 course, and there were over one hundred and fifty competitors. The cracks, for the most part, abstained from the competition, preferring to get all the practice possible at Pebble Beach, where the heroic contests of the championship will be played next week. B. H. Wickersham of the Olympic Club, with a very generous handicap of twelve, romped in as the only vanquisher of par.

Dr. Paul Hunter, medalist in both the Pacific Northwest and the Southern California championships this year, is the reigning favorite, but the prevailing odds are 3 to 1 against him, which is sufficient proof of the strong competition.

John F. Neville, the present holder of the California championship, has not shown recently in stroke competitions, but the constant reports of the fine game he has been playing at Pebble Beach make him second favorite for the medal with "Scotty" Armstrong, twice winner of the State title, "Big Bill" Campbell of the Virginia Country Club, Long Beach, and Sam L. Conlan, Jr., the Northern California champion. Sam's game has been steadily improving during the last three days, and a great encounter is expected tomorrow when he and Jack Neville pair up against the Southern cracks, "Scotty" Armstrong and Dr. Paul Hunter, in the team-match. The scores:

MORE SCANDAL FOR BASEBALL.

Cubs Boss Investigating Red-Hot Charges.

Intimation that Recent Game Was "Thrown."

Switched Pitchers Failed to Bring Victory.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—President William Veeck of the Chicago National League baseball club issued a statement this afternoon saying he was advised last Tuesday afternoon, prior to the game with Philadelphia, that it was "fixed" for Philadelphia to win.

Mr. Veeck gave out copies of six telegrams received from Detroit, Cleveland and Chicago prior to the game, all reporting that it was "fixed" and that thousands of dollars were being wagered on Philadelphia by Chicago "sharps."

One of the telegrams named a Chicago player, whose name was withheld by Mr. Veeck for the present.

Claude Hendrix was slated to pitch Tuesday if the four first-string pitchers had been used in their regular order. Manager Fred Mitchell, however, sent in Grover Cleveland Alexander and Mr. Veeck said today that Alexander was offered a $500 bonus if he won the game. Philadelphia won 3 to 0.

Mr. Veeck said he would appoint a committee of three Chicago baseball writers to conduct an independent investigation, and would give them money to employ detectives.

"If the charges are proved we will drive the guilty players out of baseball, even though it shatter the Cub's team," Mr. Veeck declared.

Mr. Veeck's statement follows:

"The charge that there were 'fixed' players on the Chicago National League baseball team in the game against Philadelphia last Tuesday came as no surprise to me. If I have any regret at their publication at this time it is merely that investigations which were being made might be hampered through their advanced publicity.

"On last Tuesday, August 31, about 2 o'clock, I received the first of several telegrams, the last of which came to hand at 2:45. I give them here in full:

"'DETROIT, Aug. 31, 1920.

"'Unlimited amount of money today by Chicago sharks to be wagered on Philadelphia winning today's game. Something peculiar.

"'W. H. BROWN.'

"'DETROIT, Aug. 31.

"'Rumored that game is fixed Philadelphia to win. Let's have fair games.

BERT TANNER.'

"'DETROIT, Aug. 31.

"'Commissions of thousands of dollars being bet on Phillies to win today. Rumors that game is fixed. Investigate.

"'MITCHELL B. STEVENS.'

"'CLEVELAND, Aug. 31.

"'Watch—today. Have notified Heydler and Wrigley.

"'TOMMY RYAN.'

"'DETROIT, Aug. 31.

"'They are betting on Philadelphia in all large cities. They got your team. Pitch Alexander and you will beat them.

"'FRIEND HARRY.'

"'CHICAGO, Aug. 31.

"'Commissions of thousands of dollars being bet on Phillies to win today. Rumors that game is fixed. Investigate.

B. STEVENS.'

"In the same period I received two long-distance telephone calls; one from a man who said his name was G. R. Allen and was telephoning from Detroit. The other was from Detroit by one who gave his name as J. H. Clinton, 57 Ledbury avenue, Detroit. Both reported that large bets were being made on Philadelphia.

"I immediately got in touch with Manager Mitchell. Our unfortunate experience of last year made us feel doubly responsible, and after conference, Manager Mitchell and I decided to pitch Alexander, though he had pitched but three days before and it was another twenty-four hours until his turn should come.

"We know that Alexander is a man above all suspicion, and we felt that with our premier pitcher in the box we were doing all we could, if there were any foundation for the charges, to insure that the dastardly conspiracy, if any such existed, he thwarted.

"I personally sent for Alexander and sketched the situation to him, offering him a bonus of $500 if he won. I am sure no man ever went into the box wanting to win more than did Alexander."

Mr. Veeck said he arranged with a detective agency to place two operatives in the park to watch for anything that might be interpreted as suspicious and after the game instructed the detective agency to locate the persons who sent the telegrams and see what evidence they had to support their charges. The detectives found, he said, that there was no such address as "57 Ledbury avenue, Detroit," and no such man as "J. H. Clinton."

Mr. Veeck said the club would defray all the expenses of an investigation by the Chicago sporting editors, and when it was completed would ask President Heydler to call a meeting of the directors of the league to take action.

"This scandal—whether true or untrue," he said, "is more than the mere business of the Chicago baseball club. Baseball belongs to the American people. For baseball to be unclean would not only be, in American life, a sporting calamity, but a moral calamity."

Mr. Veeck pointed to the fact that all the messages came within a space of three-quarters of an hour, and that detectives had been unable to locate any of the senders. He suggested the messages may, themselves, have been part of a gamblers plot to have him switch pitchers at the last moment and send Alexander in, in the expectation that Alexander would win.

Claude Hendrix, the pitcher, who was displaced by Veeck's decision to pitch Alexander, was not taken to Pittsburg with the team, and is now here. He denied today knowing anything about the reported betting coup, and said his first intimation that he was not to pitch came a few minutes before the game, when Alexander was ordered to warm up.

Heaver Gardner Twirls Well for Eight Frames.

Old Hap Hogan Rally at End Scares Seattle.

BY ED O'MALLEY.

What's this—Seattle, 3; Vernon, 2—why it sounds like the stuff dreams are made of!

Yet 'tis a fact, and most of the credit goes to Heaver Gardner who, for eight innings, twirled a game that fairly sparkled with niftiness. Shellenback, pilot for Essick, had one of his off days.

Entering the last half of the ninth frame, Gardner had the Tigers roped and hogtied with nothing to show for their efforts, but a melancholy row of ciphers. Ah—but the Bengals are like a red-headed Irishman whom you have to wake before you bury.

OLD RALLY THERE.

The ninth inning is never a graveyard for those old fighting Tigers who came to life suddenly yesterday just as the foregone conclusion cluttered the exits.

The ancient Hap Hogan rally was on tap and had it not been for a clever move by Manager Wares who yanked Gardner out just as the old baby was to be shot at sunrise, Vernon would have thrown another bunch of frets and worries into Business Manager Brewster and his staff.

BILL SNICKERS.

With the score 3 to 0 against them in the last of the ninth, Bill Essick snickered to Clyde Wares—"we've just begun to play" and immediately Bill goes out and makes good his word. Tommy Long batting for Shellenback started the fun by busting a beauty single to right, followed a moment later by a sizzling triple from the stick of Stuffy Edington. Seattle fans began to suffer congestion of the lungs.

A ray of hope, however, bobbed up in Johnny Mitchell, who tickled the ozone. High then singled into left, scoring Edington and Bobby Fisher jammed a drab of a single to right. On second stood High with the tying run and at first, Priv with the winning tally. It was here that Siebold relieved Gardner. Chadbourne tried to tilt one over Eldred's head, but failed and Mueller blew up the works by forcing Fisher at second, Stumpf unassisted.

Seattle and the Tigers will play a double-header this afternoon at Washington Park. The first game will begin at 1:30 o'clock and the second, ten minutes after the end of the first. Both games can be witnessed for the price of one admission.

SUDS TURN AND SPANK BENGALS.

Visitors Wobbly in Ninth During Biffing Fest.

Heaver Gardner Twirls Well for Eight Frames.

Old Hap Hogan Rally at End Scares Seattle.

BY ED O'MALLEY.

What's this—Seattle, 3; Vernon, 2—why it sounds like the stuff dreams are made of!

Yet 'tis a fact, and most of the credit goes to Heaver Gardner who, for eight innings, twirled a game that fairly sparkled with niftiness. Shellenback, pilot for Essick had one of his off days.

Entering the last half of the ninth frame, Gardner had the Tigers roped and hogtied with nothing to show for their efforts, but a melancholy row of ciphers. Ah—but the Bengals are like a red-headed Irishman, whom you have to wake before you bury.

OLD RALLY THERE.

The ninth inning is never a graveyard for those old fighting Tigers who came to life suddenly yesterday just as the foregone conclusions cluttered the exits.

The ancient Hap Hogan rally was on tap and had it not been for a clever move by Manager Wares who yanked Gardner out just as that old baby was to be shot at sunset, Vernon would have thrown another bunch of frets and worries into Business Manager Brewster and his staff.

BILL SNICKERS.

With the score 3 to 0 against them in the last of the ninth, Bill Essick snickered to Clyde Wares—"Why we've just begun to play" and immediately Bill goes out and makes good his word. Tommy Long batting for Shellenback started the scare by busting a beauty single to right followed a moment later by a slashing triple from the stick of Stump Edington. Seattle fans began to suffer congestion of the lungs.

A ray of hope, however, bobbed up in Johnny Mitchell, who tickled the ozone. High then singled infield scoring Edington and Bobby Fisher jammed a drab of a single to left. On second stood High with the tying run and at first, Priv with the winning tally. It was here that Siebold relieved Gardner. Chadbourne tried to tilt one over Eldred's head but failed and Mueller blew the works by forcing Fisher at second, Stumpf unassisted.

Seattle and the Tigers will play a double-header this afternoon at Washington Park. The first game will begin at 1:30 o'clock and the second, ten minutes after the end of the first. Both games can be witnessed for the price of one admission.

MONTANA WANTS CLAPHAM MATCH.

Bull Montana is all excited over his Friday night victory in which he drop-kicked Henry Irslinger for a goal in a sensational grappling contest. Yesterday he got Dick Donald, who promoted the other scramble, to wire Sam Clapham at El Paso and try to sign him up for a match with Bull here in about ten days. Clapham beat Montana at El Paso in exactly the same way that Bull beat Irslinger, by putting his opponent to sleep with a well-placed application of the foot to the chin. Bull figures that he knows the combination now and can slap Clapham, who holds the English light heavyweight championship, on his back regardless of his 155 pounds. Bull weighs approximately 172 but it's all he-man.

NEW HOME FOR COUNTRY CLUB.

Pasadena's Fifth Golf Course Nears Completion.

Auto Club Entertains Crown City Bankers.

Church Sends Delegates to Tokio Convention.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PASADENA, Sept. 4.—Work will be started Monday on the new Flintridge Country Club's home, which will be located a mile west of the Devil's Gate dam. Former U. S. Senator Frank P. Flint is now completing the details of what will be one of the highest class eighteen-hole golf courses in Southern California, and the new clubhouse will be for the accommodation of members.

The completion of the Flintridge course will give Pasadena five golf clubs within a short motoring distance of the city. Senator Flint recently completed seven miles of bridle paths on his 700-acre estate, of which the new golf grounds are a part, and for the accommodation of horseback riders he will build a stable at the clubhouse, where thirty or forty horses will be kept at all times.

Senator Flint is co-operating with the city in furnishing additional attractions for the tourist, and his bridle paths connect with the municipal system of bridle trails, so that altogether there are fifteen or twenty miles of them. His new golf course will be watered throughout the year, so it will be covered with grass summer and winter.

ENTERTAIN BANKERS.

Prominent bankers of Pasadena were guests of the Pasadena Automobile Dealers' Association at their monthly dinner last evening at Hotel Vista del Arroyo. Charles L. Wright, vice-president and cashier of the Security National; William H. Magee, president of the Central Bank; F. J. Pyle, vice-president of the National Bank and Trust Company, and Walter Barnes, cashier of the Union National, all addressed the auto men on the financial situation.

BIG ENROLLMENT.

With prospects bright for the largest registration in the history of the institution, Pasadena University, formerly the Nazarene University, will open for the fall term next week. Monday and Tuesday will be given over to registration and Wednesday to the assignment of classes. Dr. A. O. Hendricks, president of the university, says the enrollment probably will pass the 500 mark. Thirty cottages have been erected on the school grounds to take care of the influx of pupils. Ground has been broken for the first units of the new science hall and college infirmary.

TO TOUR ORIENT.

The First Methodist Episcopal Church of Pasadena will be represented at the world's Sunday-school convention at Tokio, Japan, October 5 to 14. Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Oliver of the local church will sail from Vancouver on the Monteagle of the Canadian Pacific line about the middle of September. After the convention they will tour Japan, Manchuria and North China. They are planning to spend several months in Hangchow, China, with their son, who is in Y.M.C.A. work there.

BUILDING RECORD.

September's building total is now well past the $100,000 mark, while the total for the year to date is $2,635,495. It is expected that the total for the year will be $3,000,000 or more. A great many new homes are now being erected.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 4.—The Lieutenant-Governor today issued extradition papers in the case of Ed Moblett, under arrest in Los Angeles and wanted in Springfield, Mo., on a forgery charge. HISTORIC MINING TOWN SOON TO BE A MEMORY.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

VOLCANO, Sept. 4.—If the intention of the H. L. Crocker Company, a San Francisco corporation, can be carried out, this historic mining camp will, in a few years, be but a memory, for the company proposes to hydraulic every foot of ground here which it can obtain.

The company already owns a large acreage and has been quietly buying up property in and about town. It has a large force at work on restraining dam and flume building, preparatory to actual mining operations. Beneath the town rich bodies of virgin gravel are believed to lie buried, never touched by the pioneers. Volcano came into being in 1849 and in 1855 had 1200 voters. Now only a few families live here.

TO LET CANTALOUPE CROP ROT IN FIELDS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

STOCKTON, Sept. 4.—Cantaloupe growers in the Ripon section, south of here, announce they will let the remainder of their crops rot in the field, declaring the new freight rates have made it impossible for them to ship East.

They also say that this will probably be the last year they will plant cantaloupes.

Conditions in the Turlock district are practically as bad. Both are the leading cantaloupe sections of this part of the State. Many growers will suffer heavy losses.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Sept. 4.—William D. Haupt has received a telegram announcing the death of Mrs. William D. Dean at her home in St. Paul. Mrs. Dean was his grandmother and has spent many winters in Redlands, having a great many friends here. She has been in poor health for several months and had just returned from a trip for her health. She is survived by her husband and eight children, all residents of Redlands, except Mrs. C. D. Haupt, who lives in Los Angeles and one daughter who lives in Long Island. Had she lived until October 18 she and her husband would have celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary.

Seek Embargo on Goods.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

OLYMPIA (Wash.) Sept. 4.—The State Public Service Commission today wired the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington, D. C., urging compliance with the request of the Tacoma Commercial Club and Chamber of Commerce that an embargo be placed on oriental freight shipments routed through Atlantic ports.

CONTEMPT OF COURT ORDER FORCES STORY.

MAN AND WIFE, HEADS OF WINE COMPANY, FINALLY MAKE WANTED DEPOSITIONS.

After being held in contempt of court for refusing to appear in order that their depositions might be taken, G. Demateis and Mrs. M. Demateis, his wife, were ordered yesterday by Judge Monroe to appear in Department Fourteen of the Superior Court in order that the depositions might be taken. The order was issued on motion of William A. Barnhill of the law firm of Lissner, Lewinsohn and Barnhill, attorneys for the plaintiff, in the suit of the McAvoy Company of Chicago against the Italian-American Vineyard Company.

The Chicago company is suing the defendants, the husband being the president, and the wife a director of the Italian American Vineyard Company, on an asserted violation of a contract. It is charged that the plaintiff bought 300,000 gallons of wine at 51 cents a gallon, and that the defendants refused to deliver it later when the price went up.

The McAvoy Company bought the wine, it was stated, to dealcoholize it. The alcohol was to have been used for commercial purposes and the residue for soft drinks. The depositions, which were taken yesterday, were for the purpose of obtaining information in advance of the trial of the case.

DEAD BOY IDENTIFIED.

Motorcycle Victim Not Missed from Home After Tragedy.

After the police had failed to secure any identification of the body of a little boy killed late Friday afternoon at Eleventh street and Broadway beneath the wheel of an automobile, the remains were yesterday identified as those of Sammy Samuels, 9 years of age, of 3429 Seventh avenue. The identification was made by Isaac Shore, the dead boy's uncle. It also was learned that the child had not been missed from home until yesterday, as he had expected to spend Friday night with friends.

Sammy was killed when he jumped from the wrong side of a street car at Eleventh street and Broadway and was struck down by a passing automobile. The accident, the police assert, was unavoidable. The body is at the Button undertaking establishment. An inquest will be held Tuesday morning.

GAS NEAR EL SEGUNDO.

Pressure Throws Out Water and Rocks for Almost Twelve Hours.

High-pressure gas was struck yesterday for the third time in the last few weeks at the Milwaukee Fountain Trust Company oil well, one-half mile east of Redondo Boulevard near El Segundo. For almost twelve hours the force of the gas threw out water, stones and dirt, making a noise that was heard for many blocks and giving rise to rumors that a large oil gusher had been struck.

The gas was encountered at a depth of 1550 feet at 12:15 a.m. and roared continously until 11:45 o'clock. On another occasion the gas flow continued twelve hours and the other time more than a day.

HIGH FINANCE CHARGED.

Mother of Five Small Children Faces Many Counts in Indiana.

High finance is charged to Mrs. Gertrude Stell in two grand jury indictments at Evansville, Ind., according to Sheriff Herbert Males, who yesterday was in this city to take the woman East for trial.

According to Sheriff Males, Mrs. Stell is accused of obtaining $8000 from a loan bank, and of leaving Indiana with an automobile bought under a lease contract. The latter charge is also made with reference to considerable household furniture, which, it was said, was shipped first to a town in Kentucky and then reshipped to Los Angeles.

Judge Monroe yesterday released Mrs. Stell until Tuesday on her own recognizance on a writ of habeas corpus. A hearing will be given on the writ Tuesday before Judge Willis. Mrs. Stell has five small children with her in this city. After reaching Southern California, she ran a concession on the Pike at Long Beach for several weeks.

ON TRAIL OF THE LONESOME DRINK

Questing Reporter Finds Queer Concoctions that May be Gulped at Ruinous Prices; Jamaica Ginger and Niter Popular; Insanity on Increase.

BY LEE SHIPPEY.

This is the story of the adventures of a reporter who went forth on the trail of the lonesome drink.

It was not to appease his personal thirst that he sought the drink. It was an assignment. The city editor sent him and two other reporters out into the highways and byways to see what they could find for sale that had a real alcoholic kick in it, not because the editor's cellar had run dry, but because he believed information of interest and value to the community could be thus obtained.

Two of the reporters found places where they could buy booze without difficulty. The third, probably because of the blameless life he always has led, could not. Therefore it is he, the third, the unsuccessful reporter, who now, as a forfeit, has to write this true account of his adventures—without one drop of inspiration.

In his defense be it said that this reporter had the reputation of never buying a drink even before there was any Volstead Act. Indeed, his fellow reporters often used to remark that he never had been known to buy one, though they gave him credit for never having been so discourteous as to decline one when somebody else bought it. But when duty calls a reporter must obey, and though this reporter failed to buy a drinkable drink, it also can be said for him that angels could do no more than he did in his efforts to buy one.

DEMON STILL ON JOB.

He learned, however, that although John Rum officially has been banished from our midst, the popular demon still is being sold in our city every day, principally to the very ones prohibition was designed to aid, the weaklings who will pay any price, take any risk and degrade themselves to any level to get the stuff to which they have become slaves. Many of them wind up in the psychopathic ward in the County Hospital, their reason affected by drinking things never intended for beverage purposes, while many others who seem intent on reaching the same goal may be seen by anyone who loiters in nearly any drug store, asking for spirits of nitre, Jamaica ginger and certain shaving lotions and toilet waters and medicines from which they can extract the alcohol. If certain preparations will preserve health, as their manufacturers say they will, there are not a few citizens of Los Angeles who should live to be a million.

The effect of drinking things not intended as beverages, however, or drinking the alcohol extracted from them, is far more injurious than the effects of drinking real whisky. According to Dr. Victor Parkin, head of the psychopathic department of the County Hospital, a new form of insanity, classed as acute alcoholic hallucinosis, has become common since national prohibition went into effect. "We have a Jamaica ginger patient under observation now," Dr. Parkin said yesterday. "Jamaica ginger is a fine thing when used properly, but it never was intended as a beverage. Hair tonic cocktails and shaving lotion liqueurs, however, have caused more of the cases that come under our observation. Most of the people who would drink such substitutes for liquor already are weakened mentally, so the effects of spirits twice as strong as whisky are more injurious to them than to any person physically and mentally normal. They are the very ones, many of them, that prohibition was intended to save from themselves."

STARTS AT PLAZA.

The reporter who started out to track the popular demon to either its native or its foreign lair took the Plaza for his starting place. He had been informed that a large percentage of foreign-born residents of the city still have their wines and liquors as of yore. Many of them cannot read English and few of them can understand the American viewpoint on alcoholic beverages. Most of the Italian and French people know how to make wine, and many make it. They have it in their homes and it is very hard for them to comprehend why they should not sell it, also. In fact, a large percentage of those arrested for selling intoxicants in recent months have been Italians. But the night the unfortunate reporter set out on his quest they all seemed to have learned their lesson. Though he wore neither a dark lantern, a young cannon nor a star, they all seemed to suspect he was a detective.

He visited Chinese, Japanese, Greek, Assyrian, Mexican and Italian restaurants and coffee-houses, amazed his stomach with many things it hopes never to meet again, praised the food, tried to get chummy with waiters and proprietors and then enticingly offered to pay fancy prices for any beverage with a real wallop in it. He tried blarney, blandishment, bulldozing and appeals to sympathy, all in vain. At one place he tried to get real rough, and asserted:

"I know you've got something with a kick in it here."

"Only our feet," gently replied the proprietor, signalling a couple of husky waiters with a roll of the eyes. The reporter was not looking for punch, so he passed out.

BEER AND BARFLIES.

As he plodded down East First street the reporter got a thrill. Through a clear glass window he saw a real bar. Behind it stood a real bartender, drawing off what looked like real beer. The bar was lined with men who looked like real barflies. One of them had upset his glass and the amber liquid was dripping off onto the floor. Another man was quarrelsome, arguing as if bent on picking a fight. This looked like the real thing. The reporter entered joyously. . . . .

"Beer?" demanded the bartender.

The same old name! It sounded like a welcome home. Then the bartender "drew one," and a fine-looking glass of beer it was. It had a snowy collar, not too high, and a bead which made it seem full of life. With joy the reporter lifted the glass and dashed half its contents into his expectant system.

And then he knew why the argumentative man wanted to fight. But he wondered why he didn't fight the bartender instead of picking on one of the other customers.

PSYCHOLOGICAL SOUSES.

A number of near-beer saloons have opened in Los Angeles, and they are well patronized, for the reason that they offer some chance to revive the old-time sociability, which was the chief allurement of drinking to the majority of men. These "saloons" are conducted just like the real thing and the bartenders are trying hard to put the enterprise over psychologically. In all they say and do they try to create the impression that it is real beer they are serving, and they never refer to it as near-beer.

But it doesn't make near-funny stories sound like funny ones, it doesn't make near-tenors sound like Carusos, it doesn't make a fellow feel wealthy and it doesn't make one hang happily over the mahogany by the hour, taking jush-one-mores and shmall-ones-thish time.

Two glasses of near beer are enough for anybody. Outside of that it is all right. Some of it is very palatable stuff and, oddly enough, it sells for twice as much as real beer used to. Twenty-five cents a pint is what the better kinds of near beer sell for over the bar. And, strange to say, it is not uncommon for some youth with romantic notions about such things to get a psychological jag on it.

The reporter next tried the drug stores. Have you noticed that many of the old favorite medicines have disappeared lately? Tonics to which Congressmen and even ministers used to give testimonials, hair restorers which would grow hair on any advertisement if not on any head, and preparations which were designed to fill languid ladies with pep and vivacity have disappeared both from the public prints and from the pharmacy shelves. When the government learns that a patented medical preparation is being used more as a beverage than as a medicine, it investigates, with the result that the sale of such preparation is stopped or restricted.

TASTES IN TIPPLES.

"We used to have an awful run on a certain shaving lotion, till we had to quit handling it," a Main-street druggist said, referring to a once-popular preparation. "Then the run shifted to a couple of brands of toilet water—and we quit carrying them, too. Various tonics are much in demand now, and many men's health demands spirits of nitre and Jamaica ginger. They boil the spirits of nitre and think they separate the alcohol in that way, but they can't completely separate it.

"There's one faker here on Main street—he sells a trick he makes out of cigar boxes. They cost him nothing and he sells them for 25 cents. He's clever and he must make $10 or $15 a day. But it doesn't do him any good. As soon as he gets enough he goes from drug store to drug store looking for 'jake' or nitre.

"It's pitiable to see these fellows early in the morning. After a jag on any of that stuff they are in awful shape, and come in here pleading for anything, even straight wood alcohol. I've seen fellows with hair hanging down over their collars begging to be allowed to buy hair tonic and men who looked as

How Some Are Defying the Efforts of Our Well-Known Band of Dry Cleaners.

DOUBLING POPULATION IS POWER PLAN BASIS.

Two Hundred Millions Will be Spent by Edison Company in Southland Under Fifteen-year Program.

Acting upon statistics and upon convictions that the only thing which can hold back the development of Southern California's ten counties would be the lack of power for irrigation and manufacturing, and believing that if the necessary power is furnished the population will double within fifteen years, the Southern California Edison Company, it was announced yesterday, has completed detailed plans for developing 750,000 additional hydroelectric horse power before 1935.

This colossal development project, the greatest thing of its kind ever attempted in the Southland, will cost about $200,000,000. Detailed plans for financing the work have been worked out, and will be up before the State Railway Commission for a hearing on the 16th inst.

The fifteen-year program of the Edison company will mean the development of power projects capable of satisfying the electrical demands of seventeen cities the size of Los Angeles, and the money for the work, according to present plans, will be raised in the East at the ratio of $3 of eastern capital to every $1 of Southern California money invested. Except for the sums spent in the East for machinery not manufactured here, all of the $200,000,000 to be raised will be spent in Southern California for labor and materials.

DEMAND INCESSANT.

Based upon well-proven statistics showing the ratio of increase in population in proportion to the placing under irrigation of semi-arid lands, and increase in manufacture, this fifteen-year development program will make it possible for the ten counties of Southern California to double their population within this period. The only thing that might hold back the growth of the 283 cities, towns and intervening rural communities which are supplied by the Edison service, would be inability to furnish power for bringing under cultivation the great expanse fo acreage which is practically nonproductive without irrigation and to supply the incessant demand for electric energy to the manufacturers who are coming to the Southwest.

With a capitalization of $100,000,000, the Southern California Edison Company is now supplying power to factories in Southern California which have an annual output of half a billion dollars and which in turn represent pay rolls upon which practically all of the wage earners in Los Angeles and its environs subsist. On the Edison lines there are now approximately 1,000,000 acres of land which have been reclaimed from the desert and are irrigated by motors driven by Edison electricity. In addition to its manufacturing and irrigation load, it supplies electricity for about 2000 miles of urban and interurban trolley lines.

As all of the Middle West and the Atlantic seaboard are dependent upon oil and coal for fuel, it is apparent that their prices will continue to soar even though new fields are struck. Hydroelectric development means a lessening use of high-priced oil as the proportion of water power used for generation exceeds that of oil. It is upon this theory that the Southern California Edison Company has worked out the financial and construction program covering fifteen years on a scale which will develop hydroelectric properties each year and a half equal to the total hydroelectric development of the Los Angeles Aqueduct and sufficiently provide for an increase in population in excess of that during the past fifteen years.

The two principal hydroelectric generating plants that will be the first to prevent power shortage are the 40,000-horse-power plant on Kern River, which will come into service early in 1921, and an addition of 22,000 horse power to the present generating plant No. 2 on Big Creek, and later in the year will follow the completion of its new Big Creek plant known as No. 8, of 30,000 horse-power capacity.

KERN PLANT COSTLY.

The plant on Kern River will cost when completed about $12,000,000. Work has been pushed forward with the utmost rapidity which conditions would permit. Intensive active work on the project has been in progress for the past two years. The construction of this gigantic power-house involves the erection of a diversion dam which crosses Kern River at a width of 200 feet and a height of twenty-five feet and will divert the waters of the stream through a series of [illegible] miles of tunnel and pipe line, dropping it onto two turbines under an effective head of 860 feet. This plant will consist of two units of 20,000 horse power each. The power-house is solid reinforced concrete.

PROGRAM FOR FUTURE.

The program of the Southern California Edison Company for bringing in other properties during the next

HITTING "THE HOOCH," OR PICKLING YOURSELF AT HOME.

It is well and timely that the voters of Los Angeles should have another opportunity, as the Mayor proposes, to decide on a bond issue for the establishment of a spacious meeting place for the accommodation of large crowds.

Just such an institution will be needed, it is believed, in the event the Amalgamated Association of Hooch Hounds and Home Brewers of this fair city ever decide to hold a convention to report on production, discuss formulas and inquire into the state of the domestic industry. For, be it known, there seem to be more men and women here who confess to keeping "still vigils" in their homes than you can shake a stick at, and in the aggregate they would tax any existing gathering place beyond its capacity.

A census of those who admit to "brewing a little" for home use undoubtedly would prove a revelation. Men who profess to speak whereof they know say, "Everybody's doing it," which may be going a little strong, but can be taken as indicative of the drift of things. To put it mildly, home brewing seems to be tremendously popular here and is said to be on the increase, and more than fifty-seven methods of "home pickling" have been devised.

DRY? NOT BY A JUGFUL!

The home brewers of Los Angeles are said to have become so proficient and had such good luck with their formulas that the reopening of professional distilleries is now regarded as entirely unnecessary. Local hooch makers frankly admit that prohibition has not deprived them of any beverage to which they were accustomed prior to the inauguration of the arid spell.

The libations now being manufactured in Los Angeles homes include beer, corn whisky, wines, brandies and champagne. Almost every other man who was wont to use the brass rail for a foot rest has a long list of recipes for the home brewing of beverages or knows some man who possesses such a list.

The formulas are quite simple, for in most instances it seems to be merely a case of bringing fruit juices and yeast into close association.

The beer manufactured at home is said to have considerable more of a kick and to be more palatable and satisfying than the late lamented 2.75 brand. This is due to the addition of raisins to the professional brewers' formula for the amber fluid.

DISHPAN AND MILK BOTTLES.

The most common household utensils have been combined to form stills capable of production to meet home needs. One of the simplest devices for brewing whisky consists of a large dishpan, a milk bottle and a wash basin.

Two of the most recent formulas with which Hooch Hounds profess to be well pleased call for the use of sweet spirits of nitre and an ice cream freezer. The ice cream freezer also is used in making apple jack from cider. But the ways and means of doing it are legion.

Death Valley Searcher and Rescuer Dies.

Rufus is dead.

He died yesterday in a Pasadena home for the homeless. To those who have traveled through Death Valley the name of Rufus means much. He had guided scores of lost wanderers across the treacherous desert. He had searched the desert for lost men and had saved the lives of many of them. Several hundred guide posts that span Death Valley stand as monuments to the achievements of Rufus.

He had toured the country on many lecture tours with Lou Westcott Beck, explorer and friend of the desert. His deeds had been chronicled in newspapers throughout the country. His picture had been published in many magazines. When Beck, his only companion, died three years ago, Rufus retired to the Pasadena refuge. For three years he had been forgotten and not until his death yesterday were his humanitarian deeds recalled to mind by those who knew him, by those whose lives he had saved.

Rufus was just a Newfoundland dog, and his last home was a refuge for friendless dogs.

EXPECT HUGE CROWDS FOR COMING REUNIONS.

Officers of the Kansas, Michigan and Minnesota State Societies who plan reunion picnics at Sycamore Grove on September 11, 18 and 25, respectively, are expecting immense crowds at the State gatherings. In each case, county headquarters will be maintained, and there will be formal programs which will be begun at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

SIX HUNDRED ENTRIES FOR STOCK SHOW.

Sixty Breeders Apply for Space at October Exhibit at Exposition Park.

With entries received of 600 pure-bred farm animals, among them grand champions at the State fair and the national shows, and each mail bringing letters reserving additional space, the Los Angeles Livestock Show at Exposition Park, October 2 to 10 is assured of highly gratifying support from breeders and exhibitors.

Nine days of events are promised by the management. The program will include hundreds of exhibits of pure-bred farm stock, a daily horse show, rodeo, racing, poultry and pet stock show, and many surprise features.

Yesterday's entries of 250 animals swell the list of entrants to sixty breeders and exhibitors. Latest entries include:

SHOW TO OPEN IN TWO WEEKS.

Space at Premium for Great Exhibit of Tractors.

Glendale Provides Free Camp Ground for Visitors.

Road-Building Equipment to be Listed in Entries.

Two weeks from tomorrow, the National Tractor and Implement Show of the West will be opened to the public at Verdugo Woodlands, Glendale, to continue until the 26th inst., inclusive.

Active preparations for the opening are being made by the exhibitors, who have been assigned their spaces at the grounds and are at work putting the finishing touches on the location.

For several weeks a big tractor has been steadily at work leveling the ground and clearing off the small amount of underbrush and weeds found on the tract. For the most part, however, the woodland needed no extra work to make it into an ideal site for the exhibition. Each exhibit is assured an unbroken period of shade throughout the day while visitors will find grateful the cool shades of the parklike district.

That such an exhibition, with its wide opportunity to the farmer to see and compare all standard makes of tractors, trucks and implements, is welcomed, is evidenced by the great interest that has been manifested in the show by persons who intend to visit it. The tractor, truck and implement men of the West, too, have welcomed the opportunity to meet the trade under conditions which could not be brought about except through such an exhibition. Practically every well-known make of power farming mechanism has a place at the show. In addition to the larger exhibits are the showings of the no-less-important accessories.

WILL FIND ALL SIZES.

Visitors to the National Tractor and Implement Show of the West will be surprised at the fine showing of tractors—the all-important force in modern farming. All styles of tractors, from the small almost tiny tractors intended for use on small plots, to the huge tractors almost as large as a locomotive, will be exhibited. This will be true also of the trucks, the swift-moving powerful couriers of modern commerce. The truck today is indispensable to the farmer, no less than to the manufacturer and merchant. It is because of this that a comprehensive exhibit of trucks suitable to use on the farm has been assembled for the tractor show. In addition to the trucks will be shown their supplementary vehicles, the trailers—a farm convenience and necessity.

The scope of the big show, however, is not limited to tractors, trucks and trailers, but includes also all the important items that enter into modern agriculture. In their resolve to make the show one of interest to everyone concerned, the Tractor and Implement Dealers' Association of Southern California, under auspices of which the show will be held, invited the manufacturers and jobbers of farm implements of all kinds to make entries. That the response was hearty will be quickly noted by the visitor. There will be shown the latest development in the manufacture of scientifically-correct implements for all needs.

MANY HOME DEVICES.

Road-building equipment, too, will come in for a big share of attention, as there will be exhibited the latest models of all mechanisms entering into this work. The home comforts, which contribute so much to the pleasure of modern life on the farm, will also be represented in exhibits of farm lighting plants, electrical appliances for the home, etc. Paints and varnishes suitable for use on the farm—specially prepared for application to tractors, implements and vehicles as well as beautifying the house, barns and other buildings will be represented in exhibits. Motor accessories of all sorts and lubricants will enter into the show to a large extent, bringing to the attention of visitors the more recent development in these interesting and valuable items.

With a view to conducting a business show in a business-like way, the management determined to concentrate its attention on the technical excellence of exhibits and to providing comforts for visitors. The gates of the park will open daily at 9:30 a. m., and close at 6 p.m. This will give the visitors an opportunity to enjoy the recreational and entertainment advantages of Los Angeles and the neighboring resort cities. An item of interest to motorists is the free camping ground which will be provided by the city of Glendale adjacent to the exhibition grounds.

EARLY-DAY FAMILIES TO OBSERVE HOLIDAY.

PLAN CELEBRATION HERE ON MEXICO'S INDEPENDENCE ANNIVERSARY.

Mexican Independence Day will be celebrated by the Mexican-Spanish-American Club at Seelig's Zoo Park on Thursday, the 16th inst., with a fine program. This organization consists of the old California families, made up of the Dominguez, Sepulveda, Del Valle, Moreno, Abilos and Lugos lines and their descendants who have been taking part in the annual celebration since 1810.

The speakers will be Frank Dominguez, Fred Jones and Prof. Kelso, of the Federal Naturalization Bureau, Consul Saenz, representing the Cuban and several South American republics, Baldomero Aramado and others. The keynote of the addresses will be Americanization and South American trade. A free barbecue will be served by the celebrated Spanish chef, Joe Romero.

A fine singing program has been arranged, including the rendition of the "Star Spangled Banner," and the "Hymno Nacional de Mexico," the latter by a chorus of senoritas and caballeros. "La Jota" will be danced by a bevy of senoritas.

It has been arranged that the various corporations in Los Angeles are to release all of their Mexican employees for the day. The celebration promises to be the most successful and pretentious ever held by these representative California families.

Beauty Secrets Revealed. Anna Q. Nilsson the Popular Actress Tells How

To Instantly Have a Beautiful Rosy-White Skin and Complexion

MISS ANNA Q. NILSSON.

New York.—"The secret of beauty is the proper care of the skin," says Miss Nilsson, the popular Metro star. "It only requires a few moments' time and anyone is more than paid for the little effort it takes. In the first place the skin should be kept scrupulously clean. Use a good cleansing cream (Liska cold cream I have found to be the best,) follow this by bathing the face with warm water, then rinse with cold water and dry thoroughly with a coarse towel. After this process apply a beautifier which in addition to being a beautifier has a healing effect on the skin. The very best I have found for this purpose is derwillo, as it instantly beautifies the complexion and its continued use makes the results permanent." Derwillo takes the place of face powder, as it stays on better and is wonderful for a shiny nose, oily, dark, sallow skin, freckles, tan, wrinkles and other facial blemishes. Just make this test: Put Derwillo on one side of your face, then look in your mirror and compare it with the other side—you will need no further argument to convince you that nothing beautifies like Derwillo. It imparts a youthful appearance and if you would keep your complexion at its best all the time make Derwillo a part of your toilet as you now do face powder and note the favorable comments of your friends. Short sleeves are now in vogue. Use Derwillo to beautify your hands and arms and protect them from roughness and ruddiness, which always follows exposure to sun, dust and wind. It is guaranteed absolutely harmless on the most delicate skin and will positively not stimulate or produce growth of hair. Give it a thorough trial and you will never be without it. Accept no substitutes as there is nothing "better," "just as good" or "just like it."

NOTE—Ask your druggist about Derwillo and he will tell you that he has never sold any toilet article which has become so popular in so short a time. This is due to the satisfaction it gives. It is guaranteed by every druggist or department store to give complete satisfaction or they will refund your money. If you don't like it take it back. Could anything be fairer? It is sold at all toilet counters in this city, including Owl Drug Stores.

The Lafayette Day celebration, at which Los Angeles will pay tribute to the memory of the great French patriot and observe the anniversary of the first victory of the Marne in 1914, will head the list of celebrations and outings in and around the city tomorrow. Patriotic societies, the Army, the Navy, the American Legion, fraternal and social bodies, and organizations of State societies will take part in the different events scheduled for the day.

Headed by Mayor Snyder and the official representatives of the French republic, thousands will gather at Lafayette Park, Wilshire Boulevard and Hoover street, to observe the birth anniversary of the man who was America's friend in her hour of need, and to the event of same date more than a hundred years later, on which the gallant French troops saved France at the Marne.

TO DEDICATE PARK.

At the opening of the commemorative exercises Mayor Snyder will formally dedicate the park under its new name—Lafayette Park. The dedication will be followed by a flag raising to be conducted by a detachment of the Grand Army of the Republic under command of W. H. Noll, commander of Stanton Post, assisted by a detachment of about 300 Boy Scouts.

In addition to the Mayor's speech of dedication, the flag raising, and special music by the Royal Marine Band under direction of Frank Gregory, the following program will be given: Remarks, Lucian N. Brunswig, president of the Lafayette Society of California; solo, "La Marseillaise," Andre Roussayrol; recitation, "The Tragedy of La Marseillaise," Mme. Rose Dionne; reading, "The Name of France," Orra E. Monette; and addresses by United States District Judge Bledsoe, Maj. Walter K. Tuller and Rev. Willsie Martin. Appropriate bugle calls will be sounded by Thomas Noolan, chief musician of the army, retired.

Special observance of Lafayette Day has been urged by Mayor Snyder in a proclamation issued last Friday. Among the organizations which will be represented at the dedication of the park and at the Lafayette exercises tomorrow afternoon will be the American Legion under the leadership of Capt. Walter Brinkop; the Knights of Columbus, Daughters of the Revolution, the I.M.I., Daughters of the Confederacy, veterans from the Sawtelle Soldiers' Home, and visiting officers of the French army.

ARMY AND NAVY THERE.

The United States Navy will be represented by Admiral Spencer Wood, staff officers and a detachment of sailors. Col. Blakeley and a detachment of soldiers from Fort McArthur will represent the United States Army, and there will be squads of the city's fire and police department members. Teachers and pupils from the public schools will also attend in large numbers.

Mayor Snyder will be general chairman of the day, and vice-presidents will be Bishop Johnson, Admiral Wood, Judge Bledsoe, Rev. Monsignor Harnett, Gen. P. H. Barry, Gen. Charles H. Whipple, Col. Arthur Williams, Orra E. Monette, Frank H. Pettingell, Charles R. Fletcher and Arthur Letts. Members of the general committee are: Marius de Brabant, F. H. Nettleton, Charles Weir, Capt. Chauncey Shackford, U. S. N.; Rev. Father P. Datin, Capt. Paul Perigord, Lieut. George le Mesnager, Dr. Walter Lindley, Surgeon-Major C. Cahen, French army; Dr. John R. Haynes, Judge Ross, Capt. Willis M. Dixon, Maurice Fog, George M. Chartier, L. J. Christopher, Homer Laughlin, Dr. George F. Bovard, Dr. Ernest C. Moore, Mrs. Susan M. Dorsey, Leo M. Rosecrans, A. J. Neve, W. H. Brophy, R. W. Poindexter, Frank E. Walsh.

At Eagle Rock Park the Scottish folk will hold t picnic and reunion. The affair will be under the auspices of the Caledonian Club and Clan Cameron, O.S.C. The social reunion will begin at 10 o'clock in the morning, to be followed at noon by a basket dinner. Coffee and tea will be provided on the grounds. The afternoon will be devoted to bag pipe playing, Scotch Highland dancing, dress contests, sports and games for old and young. Prizes for the winners will add zest to the contests.

At Selig Zoo thousands will gather for a day's outing and a program of speeches, games and entertainments. Special car service will be given on the North Main and North Broadway lines. The celebration will begin at 10 a.m. and last until midnight.

The Rice County Society of Southern California will hold its sixth annual reunion and picnic in the Auditorium, at Long Beach. George F. Hauser, secretary, promises that participation in one of the most enjoyable times ever had by the society will be the reward of those who come. A basket luncheon, followed by the usual program in which members and friends will participate, will be held.

The folks from Ft. Wayne, and those from Allen county, will have a celebration of their own at Hollenbeck Park, St. Louis-street entrance. Coffee will be furnished, and basket luncheons are expected to furnish the rest of the gastronomical events of the programme. The remaining time will be devoted to games and a general good times. The luncheon starts at 12:30 o'clock.

Westminster Colony Pioneers will hold their reunion at Anaheim Landing. An interesting program of events has been prepared.

LAFAYETTE DAY RESEALS PACT.

France and America Mindful of Help Each Gave.

Century and Half Fails to Disrupt Friendship.

Monday's Celebration Will Honor Dead Heroes.

BY L. A. BRUNSWIG.

"Lafayette nous voila!"—Gen. Pershing at Picpus Cemetery, Paris, July 4, 1917.

As in the great days of Lafayette, the United States and France are again joined together heart and soul in an alliance which shall and must endure forever. The two sister republics in the crucial hour of peril combined their efforts for the triumph of a common cause.

Lafayette, inspired by the spirit and soul of generosity, gave his sword and his personal fortune in the service of the United States, then fighting for independence. Lafayette symbolized the youth of France, her grandeur, chivalry, nobility, generosity, and her eternal love of justice. France in her hour of peril looked to America for help in resisting the Germanic oppression, and did not look in vain. The mighty legions of America fought shoulder to shoulder with the French Poilu, driving out the invading Huns.

The lofty ideals, in defense of which torrents of French blood flowed in America, demanded new sacrifices, this time on the soil of France, America making the sacrifice of her sons in the summer of 1918. Victory has crowned our efforts, just as at Yorktown. The same fraternity in arms which united the companions of Lafayette with their American allies has assured the triumph of our united armies at Chateau-Thierry, at Belleau Wood, in the Meuse, and the bloody battlefields of the Argonne.

The dual ceremonies to be held here Monday of the celebration of the birthday of Lafayette, and the anniversary of the victory of the Marne, find a responsive echo in the hearts of both nations.

We think of Lafayette generally in his character as a military man. We see him commissioned by Congress as a major general in the American army at the age of 20 years.

WOUNDED AT BRANDYWINE.

We see him later wounded on the battlefield, and regardless of his wound, rallying his troops in the engagement on the Brandywine, and pursued by Cornwallis with a vastly superior force, eluding him in the Carolinas after the battle of the Cowpens. Finally, side by side with Alexander Hamilton, he leads one of the assaulting parties at the siege of Yorktown.

In later years returning to France we find him appointed to the command of the National Guard in Paris. Later, at the head of one of the French armies winning successive victories for his country, until driven away by the Reign of Terror he was forced to become an exile in an Austrian military prison.

What a glorious day is the 6th of September! Blending the birthday of Lafayette with the 1914 victory of the Marne, which victory confirmed and emphasized the great accomplishment of Lafayette for civilization, for the supremacy of democracy over autocracy, and the preservation of liberty throughout the world.

Lafayette was the son of liberty, dedicating his youth to her cause in a far land; spending his manhood in the service of America, and in his own country standing fast in his old age, ever undaunted by wounds, imprisonment and poverty, uncorrupted by the bribes of the tyrants, whether of the court or of the mob. Rightly has his birthday been marked with a hero-star. It stands for the indissoluble friendship of France and America, sealed 144 years ago with French blood in America and resealed two years ago with American blood in France.

STAR FOR ENGLISH, TOO.

We may well mark Lafayette Day with a triple star for the British forces of the Hanoverian King George III, arrayed against us at Yorktown, were side by side with us in the world's great conflict, the final struggle for the liberation of mankind from the menace of Prussian militarism and autocracy, when the victory was won by the combined forces of the three great nations — France, England and America.

Then mark this day with a triple star. Along the banks of the Yser and the Somme, the Marne, the Aisne and the Meuse, above the heroes who gave their lives to make the world "safe for democracy," this day sees floating side by side the Tricolor, the Union Jack and the Stars and Stripes.

To the hundreds of thousands of French youth who made the supreme sacrifice on the battlefield of the Marne for the liberty of the world. May their memory be blessed on this solemn anniversary of the greatest of all great victories in the history of the world.

Then think of the accomplishment of Marshals Joffre, Foch, Petain, of Gen. De Castelnau, Gen. Pershing, of the American marines at Belleau Wood and of the French and American divisions at Chateau-Thierry and along the Argonne.

Their sacrifice will not have been in vain if in times to come right will prevail over might and the principles which Lafayette loved and for which he fought will rule in the life and conduct of all civilized nations.

POSTOFFICE SHORT OF LETTER CARRIERS.

In order to provide for the present shortage of letter carriers and clerks in the Los Angeles postoffice, (the eligible list being almost exhausted, Secretary Tynan of the local Civil Service Commission yesterday announced an examination to be held on the 18th inst. There is urgent need of additional help in both classes of employment. The examination will be open to men only.

HELD FOR HOLIDAY CHEER.

Jack Spillane of Sawtelle was found in possession of a bottle of whisky and a demijohn containing an additional half gallon, in order to provide for the needs of the Monday holiday. He was arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Long yesterday, and held in $500 bond. The preliminary hearing was set for the 23rd inst.

ARE WE SOON TO BECOME A RACE OF BALD-HEADED MEN?

PROF. JOHN H. AUSTIN

Bacteriologist, Hair and Scalp Specialist of Chicago, Who Now Has Offices at Hamburger's, Talks Most Interestingly About the Hair.

He says baldness is increasing rapidly among men and points out some of the reasons. Prof. Austin is probably right in saying that only about one man in every hundred ever thinks about his hair at all, except to comb it two or three times a day. If it falls out he looks anxiously at the falling hair and then promptly forgets it until the next time he uses a comb.

A man will give the utmost attention to his teeth, because he knows that when trouble arises he will have more trouble and probably lose his teeth if he doesn't go to a dentist promptly. But his hair doesn't ache, it just gradually dies, and when it is nearly gone, and the roots are dead, he anxiously tries a dozen different remedies at once and then resigns himself to baldness.

Prof. Austin says the use of dandruff cures, mange cures and hair tonics is like taking medicine without knowing what you are trying to cure. The particular trouble with which your scalp is afflicted must be known before it can be intelligently treated.

Prof. Austin examines the roots of your hair with a powerful microscope. He finds out just what is the trouble with YOUR HAIR, and then he tells you what to do for the trouble.

FREE MICROSCOPIC EXAMINATION of the hair and scalp—both men and women invited. Private Offices, Second Floor, Hamburger's. Hours, 10 to 12 and 2 to 4.—[Advertisement.

AFTER THE COIN.

Ambassador Gerard has been made chairman of the Finance Committee of the Democratic national organization. After this we will hear of no restrictions being placed on the size of campaign contributions.

CARVING TURKEY.

Turkey at a dollar a pound is promised for Thanksgiving, though why we call it Thanksgiving is hard to find out. The shortage seems to be general, however. There isn't nearly as much Turkey in Europe as there was two years ago.

NO LATHING MATTER.

Plasterers in Kansas City have gone on a strike for $11 a day. Heretofore they have been eking out an existence on a paltry $8.60 a day, but since gasoline went up three cents they simply had to have the increase. They quit work to save going to the wall, as it were.

THE DODGER.

Whether the Republican campaign fund is a million dollars or thirty cents does not alter Gov. Cox's qualifications for the Presidency. His capacity as a public administrator is not lengthened one fathom by the swelling of the Republican purse. Furthermore, people who skate on thin ice should never throw fits.

THE ILLS WE HAVE.

Selling patent medicines at 15 cents a drink has become a popular pastime in the Minnesota poolrooms. A man suffering from exasperated ennui can get a double dose of Skeet's sarsaparilla spiced with 27 per cent of alcohol for two bits. Many a man who never boasts of his rheumatism at home will develop a pleasantly dangerous case in the presence of the juniper cordial bottle in the poolroom. They have bottles to fit all symptoms—from hydrophobia to the hives—and all of them carrying over 21 per cent of grain alcohol.

OUT OF THE PAST.

A woman of this city has a horse thirty-seven years old, which has been in the family for more than a quarter of a century and now gives every indication of living to a ripe old age. This equine is one of the few now living that can remember when there was no such thing as a rubber tire and gasoline was sold by the ounce in drug stores. In his coltish days there was no paved country highway in America and such a thing as a "horseless carriage" was only a vague and shapeless dream. Thirty-seven years in the life of a horse is an era to the world. Now this animal threatens to become a curiosity—not so much because of his vast age as because he is a horse; and horses are becoming rare.

GETTING TOGETHER.

Senator Harding is strongly opposed to the organization of class against class. He does not approve of the organization of labor and of capital for the purpose of fighting one another, but for the purpose of procuring terms of co-operation they may be admirable. He approves of the organization of the farmers of America, not as a class, but a co-operation and understanding of the farmers and consumers is to be desired. As he said in closing his Mt. Gilead speech: "I know full well that all of us consumers must get together to find our way closer and easier and cheaper to the sources of our food supply." It is all right to get together, but not for the purpose of dividing up the world or using the ax on the other fellow. Senator Harding is never revolutionary, but always sensible.

FILMING THE COPS.

The New York convention of police officers sends a message to the moving picture industry begging that the burlesquing of the police in the films be stopped. It has oft been said that policemen have no sense of humor and this goes to prove it. If the camera may not have sport with the corner cop it would almost have to cease functioning. What would the country do without the Keystone police squad? The police of the country should know by this time that nothing is sacred to the camera and that even a uniformed cop is the pawn and plaything of the film director. Better that we have a few hold-ups than that the movie fan be deprived of his laugh at the misadventures of the force. The policeman may be a crook, an idiot or a hero by turns. He must take his chance with the scenario writer.

STRIKE AT THE POLLS.

Election officials in an eastern city threaten to go on a strike unless they are given an increase of $5 a day for work at the polls. Maybe this is a step toward organizing a union of election judges. That is the usual way. Wouldn't it be a fine thing if the election officials would refuse to accept a nonunion vote and a citizen would have to show his union card before depositing his ballot? The Gompers crowd would have it that way if they could. If the election judges went on a strike in the middle of a count it might be embarrassing, but otherwise it wouldn't be much to worry about. It isn't very often that a precinct is hard up for election judges. They can be usually found without advertising for help and if there was no pay at all enough officials could be had to count the votes that are cast.

WHEN THE WOMEN VOTE.

CALIFORNIANS naturally view with a tolerant amusement the pessimistic predictions from the South and from the Atlantic seaboard concerning the effect of national woman suffrage. The press of the States that persistently denied suffrage to women is gloomily hoping for the worst. The stock arguments used are that women are moved to action by their emotions rather than by their reason; that they confuse appearances with realities; that they will be misled by hypocrites and demagogues and that they will be influenced by popularity rather than by merit. In support of these contentions they point to the fact that hundreds of American heiresses marry foreigners of dissolute habits and unsavory reputations in order to win a title, while there are only two or three cases of record where an American man has married a titled foreigner.

What end they hope to attain by revamping these threadbare arguments is not apparent. The Nineteenth Amendment has been ratified. The women could not now be disfranchised unless they voted to disfranchise themselves and that is about as likely as that they should voluntarily renounce the right to hold property or to surrender any other right they now possess.

II.

WOMEN in California have possessed and exercised the elective franchise for ten years, and the sole charge made against them is that they voted for Wilson in 1916, influenced by the specious argument that "he kept us out of war." The Times is of the opinion that this is only a half truth; that wranglings among masculine politicians and disappointed masculine ambitions had more to do with the loss of California to the Republican party in 1916 than the votes of the women. Granting that the women were tricked by unscrupulous Democratic politicians, they can offer in defense a score of instances in which the male voters were equally credulous.

It was a sense of justice, not the expectancy of hastening the millennium, that gave votes to women. It may not have been expedient; but there are rights paramount to expediency. The mental equality of the sexes has been established for a century. Political equality followed in due time. For the peace of mind of those who are alarmed lest the women shall shortly demand the establishment of a limited monarchy, in order to get coronets, may be recounted a few things that have happened since women have been voting in California, noting the trend of government under joint male and female control.

Equal suffrage did not work any lightning reform in California politics. The personnel of public officials grades little if any higher. The 1919 Legislature was neither more capable nor more honest than that of 1909; but there has been no retrograde movement, and political campaigns have been, on the whole, cleaner and more honorably conducted. There is not one family in ten in which the male and female members do not vote for the same measures and the same men. That line from Tennyson, "As the husband is the wife is," expresses the political situation as nearly as it can be expressed in general terms. Whether the wife influences the husband as often as the husband influences the wife is a moot question; but in few families is there political division.

III.

WHERE the influence of the women in politics is most marked is in education and social service. The women have taken a great and sincere interest in the education of children; and their efforts have produced better results. There are more and better public schools, the salaries of the teachers have been about doubled and the rising generation is receiving a more extended and more practical education than its forebears. The improvement in our public school system alone has been of sufficient importance to justify giving the women the franchise.

We predict that equally happy results along his line will be attained in those Southern States that fought equal suffrage to the bitter end. The women of the South will be in a position to place public education there on a par with that of the rest of the country.

Women's influence has also been apparent in the public institutions of the State. They are more sanitary, more humane, more habitable. The same influence is visible in the improved working conditions of the mill, shops and factories, especially in those where both men and women are employed. The orderly touch of a woman's hand is beginning to be visible in the State, county and municipal government.

California has grown more conservative, less inclined to radicalism, since the women have begun to assist in the solution of industrial problems. True, there are still radical groups; but the influence of the women is antagonistic to all forms of Communism. The soviet idea of making all the houses common property and permitting a commissariat of housing to locate all the inhabitants of a district is deeply repugnant to a woman's instinct of home and motherhood. The wife who has devoted herself for years to making some house, whether mansion or bungalow, into a home nest is not likely to give to any bureaucrat the right to turn her and her family out and fill that nest with other occupants.

Neither does the socialistic theory of having all the children raised by the state appeal to mothers. Giving the franchise to women fortifies society against the enroachments of radicalism. Force alone can overthrow American institutions while the women of the nation possess the elective franchise. The reds and soviets will make little headway in their propaganda with the women voters.

IV.

ONE admirable trait displayed by the women has been the restraint which they have shown in regard to seeking high public offices for members of their own sex. They have been content for ten years to be governed by men; not all of them, of course, but a substantial majority. There were but three women in the 1919 Legislature, a body composed of 120 members, and no women hold elective State offices. The women have been content to exercise the right of selection and veto. This condition is not likely to continue. Fifty years hence there will probably be as many women elected to public office as men; but the women themselves have been content to make haste slowly. Their supposed emotionalism has not made its appearance in politics to any serious extent.

The women of California demanded equal suffrage as a right. They have possessed it for ten years and have not abused it. They have aided in correcting old defects and have created no new ones. Those who expect representative government to break down because women now possess a half interest in national, State and local government are doomed to disappointment. Women pray more than men, and are inclined to vote as they pray; and their influence serves to strengthen the political conscience of the country. Those who regard such an influence as deleterious must not be surprised if their motives are subjected to a rigid scrutiny.

LOVE IN THE DARK.

The authorities are striving to enforce the safety-first idea in the city's love-making. Young folks who do much of their spooning in motor cars must conduct themselves with some consideration for the welfare of pedestrians or other motorists.

Lothario must not relax his grip on the steering wheel for the purpose of increasing the tension on Mabel's waist. Neither can he douse the glim while he browses on Sadie's scarlet lips. The orders from the traffic cop are quite comprehensive. Lovers who snuff their lights and pause the car at the curbing for a farewell clinch will be punished. In order to make it unanimous the parking of an unlighted car after nightfall is forbidden. This will save many accidents. A man may think it is perfectly all right for him to leave his buzz wagon in the road in front of his home with no light burning, but some other motorist, taking it for granted that the road is clear, may run into his machine with most disastrous consequences. But mostly the trouble comes from lovers who stop their cars at any old place on the highway and then snap off the lights while they cleaned up on the season's hugging and kissing. Aside from its straining effect on the morals of our young it was becoming a menace to other tourists and many an accident on the beach boulevards was recorded as a result of this passionate program.

So the whole business must be stopped and the best way to do it is to forbid the parking of unlighted cars on any city thoroughfare after dark. That's about how they figure it.

But love will find a way.

THE NATIONAL GAME.

Senator Harding made one of his front-porch speeches to the Chicago Cubs, who were "passing through," and made a spirited appeal for teamwork on the part of the American people—after the Cub pattern, as it were. The nominee is a warm friend of the national game and admitted an admiration for the pitcher who would put the ball over and trust the fielders to fill their positions to the full. It developed team play and furnished a sustained interest in the game. The Senator said that the American team played better on the home grounds. When they got into the foreign field they played loosely and muffed disappointingly. That may be true, but the Senator must remember that we have to have a world's series. That certainly calls for America.

WAR CRITICS.

Now that there is a disposition to place responsibilities for mistakes and extravagances in the war the Democratic leaders are willing to hedge. In his latest campaign utterance their Vice-Presidential nominee said: "The part of America in the great war was a national part. The war was not won by Democrats or Republicans, but when the crisis came men of all parties joined forces for the common cause." President Wilson has always behaved as if it were his private war or at least one in which all the patriotism belonged to the Democrats. He will be inclined to discipline this brash young Roosevelt for admitting that the Republicans could fight for their country. But the real truth is that Franklin Roosevelt would divide the criticism that is heaped up against his department.

STEFFENS, THE BOLSHEVIST.

Americans reaching Paris from Central Austria report that one of the old California group of radicals and coupon-clipping intellectuals, Lincoln Steffens, is now in Vienna as a representative of the Third Internationale, working on a propaganda campaign to sovietize the remnants of the former empire of the Hapsburgs. Steffens is a full-fledged Bolshevist. He is seemingly proud of the doubtful distinction and boasts that Austria is "expected to turn quietly Communist about October 1."

Less than two years ago Steffens came to Southern California to lecture on sovietism. When a storm of patriotic protest caused the public halls of Los Angeles and San Diego to be closed to him the "intellectuals" raised a great hue and cry about the denial of the right of free speech to those who dared to express Socialist opinions. They then protested that Steffens was not a Bolshevist, that he had not been subsidized by the Third Internationale and that he was not in sympathy with the Russian form of Communism. The Times received a number of communications condemning its policy in denouncing Steffens and his brand of radicalism. Its position was declared to be hopelessly reactionary and Steffens was extolled as an apostle of the new freedom.

Radicals, like running water, generally reach their own level. Steffens made little headway here because the great mass of the American people were too well educated in the science of representative government to be flattered or cajoled into substituting for American institutions the crude, brutal dictatorship of the soviets. Steffens began his radical career twenty years ago as a muckraker. It proved profitable for a time; then it ceased to be financially remunerative because the supply of muck was exhausted. He spent two months in Los Angeles about the year 1906, brought here by a group of parlor Socialists for the purpose of exposing the iniquity of our municipal government and the still greater iniquity of the employers of "scab" labor. He publicly complained that Los Angeles was "a city without a soul" and finally gave up in disgust.

Despite Steffens's anathema the city has prospered fairly well considering its absence of "soul" and its "degrading policy" of industrial freedom. Steffens later drifted down to the City of Mexico and was one of the collaborators of the present Mexican Constitution. He wrote magazine articles asserting that it is a "more perfect document and assures a greater degree of personal freedom and equality of opportunity" than any other constitution ever adopted by any country. He boasted that it would drive capitalism from Mexico. The kind of government that Mexico has experienced under that constitution proves pretty conclusively what happens when the Steffens theories are put into actual practice.

Steffens followed Trotzky to Russia and has been associated most of the time since with the soviet government; and he now appears in Vienna as one of the head propagandists of the Third Internationale.

Since the Red debacle in Poland, however, it is quite likely that the Austrians will not be hoodwinked by the false claims of the Communist leaders. Cables from Warsaw relate that several thousands of the Red forces have welcomed the opportunity to escape within the Polish lines. They were forced into the army by soviet conscription; they found service under Bolshevism a vastly greater servitude than that under the czars, and many have said that they preferred to be prisoners in a free country to the industrial servitude of the soviets.

Steffens is not an unusual type of the "intellectuals" who have been seeking to destroy constitutional government. They enunciated certain theories and strove with inflammatory utterances to induce sincere but uninformed persons to fight for them. Steffens himself sickens at the smell of powder. His valor is strictly "intellectual;" and he proved by his hurried exit from Mexico that he thought more of his skin than his theories. Perhaps he is the last of the seven scourges to be visited upon Austria for the sins, cruelties and perfidies of its former ruling class.

RIPPLING RHYMES.

IN THE NIGHT.

I'm thinking things too fierce to print, for health has met disaster, and here I have a strip of lint and there a porous plaster. One recent eve I sought my couch as chipper as a bunny; I had no symptoms of a grouch and all my life seemed sunny. I thought, before I went to sleep, how much I should be grateful, that I had no diseases cheap, no ailments punk and hateful. And gratitude was two feet wide in all my pleasant thinking: "the gods are good to me," I sighed, to slumber softly sinking. And in the morning when I woke I had some nine diseases; catastrophe, at one fell stroke, had placed me with the cheeses. My legs were stiff as wooden limbs, my back seemed prone to breaking, and I had sore and swollen glims and muscles shrewdly aching. When I get hurt I try to smile and frame a cheerful ditty, for I'll be better in a while—I ask no mortal's pity. I raise no wailings of despair, I spring no bitter weeping; but, gentle reader, is it fair to soak one when he's sleeping? Is it good form to swat a bard and fill him with diseases when he is dreaming (off his guard) of sprightly campaign wheezes?

WALT MASON.

SOME HARD WORDS.

The editor of the Independent proved to an applauding Chautauqua gathering that the spirit of a fighter abides within him. He enlisted there in a spelling bee, and as the ranks to the left and to the right of him wavered and thinned he withstood the orthographic fire until all but him and his fellow-finalist had fled.

"Litotes!" thundered the chief inquisitor, aiming a merciless eye at the finalist at the editor's side, and down he went. But the skipper of the Independent, with no small degree of proper pride, displaying a not unremarkable quality of courage as well as no slight possession of book learning, replied in a voice in which confidence and decision of not inferior quality were blended, snapping back the correct sequence of the letters.

We are happy to record this glorious victory, yet cannot be quite happy until we learn how the inquisitor pronounced the, so to say, eighteenth-hole word: li-to-tez, Century; li-totez, Stormonth; li-to-tes, Webster? No sporting event of dignity enough to interest the earnest endeavor of the editor of our esteemed contemporary should be pulled off under rules any less specific than those which control a race for America's Cup.—[Sun and New York Herald.

THE GARDEN OF GETHSEMANE.

So it is well, as we leave the gentle allurement of flowers in the Garden of Gethsemane and turn toward the city, that our hearts have first been filled with serene joy. We regard the fearfully tried city with something of the compassion that the Master felt for it. Seventeen times destroyed—bitterly hated—anxiously sought—how desperate a history since Nebuchadnezzar captured it more than twenty-five centuries ago. And only the other day, it seems, at Christmas time in 1917, Jerusalem was captured again, this time by its friends, the British, after an agreement with the Turks that the city itself should not be bombarded. There was some fighting on the Mount of Olives, and reconnoitering airplanes dropped a bomb or two in and about the Garden of Gethsemane. But Jerusalem has been captured for the last time, and the last offensive was devoid of evil.

Redeemed today, but in her nakedness, Jerusalem waits to be clothed. She has as yet no grace, no covering for her ugly wounds. Some day her sides will glisten with the brightness of a heavenly radiance; she will be washed and anointed like a bride waiting for the bridegroom.—[William D. McCracken in "Asia."

THE LANCER.

I've done a lot of foolish things in my life, but I'm never going to try to make people believe I own a newspaper I do not really control, for even the newspapers which try hardest at it and keep in constant practice soon learn that no newspaper can hide its true colors long, no matter how it tries to camouflage. For illustration, take the hypothetical case I heard of the other day: Suppose there was a certain man who posed as the owner and controlling power of one newspaper and the wielder of considerable influence over another. Suppose the editor had for a long time been hankering to take an extended outing on a yacht, of which, for the time, he would be the boss. Naturally, the sort of gentleman who would find a thrill in posing as a real newspaper owner would find a somewhat similar pleasure in posing as a real yacht owner, even for a little while. Suppose, therefore, this newspaper person should look about until his eyes fell on a yacht which was a regular limousine of a yacht, the property of a man who counts his millions by tens instead of by ones, because it would take too long the other way, and yearned to take his vacation in that very yacht.

Suppose that the yacht owner took a very friendly interest in the candidacy of one Samuel Shortridge for the United States Senate and therefore the editor assured the yacht owner that he also took a great interest in Mr. Shortridge's candidacy and was confident he could bring influence to bear which would make his other newspaper take similar interest. In fact, suppose the editor was confident that through "his" newspapers he could help Mr. Shortridge to a sweeping victory in Southern California if only for the time being he could get clear away from the distractions of all places where there were telephones and telegraph stations and things like that—as one would be while on a yacht cruise, for instance. And suppose the kind-hearted millionaire, feeling sorry for a poor editor with no yacht of his own and having no use for his yacht just then, volunteered to lend it.

Then suppose that this editor went away on the yacht cruise and kept his word about working hard on plans to make everything solid for Mr. Shortridge. Suppose the editor himself was convinced that Mr. Shortridge was the best man for the place and so returned from his vacation beaming with the satisfaction that for once, anyway, his paper was going to follow his best judgment, while he was going to give an impressive demonstration that he was a real dictator of policy in his own office, and that those who snickered at him as a mere figure-head were off their bases.

And then suppose orders suddenly had come from the real boss that both "his" newspaper and the other one he was going to "influence" must support Kent!

Supposing all those things, wouldn't an editor in a situation like that be in what the lady called a fell of a hix?

Who's killing Cock Robin MacSwiney, Lord Mayor of Cork? I, said his cousin. With my foolish fussin', I'm killin' MacSwiney. We, said his mother and father and brother, we're encouragin' him in it, we're killin' MacSwiney. We, cried the rebels, who hurl bricks and pebbles, we started this trouble, we're killin' MacSwiney. Certain it is that if MacSwiney dies he will be the victim of his own fool stubbornness which his own fool relatives and friends are doing their utmost to strengthen. It cannot be said that those who put him in prison are guilty nor that MacSwiney is vindicating any principle or making himself a read martyr by his mulishness. Greater and better men than MacSwiney have been subjected to indignities and put in the jug; but they didn't convince the world of their greatness nor of the justice of their causes by starving themselves to death. Looking back over history, which has run quite a while, I cannot recall a single headliner who made a dent in the sands of time by that process. I'm sorry for MacSwiney because he's such a chump, not because of the way he's being treated.

WHY CARS GO WRONG.

"He cometh not," she said anent her beloved one.

"Where in blankety-blank has the car gone?" he said anent the 7:53 which he expected to land him at the office by 8 a.m. flat.

In the street-car dispatcher's office is a book which will furnish the text for the sermon and explanation of wayward street cars. It shows every deviation from scheduled service for twenty-four hours.

The interference with scheduled service coming from sources which the company cannot control is amazing. The street parade wins the cookie because it blocks every car from entering the downtown district.

The dispatcher's book fell open at August 9. It may be taken as a mild example of why cars get off schedule and have to be diverted to other lines for a few blocks.

5:00 a.m.—House moving, North Main and Lamar. Diverted West Adams and Brooklyn and Hooper cars. Clear at 5:35 a.m.

5:13 a.m.—Water pipe broken at Fifty-fourth and Denker. Water department notified.

8:05 a.m.—P. E. train rear trucks derailed at Seventh and Main. Fifteen minutes delay. Both direction Main street cars diverted via Spring and First streets.

11:23 a.m.—Ten minutes delay, Ninth and Grand View. Fire hose across track.

12:48 p.m.—Truck blocking track at Forty-eighth and Santa Fe avenue. Fourteen minutes delay.

And so it goes gaily through the day. When the heavy traffic and the auto truck casualties thin out the house mover begins the dirty work at the cross-roads for the joy of Owl car patrons.—[A-z-u-r-i-d-e.

DRINK IF YOU ARE BRAVE.

Bowl Still Flows Here for Thirsty Who Will Take Chance and Pay Price.

If they never shaved, pleading for the shaving lotion.

"As fast as we learn their games we shut them off, but they are great at turning to new things. Hair tonic, shaving lotion, toilet water and most of the whisky medicines played out in a hurry. It soon will be impossible for anyone to buy any without a prescription and right now everything is 'jake.'"

ODORIFEROUS "KICK."

"Everything's jake" used to be a popular expression to signify that everything is all right. That is no longer its meaning. Now "jake" means Jamaica ginger, a liquid twice as strong as whisky. The druggists now put "jake" up in two-ounce bottles, and no more will be sold to one customer. But two ounces of "jake" is enough to make a good-sized glass of cider as powerful as an equal amount of whisky. It tastes like carbolic acid and smells like somebody was shoeing a horse, but it has a kick.

The reporter followed a man who bought "jake" to an evil-looking "soft drink" shop, where three other men were waiting. Each of them had already poured into his glass about three fingers of cider. As nearly as jealous watching and trembling fingers could accomplish it, the "jake" was divided equally among the four, stirred into the cider and tossed off. Then they took up a collection and sent one of the other men out for more "jake." An hour later they still were there.

Late in the evening the reporter fell into conversation with the driver of a "for hire" car on Main street. Then he popped the question—could the driver take him to a drink? After carefully scrutinizing him, the driver believed he might be able to find one. He started on a journey which would have bewildered a stranger in the city—which the reporter represented himself to be—but when finally the car stopped it was within a block of where it started.

THE PRICE SCALE.

"You wait here," said the driver. "Gimme the money and I'll see if I can buy any."

"How much?"

"Oh, twenty-five."

The reporter handed him a quarter.

"You are green," sneered the driver. "I mean $25. This is bonded goods."

The reporter then got the prices—[illegible] cents a drink for whisky, 75 cents a quart for beer, $25 a quart for whisky and $3 a quart up for wine.

The driver disappeared and was gone long enough to go back to where he started from. Then he reappeared with a bottle, but no glass.

"Take a good swig and gimme a dollar," he said.

The bottle had once been in a bonded warehouse, all right, but the seal had been broken a long time. The reporter smelled it and was afraid of it. He only pretended to drink. What touched his tongue tasted like tobasco sauce which had just been brought to a boil.

It is unlawful to publish a recipe for making any beverage forbidden by the Volstead law, but the reporter is going to take a chance on having some one else put in jail. He cannot resist a chance to whack the profiteers. There is a pretty steady illegal traffic in whisky in Los Angeles at prices ranging from $20 a quart up. If people will drink that sort of stuff, they might as well make their own and save money for funeral expenses. True, the mixtures they make will be mere experiments, but so are most of those they buy. About $50,000 worth of real whisky has been confiscated from bootleggers by the Federal prohibition enforcement officers in Los Angeles, but most of what they confiscate is made out of the following ingredients: Formaldehyde, Jamaica ginger, wood alcohol and grape juice for coloring. Stir rapidly, drink rapidly and then telephone for the undertaker—also rapidly.

HUSKY HOME BREW.

The last hope of the reporter was a club in which he has friends. He went there and sought them out.

"Nothing doing here," one assured him, "but if you'll come out to my home I'll hand you some home brew that will make you think all the morning stars are singing together. It's not beer—it's more like brandy. It's made out of peaches and sugar and a lot of things like that. Easy to make—just had to mix it and then stir it once a day for twelve days. And, oh, boy! You never saw a Ford engine with a kick like that."

His enthusiasm drew others. It used to be women who gathered into eager knots to exchange recipes; now it is men. Whenever two or three are gathered together they begin swapping them. In some neighborhoods there are almost as many different kinds of home brew being fermented in the cellars as there are different families. Some people who never drank before are making home brew now, just because it is so much the fashion.

The name of home brew covers more sins than does charity. Some of the most villainous beverages ever invented go by that name, but every home brewer is proud of his product. The alcoholic content of some of the beverages the reporter tried during his investigations seemed to him to range from nothing to 250 per cent.

SAFETY FOR BREWERS.

Although the Federal prohibition enforcement officers can raid any house in which they believe there is a still, they cannot enter a house in which home brew is made unless there is evidence it is being sold, although the making of home brew is not, technically, permitted by the law. The recent ruling of Prohibition Commissioner Kramer that fruit juices made at home may contain more than one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol probably resulted from the fact that the making of home brew and wine is a general practice among foreign-born citizens throughout the country, and nothing could be done to stop it so long as they did not sell their product. Already hops have become one of the staples at many groceries and the indications are that the home brew industry is in its infancy.

Nearly every morning violators of the Volstead law are prosecuted by the government and nearly all are found guilty. The penalty is $1000 fine or from thirty days to one year in prison, or both. No one has yet been arrested here for making home brew, the prosecutions all being for either the distilling or illegal sale of intoxicants. The high prices tempt many people to break the law, but these profiteers, unlike some others, stand an excellent chance of going to jail. A noteworthy thing about them is that many of them make whisky to sell, but not to drink. They know what it is made of.

So there still is booze here for anyone who will pay enough and take chances enough, but drinking isn't what it used to be. Drinking has become the lonesomest, most furtive of sports. It is not a thing of bright lights and good-fellowship but a thing of dark, damp, noisome places in which one takes a gulp of liquid fire hastily and guiltily. Alcohol is not King Al any more but a mere alley rat. Nowhere except in the homes of those whose home brew is good enough to make their friends fond of visiting them is there anything like the old-time conviviality. And even there, something is lacking. There is no rail to put one's foot on and no always-sympathetic bartender to tell one's troubles to.

COUNTY DIGS UP PRIVATE STOCK.

Old Tank, Buried for Eight Years, Found Full of Liquid Treasure.

The county's private stock was unearthed yesterday. The find was made by Chairman Dodge of the Board of Supervisors on county property on New High street, where excavations are being made to provide space for storing the county automobiles. The county is tearing down some old buildings.

Preparations were being made to remove an old iron tank, formerly in use, when the discovery was made that it was full of what developed to be liquid buried treasure.

The tank contained 1600 barrels of fuel oil, which was buried and forgotten since 1912. Fuel oil then was worth about 60 cents a barrel, but now it is worth $1.60 a barrel—a find of $2560, with a profit of $1 a barrel for aging.

G.O.P. EDITORS TO MEET.

Will Gather at Riverside to Hear About Trip to Harding Home.

The California Republican Editorial Association, which was organized at San Francisco last week, will meet at Riverside, on the 18th inst. for the purpose of hearing a report from an editorial committee which has gone to Marion, O., to confer with Senator Harding, Republican nominee for the Presidency.

Other matters of importance will also be considered by the editorial association at the forthcoming meeting. The matter of advertising the Republican campaign will be one of the principal subjects to be considered.

The meeting at Riverside is being held primarily to allow the Republican editors of the southern part of the State, who were unable to attend the San Francisco conference, to learn the objects of the association.

NO MAIL ON MONDAY.

Federal Offices of All Kinds will be Closed for Holiday.

Monday's holiday will be celebrated at the Federal Building by the cessation of all public functions. There will be no sessions of court, and every department will be closed all day.

An old-fashioned holiday will be celebrated by the postoffice. There will be no deliveries during the day. The only sign of life will be the parcel post window, where persons desiring stamps may purchase them from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The calendars in both departments of the United States District Court will be called Tuesday morning. The majority of the cases to be considered involve charged violations of the Volstead law.

MANUAL'S NIGHT SCHOOL.

The Manual Arts Evening High School opened last week with an unusually large enrollment. Courses are offered in Spanish, commercial subjects, shop practice, woodwork, metally, dressmaking, and all common subjects of high school. There is room for more pupils in the Tuesday and Thursday evening classes. The popularity of Spanish in Southern California was evident in the way the beginers' class was filled to overflowing. The advanced classes are still opened to enrollment. The fact that the city of Los Angeles furnishes free text-books to the evening classes as well as to the day classes has induced many adults as well as youths to take advantage of the evening schools.

PUBLIC WANTS REAL SERVICE.

Southern Pacific President Sends Out Bulletin.

Tells Employees Roads Must Work to Earn Praise.

Says Buscinesss Leans Largely on Good Transportation.

Success of the railroads is dependent upon the good opinion of the public, and that good opinion will be withheld unless the roads give the public real service, says William Sproule, president of the Southern Pacific Company, in a circular bulletin which was sent to all employees of the company last Wednesday, the 1st inst., when the government guarantee of earnings lapsed under the provisions of the Transportation Act.

The question is not alone that of the success of the railroads, but of all production and business which depends largely upon transportation, says President Sproule's message, which follows, in part:

"On this first day of September, the Southern Pacific Company, in common with the other railroads of the country, resumes operation upon the basis of what we are able to earn, gross and net, by effective work without the aid of any guarantee from the government. We should now realize that the war period, with its agitations, uncertainties and perplexities being over, the country looks to each of us to do his duty toward restoring our standards of service. The people expect that the railroads shall be run on the basis of sound organizations and effective work with proper economies. Indeed, Congress has so indicated in the Transportation Act of 1920, to which all roads are now subject.

"The rates of the carriers have been increased with the object of enabling them, to meet their costs, and the wages of the employees have been raised to enable them to meet their own increased costs. In return for this it is natural for the people to require everyone in the railroad service to work capably and with diligence.

"This company is fortunate in the fact that seniority and fitness have always been the basis of recognition in the service. No railroad can be successful except upon the basis of fitness; while seniority recognizes length of service, the person best fitted for the work is the one who can render the best service.

"Every one of us in the railroad business should recognize that the public looks to us to give service. The public looks to the officers to maintain a vigorous working organization and to the employees to show results for the money spent that will justify a proper pride in their calling as railroad men who do not shirk any part of their duty.

"The war period has passed and in passing a word of appreciation is due the efforts of those loyal employees who served the government during the period of Federal control in the same efficient way they had previously served the company. Now let us settle down for the future, each one of us to show the public we serve and upon whose good opinion we are dependent, that ours is a compact and vigilant organization of people who realize their responsibilites.

"Let us handle the business of the public in every department with the serious purpose of doing our best, for all men know by this time that production and business depend largely on transportation for their returns, and if we fail the people they will fail us.

"Finally, let us cherish that spirit of good faith and good will which should always exist among men in the same organization and engaged in a common service which touches the well-being of all our fellow-citizens."

STATE COFFERS AMASS BALANCE.

Almost Seven Millions More Taken in Last Month Than Was Spent.

State collections last month exceeded expenditures by almost $7,000,000, according to the report of State Treasurer Richardson, filed yesterday. The receipts for August were $10,382,577.61, while the expenditures were only $3,782,416.26.

Among the largest expenditures were: State university, $200,000; compensation insurance, $509,000; motor vehicle, $188,000; highway, $687,000, and general fund, $1,442,000.

Strong Legislative Delegation for Southern California Now Assured.

POLITICS.

THE WATCHMAN.

TREND OF POLITICAL THOUGHT AND ACTION.

By the Sentry on His Beat.

Good results, of course, have come to the State from the elimination contest through which we have just passed. As citizens with a sense of the fitness of things, we have done ourselves the best political turn in several years. The toboggan, well-greased for William Kent, finds him spilled near the bottom, meaning that the curtain has definitely fallen on his late aspirations and that the turbulent radical elements with which he so joyously surrounded his recent office hunger are now adrift in the wilderness, minus their thoroughly squeiched and disillusioned leader. Mr. Kent has had his noisy fling, and few will grieve his retirement to the solitudes of Kentfield, there to reflect over the unwisdom of carelessly toying with the business end of a red-hot political poker.

Mr. Wallace, too, having drawn the disappointing end of the prize, may now have time to note the harvest moon and muse over the uncertainties of fishing in the big brook with a hook shy of bait. As a national figure his light seems to have flickered for a brief time and gone out. As simple truth, and admitting that Mr. Wallace swam as best he could in currents made for stronger swimmers, I cannot see that his passing creates a serious void in party leadership. His one best bet, as I see it, is now to give the strongest hand he owns to the work of electing Mr. Shortridge, who, as the Republican voters of California have decided, is the one man capable of retiring Senator Phelan.

As a sure-shot prognosticator of election results, former Senator Frank Flint has in him, it would seem, the qualities of a first-rate poet. His pre-primary prediction anent the bright prospects of Mr. Wallace against Mr. Shortridge is an illustration in point. Fancy in the former Senator's optimistic vision ran fact completely off its feet, leaving few of Mr. Wallace's campaign workers to suppose that such sublime faith as his possibly could fail to carry the day. Had Mr. Flint's prediction of winning pluralities for Mr. Wallace been carried in the chance quotation of some careless reporter, we might have been less impressed. But they came to us in large type, sticking out like a mountain of truth from a campaign advertisement, printed on August 28, which Mr. Flint, as the Wallace mentor, no doubt supervised. Predicted Mr. Flint:

"The nomination of A. J. Wallace is now a settled fact. He will have a majority of 150,000 against Phelan in the final election in November."

It is sadly disappointing, of course, when the voice of one of our great political seers fails to bridge his desired gap, and there is no consolation now in remembering that the same prophetic vision foresaw the Republican Presidential laurel wreath placed by popular choice on the noble brow of Senator Johnson at the Chicago convention back in June. Surely the muse is playing tricks on the former Senator's powers of selection.

As the campaign clamor of the little fellows to possess themselves of office quiets down, I find a healthy disposition to turn aside from small strivings and put shoulders to the Republican party's big wheel. Let this thought sink in and the national campaign in Southern California will be free of weak spots. If the numerous State Senatorial and Assembly nominees really want to make a good job of their own campaigns, they can do nothing better from now on than jump in and work their hardest for the Harding and Coolidge ticket. Past experience has proved—and the future will confirm the fact—that if enough hoist is put in the kite, the tail is bound to go over.

I am told that some of Charley Lyon's friends, peeved over Charley's failure to beat Tom Woolwine, are talking of starting a movement to put a Republican's name on the November ballot for District Attorney by petition. Such a movement, even if it did materialize, would be futile, inasmuch as the primary law immerses the idea in a cold bath. The one way open to Mr. Lyon's friends to get a Republican's name on the November ballot, if they have such a thing in mind, is to write it in; and experience shows that such candidates meet a short shift. It would be far better political wisdom for Charley's supporters to bury their disappointment over the lost District Attorneyship and, like good sports, show zeal in helping elect the Republican national legislative tickets.

My cheers over the primary results are somewhat lusty for those energetic workers over on the east side of Los Angeles who helped to purge two or three districts of the union candidate incubus. As a result of the elimination of Frank Mouser in the Twenty-ninth Senatorial District, Otto Emme, Carl Jacobson and Charley McCarthy in the Sixty-sixth Assembly District and Joe Dormer in the Seventy-fourth Assembly District, the voters have assured themselves of a better all-round delegation than Southern California has had in a blue moon. The Seventy-first Assembly District also did a good job in putting the skids under Jack Horn, the former brewery-wagon driver, who opposed Edwin O. Loucks. Spots in these districts were in need of a wholesome bath, and they got it with the best available political soap. Emme and Horn are definitely off the November ballot, although both double-tracked the game, as they thought, by running on both the Republican and Democratic tickets. It seems, however, that prior to the primary they both were registered as Republicans, and having lost the Republican nomination they are ineligible under the law to run in November as Democrats. Mouser is in the same boat.

Of the three incumbent Supervisors Mr. Dodge was the only one to land the plumb on the first round—a trick which he accomplished handily and, as far as I can learn, to the great satisfaction of his district. Mr. Dodge is popular because he has proved himself highly capable in handling his official duties. He is an energetic worker, and when the public, both inside and out of his district, wants something done, the result is usually forthcoming quickly, without hawhawing or sidestepping.

Samuel Kerns, defeated in the race for Supervisor in the Fourth District, for several days clung to the straw that the final count would land him ahead of Councilman Farmer and thus put him on the ballot in November against Supervisor McClellan. But such was not to be. Mr. Farmer nosed him out for second place and will have the final try against Mr. McClellan, who looks as good as ever to win in the finals.

Los Angeles county voters who have not registered must do so before October 2 if they expect to cast a ballot at the general election on November 2. Voters who have changed their place of residence since their last registration also must re-register before October 2 in order to qualify. To accommodate such persons the Registrar of Voters has arranged for a special deputy to be at a station in front of the City Hall, day and evening, until October 2.

Now for wired and spoken promises to support Samuel M. Shortridge in his race against Senator Jim Phelan for the toga, the Santa Monica Bay Republican Club is among the earliest to start the procession for Mr. Shortridge. From its headquarters yesterday went this wire to the Republican candidate:

"The Santa Monica Bay Republican Club, composed of loyal Republicans resident of Santa Monica, Ocean Park, Venice and Sawtelle, congratulates you and pledges its enthusiastic support in the November election."

Proposed Community Property Law Puts Skids under Homes' Harmony.

An unparalleled situation, in which women who have great faith and confidence in their husbands, are giving time and money to aid a campaign for a proposed law, which their equally devoted husbands are giving time and money to defeat, has been created by the campaign for and against the so-called community property law. The same law, according to former Judge William Rhodes Harvey, who yesterday made known these facts, is supported by many women whose children oppose it and in numerous families already is causing dissension between the parents, sisters and other relatives of the heads of the houses and their wives. In fact, the most fitting name the law could have would be the family disrupter, its opponents charge.

On its face, Senate Bill 471, known as the community property law, merely is designed to make marriage more of a fifty-fifty proposition, but though the law is no joke, it is full of jokers. Some of the things which will happen if it is approved at the general election in November will be laughable and others will be more startling to business than was the war, say those who see the serious possibilities of the measure. Carried to its limits, that law might make it as impossible for a woman to buy a new hat on credit, without taking her husband along to sign the agreement with her, as it is now for a man to sell his homestead without his wife's consent. It might bring about such a condition that a business man could not order supplies to carry on his business unless his wife also signed the order. And it unquestionably would result in the closing of the doors of many charitable institutions. Its eventual results, its opponents say, would make women liable for alimony and to jail sentences if they should fail to support their husbands.

STRINGS ON CHARITY.

The law, if approved, will give wives testamentary or will-making control of one-half of the community property. At first blush that may seem simple and fair enough. But under the provisions of the law a man could not will anything to charity, to his mother or father or any other relative other than his children and grandchildren without his wife's consent. Diligent search of the court records indicates that occasionally wives do not care as much for the mothers, sisters and old-maid aunts of their husbands as the husbands do. Even in cases in which those relatives have been more or less dependent on the husbands for years, it does not always follow that the wives have grown ardently fond of them.

Any bequests a man might wish to make to long-faithful employees would be impossible under the law, unless the wife should approve them. And even if she agreed and signed with her husband a will making bequests to some of his relatives or employees, she might withdraw her consent, even after her husband's death, and then the whole estate would be thrown into probate.

Another possibility for civil war and internecine strife appears when one studies the provisions that a wife may will half the community property to her children. In cases in which her children are not her husband's, this might result in a man finding himself suddenly in full partnership with a minor child or a stepson or stepdaughter, who had always thought Ma greatly lowered herself by marrying him, opponents of the law assert.

MEANS MORE TAX.

And the inheritance tax would get two whacks at the family savings instead of one. Now if a wife dies the community property is not classed as a legacy and is not subject to inheritance tax.

Alimony for men and the putting of wives in jail for failure to support their husbands are among the possibilities of the near future if the community property law is approved, according to opponents of that measure. Such legislation, they point out, would be the natural sequel of the proposed law. At present it is a felony for a man to fail to support his wife and if she divorces him he must pay her alimony, while women are not criminally liable for failure to support their husbands and are not called on to pay alimony. The law now is based on the assumption that it is the duty of the husband to support the family, in return for which he is given the title and control of community property, real and personal, though he is unable to dispose of any of the personal property without valuable consideration or his wife's consent, nor can he sell, mortgage or lease for longer than one year any of the community real property unless his wife joins with him. If the wife is to have equal rights in disposing of the community property, opponents of the new law argue, she should have equal responsibility in providing it, equal penalties for failure to provide and just as much obligation to pay alimony in case of separation.

Under the present law, half a husband's property must go to his widow, besides which she may have the homestead. The remainder of his property may be willed to other relatives or to charity, with few restrictions. If an inventory shows that the net value of the estate does not exceed $1500, probate proceedings must stop and the court must set aside the whole estate to the widow, free from any claims or debts excepting mortgage liens or the expenses of the husband's last illness and funeral.

WIFE'S ADVANTAGE.

Another inequality of the new law is that property conveyed to a married woman by an instrument in writing is presumed to be her separate estate, while property acquired by a married man is presumed to be community property.

If a man should die leaving no will, under the proposed law the entire community estate would go to the widow, excluding the children entirely. That is the provision which is causing friction between some wives and their own children.

But it is among the people who believe that "business as usual" is the salvation of the country that the proposed law is creating the greatest alarm. The real estate boards of both Los Angeles and San Francisco, the Los Angeles Wholesale Credit Men's Association, the Los Angeles Retail Credit Men's Association, the California Land Title Association, the California Bankers' Association, the Los Angeles Contractors' Association, the Los Angeles Bar Association and the San Francisco Board of Trade are among the organizations which strongly are opposing approval of the law, because they feel it will cloud titles, disturb credits, keep wealthy easterners from coming to California and drive a great deal of wealth out of the State.

HOW IT WOULD WORK.

Under the proposed law, they say, these are the conditions which would result: When a wife died only half of the community property would belong to the husband and the other half might have been disposed of by will by the wife, in which case the whole estate would pass into the Probate Court for administration. During that process the property would be subject only to community debts and not to either the husband's or the wife's separate debts. Such a situation well might injure a husband's credit as a business man and a wife's personal credit. Similarly, on the death of a husband the community property would go into probate and be subject only to his debts, not to his wife's debts nor to community debts, thus again seriously jeopardizing the interests of all creditors of the family. Under such a condition a merchant would have to have health reports from all his patrons and their spouses every morning before he would know whom to trust, and the credit of many a business man simply would cease to exist.

Altogether, the law seems to contain a great many loopholes its framers doubtless never intended it to have. Its intent may be excellent, but its language would make possible more ways of beating creditors and starting family rows than any other law ever drawn. In fact, it is starting the family rows already, the most distressing of family rows, the ones between "her" and "his folks." But the opponents of the law are very hopeful that peace and tranquillity soon will be restored. They feel confident that once it becomes known that the law might create such a condition that a woman would have to take her husband with her and sign the contract with him every time they should buy a hat or a dress on a charge account, mighty few wives will favor it—and the mothers and sisters and cousins and aunts are against it already.

EIGHTH WIFE FILES SUIT.

He certainly could lead brides to the altar, but he couldn't make them, er—well, to make a long story short, Kid McCoy's latest wife yesterday filed suit for divorce.

The marriage which Mrs. McCoy, legally known as Mrs. Norman Selby, now wishes to have set aside, was No. 8 on the much-married individual's records. It took place in Los Angeles, April 19. The bride, theretofore known as Miss Dagmar Dalgren, but whose real name is Carmen Browder, gave her age as 19 and her celebrated cave man admitted 41 years and seven previous marriages.

Comes now Mrs. Selby and charges in her complaint that the said Kid was guilty of extreme cruelty, consisting of blows, abuse, of staying out all night three days after the wedding, and of doing other things a gentleman should not do. All of which she considers sufficient grounds for divorce and through her attorney, Rex Hardy, asks that it be granted as soon as possible.

The couple separated about three weeks after their marriage here, according to friends of Mrs. Selby. McCoy is now in or around Chicago and Mrs. Selby in Los Angeles. Before her marriage to the celebrated marryer Miss Browder was well known here as a classical dancer.

McCoy's fame rests primarily on his career as a prize fighter, cinema actor and husband of seven other women whom he managed to lead to the altar, but couldn't or wouldn't keep.

WIDE RANGE OF JOBS OPEN.

Fifteen openings are to be filled from the United States Civil Service lists after examinations which will be held here at an early date at room 618, Federal Building. With the exception of the job of clerk-carrier in the Los Angeles post office, all of the positions are open to women as well as to men. The vacancies carry salaries ranging from $600 to $4500 a year and are as follows: Third class steam engineer, law clerk and typist, forest and field clerk, stenographer and typist, boy and girl messengers, bacteriologist and an associate and a junior, assistant director of educational work, reconstruction aide, instructor in occupational therapy, traveling and resident auditor and an electric draftsman.

18,291 Miles From A Tire

That cost only ½ as much.

18,291 miles is unusual service from any tire.

But when such a tire cost only ½ as much and is guaranteed puncture proof besides, no motorist can fail to investigate such service for himself.

O. Richter of Pasco, Washington, is only one of more than a million car owners who are today obtaining such extra mileage at this big saving.

Read his letter which tells you how he did it.

"I ran this Gates Half-Sole Tire, serial number 33,729, 18,291 miles, mostly over sand and gravel roads. It was in service constantly two years without a puncture or blowout. I also ran another Half-Sole 20,000 miles without changing."

Before you buy another tire don't you think you owe it to yourself to investigate this new principle of construction which would give you, too, such a mileage at only half cost.

FREIGHT RISES MAY CUT COST.

Railroad Officials Count on Better Service to Aid.

Increase on Dress Here from New York Only Nickel.

Tables Show Advances Cannot Justify Higher Prices.

Paradoxical though it seems, railroad officials are unanimous in believing that the recent freight rate increases ultimately will lower living costs rather than boost them. Even the first increases in commodity prices, will amount to perhaps only 2 per cent at the most, they say, and better rail service will mean reductions soon.

Unscrupulous dealers who may attempt to use the freight increases as a "smoke screen" to cover profiteering methods, should be treated icily by the family purse string holder, the officials assert. Freight charges on a woman's suit brought to Los Angeles from New York, for example, are increased only 4 2-3 cents, making the total rate 18 2-3 cents.

Other examples of the small effect which the new rates have, are given as follows:

Men's shoes, from Boston to San Francisco, 4 1-3 cents more; one pound of flour from South Vallejo to Merced, 1-20 cent more; one dozen eggs from San Francisco to Reno, 3-5 cent more; one pound of butter from San Francisco to Lovelack, Nev., 3-10 cent more; one pound of potatoes from Stockton to San Bernardino, 1-10 cent more; cotton dress from St. Louis to Calexico, 2 3-5 cents more; one pound of sugar from Crockett, Cal., to Ogden, Utah, 1-5 cent more; one pound of beef cattle from Gazelle to Oakland, 1-10 cent more; man's shirt from New York to Red Bluff, 7 4-5 cents more; one pound of bacon from Chicago to Sacramento, 7-10 cent more; one pound of prunes from San Jose to Kansas City, 2-5 cent more, and one pound of beefsteak from South San Francisco to Fresno, 1-10 cent more.

Inadequate railroad facilities have been held by many economists to be the prime cause of the upward trend of prices. Freight officials believe that the general tendency now toward lower levels, will be accelerated to the extent that transportation facilities are improved by the increased revenues yielded by the new rates.

ITALIANS EAGER TO WORK.

"Italy has but one wish, to return to work as soon as possible, for my country made great sacrifices during the war and her needs are many," declared Miss Italia Anita Garibuldi, grand-daughter of the Italian patriot, speaking at yesterday's noon luncheon of the City Club.

"Italy sent 4,500,000 of her sons to war, and more than 7000 Italian women left their homes and served as Red Cross nurses.

"Americans who go to Italy should visit our devastated sections, where our men who served in the war are at work with pick and shovel rebuilding the homes and industries destroyed by the enemy.

"The war wiped out our old class distinctions, and all are working together to restore our beloved land. There are strikes in Italy, but they are not important nor are they hampering the real work of reconstruction.

"We need the help and sympathy of Americans in our efforts to recover from our losses in the war. We invite you to come to Italy, to visit in our homes to know the real Italians. We learned to love your people more than ever when the American Red Cross came to us and aided us in every way immediately after Italy entered the war."

STAR ASKS FOR PASSPORT.

Blanche Sweet, the cinema star, who in her application gives her full name as Sarah Blanche Sweet, applied for a passport at the office of the clerk of the United States District Court, yesterday. She is going to France and England, on a pleasure trip, sailing from New York on the Aquitania on the 21st inst.

Now, Just What Is the Chickering-Ampico?

This query is made by the interested listener regarding the Masterpiece of musical instruments

Chickering
AMPICO
Reproducing Piano

ANSWERING this question, and perhaps as comprehensively as can be done in cold type, the Chickering-Ampico is the actual embodiment of the great artists, accurately reproducing their artistry with human individuality. No difference can be detected between the playing of the Chickering-Ampico and the musician in person. This fact has been proved in Los Angeles and elsewhere to the satisfaction of world-renowned music critics.

The genius of the artist humanly reproduced—

After many years of experimental work, the inventor of the Chickering-Ampico succeeded in perfecting a piano action that would reproduce from the music roll, without human touch, every feature of the musician's art—from the faintest tone shading to the deepest volume expressive of the artist's emotion. This marvelous achievement was made five years ago and represents the life work of the genius who accomplished it.

Without the single touch of a human hand—

The Chickering-Ampico needs no assistance in reproducing the work of the great masters. It does not depend upon an inexperienced individual for interpretation of the classics and brilliant popular selections. The soul of the Chickering-Ampico is the genius of Godowsky, Rachmaninoff, Levitzki, Ornstein and other eminent pianists—and at the turn of a switch these world favorites perform for you just as perfectly as though actually fingering the keys in your presence.

September Paths of Happiness Lead HOMEWARD

—And Barker Bros.' Fall Exhibits of All the Furnishings Required to Make Successful Homes Are Matchless NOW!

THE PLEASURES OF "SWEET SEPTEMBER" may include many joys of the open air, but the sunshine that sparkled at noon seems very far away when the shadows start to fall!

e paths of happy friendship and festivity lead homeward in the autumn. There are charming little dinner-parties, enticing teas, delightful dances, icales and other pleasant affairs now in the planning—the scene for each a HOME-scene!

is, too, is the season for calls, catching up the threads of social intercourse that summer's wanderings loosened. And it's the time of new school friendships, ily reunions and club reopenings, with all the entertaining indispensable to these events!

APPARENTLY the "spirit of unrest" (which is the official diagnosis of many experts, in analyzing the condition of this country today) is due to a complexity of motives.

A multitude of petty objectives on the part of a community or commonwealth is bound to weaken the effectiveness of any constructive progress on the part of any individual, or the community as a whole.

There have been times in history—even in very recent history—when one great, splendid ideal actuated masses of human minds and hearts, with the result of marvelous accomplishment.

The months just past have witnessed a sort of reactionary period, but now again the hour of mutual appreciation and helpfulness is striking.

The signs are plain, in the vicinity of Los Angeles, at least. It is stimulating to see the movement of the public desire in the direction of a common goal—THE UPBUILDING AND STRENGTHENING AND BEAUTIFYING OF OUR CITY AND OF OUR HOMES.

We believe that any constructive policy of personal or public advancement must recognize the truth that the aims and hopes of all honest men and women are fulfilled best through a spirit that is far-sighted, broad-minded, big-hearted and sincere.

A Cheerful Place to Chat

during the day, in any season of the year, is the sunroom. That is, provided it's a comfortably furnished, friendly sort of sunroom, with pretty cretonne or linen curtains and plenty of nice articles of reed —particularly Quality-Reed!

Many women plan their sunrooms with especial care, freshening them every autumn in whatever way is needed, adding a new piece or two, etc., in order that this room—the happiest in the house, as long as the sun is shining—may be used as a reception-room for entertaining callers and afternoon guests during the cooler months of the year.

The varieties of Quality-Reed and superior Fiber Furniture offer a wealth of worthy temptations to those many who are coming now to Barker Bros.' floors of woven furniture every day.

Attractive New Interpretations of the Bed Davenport Idea recently come to light in that section of Barker Bros.' store devoted the exclusive exposition of good bed davenports. These new extension beds come in the form of davenports or day beds, as good-looking as anyone could desire, and convertible into a bed six feet, two inches long four feet, seven inches wide, with coil springs as comfortable as any spring can be. The lines of these new double-purpose day beds and davenports are excellent, and the coverings include such smart materials as velvet, velours, etc.

BARKER BROS.,
HONORING
WILL CLOSE MONDAY.

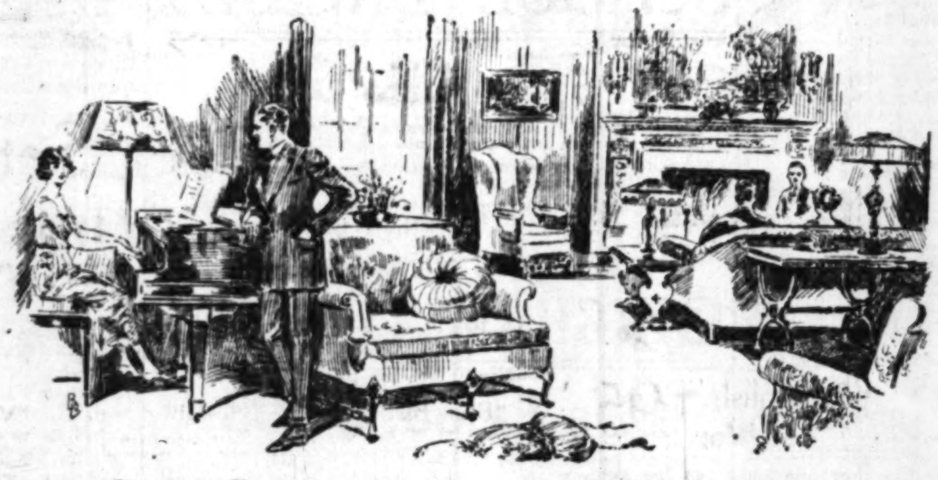
Truly the amenities and dear relationships of life depend very much upon HOSPITALITY! And hospitality depends upon your HOME!

So it is a very splendid occupation for the early autumn—this fascinating business of making your home ready to welcome, worthily, those who tread the path to its fireside!

Barker Bros. have supremely satisfying assortments of all the furniture and furnishings you'll need. Barker Bros. have also the spirit of sympathetic helpfulness, with the knowledge of what is authorized by Fashion in home-furnishing, and what is fitted to endure the tests of time and close companionship.

And all these things are yours. Please let us serve you.



Soft Lamplight and Festivity

belong to living-rooms in autumn evenings. So do soft-armed chairs and big, embracing davenports and fire-flickerings on restful-colored rugs and music floating out from piano or phonograph and little tables for smoking things and books and bonbons and sociable, snug love-seats—and desks for writing billets doux—and many other things that you'll find upon Barker Bros.' beautiful floors of living-room furniture this September!

Many things that are new add greatly to the very considerable enchantments of this store's autumn exhibits. The settings now being shown illustrate graphically how expert talent in the co-ordination and harmonization of separate articles of living-room furniture helps to produce that rare attribute called charm. You see, it is not altogether a matter of how much you can spend with that living-room of yours!

Unusual Stocks of Wilton Rugs and Plain-tone Carpets are among the notes of most conspicuous interest from Barker Bros.' tremendous section of floor-coverings at this time. Also, there are exceptional varieties of rugs in very large sizes here this fall.

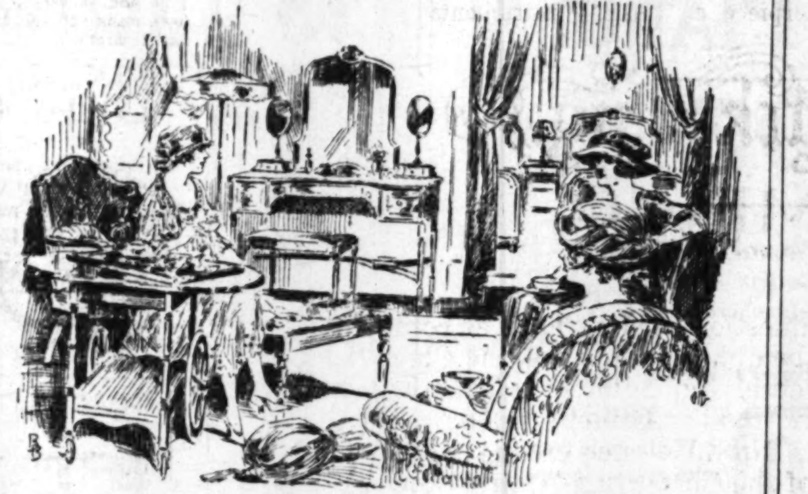
We commend our service in floor-coverings to you with full confidence that you'll be completely satisfied with the assortments and the suggestive helpfulness of those who wait upon your choice.

Intimate Tea at Twilight



is an experience that always makes a woman feel more feminine. Perhaps she gains something in winsome grace or delicate appeal, as well, by an hour or two or tea-talk with sympathetic spirits in her own or someone else's boudoir. At any rate, she loves to spend the dull interim, between calls or shopping and the time to dress for dinner, in that delightful way, especially now that all her friends are back in town and there are so many functions, not to mention summer adventures, to be discussed.

It is charming to possess a sleeping chamber or boudoir so attractively furnished and appointed that your close friends love to have you receive them there, and you are proud to do so. Sometimes a few tastefully applied touches will work magic in an inartistic bedroom—and if there's furniture to be selected, a visit to the proper section of Barker Bros.' store will show you how much there is that's new and beautiful and appropriate, both in looks and worth and price. You'll love picking out whatever new sleeping room furniture is needed in your home at Barker Bros.' this September!

Outdoor Furniture to Meet Autumn's Strong Demand

must be in large assortments—and so it is at Barker Bros.' now! A splendid new shipment of storm-proof Hickory Furniture, with seats and backs interwoven with cane for re-enforcement and good style, recently come upon the floor of outdoor furniture, and already much of it has been selected. This week will be the best time to make your patio, porch and terrace practically livable for the winter months.

Pleasing Originations in Painted Breakfast Suites are on exhibit now in that sunny space which Barker Bros. have appointed to be the show-place of these captivating creations.

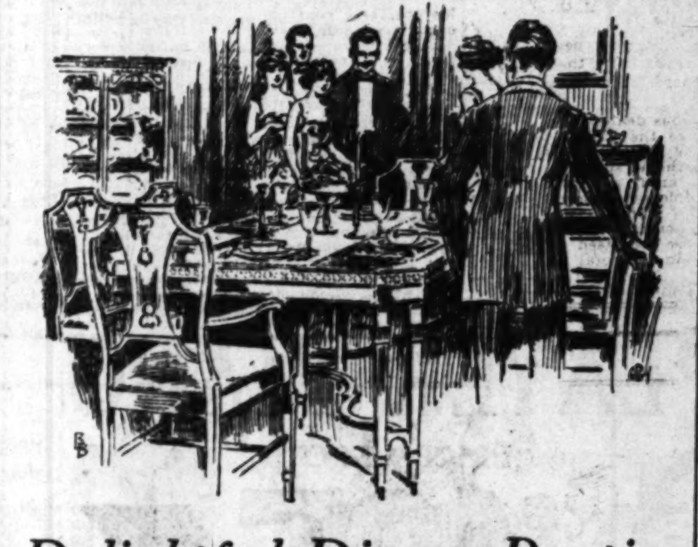
Refreshing thoughts in breakfast room decoration have found expression in these gaily painted pieces of new furniture. If you are interested in the success of any breakfast room whatever, you will wisely make sure of visiting Barker Bros.' early this September!



Delightful Dinner Parties

have in them a particular thrill for the woman whose profession is making her home pleasant and successful. It will delight her greatly to find how widely her fancy may wander within the limits of good style and merit, when she comes a-choosing her new dining-room furniture at Barker Bros.' this September.

She will find high-grade, hand-made furniture at moderate prices. She will see many patterns that are entirely new and delightful, some created in Barker Bros.' own studios and cabinet shops and entirely exclusive with this house. She will exult in discovering suites of dining-room furniture displayed with two different sizes of sideboards and two different shapes of tables from which to choose.

She will enjoy judging the comparative charms of a certain design in mahogany and the same in walnut—and she will voice her appreciation of the fact that any of dozens of articles or suites of dining-room furniture she may choose are ready for immediate delivery!

Moreover, she will say there couldn't be a place more wonderful for the choosing of her new fall tea wagon than Barker Bros.'—now.

Gorgeous Cushions, New Tapestries, English Chintzes

and a great many other bewitching wares are being unpacked and placed on fall display in Barker Bros.' drapery section now. Every day arrive new shipments of the "wherewithals" for winter draperies—velours, velvets, etc.—as well as lovely screens, new cedar chests and much beside that you'll be very interested in seeing soon!

Hundreds and Hundreds of Lovely New Lamps are ready in Barker Bros.' mezzanine-floor section of art objects and gift wares. Lamps, with shades artfully chosen to enhance their witchery, are quite inseparable from the thought of home in autumn, and you will find that many very charming lamps are most moderately priced — although of course, we have elaborate examples of lamp-loveliness here, too, for those who want them.

Well-Bred Mirrors at Moderate Prices are being displayed now, in more than ordinary variety, in Barker Bros.' art and gift department. We are fortunate in having received these new mirrors so early in the season, which makes opportunities for happy selections especially favorable now.

A clever novelty that you'll enjoy pausing in the art and gift department to survey is a new decorated metal door-stop, shaped like a flower-basket.

The Mail Order Department Provides You

an excellent shopping service, if you live in the country districts. Your orders are filled with as much care as though you were here to make each selection in person. Please write Barker Bros.' Mail Order Department concerning the needs of your home this fall.

SOUTH

SEVENTH AND EIGHTH,
LOS ANGELES

REGISTRAR STARTS EARLY.

Registration in the colleges of Liberal Arts and Commerce and Business Administration at the University of Southern California will be opened tomorrow, fifteen days earlier than planned, to accommodate the large number of new students who are enrolling.

The new College of Commerce and Business Administration which is just being established by the university is proving very popular and many students are transferring from eastern educational institutions in order to take up the work. Personal consultations will be given each day and the business office will remain open tomorrow despite the holiday.

The new college will rank with others of the university and will have the prestige of an academic and university degree. The standard will be that of a university and President Bovard yesterday announced that present plans will make it one of the large commerce colleges of the West.

In addition to the regular day classes, arrangements are being completed for a special department of evening courses. Already seven courses have been arranged for the evening classes and more will be added. A special feature will be the supervised work by major students with shipping and exporting and importing firms. In this way actual business experience will be given.

FINISHES COURT CHECK.

Auditor Determines Exact Amount Stolen from Judge's Safe.

Clyde Jackson, clerk of Police Judge Chesbro's court who is awaiting trial charged with the embezzlement of court funds, must account for $30,459.75, according to a report submitted yesterday by City Auditor Myers. The books of the court have been checked by Departmental Auditor R. N. Whitmore, and show that there is due the city from fines and other sources $29,046 for July, $13,931 for August, $24.50 in petty cash account, and $5558 for cases carried over up to and including August 31, making a total of $48,559.50.

Against this there is on hand cashiers' check for $17,805.75, cash $30, $150 in Liberty Bonds, $114 cash in hands of chief clerk, making a total of $18,099.75 and leaving a difference of $30,459.75. The audit shows no false entries of any kind, no juggling of figures and but few minor clerical errors, City Auditor Myers states.

PRETENTIOUS POWER PLANS MADE.

years is substantially as follows:

The new generating plant known as Big Creek No. 8 to be brought into operation is on Big Creek about one mile below the Big Creek No. 2 plant. Tunnel work is now well under way, and the electric apparatus has been contracted for. It will have an initial capacity rated at 30,000 horse power. It is hoped that this plant can be brought into operation as early as August, 1921.

The water for propelling the generators in this new plant will be picked up at the tailrace of what is known as power-house No. 2, diverted through a tunnel line about one mile in length, through solid granite and utilized through turbines under an effective head of about 700 feet. The oil equivalent of the first unit of Big Creek No. 8 will be equal to 420,000 barrels annually.

In addition to what is known as Big Creek power-house No. 1 at Cascada is contemplated for 1922, being a third unit in addition to the two 22,000-horse-power units now in operation.

The program from 1922 on is now being made the subject of very careful engineering study to determine which property can be developed the most rapidly to produce the highest potentiality at the least cost. This study will determine which plants will be developed to supply the 50,000 horse power annually necessary to meet the demands of the consuming public for the remaining thirteen years for which the construction program has been worked out.

FLORENCE LAKE TUNNEL.

Work is about to be started on the construction of the tunnel line to Huntington Lake from Florence Lake, which is about eleven miles northeast of Huntington Lake on the head waters of the San Joaquin River. The head waters of the San Joaquin River will be diverted into Huntington Lake by eleven miles of tunnel. In addition to the tunnel, it will require an enormous diversion dam.

When the Edison Company completes its construction program in the Big Creek territory it will have reservoir sites with an aggregate capacity in stored waters of 474,000 acre feet.

The total annual output of the Big Creek power project, including both the energy in waters capable of being stored and the energy in the stream flow above the capacity of the reservoirs will amount to enough power to supply the present light and power load of the city of Los Angeles for seventeen years, or enough power to supply seventeen cities as large as the city of Los Angeles with light and power, but it is to be used generally on the system of the company throughout Southern California and the San Joaquin Valley. Approximately 50 per cent of this total available power is capable of being stored in the system of reservoirs which will be made available in the complete power project. The total hydraulic output of the Big Creek system will effect an annual saving in oil consumption equal to 15,400,000 barrels of oil.

SHAVER LAKE PROJECT.

Last year the Southern California Edison Company acquired what is known as the Shaver Lake property, which has an ultimate reservoir capacity of 146,000 acre feet of water at an elevation of 5370 feet. Shaver Lake will have a reservoir at an elevation intermediate between Huntington Lake and Big Creek power-house No. 2, making it possible during flood season to divert flood waters from Huntington Lake through a tunnel line and power-house into Shaver Lake from where it will be used through power-house No. 2. Shaver Lake offers some prospects for cyclic storage of water, meaning the storage of water during wet years for utilization during dry years.

In addition to the present plants on Kern River, consisting of Kern River No. 1 with a capacity of 30,000 horse power, Borel plant with a capacity of 13,000 horse power and Kern River No. 3 with a capacity of 40,000 horse power, the Edison company contemplates the development of two additional power sites on the Kern River known as Kern River No. 4 and Kern River No. 5.

Kern River No. 4 is situated about eight miles above Kern River No. 3, and is in general respects the duplicate of Kern River No. 3, having a potential capacity of 40,000 horse power.

Kern River No. 5 is situated about eight miles above Kern River No. 4 and will have a potential capacity of 40,000 horse power and will operate under an effective head of 1350 feet, which is the highest effective head on the Kern River plants.

FINANCING PLANS.

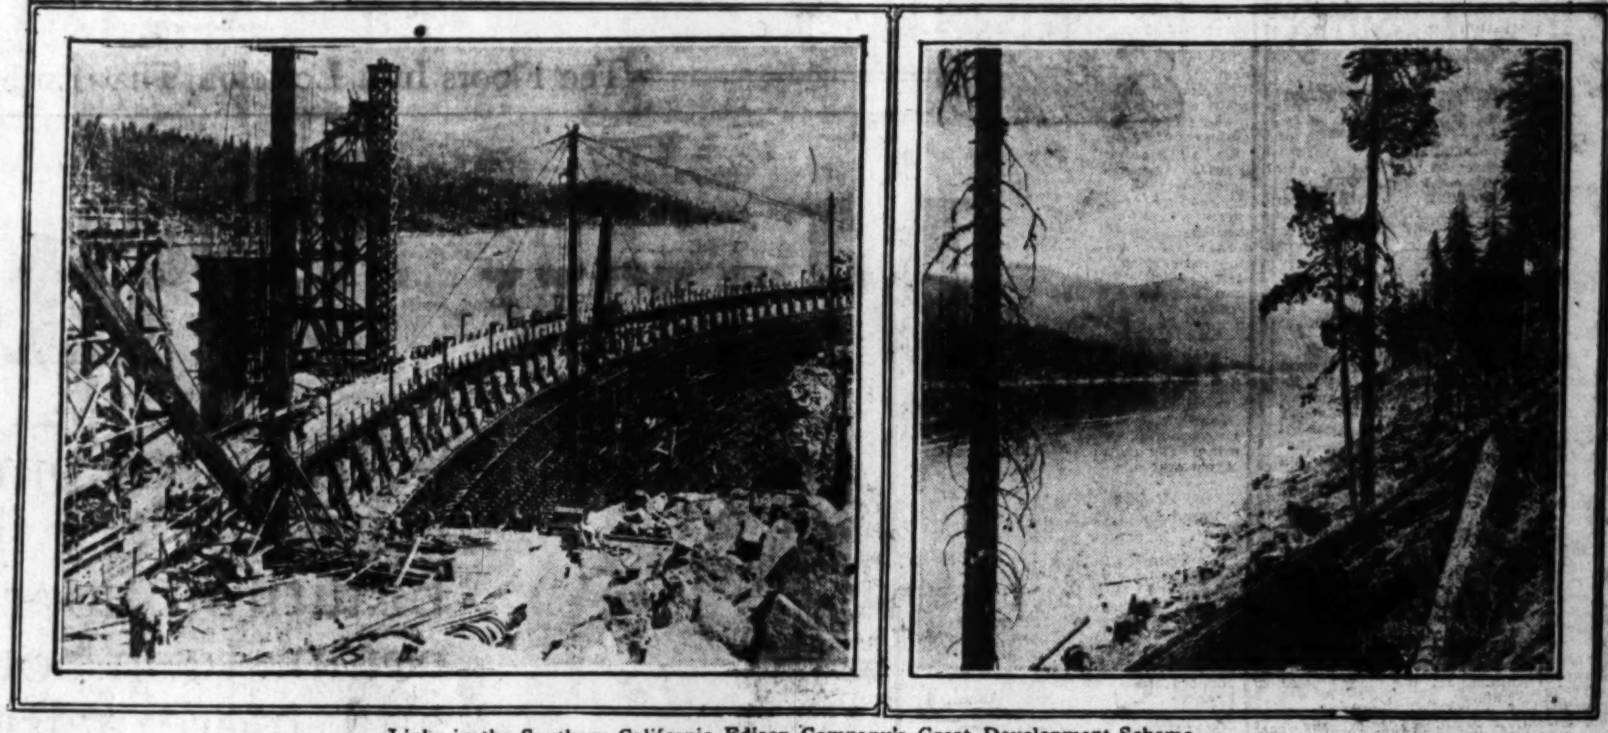
To finance the $200,000,000 which will be necessary to carry out the Southern California Edison Company's construction program, is one of the largest monetary operations that has ever been contemplated in Southern California. It is the policy of the company to continue the ownership and management of the company locally, where the officers and managers understand the needs of the Southwest and its various communities and its unusual engineering problems, its peculiarly diversified agricultural and horticultural necessities, and also help the work of civic and business organizations in building up the manufacturies of this region.

The $200,000,000 necessary to keep abreast with the demand of 50,000 horse power annually for fifteen years will be divided into two classes of money—ownership or equity, and the indebtedness. The ownership or equity is represented by the stock and must be owned locally to keep the control of the company at home. The indebtedness is represented by bonds and debentures, which are the mortgage or lien upon the property of the company. Under a public utility the ratio of loan, or the ability to borrow, is 75 per cent of the investment.

It therefore follows that 25 per cent of the $200,000,000 necessary to carry out the Edison program must be represented by the stock or equity which is locally owned. This would be $50,000,000 of stock or equity money, and upon this $150,000,000 can be borrowed on bonds.

The entire amount of $200,000,000 will find its way back through labor, which is a great factor, and on the present basis of the Edison pay roll, amounts to $7,500,000 a year, and all of the material which goes into the construction, excepting electrical equipment which for the time being has to be purchased in the East, goes back into business through all of these various channels.

Waters From High Sierras to Come to Us as White Coal of Commerce.



Links in the Southern California Edison Company's Great Development Scheme.

Construction work on the concern's big Huntington Lake retaining dam is shown on the left. The other picture shows Shaver Lake, which with its surrounding timber land, was last year bought by the company as a reservoir, the waters of which will be used for power generation.

INVENTS CABLE TO PILOT SHIPS.

Young Angeleno Devises Plan to Defy Fogs, Storms.

Scheme Tested by Navy; Found "Fool Proof."

Guide Sounds Warning if the Vessel Leaves Course.

An invention by Earl S. Hanson of this city which was recently tested by the Navy Department makes it possible for ships to navigate any channel with safety, regardless of treacherous weather conditions, according to information received from Washington yesterday.

Mr. Hanson announced a year ago that he was working on the device, but not until the government tests were completed on the 28th inst. in the Ambrose channel on the Atlantic seacoast was its importance realized by navigators. Now it is proclaimed the greatest safeguard devised for shipping in modern history.

The inventions of the Los Angeles young man received the financial support of the Title Insurance and Trust Company, the holders of the patents to his electrical devices.

Tests just completed were made on a cable laid from the Ambrose Channel lightship to the Narrows, a distance of sixteen miles, and were made by the Navy tug Algorma. The cable is laid in the center of the ship channel. Through it is sent an electric current of low frequency which, through the listening devices on board ship, gives out a sound of certain pitch that cannot be mistaken for any other sound.

In stormy weather, when under average circumstances ships are compelled to anchor outside the harbors until the weather clears, the ships hug the cable from the harbor approach to the dock. By wires attached to the hull of the ships and connected with the bridge, the navigators are able to detect by sound when the vessel deviates from the safe course.

At mile intervals sections of the cable are heavily insulated with lead, which muffles the sound and enables the pilots to determine how far the ship is traveling and when to make the necessary turns in the channel. The device, according to the Navy experts who tested it, is fool proof, and will enable pilots to defy fog, hail, rain, snow or sleet.

The official statement of the Navy regarding Mr. Hanson's electric pilot cable is as follows:

"A report has just reached Secretary Daniels from the Navy Yard, New York, of the successful preliminary test in electrically piloting vessels into harbor by means of a submerged cable."

Previous attempts to apply the system were not wholly satisfactory, owing to the fact that the cable was injured from time to time by anchors of small vessels dragging over it. The new cable is armored and gives every indication of proving entirely satisfactory.

Following the tests last week, C. P. Adams, representing the Title Insurance and Trust Company, telephoned from New York to Mr. Hanson, who is now in Washington, D. C., that the tests were more successful than the engineers of the navy had believed would be possible; that the signals were clear and distinct, and the slightest variation from the cable in either direction was instantly indicated.

Advices from Washington yesterday stated that commercial ships of all nations will be equipped with listening devices by which they can follow the cables. Other ports of the country will be equipped with cables like the one just laid in New York. The next big cable to be laid will be in the harbor of San Francisco, according to present plans.

DAHLIA CLUB PLANS EXHIBIT THIS MONTH.

FIRST ANNUAL SHOW HERE MAY WREST PRECEDENCE FROM BAY CITY.

Dahlia growers from all parts of Southern California have banded together to convince floriculturists of the world that this is the ideal locality for the finished production of this flower and with this object in view the first annual Dahlia Show will be held at the Alexandria on the 23rd and 24th insts. under the auspices of the Dahlia Club of Los Angeles.

San Francisco, which has hitherto held unquestioned away in the western dahlia world, has been challenged by the Dahlia Club to exhibit blooms here which will equal those produced by the local growers, and every grower in the Southland is devoting his time and experience to producing blooms which will transform the Alexandria's banquet room on the days of the show.

One veteran dahlia grower is working day and night to produce a bloom with which Southern California will throw down the gauntlet to the world, according to Dr. G. Stephen Archer, president of the local club.

Many local society people are taking an interest in the first showing of dahlias in Southern California and many handsome trophies are offered for the best exhibits in the various classes.

The vice-president of the club, James S. Lawshe, is offering a $50 trophy for the best amateur collection of ten varieties of dahlias of one bloom each, in not less than three classes. A gold medal is also offered by the dahlia society for the best all-round exhibit. There will be awards for the most artistic basket of dahlias, for the largest dahlias in the show, for the best dahlias in the show, for the best collection of dahlias originated in California and many others.

Word has been received by Elmer C. Weber, secretary of the club, that San Francisco will send a number of exhibits. The Dahlia Club announces that there will be no charge for exhibition space at the show, but donations will be accepted. All information as to exhibits should be sent to Elmer Weber, 222 East Adams street, as early as possible.

PLANS TWO-YEAR TOUR.

Miss Addie L. Renshaw, who lived in Los Angeles until three years ago, when she removed to San Francisco, will sail from the Bay City on the 18th inst. on the Venezuela, bound for China, where she will spend two years studying Chinese art and rug making. Miss Renshaw will be accompanied by Miss Jean Kramer. The trip to China will include stops in Hawaii and Japan, and the return journey will be made by way of Europe and the Panama Canal.

DE MILLE AND THE SATIRE.

Director Talks on Marriage and "Forbidden Fruit."

His Shavian Views and How He Visualizes Them.

More Serious Note in His Latest Domestic Play.

BY GRACE KINGSLEY.

I might call him the George Bernard Shaw of the films. But that's too absurdly unfair to him. When a man molds a new element to new art forms, he deserves to have a fresh niche all to himself, not be crowded in behind some other fellow in his little old niche.

A picturesque figure, in his khaki-colored trousers, puttees and cream-colored silk shirt (it positively wouldn't be Cecil De Mille without that sort of sartorial scenery,) the famous maker of satirical social sex comedy, was directing the gracefully lively Margaret Loomis and the gallant Conrad Nagle in a mimic stage scene, with Agnes Ayers and Forrest Stanley sitting in a stage box.

It was an episode from De Mille's newest picture, "Forbidden Fruit," and Theodore Kosloff, the noted Russian dancer, who is also an artist in all senses of the word, was standing by, clad in the tweeds and cap that so completely disguise him, waiting to advise on artistic matters such as groupings and whether the detail of the scene was exactly right.

Mr. Kosloff is an encyclopedia in these things. Really no man that is such a good dancer has any right to have so many brains!

Gloria Swanson lingered near, on the outskirts of the scene. She's going to play again some day, but not until after the arrival of a little heir to the Sanborn household. And after all—you think suddenly, as you catch sight of the delicate cameo beauty of her face—there's only one Gloria!

For the fifth time Margaret Loomis had gracefully draped herself over a chaise longue, had vamped Nagle to her side, had laid her delicate body down, and allowed Conrad to light her cigarette in its long Russian holder, until the scene in its exquisitely simple setting—a setting so gracefully simple that it was fairly classic in its lines—was considered perfect and had been twice photographed.

Then Mr. De Mille found a "place to stick a pin," as our grandmothers used to say, and ordered everybody in "Forbidden Fruit" to drop a few thousand feet, artistically speaking, and go to lunch.

That's when I got my chance, over a nice little luncheon eaten in the bungalow on the lot where the De Milles, Cecil and William, always eat their noonday meal, when at work.

"What is forbidden fruit, anyway?" I wanted to know. "And is everybody's forbidden fruit the same?"

But, of course, Mr. De Mille was more than equal to the question.

"I'm defining forbidden fruit," he explained quite bravely, I thought, "as women we shouldn't have!"

"And therefore want?" I tried to corner him.

"I don't know about the therefore," he laughed. "But anyway I guess you might say the rest of it is universal."

"And you're always universal in your themes?"

"Ah, that's it. That's what I try to be. It's the combination of the universal and the concrete that, of course, makes appealing drama."

It seems the new story involves a new angle on the marriage problem. Which, of course, the sophisticated will already have guessed from De Mille's explanation.

DOMESTIC MISSIONARY.

But he's something of a missionary at any rate, he says. He hopes, indeed, that he has done some good with his stories in teaching married folk to laugh at their little troubles and get together again.

He has, in fact, had many letters to that effect. Though why an artist with a "de" before his name should bother with the didactic side of a question, I don't know.

"These gently satirical plays about marriage and its every-day troubles, and even some of the big ones, help, because the people can see the truth and yet laugh at the same time," he went on.

"That is," William De Mille interpolated whimsically, "if both individuals have the same kind of sense of humor!"

We human beings are all alike, and all do the same things, even if sometimes in a different way, is a part of the De Mille philosophy.

"People ask me," De Mille went on, "why I make so many plays with sex themes? I do it, I tell them, because sex is universal—it's the one thing that everybody has.

"Marriage is therefore the best theme for a play, because it's a relation involving sex, a relation which everybody has had, has, is going to have, or wants to have. So those in it are interested, and those outside are interested in finding out about it."

Then Mr. De Mille went on to say that it was ceremony between husband and wife that is the secret of happy marriage. Which is, of course, a social pill that people have been told to swallow thousands of times, but it remained for De Mille to give the sugar-and-spice coating to the medicine.

De Mille intends making a series of these social satires on marriage. And he means to continue to be perfectly frank in his treatment of the theme, despite, for instance, the shock the Philadelphia Board of Censors recently got because in one scene he showed a glimpse of a pair of—well, to put it delicately—that article of a lady's garments known as "teddies."

De Mille will have no Brieux analysis in his picture plays. He will leave the pathological side to the medical laboratories and the analytical clinical dramatists.

"All the angles of the sex question, you will notice, are treated from the mental and the temperamental angles," he continued. "That keeps the drama sane and amusing. I'm leaving the reveviations of brutes to others."

"Aha," I said to myself, "others!" But he went on:

"I think that's the treatment which Anglo-Saxon audiences prefer. Americans have the cleanest treatment of the sex question speaking from a dramatic and literary standpoint, of any nation in the world. And American men have the cleanest point of view and the highest respect for women.

"GETTING FRANKER."

"But, of course, we are getting franker. Oh, in every way. If twenty years ago a woman had walked down the street with a dress to her knees she would have been mobbed.

"We're franker in our discussions, too. But these are not revellings in dirt, but are merely an airing of truth.

"This recalls by contrast the old days of prudery when once my

Three new dancing acts are to be assembled for the Pantages circuit by Ted Shawn, according to announcement. They are to be typical vaudeville productions, elaborately staged, with brilliant electrical effects and special music. The names selected for the offerings are the "Bacchus Dance," "Nature Dancers" and "Dances of the Ages."

Ruth St. Denis plans to appear during the next week or so in the same dance number in which she was seen on the occasion of the sixth anniversary of the "trial marriage" between herself and Mr. Shawn. This dance presentation will be staged at the Ted Shawn studio, 932 South Grand avenue.

NARROW ESCAPE FOR MOORE.

Owen Moore, the Selznick star, recently divorced from Mary Pickford, is reported to have narrowly escaped injury in an airplane accident in Europe a short time ago. The plane on which Mr. Moore was traveling was en route from London to Paris. Fred Almy, Jr., Mr. Moore's business manager, wired as follows concerning the accident: "Fell from altitude of 500 feet. Badly shaken up, but not seriously injured. Plane completely demolished. Six passengers, no fatalities. Cause, motor trouble."

DOMESTIC DRAMA.

Enid Bennett, Star of "Hairpins," at Clune's Broadway.

Enid Benett's series of domestic dramas have proved a large attraction, and her latest offering, "Hairpins," which begins at Clune's Broadway this afternoon, is declared to be one of the best yet given her. She has opportunity both for comedy and for straight drama.

"Hairpins" is from the pen of C. Gardner Sullivan. It deals with a situation that is all too common in everyday life—the young wife whom marriage relaxes to such an extent that she pays more attention to her household duties than to her own appearance. The result is that her husband, seeing his stenographer always fresh and radiant, begins to draw distinctions that lead him away from his own fireside.

Miss Benett has the role of a slovenly young wife, the key to whose domestic troubles is that she is always losing her hairpins and permitting her locks to straggle in unlovely wisps around her unpowdered face. Her husband grows to regard her, not as the attractive girl he married, but a "human carpet-sweeper."

How her common sense averts a tragedy and recovers the lost loyalty of the erring husband makes the culmination of the story.

The picture was directed by Fred Niblo, and playing opposite the star is Matt Moore, brother of Owen and Tom.

SALISBURY'S SECOND.

Monroe Salisbury is already preparing to begin work on his second independent production. This is an adaptation of a magazine story by Sarah Waters, published under the title of "Ethan of the Mountain." Reed Heustis is preparing the script.

"BUDDIES" AT MASON.

Human Interest Musical Show Here This Week.

Once in a while a theatrical production has charm enough, or novelty enough, or humor enough to pass its opening in a New York playhouse without an adverse criticism. In the case of the Selwyn's production of "Buddies," which comes to the Mason Operahouse tomorrow night, after an engagement in the Selwyn Theater, New York, which lasted twelve consecutive months, it would seem to be a combination of these three ingredients of entertainment that has brought George V. Hobart the highest praise of his career as a successful playwright, and established B. C. Hilliam as a composer.

All the old traditions of home and country, love and friendship are delicately interwoven, it is said, with humor and pathos, telling the simple story of some American "Buddies" who are stationed at the Brittany homestead of the little peasant maid, Julie. With characteristic fervor, Julie falls in love with Babe, one of the "buddies," who, though adoring her, is too bashful to declare himself, though the trees and environs of his lady's cottage witness daily his agonized rehearsals of proposal.

Sonny, an American private, who is happily engaged to a Brooklyn girl, does all that a man may to relieve the situation. He allows himself to become temporarily engaged to the despairing Julie, in order that a spark from the green-eyed monster may inspire Babe to decide to act.

All might have gone well, and Sonny's quixotic chivalry been justly rewarded, had not "Miss Brooklyn" unexpectedly appeared on the scene. Unable to read between the lines of her lover's engagement to another girl, she refuses to listen to explanations and promptly engages herself to the unfortunate and unwilling Babe.

JOINS NEW ORGANIZATION

Sidney Mason, stage and screen actor, has joined the cast of the Hemmer Superior Productions, Inc., of which Edward Hemmer is president and director. The initial picture of the organization has been completed and will be ready for release September 1, it is announced. Mason's first experience on the legitimate stage was in "Stop, Thief!" the Cohan and Harris play.

FANCHON AND MARCO SOON.

"The Satires of 1920," presented by and including that sterling pair of entertainers, Fanchon and Marco, will be the attraction at the Mason Operahouse starting Monday evening, the 13th inst.

The show takes the form of a super-revue, having all the salient features of a regulation revue, and yet being held together by a definite plot. For the 1920-21 season Fanchon and Marco decided to satirize the motion picture industry.

Opening in the scenario department of a big picture plant operated by a Texas oil man who dabbles in theatricals, the making of a film play in its entirety is depicted. Features of the entertainment are furnished by Fanchon and Marco, while the comedy is ably handled by Lloyd and Wells, Arthur West, Al Wohlman and a newcomer to the Coast, John Sheehan.

The prima donna is Miss Eva Clark. There is, besides, a bouquet of typically attractive girls.

The book of the revue is by Jean Havez, the author who contributed so much to the success of Ziegfeld's Follies, and the lyrics and music are from the pen of Fanchon and Marco.

MAUDE ADAMS IN "MARY ROSE."

Noted Star to Reillumine Gotham Stage.

Ethel Barrymore to Tour in "Declassee."

Elsie Ferguson Will Also Play the Road.

BY HARRY CARR.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Maude Adams is coming out of retirement after an absence of several seasons. She will appear Christmas night in the new Barrie play "Mary Rose." Reports from London say it is the biggest, finest thing he ever has written.

Miss Adams has been in poor health for some time, but is said to be very much her old self again.

Another big English success soon to be seen in New York with an old stage favorite is A. E. W. Mason's "Villa Rose," a dramatization of his novel of the same name. It is now running at the London Strand with Arthur Burchier in the leading role. It will be produced in New York with William Gillette as the star.

Alfred Hayman, general manager for Charles Frohman, returned from London the other day with two new plays for Otis Skinner, who has been making "Kismet" in California. One of these will be produced in New York shortly.

All kinds of rare treats are going on the road. Ethel Barrymore will spend the whole season in tour with "Declassee," which was one of the most splendid successes of Broadway last season. It is rather sombre and gloomy, but gives Miss Barrymore a wonderful chance to show her richly matured art.

Mr. Hayman says that he received offers from five different London theaters for Miss Barrymore in "Declassee."

Elsie Ferguson is going on tour in "Sacred and Profane Love" and "Floradora" opened a long tour in Atlantic City last Monday.

Meanwhile a bustle of preparation in New York accompanies the big fall openings. David Belasco will put on a new play "Call the Doctor" at the Empire next week.

His knockout of last season "The Gold Diggers," which has scored one of the most sensational hits in the history of New York theatricals, will be played indefinitely at the Lyceum. There is really nothing to it except a lot of jazz talk by some chorus girls, but it is undeniably delightful.

Margaret Anglin will open at the Frazee Theater in Paul Kester's "The Woman of Bronze."

Florence Reed is to be seen in September in Edgar Selwyn's play, "The Lone Woman," which has been renamed, "The Mirage."

After her long adventure in the movies, Madge Kennedy will return to the stage in a play called "Cornered."

"HAPPY GOLUCKY."

Ian Hay, whose war book, "The First Hundred Thousand," brought him into fame, is the author of a play, "Lillie of Bloomsbury," which has made a big hit in London the past season. It was put on Tuesday in New York at the Booth Theater under the name of "Happy Golucky," the title of the novel from which it was dramatized.

It is a funny, rather broad farce about a little London girl who has become engaged to the son of a rich English family and tries to make a pitiful bluff that her own family was quite on a par with his.

To her great alarm, the boy's mother insists on coming to her house to have 5 o'clock tea and she makes a frantic attempt to make her family look the part. In the midst of the excitement a bailiff comes to attach the furniture and they persuade him to pass himself off as the family butler.

The story is stale and silly, but the characters are delightful. Dickensy, as Mr. Wollcott remarks in the New York Times. The whole tone of the play is snobbish, with the snobbishness of Lord Fauntleroy.

"Immodest Violet," by David Carb, another young genius from Prof. Baker's famous Harvard English course, blushed its way into two special matinees at the Forty-eighth-street Theater after being spurned by the "dog" upon which it was tried.

The title gives promise of a naughty and brilliant Gallic farce, but "Immodest Violet" proves to be a rather hilarious and amusing farce, with something about it that suggests the flavor and tone of the "gentle lightning."

Violet who was immodest, is a young southern girl who horrifies her fire-eating, chivalrous, gun-packing male relatives by insisting on getting herself compromised, then gayly declining to be made into an honest woman.

The climax occurs when she has to come to the rescue of the shy and modest young book-keeper whom she has persuaded to help her run and whom she has thereby involved in a dreadful pickle with the Mann Act.

It has all the fresh charm and the faults of the amateur dramatist.

CUTTING AFRICAN FILM.

Cameraman Who Performed Daring Feat is Here.

Reputed to be the only living human being who ever stood at the bottom of Victoria Falls in South Africa, Pliny W. Horne, the cameraman of the Smithsonian-Universal African Expedition, is in Los Angeles cutting and titling the pictures made during the unusual adventure.

Mr. Horne barely escaped with his life in the train wreck in which William Stowell and Dr. J. R. Armstrong lost their lives. Stowell, former director and actor for Universal, made the descent into the 400-foot chasm with Horne.

Victoria Falls may be visualized as a cleft in the earth 400 feet deep extending for half a mile, along one side of which cascades the Zambesi River.

The cliffs are perpendicular and without foothold, one long side being bathed in a stream of water, the other being dry and forbidding.

Horne was lowered into the chasm with a hand winch.

DEDICATED TO BETTER HOMES

A Superior Interior Decorating Service

While the home is still in the builder's hands it is well to seek competent counsel on the scheme of interior decoration and treatment.

Perhaps the plan may involve some change from the original idea in the style of the windows or of the doors, or the introduction of some unanticipated features in the mantel to harmonize with the general scheme. And the finish of the woodwork, the color scheme of the walls, the character and position of the lighting fixtures, all should be considered in advance as a part of the complete ensemble.

Logically, most effective results are possible under the direction of men who make home beautifying their life work. And to what authority could you look with such confidence and assurance as to the "California?" Men qualified by large experience in decorating and furnishing the finest homes in the Southwest are at your service here—graciously ready to co-operate with you and, if you wish, assume the complete responsibility of transforming the house into a home—carrying through every detail of decoration and furnishing—or performing just such service as you may wish.

And, of course, this same competent helpfulness is available to those who desire to improve their present homes, either by the introduction of certain new pieces of furniture or by an entire or partial change in the decoration and color scheme.

Feel Absolutely free to come to the "California" for suggestions, regardless of the modesty or magnificence of your home.

Exquisite New Conceptions in FURS for FALL

The initial Fall showing of Obrikat-Meyer furs discloses many beautiful and exclusive pelts, fashioned into fur garments of the most charming style and distinctive design.

Mr. F. Obrikat, Sr., has just returned from a six months' buying trip to the great fur markets of the Old World, where he succeeded in collecting an assemblage of pelts that surpasses any we have ever had the privilege of exhibiting.

Every Obrikat-Meyer creation embodies those four elements so essential to really smart fur pieces—fine pelts, expert dressing, clever matching and skillful modeling.

OF ART AND ARTISTS.

BY ANTONY ANDERSON.

Two Impressions.

I.

I saw
Fog only, the great tawny weltering fog
Involve the passive city, strangle it
Alive, and draw it off into the void,
Spires, bridges, streets and squares, as if a sponge
Had wiped out London.

II.

A ripple of land; such little hills, the sky
Can stoop to tenderly, and the wheat field climb.
Such nooks of valleys lined by orchises,
Fed full of noises by invisible streams
And open pastures, where you scarcely tell
White daisies from white dew—at intervals
The mythic oaks and elm trees standing out
Self-poised upon their prodigy of shade;
I thought my father's land was worthy, too
Of being Shakespeare's.

Our Landscape Possibilities.

The landscape painter whose instinct it is to feel and to express himself in the grand manner, knows himself blest when he happens to live in California. Here are grandeurs almost unpaintable, forms so stupendous and colors so wonderful that the brush may well falter in its effort to reproduce them on a few square feet of canvas.

As a matter of fact, the "man from the East," the stranger within our gates of gold, finds himself so bewildered and overwhelmed, so absolutely unable, for many months, to "see" in our brilliant light, that his eager records, within that space of time, are almost valueless as works of art, though he may be a painter of parts in his own home town. These sad new canvases of his miss our mountains, and traduce our sunsets; they are like bits of still life painted in a studio whose light is all from the north.

Then the titan bigness of things! Long reaches of lowland, desert and sown, range upon range of rounded hills, tier upon tier of serrated mountains. Who could resist painting in the grand manner in such grandeurs? The outsider does resist, quite unconsciously, for a brief period, but he finally succumbs to the energizing spell of California. Once surrendered, once given over to the charm, he is quite happy, and he ceases to interpret the West in terms of the East. He begins to learn a new language.

Of course, the danger of too many high and purple mountains, is the danger of grandiloquence, and the true grand manner is far removed from that odious vice in art. The "Iliad," full of blood and battle, the frescoes of Michaelangelo, alive with magnificent moving forms, are beautiful in their sobriety. Thus far, their creators seemed to say—thus far, and no further.

Not that the landscape of California is all grandeur, all "scenery." Our landscape art would be very limited in its scope, instead of being so wide as it really is, if this were true. The purely personal note, so precious and so necessary in art, would be struck but seldom. No, our landscape has its intimacies as much as any other, and, if the sunlight makes them more joyous, we will not cavil at that. We have refined colors a-plenty, and delicate nuances of tone that may not be outdone anywhere. We have oaks and eucalyptus as well as hills and mountains, unnumbered loitering roads and shady nooks. We have, in short, as we boldly claim, "everything."

Having everything, it follows as a matter of course that more of our painters turn to landscape than to any other branch of their art. However, our increasing cosmopolitanism is attracting the portrait and figure painters in great numbers, and we are rapidly striking a balance. I am speaking for Los Angeles and Southern California, though I believe the conditions are very much the same in San Francisco and the north.

The wealth of our landscape, its nobility and its variety, are attested by our numerous exhibitions of pictures of landscape. Hardly a week passes without one or more of them in Los Angeles, and they are constantly traveling to our neighboring towns and villages, where they receive intelligent consideration from newspapers and public. When the eleventh showing of the California Art Club opens, on the seventh day of October, note how many fine landscapes the gallery holds—landscapes that will bear favorable comparison with those painted anywhere. And we are only beginning as a school of landscapists!

Enthusiasm in Criticism.

There is something better in any kind of enthusiasm than in pretentious criticism. Critics generally think it shows knowledge and ability to find fault; but they are mistaken in this.

It shows much more real knowledge to be able to praise justly. Nothing that ever was made, or ever will be made, is without faults. Perfection in art is impossible, and it is safest always to find fault, since defects will always necessarily exist. Besides, one can always retreat after any severe criticism into the fastness of, "I do not like it;" and this negative position is unassailable and exposes no one to laughter or contempt.

But praise is positive. It requires knowledge and appreciation and feeling to praise properly. If the praise is foolishly and ignorantly bestowed, it exposes the writer or speaker to ridicule.

There was never anything written, painted or chiselled which is not full of defects. The great question is whether, in spite of these defects, it is good. Any fool among architects can find fault with St. Peter's; but, after all, is it not a great work? What makes it a great work? Tell me, you who know. The fool will tell me its defects. You only can tell me its merits.

The petty fault-finder seeks out the blemishes in Shakespeare. The sympathetic poet thinks only of the beauty, the grandeur, the passion, and in the blaze of these all the shadows and blots are as nothing—mere spots on the sun.

The anatomical critic will tell you that the Day and Night of Michael Angelo are impossible. So be it. But what is it that makes them so grand and imposing, despite their defects—nay, perhaps, in measure, because of their defects? If they were perfectly correct would they be as impressive? I doubt it.

To say of anything wherein it is right is far more difficult than to say wherein it is wrong. Nothing is so easy as to abuse. An ignoramus can do that. But every man has a right to be judged by his best, not by his worst; and according to what he intends to do, not according to what the critic thinks he ought to have striven to do.—[W. W. Story.

"The Nature of Landscape."

"Beyond the methods of painting there lies the wider problem of the real expression of art," said Sir Alfred East, and Samuel Latta Kingan, in his new book, "The Nature of Landscape," has used the words of the famous English painter for his text through his entire delightfully sympathetic exposition—the firstly, secondly and thirdly of his eager sermon on the beauty and utility of art.

The "firstly" deals with "Feeling, Fancy and Spirit;" then follow "The Attendants, Truth and Beauty," and "The More Important Qualities of the Materials."

Mr. Kingan is an enthusiastic lover of art, who has backed up his appreciation by purchase. All the illustrations in the book—there are fourteen of them—are taken from landscapes in his own collection, the artists represented being William Keith, Leonard Ochtman, Gardner Symons, Ben Foster, Henry W. Ranger, William Ritschel, Charles H. Davis, Dwight W. Tryon, George Inness, Charles Melville Dewey, Albert L. Groll, Birge Harrison, J. Francis Murphy and Ernest Lawson.

Mr. Kingan's prose is often as richly colorful as that of Ruskin, yet it is imbued with good sense—the author does not let sentiment run away with judgment.

Privately printed, the book is a handsome tribute to the landscape painters of America, to whom it is inscribed. Copies of the volume may be had from A. C. McClurg & Co., Chicago.

Portraits of Celebrities.

Samuel Hollyer, the famous New York etcher and engraver, who died last year, turned his needle toward the portrayal of innumerable famous men and women, and some 700 of his plates are now on exhibition in the gallery of C. Everette Smith, on the eleventh floor of the Story Building.

Besides these delightful interpretations of celebrities—which are, at the same time, punctiliously truthful, by the way—Mr. Smith has etchings by other well-known Americans, among them being reproductions by the artists themselves of paintings in the collection of the late A. T. Stewart, made for Mr. Stewart as a sort of catalogue—and a noble catalogue it was.

You will enjoy these pictures.

A Wieczorek Reproduction.

One of the interesting features of last month's number of the International Studio is a reproduction of Max Wieczorek's recent beautiful portrait of Ruth St. Denis—the portrait that was exhibited a few weeks ago at the gallery of Cannell & Chaffin.

Mrs. Thompson's Tea.

Mrs. William K. Thompson complimented Mrs. Howard Grace on Thursday afternoon with a charming tea held at the latter's cosy new home on South Kenmore avenue. Say Chemist Is Public Benefactor

"Being a doctor, and suffering for many years with stomach trouble, I find I cannot do justice to so great a public benefactor in writing. Mayr's Wonderful Remedy is everything you have claimed for it. I can now eat and relish victuals I have not dared to eat in many years. Am feeling like newly born." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. At all druggists.—Advertisement.

Hair Curling Troubles Are Over—Read This!

Have you heard about the newest way to keep the hair in curl? If not, by all means cut out these simple directions and try this wonderful method. Procure a new tooth brush and a few ounces of plain silmerine from your druggist. Apply a little of the liquid with the brush to the hair from root to tip just before doing it up. You will be quite astonished when you find you have such lovely waves and curls; they appear altogether natural, instead of having been artificially curled. Best of all, the waviness will stay very much longer than it would ...

The hair, of course, will have more life and fluffiness than where the drying, waving iron is used. It will be glossier and livelier, for silmerine is indeed equally desirable as a dressing for the hair. You'll find it pleasant to use and it will leave no sticky, greasy or oily trace.—[Advertisement.

WHAT IS A PERFECT DIAMOND?

WITH the growing scarcity of gem diamonds, and the consequent natural tendency of many reputable houses to lower their former standards of quality, it is very important that the public be informed on what really constitutes a perfect diamond.

As one of the comparatively few houses in all America still confining its purchases and sales to perfect stones it is entirely in order that this information should come from Feagans & Co.

The Diamond is primarily of carbon formation, and as such, is very subject to imperfections. The word "perfect," however, as applied to diamonds, and as interpreted by Feagans & Co., defines a diamond which under the most powerful loop or eyeglass used by the expert diamond merchant, reveals no carbon spots, either dark or light, no so called "feather" marks, no fractures, no roughness on facets or edges. It must be cut according to the recognized scientific proportions, These proportions vary slightly according to the size and character of the stone. The usual proportion is slightly less than one-third above and slightly more than two-thirds below the girdle. The brilliant cut usually has 32 facets above the girdle and 24 below—these, exclusive of the table and culet. To these are sometimes added 8 extra facets around the culet or base.

The qualities, which make a diamond valuable, are its great lustre and its reflective, refractive and dispersive powers. It is the fugitive rays of light darting back and forth within its prismic walls, reflected and refracted from facet to facet, that gives a diamond its sparkling brilliancy. Maximum brilliancy then, depends upon the skill with which the diamond is cut.

The usual custom among the larger houses is to buy diamonds in "original" lots or so-called "groups"—taking them as they come—perfect and imperfect. Obviously, any house following this practice, which is now very general, must find it impossible to confine its selections to perfect diamonds.

Feagans & Co. wish to make it unmistakably understood that every gem of 1-4 carat size or larger, entering into their stocks is personally and critically examined, and selected for its individual quality. Only those gems which definitely measure up to the "Feagans" standard of perfection as above outlined are permitted to enter the Feagans stocks.

Diamonds which are perfect according to the critical "Feagans" standard are today very difficult to obtain in this country or anywhere. They are so rare and so scarce in fact that Mr. Feagans recently found it necessary to personally visit the important diamond markets of Europe in search of perfect gems.

While the percentage of perfect diamonds is constantly growing less and less, until at times it seems almost impossible to get them, Feagans & Co. have not up to the present time found it necessary to lower the standard for which the name "Feagans" has stood for many years. Through the very excellent relationship which Feagans & Co. enjoy with the important diamond importers of this country, and the cutters and exporters of Europe, it is anticipated that the well known "Feagans" standard can be maintained well into the future.

The Feagans & Co. store is widely known as one of the foremost diamond houses of America, and one of the very few which confines its selections in all diamonds of 1-4 carat size and larger, to what is generally known to the trade as "perfect" specimens.

THE PATTERNS, STYLES, MATERIALS AND WORKMANSHIP ARE MAINTAINED TO THE HIGHEST STANDARD AND QUALITY.

Vacation time is waning, schools opened generally within the week and both workers and students are returning rested and refreshed to another year of industrial and student effort. Just at this time the minds of both women workers and students turn to thoughts of dress that will be in keeping with their renewed and refreshed mental attitude and with the fall season that is beginning.

No article of dress is more important than that which adorns the head. The hat controls and sets off a woman's facial and general appearance and the remainder of her dress. Too, a light, well fitting hat that leaves no feeling of depression or headache to the wearer, fits her to meet the duties and responsibilities of each day with that cheery, light-hearted outlook that makes the day's work easier.

Youthful, becoming and comfortable fitting hats that combine style, beauty, taste, adaptability and economy, are, to the pride of this community, made right here in Los Angeles by the largest establishment of its kind west of Chicago—The Gould Millinery Company.

The Gould Millinery Co., rated as seventh in production in the United States by the best eastern Millinery authorities, manufactures ladies' headwear for all ages, from that of the young school girl and miss to the young woman and matron styles. This establishment is essentially a home industry and its success is an eminent example of what can be accomplished in legitimate competition by localized or "home industry" as against centralized industry.

The desire to supply one's own necessities and the effort to produce to the limit for one's own community has had a strong impetus from the upheavals and adjustments of recent times. In this movement, the Gould Millinery Company is a leading factor, in fact, it has been the most enterprising factor in this movement in its line in this community and has made the big Eastern centers look to their laurels and prestige as dictators of terms and of prices and of fashion.

BUY AT HOME AND BUY HOME PRODUCTS. ASK YOUR SELECT MILLINER FOR GOULD'S SMART HATS—CO-OPERATE WITH THE GOULD MILLINERY COMPANY AND ADVANCE THE INTERESTS OF YOUR COMMUNITY AND YOURSELF. REQUEST YOUR MILLINER TO SHOW YOU GOULD'S HATS—MADE-IN-LOS ANGELES. COMPARE THE STYLE AND EASY FITTING QUALITIES, THE BEAUTY AND TASTE OF DESIGN AND THE MATERIALS OF GOULD'S HATS WITH THOSE OF OTHER MAKE. THEN COMPARE THE PRICE AND YOU WILL CONFIRM THE ECONOMY OF BUYING GOULD'S SMART HATS—A HOME PRODUCT.

The Gould Millinery Company productions are backed by our guarantee to make good any defects on direct application to us and we are right here where you can reach us—another big reason for buying home products and Gould's Hats.

Gould's Hats are different—distinguished in appearance—clean cut in lines and make. Fashioned from the finest materials, expertly designed and splendidly made. Easy and comfortable fitting. Economical because they are priced as low as it is possible to price hats made as Gould's hats are made. Distinctive because they are different—the lightest—softest appearing—most stylish and most comfortable hats you have ever tried on your head.

New Hair Growth
After BALDNESS
HAIR GROWN ON MR. BRITTAIN'S BALD HEAD BY INDIANS' MYSTERIOUS HAIR GROWER

My head at the top and back was absolutely bald. The scalp was shiny. An expert said that as he thought the hair roots were extinct, and there was no hope of my ever having a new hair growth.

Yet now, at an age over 66, I have a luxuriant growth of soft, strong, lustrous hair! No trace of baldness. The pictures shown here are from my photographs.

At a time when I had become discouraged at trying various hair lotions, tonics, specialists' treatments, etc., I came across, in my travels, a Cherokee Indian "medicine man" who had an elixir that he asseverated would grow my hair. Although I had but little faith, I gave it a trial. To my amazement a light fuzz soon appeared. It developed, day by day, into a healthy growth, and ere long my hair was as prolific as in my youthful days.

That I was astonished and happy is expressing my state of mind mildly.

Obviously, the hair roots had not been dead, but were dormant in the scalp, awaiting the fertilizing potency of the mysterious pomade.

I negotiated for and came into possession of the principle for preparing this mysterious elixir, now called Kotalko, and later had the recipe put into practical form by a chemist.

That my own hair growth was permanent has been amply proved. Many men and women, also children, have reported satisfactory results from Kotalko.

How YOU May Grow YOUR Hair

My honest belief is that hair roots rarely die even when the hair falls out through dandruff, fever, excessive dryness or other disorders. I have been told by experts that often when hair falls out the roots become imbedded within the scalp, covered by hard skin, so that they remain for a time like bulbs or seeds in a bottle which will grow when fertilized. Shampoos (which contain alkalis) and hair lotions which contain alcohol are enemies to the hair, as they dry it, making it brittle. Kotalko contains those elements of nature which give new vitality to the scalp and hair.

MINES OF FORTY-NINE HAVE VALUABLE ORE.

MANY OLD DIGGINGS REOPENED BY ENGINEERS SHOW RICH STREAKS.

[BY A. P. CORRESPONDENCE.]

PORTERVILLE, Sept. 3.—Many old California gold mines, which produced millions for the "forty-niners" and the men who followed their trails, still are able to produce many millions more, according to mining engineers of this section of California. The pioneers, the engineers say, in most instances, took gold from the shallow pockets or surface veins of high-grade metal, leaving millions of dollars of gold ore under the old workings.

Engineers point to Calaveras county to prove their point. W. J. Loring, they say, after inspecting several of the old diggings there, opened up one old mine and found rich ore in the lower depths. During the last twelve months this old mine, it is said, produced over $1,000,000. Another instance was the opening of the old Kelly-Rand silver mine at Randsburg. According to reports here, it has produced net earnings of over $1,000,000 during the last fourteen months.

Following the announcement that some of the old Calaveras mines are again producing came word of a rich strike in some of the old shafts in the famous Blue Mountain district of Kern and Tulare counties. Engineers say one old Blue Mountain mine has produced ore assaying as high as $8000 per ton. This ore was in a pocket, but selected samples taken at various places in the diggings are running from $800 to $2000 per ton.

As a result of the finds, the old Vulture, Dreadnough and Grizzly mines of the Blue Mountain country again are being operated, while other mines are being investigated.

7th Sept., 1915 | 7th Street | 7th Sept., 1920

Is there some charm or mystery in the number seven?

One might almost believe so from the progress that the Seventh Street Shopping District has made since it was founded by J. W. Robinson Co. on the 7th day of September, 1915.

The stately structure of Robinson's then stood apart. It was conspicuous, as well for its detached location as for its dignified architecture.

Today Seventh Street is notable for its beautiful business buildings.

Besides many exclusive shops the following houses of first rank are now located here: Harold L. Arnold, Swobdi's, Chappell's, Security Trust and Savings Bank, New York Store, Citrin's, Coulter Dry Goods Co., Kinema Theater, Hoover Market, Ville de Paris, Wetherby-Kayser Co., Bartlett Music Co., Obrikat-Meyer Co. and Pantages Theater.

This Anniversary Sale, then, is in celebration of The Great Event in the progress of J. W. Robinson Co.

buquerque, Wool Center; Picturesque Characters.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ALBUQUERQUE (N. M.) Aug. —This city is headquarters for one of the greatest wool-growing sections in the world, and incidentally for one of the most picturesque of American industries.

But a few miles back from the railroads, the leisurely, picturesque life of the old Spanish-Indian regime goes its way little disturbed. Albuquerque is a thriving town, much more metropolitan for its size than a similar town in the East, and as thoroughly American as chewing gum. But within a day's ride of it are Mexican villages where witchcraft is still practiced and where they still thresh grain as in biblical times by driving a flock of goats around the threshing floor.

BUSINESS OF CONTRASTS.

This contrast is nowhere better seen than in the sheep business. Its commercial machinery of buying and selling and insuring, centered in Albuquerque, is as modern as Wall street. It is carried on by shrewd and worried-looking men who drive enormous distances in high-powered cars, watch the stock market with keen intensity, and take frequent trips to New York and Boston. But the actual care of the sheep is in the hands of Mexicans, who carry on their trade as it was carried on for generations before the railroads and the "gringos" came.

A change is coming slowly in this end of the business, too. The tendency is to raise more feed for the sheep, build more shelters and more fences, improve the breed and take better care of the stock. But this change is coming slowly. For the most part, the sheep are still raised on the open range as they were a hundred years ago. For this work Mexicans are indispensable, and their methods and habits are as unchanging as the mountains. The sheep range is most of the State.

The sheep are ranged in the mountains during the summer, and driven down to the barren-looking mesa lands when the first snows come. They are brought together once a year for shearing and dipping at some headquarters. The rest of the time the sheep herders (never called shepherds in this country) follow them across the range. It is common for these men to be away from home for six months, and they have been known to stay for eighteen months. They are lazy fellows, but they know sheep as well as they know themselves, and they have one great virtue—they will stay with the herd. These men are not usually inspired by any great loyalty to their employers, but they are inspired by a loyalty to the sheep which is almost instinctive. They are of peon stock and no doubt in the old days the peon who deserted the sheep fared badly. There was a whipping post and cat-o-nine-tails waiting for him at best and a load from a musket at worst. For practical reasons he would rather die with the herd in a blizzard than come home without it.

THE ORGANIZATION.

The organization of a sheep outfit is as exact as that of an army. The owner of all the sheep is known to his employees as el patron (the boss.) The sheep are divided into small herds, and in charge of each three herds is a sort of superior officer or overseer, who proudly bears the title of caporal. In immediate charge of each herd is a chief herder known somewhat grandly as the mayodomo, and he has an assistant herder known as the ayudante, and a cook and packer called campero. Each of these officers treats his immediate superior with a certain deference, and is proud of his own authority.

When everything goes well the life of the sheep herder on the range, especially in the summer, is not a hard one; but all sorts of dangers menace these troops of blatting, foolish creatures, who are worth so much money and perish so easily. Drought wipes them out, storms overwhelm them, coyote, wolf and mountain lion hang on the flanks of the herd and take regular toll.

Weather is their worst enemy, and nowhere is the weather more incalculable than in New Mexico. Throughout most of the State, for example, it is safe to leave the herds in the rich mountain range until October; snow seldom falls before November.

Many of these Mexican herders are as picturesque as you could wish. Often you see one clad in a long ragged cloak and carrying a long crook of his own manufacture, who looks like a figure out of the Bible. Some of them even carry sling shots, like that with which David slew Goliath.

YANKEE PEERESS ATTENDS COURT.

Former Kentucky Belle is London Society Leader.

Lady Newborough is Dowager as a Result of War.

Baron Died in Battle; Widow Has Since Been Home.

BY HAYDEN CHURCH.

LONDON, Aug. 12.—Of the many beautiful women who attended the two royal courts recently held by the King and Queen at Buckingham Palace, none attracted more admiring attention than Grace, Lady Newborough, always acknowledged as being one of the handsomest of American peeresses.

It seems strange, indeed, to have to speak of Lady Newborough as the Dowager Baroness of her title, that designation being generally associated with old age. Her Ladyship, on the contrary, keeps the appearance of youth, despite the fact that it is twenty years since first she came to England as a lovely young bride. The war, however, turned many comparatively youthful peeresses into "dowagers." Lady Newborough is one of these, her husband, the fourth baron of his line, having died as the result of active service in 1916.

After her husband's death, Lady Newborough returned to the United States and was not in London again until last March, when her large circle of friends in Belgravia and Mayfair gave her an enthusiastic welcome home. Since then she has been "seen" almost everywhere, generally in the company of her attractive sister, the former Mrs. Samuel Sloan Chauncey, now the Hon. Mrs. Cecil Edward Bingham, who has a beautiful home at Canterbury.

Formerly Miss Grace Bruce Carr, she is the eldest daughter of the late Col. Henry Montgomerie Carr of Kentucky. She spent most of her youth in Europe. It was during a visit to Cairo that she met Lord Newborough. They were married a few months later (in 1900) at Chapel Royal, in the Savoy, the bride being given away by the late Joseph H. Choate, then American Ambassador. Lord and Lady Newborough were equally devoted to yachting, and spent most of their holidays aboard the Baron's luxurious and speedy Fedora.

The present Baron Newborough is a lieutenant in the Royal Naval Reserve and helped to make naval history during the late unpleasantness.

Daylight Saving in North Sea.

The Essex farmer who waxed irate at "messing about with the clock," which he seems to think is solely for the benefit of Londoners, would no doubt be surprised to learn that the trawlers in the North Sea had daylight-saving methods long before the late Mr. Willett introduced his scheme. As the season advances the fish go further north; the fishermen have to follow, and so, in order to give their "cutter" or "carrier," which brings the fish to London and which leaves the fleet at noon every day, time to make the longer journey they advance their clocks each day. The only sufferers are the fish. [London Daily News.

The Boss of The Ranch Must Be A Man of Blood and Iron—
The Kind of Man Nuxated Iron Helps Make
By Building Red Blood Strength and Endurance

Hardened by the rigors of life on the plains, living for days in his saddle, his strength, courage and endurance put a thousand times to the most severe tests, the Boss of the Range daily proves himself every inch a man—a man of blood and iron. He has won his spurs by countless daring feats, perfect calmness in the face of danger, tireless energy and alertness, untold deeds of action, force and power. When you see him with his men on the range you know he's boss and what he says goes. But the rugged, outdoor life of the ranchman which helps to keep his blood rich in strength-giving iron is denied many a man whose indoor existence, hard work and worries sap his energies and rob the iron from his blood. It is such men who need the sustaining health-building help of organic iron—Nuxated Iron—to increase the oxygen-carrying power of their blood and thereby aid in restoring wasted tissue, strengthening their nerves and giving greater power and endurance. Nuxated Iron is now used by over three million people annually as a tonic, strength and blood-builder.

"There are countless numbers of men today who at 40 are broken in health and steadily going downward to physical and mental decay simply because they are allowing worry, overwork, nervous strain, dissipation and occupational poisons to sap the iron from their blood and destroy its power to change food into living tissue, muscle and brain," says Dr. John J. Van Horne, formerly Medical Inspector and Clinical Physician on the Board of Health of New York City. "Yet there are thousands of such men who undergo a most remarkable transformation the moment they get plenty of the right kind of iron into their blood to give increased energy and endurance. Their imagined ills are forgotten, they gain physical poise and fitness, mental alertness and greater power to combat obstacles and withstand severe strains. To help build stronger, healthier men and women, better able physically, to meet the problems of everyday life, I believe that physicians should, at every opportunity, prescribe organic iron—Nuxated Iron—for in my experience it is one of the best tonic and red blood builders known to medical science."

If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day, after meals, for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. Many an athlete or prize-fighter has won the day simply because he knew the secret of great strength and endurance, which comes from having plenty of iron in the blood, while many another has gone down to inglorious defeat simply for lack of iron.

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron, which is prescribed and recommended by physicians is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed in this city by all good druggists.

OUSTING BUNK FROM THE FILM.

Some Clarifying Opinions from Allan Dwan.

"Apologies" and Other Cinema Weaknesses.

A Dynamic Director Who is Also Keen Critic.

BY EDWIN SCHALLERT.

Here is where we rub off the paint and powder and take a look at the real countenance of the motion picture. Disguises may be all right if you feel that you have to use them, but they're a nuisance when you're talking to Allan Dwan about what he thinks concerning the cinema art or industry, whichever you wish to call it. The photoplay game is a little and a great deal of both, even at this supposedly advanced stage, though you may try to kid yourself into believing that it is already an art.

Mr. Dwan is at present strenuously occupied with his first feature for the Associated Producers. I say strenuously, because any time there is a let-up in this dynamic director's energy, why he will have ceased to be occupied with anything. I can't even imagine Dwan spending very much time sleeping between midnight and dawn. And I'm sure he never took an afternoon nap in his life.

If you saw "The Splendid Hazard," for example, you will realize the energetic force emanating from this human dynamo. He, himself, refuses to take his voltage very seriously, but that's quite natural because an electrical engineer is never greatly astonished at the effects of electricity, and Mr. Dwan was once on the verge of becoming an electrical engineer. Everything that he would have put into mechanical devices has probably remained within him to appear in another form in his pictures.

As I say, he refuses to treat the vigor of his action in "The Splendid Hazard" very seriously. "We had to keep them moving fast so the public wouldn't catch onto us."

IDEALIZED FROTH.

The point is that the film from the MacGrath story doesn't mean anything to Mr. Dwan. "MacGrath's novels are froth," he declares.

Dwan is, however, capable of finding considerable pepful body underneath that froth. Sometimes I have thought that his pictures of a MacGrath story were the highest compliment ever paid to the original.

Just the same, he wants to do and has done more serious stuff. The last three pictures he made for Mayflower will, in fact, be distinctive in that respect. One of these is from William Allen White's story, "The Heart of a Fool." Dwan, himself, is partial to this.

The conviction that forces itself upon you as you are talking to Mr. Dwan is his intense dissatisfaction with all present results of picture-making. I know he is not behind the time, and, therefore, I am sure he is ahead of it.

His dissatisfaction is a perfectly healthy type. He is always humorous in his criticisms. He has an apt name for subtitles, for instance. He calls them "apologies." "Whenever you are cornered you have to use a subtitle, to help out the action," he says. "We spend hours in the projection room inventing 'apologies' for the weaknesses in the action of a picture.

"What we need is people to create motion pictures. I mean, when I ask for a motion picture, I don't want a play or a novel. I want a motion picture. I don't want literary junk and verbiage. I want something that I can see."

Mr. Dwan sketched the weakness of the ordinary adaptation, the imperfections in the suitability of a play or a literary story for the films. He named a prominent author, and said "I've read his books. They can't be used, because they're too artificial. His people aren't real. They don't act like human beings.

"That's the trouble with half the characters you see on the screen. As a matter of fact people in general are suffering from an overdose of culture. They are artificial in their refinement. And that's the reason why they're not satisfactory as characters on the screen.

"What is it that makes the successful picture? It's the rough sincere forces of personality. Unconcealed emotions. Crooks are generally real. Prostitutes are real because they are elemental. That's why they are often good screen material."

Dwan is really an iconoclast in his theories. But they are well founded. What he aims at eradicating is bunk—the false emotion, the artificial character, the unreal background.

He is a realist in his settings, and that despite the fact he doesn't believe in lavishing money on scenic effects. "Spend your money on your cast, not on your scenery. The public isn't interested in what the background is like. What they care about is what's happening to your people."

Still he is a Delacroix in the matter of amplification of detail. Even the stairs in the New England house on his set are worn down as if they'd been walked over for years. The corners of the windows are stained with putty and dirt. An exterior set shows a bit of sand dunes that would almost make you hear the distant murmur of the sea.

"Yes, I suppose it is quite real. I shouldn't wonder but that one of the prop boys will be running down there to dive into the ocean and break his neck."

The location work for the first Associated feature was done at Hueneme, in Ventura county. Dwan found a perfect New England setting there.

"Most of the people there really are from New England. All we had to do was to put green shutters on the houses and we had the Cape Cod landscapes," he declared.

This didn't prevent Mr. Dwan from sending a man East to photograph every inch of the New England Coast where his story is laid. If its locale were the interior of China he'd probably do the same thing.

Still he is very practical about this. He wouldn't think of going abroad to make a picture, or to New York, unless so much of the action transpired there that he would be in danger of losing the elements of realism.

Dwan started his picture career as an electrician. He was interested in mercury lights. After he had been at the studio a few weeks somebody asked him if he could act. "Sure," he said.

This was at Essenay, and he took a part with J. Warren Kerrizan in a feature. Kerrigan and Dwan had a fight during the action, and Kerrigan made it so realistic that Dwan got his Irish up and they came near wrecking the place.

Later Dwan started scenario writing. He came to California and here began his directorial activities.

"I had written a story," he said, in speaking of this development. "The director who was to produce it couldn't be found. He was cockeyed at some roadhouse. So they asked me if I could direct the picture. And I said I could."

And he did.

LAUGHTER AT BURBANK FOR WETS AND DRYS.

"Home Brew" is the fascinating title that explains the nature of the musical play at the Burbank, opening today. "Home Brew" should please both the wets and the drys equally well. The drys will have something to laugh about, and the wets will—perhaps—take the matter in a more serious mood.

The show is said to be a gem, musically speaking, and the plot has only been used to serve a laugh-producing vehicle for the Armstrong Baby Dolls and Mr. Armstrong's coworkers.

"Home Brew" contains 90 per cent girls who are full of kicks and hops. The play itself is written around a man who is in the habit of entertaining his guests royally while they are under his roof, but this being the dry period he is compelled to make the best of it by serving them with a concoction of his own brew that turns out to be a nauseating beverage.

SPECIAL KELLERMANN FILM.

"The Art of Diving" is the title selected for the slow motion film just completed by Annette Kellermann for the Western Picture Exploitation Company. The feature was made with the new Cinal Process. Miss Kellermann demonstrated a series of famous dives and swimming strokes that she has used in her various aquatic performances. This is the first slow motion film in which the star has appeared. The subject will be released nationally by the Lesser organization.

ARBUCKLE IS STAR.

Fatty Will Appear in Feature at Grauman's.

Fatty Arbuckle as a feature star in the screen version of "The Round-Up" will have a chance to thrill his admirers, beginning tomorrow at Grauman's.

The picture is a George Melford production. The scenario was written by Tom Forman, and he also plays the hero role. The cast assisting in the interpretation comprises Jane Acker, Irvign Cummings, Wallace Beery, Guy Oliver and Mabel Julienne Scott.

"The Round-Up" is one of the most famous melodramas ever written about the olden Golden West. It has been played on the road by numerous companies.

Added attractions will be made up of a medley of Carrie Jacobs Bond's compositions played on the organ by Harry B. Murtagh; a concert number by the Grauman Orchestra, Arthur Kay conducting, and special variety acts.

"GO AND GET IT" NOW AT VICTORY.

Patrons of the downtown motion picture houses still have an opportunity to see Marshall Neilan's production, "Go and Get It," which closed a successful week's run at the Kinema Friday. The film is now showing at the Victory. It will play that house until and including next Sunday. It was felt that, because of a popular demand for continuance of the picture at the Kinema, it should not be withdrawn from the screen.

A new prologue will be staged with the feature. Four young newsboys, representing various local newspapers, and a singing policeman, one of the regular traffic force form the personnel.

The program is further enhanced by a Ben Turpin and Charley Murray weekly chatter film, in which the comedians get off some clever sayings. Benamin Laletsky and his orchestra have worked out a harmonious musical score. "Go and Get It" is a mystery romance, with Wesley Barry, Agnes Ayres, Bull Montana and Pat O'Malley in prominent roles.

DE MILLE PICTURE AT THE PALACE.

Gloria Swanson has the leading feminine role in Cecil B. De Mille's special Paramount-Artcraft production that comes to the Palace Theater today. "Don't Change Your Husband" is the title, and all those who have seen Mr. De Mille's "Why Change Your Wife" will certainly want to see this sister picture.

"Don't Change Your Husband" is one of the best psychological photoplays Mr. De Mille has produced.

Elliott Dexter, Lew Cody, Theodore Roberts, James Neill and Julia Faye are in the cast.

A new Christy Comedy and Will Regers's "Illiterate Digest" are on the bill.

MYSTERY ROMANCE.

Hypnotism Theme in Warner Film at Tally's.

A story of the mystery type, which is especially interesting, due to the fact that it is based on hypnotism, and one which contains situations that thrill and challenge deductive powers, is promised in "One Hour Before Dawn," which comes to Tally's Broadway next week, with H. B. Warner and Anna Q. Nilsson in the leading roles.

Warner is cast in the role of a writer who entertains views antagonistic to hypnotism. At a house party he meets a hypnotist, who, in answer to Warner's defi that he (the hypnotist) can only prove his power by making a good man do an evil thing, dares Warner to allow himself to be put into a trance. Warner submits. The next morning, all the guests are assembled and questioned over a mysterious and evil act which has been committed. The unraveling of the mystery serves as the material for the play.

MADLAINE TRAVERSE TO SHINE AT HIP.

Madlaine Traverse, in the Fox film play, "The Iron Heart," a love story laid in the industrial world, will be the star at the Hip, starting today.

The vaudeville program will include Friend and Downing, in their laugh success, "My Friend Abe," and the Clara Theodore Trio of comedy gymnasts.

William O'Clare and Girls will offer a breath of Old Ireland in harmony and dances. Rice and Francis will present "My Winter Girl," a concoction of songs and conversation, and Dressler and Wilson have a series of dance numbers.

Donahue and Fletcher will appear in a hodge-podge of variety.

WINNER AT KINEMA.

Katherine MacDonald in "The Notorious Miss Lisle."

There seems to be one dominant thought in the minds of First National officials regarding Katherine MacDonald's latest picture, "The Notorious Miss Lisle," which is showing at the Kinema today. That thought is best expressed in the summing up of critical viewpoints—that "The Notorious Miss Lisle" is going to do for Katherine MacDonald what "Stella Maris" did for Mary Pickford—establish her as an actress of dramatic ability.

Not a minor contribution towards this accomplishment is the direction of James Young, who has more than succeeded in bringing to the surface unexpected dramatic powers and who has supplied the picture with an atmosphere ideally suitable.

The story tells of Gaenor Lisle, notorious because she has been named as a co-respondent in a celebrated divorce suit. She goes to a remote spot on the French coast, hoping to remain there until the scandal blows over. There she meets Peter Garstin and falls in love with him. He refuses to listen to any scandal, telling her that "today is the only thing that counts." They are married, and on the honeymoon she is exposed by a friend of her husband. Unable to play the role of unmasked adventuress she leaves him and goes to England. On board ship she meets the man with whom her name has been linked in a divorce case. Intense drama follows.

Another feature on the Kinema program is a special film of Babe Ruth, famous home-run batter, in action at a recent game.

PLAIDS AND KILTS.

Scotch Jazz at New Pantages This Week.

McKay's Scotch Revue comes on Monday to the New Pantages. This is a clean, classy and clever act in which the utmost care has been taken to have every detail of national costume and dance absolutely correct. How carefully detail has been considered will be understood by Scotsmen when it is stated that the act is tailored by "Mackie."

Jan Rubini, Russian violinist, is accompanied by Mlle. Diane and Salvatore Santaella, pianist, in "A Miniature Recital." Dobbs, Clark and Dobbs, offer "vaudeville remnants." Rose Sheldon and brother, equilibrists, Prince and Bell, a comedy team, and a surprise act recruited from local musical talent, make up the list.

"Man's Plaything," with Grace Davison, is unusual in making it the man who "pays." The second installment of "The Lost City" finds Juanita Hansen and the American adventurers in "The City of Hanging Gourds."

"JIMMIE" COMES TO BROADWAY PANTAGES.

After their week of rural simplicity in "Hiram," the Follies Company at the Broadway Pantages will indulge in the joys of domesticity. The spotted pigs that disported about the stage in this week's comedy will give up their dressing-room to a baby.

"Jimmie" is the name selected for the playlet that will be christened at the Monday matinee, and if one can imagine Bob Albright, Fred Ardath, Joe Kemper, Mattie Hyde, Claire Hansen and the other members of the Follies exuding baby talk, with "Whose baby is 'oo?" as the refrain, a fair idea may be obtained of the coming week's comedy possibilities.

Fred Ardath and Joe Kemper have been busy with their patented lyric typewriter during the week, and the number of original songs, with and without music, in "Jimmie" will set a new record for local librettists.

"CIVILIAN CLOTHES" AT THE GARRICK.

Thomas Meighan, in "Civilian Clothes," will be the attraction at the Garrick during the coming week, starting today. The picture is a film version of the famous play by Thomas Buchanan, and is a Paramount production.

The story—if you need a reminder—centers around a young couple who were married under shell-fire in France. Later, the husband is reported killed in action, and the wife goes back to her society life. Then her spouse appears on the scene very much alive. But his civilian clothes do not give him the same appearance as his captain's uniform, and his wife shuns him, and gives her attention to other men.

How he democratizes his wife by taking a position as butler in her home, and concocts a scheme to make her extremely jealous, forms a photoplay that is said to outclass the stage version because of the unlimited possibilities of the screen. Supporting Thomas Meighan are Martha Mansfield and other screen notables.

ADVENTURE SCENICS.

Ten different scenics of the Adventure Scenic series, to be distributed by the Western Pictures Exploitation Company, have already been received at the offices here, according to Irving Lesser. These will be released on the State's rights plan. Mr. Lesser's organization has men in Alaska, the Orient and Yellowstone National Park at present, and others will be en route soon to foreign lands.

VIDOR MAKES PLANS KNOWN.

Director Heads Large Film Enterprise.

Proposes Series of Special Productions.

Wife Will be Starred in Her Own Pictures.

Announcement of the financial organization, studio plans and future activities of the King Vidor Productions has just been made by King Vidor, president of the organization, which was incorporated during the past week. The formation of the film concern promises a broadening of the plans of the young director, which will place him among the foremost independent producers.

Not only will he, himself, make special productions, but Florence Vidor will be starred in her own right under the direction of J. W. McDermott, and the supervision of Mr. Vidor. Craig Hutchinson is also scheduled to make a series of comedy dramas under Mr. Vidor's supervision.

The officers of the company include, besides Director Vidor, his father, Charles Vidor, as vice-president and general manager; B. L. Graves, secretary and treasurer; Harrison Cassell, general attorney, and Dave Schumann, exchange manager.

Charles Vidor, a wealthy Texas lumberman, has been for years connected with large financial and business projects of the South, and will have entire charge of all business dealings.

Mr. Graves is a well-known automobile man, in charge of the western end of a manufacturing company.

Harison Cassell is an attorney, and Dave Schumann is owner of the Florence Theater of Pasadena.

The corporation papers announce the stock at $2,000,000, most of it already subscribed, it is stated, by King Vidor's friends and men who have been interested in the young director since he made "The Turn in the Road," two years ago.

HIS OWN SPECIALS.

Vidor, himself, is to make four super-special productions a year, continuing his policy of human interest pictures with a message. Stories will be taken from plays and books, or from originals where the plot and idea are sufficiently interesting for such features.

There will also be four pictures a year starring Florence Vidor, directed by J. W. McDermott, under the supervision of King Vidor. Mrs. Vidor is at present playing the leading role in an Ince feature for the Associated Producers. When she completes that work she will start on her initial starring vehicle.

Craig Hutchinson will also make a series of comedy dramas under Vidor's supervision.

A. L. Thompson, formerly studio manager for the American Film Company, will hold that position for the new Vidor organization. F. E. Hughes is to be Vidor's assistant director, and he has secured William Vanderlyn, a New York architect, as his art director. C. R. Kendall, who has been with Mr. Vidor since his first Brentwood productions, will be technical director. No scenario editor has yet been selected.

The rise of King Vidor since he began directing five years ago has been exceptionally rapid. His latest release, "The Jack-Knife Man," was a hit in New York, and will soon have a Los Angeles showing.

The Vidor pictures will be made at his new studios, 7200 Santa Monica Boulevard.

The need of more freedom to direct pictures and a more complete and efficient organization to exploit and handle them is given as the reason behind the incorporation.

Vidor is now engaged in his first picture, "The Sky Pilot," by Ralph Connor.

"VERY IDEA" STILL PLAYS MOROSCO.

"The Very Idea" will enter the fourth consecutive week with today's matinee at the Morosco. It gives promise of a long run provided Oliver Morosco does not remove it to make way for a new production.

Eleanor Woodruff, Harry Hilliard, Gayne Whitman and Helene Sullivan play the important roles. Others in the cast are Joseph Eggenton, Dora Mae Howe, Gloria Joy, Jack Dougherty and May Hanna. The piece is laughable from the opening curtain to the finish.

Stage Director Earl Lee is now engaged in conducting rehearsals for the next Morosco attraction, "The Little Teacher."

SAILORS TO ENJOY RATE.

Grauman Theaters to Make Special Admission Concession.

Special privileges will be granted to sailors from the Pacific Fleet vessels who may be on shore leave by the Grauman theaters in this city, it has been announced. Sid Grauman plans to admit the men to performances on every day except Saturday and Sunday at half price. The schedule will go into effect the 13th inst. Mr. Grauman's two houses are the Rialto and the Million-Dollar.

Other theaters which have made special concessions to the men are Clune's Broadway, Tally's Broadway, the Alhambra, Superba, Symphony, Burbank and Miller's.

The management of other houses like the California, Kinema and Victory are planning special concessions.

BARRIE PLAY IN FILM FORM.

"What Every Woman Knows" to be Picturized.

William de Mille Will Make It as Next Feature.

Production to Start During Present Month.

"What Every Woman Knows," Sir James M. Barrie's celebrated study of Scotch character and life, which was one of Maude Adams's chief successes on the speaking stage, is to be picturized by the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation. William De Mille is scheduled to begin producing it this month.

Details of cast have not yet been settled, but it is understood that especial care is to mark the selection of types for this production. Settings and other details of the picture are to conform with the superior quality of the original play.

Maude Adams appeared in the piece some years ago in this city, and it was produced about a year ago at the Hollywood Community Theater. The plot affords a striking contrast between the man's and the woman's viewpoint.

Mr. De Mille is regarded as particularly successful with pictures having a foreign locale and that was one of the reasons for his being selected to produce this play for the screen. In a sense the same quality of humor and dramatic construction obtain as in "The Prince Chap," which the director very successfully produced.

Mr. De Mille has just finished "Midsummer Madness," adapted by Olga Printzlau from the novel, "His Friend and His Wife," by Cosmo Hamilton.

"DEVIL'S PASS KEY."

Von Stroheim's Parisian Story at the Superba.

"The Devil's Pass Key," a Universal-Jewel production, made by Erich Von Stroheim, the directing genius of "Blind Husbands," will show at the Superba Theater, starting today.

Von Stroheim's latest screen production is founded upon the story "Clothes and Treachery," by Baroness De Meyer. The scenario was prepared by the director himself, and the drama has been produced with unusual realism.

Sam de Grasse, who played the husband in "Blind Husbands," has in "The Devil's Pass Key" the part of a talented American author, living in Paris with his young wife. She gets deeply in debt to an unscrupulous modiste. This woman expects the girl to get a rich lover to pay her bills and introduces her to a wealthy young American army officer. The American realizes the young wife is unsophisticated and helps her out of her difficulties.

Unaware that his wife is the principal figure in the scandal, which has reached the columns of a society newspaper, the husband bases a play on the story and has it produced in Paris.

In the cast, beside Mr. De Grasse are Clyde Fillmore, Una Trevelyn, Maude George, Lee White, Ruth King, Mae Busch, Jack Matheis and others.

PLAYLETS HEAD BILL.

Two Are on Orpheum Program This Week.

Two one-act plays will share topline honors at the Orpheum beginning tomorrow afternoon. One is offered by Clarence Oliver and Georgie Olp, and is called "The Bee Hive."

These two players were here in another act about a year ago, and made a very favorable impression then.

The other playlet is "A Forgotten Combination" and is offered by those veteran funmakers—at least he is a veteran—Charles E. Evans and Helena Phillips. Mr. Evans's stage career dates back to the old Hoyt days. Miss Phillips, by the way, was last seen here in the support of David Warfield.

The bill will also include "Sassy" Lillian Gonne and Bert Albert appearing as schoolboy and girl in a skit, "On Their Way to School;" Roy LaPearl, who replaced them on the present programme, remaining as "the world's greatest athlete;" Frances Dougherty, "the girl with the Irish smile;" Santry and Norton, offering a series of modern dances, and Georgia Campbell and company in "Gone are the Days" and W. Horlick and the Sarampa sisters, holdovers.

INDIAN LEGEND IS SUNG AT SAN DIEGO.

Charles Wakefield Cadman's new Indian legend, "The Sunset Trail," was produced with success at the Spreckels Theater in San Diego, last week by the California Theater ensemble of this city. The chorus visited there for a series of five performances. The superior equipment and size of the stage permitted of unusual effects, special scenery having been designed by Mr. W. G. Stewart.

Mr. Cadman appeared personally and played the piano accompaniments to the work, with orchestra and ensemble, his participation in the performance being preceded by analytical remarks by himself.

The San Diego engagement of the ensemble comprised a program including the "Florodora Sextette," "Old Fashioned Garden" from Raymond Hitchcock's "Hitchy Koo;' the Medley of Scotch Melodies," excerpts from Mascagni's one-act opera, "Cavalleria Rusticana;" Burleigh's "Southland" spirituals and other choral and solo numbers.

Notables of the music world were present at the Spreckels, including Mme. Schumann-Heink, Miss Gertrude Ross and party, of this city; H. L. Hubbard, music editor of the Chicago Tribune and others. The three-day festival was under the management of Charles R. Baker, of this city.

DESCRIBES PICTURE GAME.

Lee Royal, chief scenarioist of the Renco Film Company is the editor of a very interesting look entitled "The Romance of Motion Picture Production." The book is not intended to enlighten those in the motion picture business, but as it foreword reads, was written with a view to giving the public a brief insight into the methods employed by this great industry.

Edward Everett Horton,
Who will return to the Majestic Theater as leading man tonight.

COLLIER FARCE.

Majestic Players will Present "On the Quiet."

Comedy again will reign at the Majestic Theater. The Wilkes Stock Company will appear in Willie Collier's success, "On the Quiet," by Augustus Thomas.

This hilarious comedy is not new by any means, but it is a proven success. The plot is woven around the love affair of Robert Ridgway, a young man with a "past," and Agnes Colt, the charming heiress to twenty millions, contingent upon the fact that she marries a man approved of by the family, consisting mainly of her brother Horace.

The latter has ideas of an international alliance for his Agnes, having already provided a Duke for his other sister. Finally he consents to an engagement of the young couple with certain conditions.

Wanting to play safe Robert proposes that he and Agnes get married "on the quiet" and she consents. It is not long before the young couple learn that marriage is something that is hard to keep under cover. Because of their attempt to do so a series of complicated situations developed.

"On the Quiet" marks the return of Edward Everett Horton, who will be cast in the part that Collier played. Miss Evelyn Vardon will be seen as Agnes and the balance of the cast will include Marie Curtis, V. Talbot Henderson, Forrest Seabury, Alice Elliott, Fred F. Cummings and Sara Sothern, a new member of the Wilkes cast.

TRYOUT OF DANCING ACT AT SANTA ANA.

Ernest Belcher, the English ballet master, is putting the finishing touches on his dance act which is to headline the Pantages bill here the week of the 12th. Prior to the opening here the act is to be given in Santa Ana for two days, next Friday and Saturday.

The act will be of the miniature musical comedy variety, but in place of the ordinary chorus and jazz dancing the ballet and classical numbers are to be substituted. It will be billed as the Celeste Dancers in "Hotel a la Carte."

Maurice Kussel, dancer and vaudevillian, will lead the company on the road. Kussel is responsible for the music and comedy, while Belcher personally is directing and supervising the dances.

Kussel will be assisted by Mildred Burns and Bob Sargent. Anna Heloise, who has appeared at Grauman's on several different occasions, is to lead the ballet. Other dancers in the ballet are Ilka Marie, Ruth Whyte, Helen Gibson and Mildred Heinze.

The tour is for seven months. The act will go all through the East and Canada. Mr. Belcher plans to have two more acts on the road before the first of the year.

"SINK OR SWIM."

George Walsh in Adventure Story at Symphony.

George Walsh is said to be a hero of wonderful dash and spirit in the William Fox production, "Sink or Swim," coming to the Symphony Theater today. As Dick Mason he is not looking for adventure and romance, but he finds them in abundant quantities. In the supporting cast are Enid Markey, Joe Dowling, Charles Elder, James O'Shea, Edward Sedgewick, Count Van Hardenberg, Edward Cecil and Tom Wilson.

The three reels of the world championship wrestling match between Joe Stecher and Earl Caddock, a Fox Sunshine comedy entitled "Slipper Feet;" a news reel and "The Gumps," in animated cartoons comprise the balance of the bill.

ST. LOUIS AS A NEW ALTRURIA.

Civic Bodies Build Homes for Workers at Near Cost.

But Workers Won't Buy 'Em; They're Sold to Salaried.

Unique Payment and Insuring Plans Are Features.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ST. LOUIS (Mo.) Aug. 17.—St. Louis is one of the few cities which has devised and successfully put into operation a practical scheme for relieving the housing shortage. It is building houses—just as fast as it can get the materials with which to build them. Nearly 100 brand new homes have already sprung up where a few months ago there were only vacant lots, and it is expected that 100 more will be ready for occupancy by the end of this year.

The St. Louis Home and Housing Association was the result of this agitation. This is a $2,000,000 corporation, supported by the Chamber of Commerce and the City Commercial Club, for the purpose of building cheap and comfortable homes in various sections of the city and country, wherever the need appears greatest. It was originally intended that the houses would be for the benefit of industrial workers, the manufacturers subscribing to the fund deciding that it would be more practical to club together and build in one group instead of building in separate groups for their different plants.

WORKERS DO NOT BUY.

As it has turned out, however, the wage earners of St. Louis have not made the slightest attempt to take advantage of the houses so far provided. In spite of the fact that they are undoubtedly bargains, at the present cost of building materials, and in spite of the fact that the working man is supposed to be rolling in wealth these days, there has been a surprising lack of response from the working classes. It seems incredible, but the only way to explain it is that the working classes cannot afford to buy the houses.

"Wage earners have only a small amount of capital and small wages to invest in real estate," explained Nelson Cuniff, the St. Louisan who has been placed in charge of the Home and Housing Association. "They used to buy $2000 houses, paying $400 cash and the balance over a long period of years. Now, with the cost of building materials 240 per cent higher than it was before the war, a house which would have cost $2000 in 1914 costs today approximately $7000 or $8000. This is beyond the means of the average working man.

"But the houses are in great demand among the salaried people—the so-called middle class of St. Louis—who are anxious to vacate flats that have undergone a 200 per cent increase in rent. For them these houses are a very good proposition."

The houses are mostly comfortable, solid-looking brick domiciles, with attractive facades and neat back yards extending to an alley. They have brick walls and contain five or six rooms, with hardwood floors, tile bathroom floors, modern toilet and and plumbing fixtures and the most improved kitchen equipment. They are also located on improved streets, so that all costs of improvements are covered in the purchase price of the houses and do not crop up unexpectedly later in the form of special taxes.

The selling price of the houses ranges from $5500 to $8900. These prices have been made possible, according to the association, only by instituting the most rigid economies in the buying of land and in building. Whenever possible, land was bought on streets which had been improved before the war, for which the association paid $25 a front foot. Building materials have been bought in huge quantities and at cash, so as to take advantage of all possible discounts. While the association acts as a general contractor and sublets most of the items of construction, it handles its own carpenter work, thereby effecting a saving of 25 per cent on the lowest contract price.

The scheme of payment calls for 10 per cent cash on the price of the house and the balance in ten or twelve years. On the ten-year plan the purchaser pays $11.35 per year on every thousand of the selling price, after the 10 per cent cash payment has been deducted. On the twelve-year plan, he pays $9.95 per $1000 of debt. The association will not permit a man to invest more than 27 per cent of his monthly income in one of their houses—a feature of the transaction which is clearly specified in the deed.

"We figure that a man can easily spare 20 per cent of his income for rent," says Mr. Cuniff, "and 10 per cent for a good investment. If he spends more than this on a home, the payments are apt to prove a strain, and he is likely ultimately to prove a bad risk."

UNIQUE INSURANCE.

Included in the selling price of the house is a unique insurance feature, whereby the purchaser is insured, on a group insurance plan, for the exact amount of his indebtedness to the association during the ten or twelve-year period of payments. Thus, if the purchaser should die or become totally disabled during this period, the insurance company assumes his indebtedness, immediately pays it off, and the property becomes part of the deceased or disabled one's estate. Under these circumstances, as the association points out, it will never be forced to the distasteful task of foreclosing on a widow's mortgage.

While the chief object of the St. Louis Home and Housing Association is, of course, altruistic—to provide homes for people who are in desperate need of them—it is planning to make a safe 6 per cent on its investment.

JACK PICKFORD STAR.

Spoiled Boy Story on Screen at the California Theater.

"The Man Who Had Everything," a Goldwyn comedy-drama, starring Jack Pickford, is the headliner on an all-star feature bill, which will open at the California Theater today. This is a picturization of Ben Ames Williams's story of the sade title and unfolds the novel means employed by a wealthy father to make a man out of his wild son.

Mr. Williams is noted for his ability to depict real life. In the present instance he relates how a young scapegrace was given everything his heart desired—bull pups, airplanes, automobiles, wild women and polo ponies, until he was surfeited with an overdose of a good time and finally brought to a realization that the things worth while in life are what one has to fight and work for.

Shannon Day, a vivacious little brunette, is the "baby vamp" of the story, and Priscilla Bonner has the role of the real girl and Alec Francis and Lionel Belmore have important roles. The picture was directed by Al Green.

"A Seaside Siren" is the two-reel special comedy starring Fay Tincher, another high light on the bill.

W. G. Stewart's California Theater ensemble will offer a popular musical program including "Just Like a Gypsy," from Nora Bayes's musical comedy, "Ladies First," and the California Concert Orchestra, under the direction of Carli D. Elinor, will play "The Opera Mirror Overture," an arrangement of familiar melodies from standard operas, including "Carmen," "Pagliacci," "Il Trovatore" and "Rigoletto."

"HUMORESQUE" IS STILL APPEALING.

"Humoresque," the dynamic picture of mother-love, will start the fifth week today at Grauman's Rialto Theater.

Vera Gordon, playing the part of the mother, gives a portrayal that brings tears to the eyes of many at every performance. Alma Rubens makes an appealing character as the fiance of the boy who has become a great musician. Gaston Glass is seen as the youth who turns out to be what his mother has always prayed he might be, a gifted violinist, and Dore Davidson in the role of the father brings comedy of the drollest sort,

Musical number by Oliver Wallace at the organ, a C. L. Chester comedy entitled "An Over All Hero," and selections by the Rialto String Orchestra compose the list of added attractions.

BILL HART THRILLS AT THE ALHAMBRA.

Bill Hart will open an engagement in "The Cradle of Courage" today at the Alhambra.

The story is laid in San Francisco, and tells of the problem confronting Square Kelly, who returns from two years of clean living and wholesome ideals to the old gang, who is waiting for him to lead them on to depredations. He battles with the fascination of the game, as he remembers the thing he has been fighting for during his two years in the cradle of courage.

There is a girl, the daughter of the protector of the gang, who tells him that his war record is worth keeping, and with her kiss on his cheek the weight is swung to the right side of the balance.

However, he is not permitted to easily forsake his old associates.

Ann Little as the girl gives a sympathetic drawing of her role, and Tom Santschi is a virile villain.

A two-reel comedy "A One-Cylinder Riot," together with the latest news events, and a Mutt and Jeff cartoon, make up the remainder of the program.

"IT'S A GREAT LIFE" NOW AT MILLER'S.

"It's a Great Life," the Mary Roberts Rinehart romance of youthful adventure which packed the California Theater last week, is to show at Miller's Theater. It unfolds the trials, tribulations and love affairs of a crowd of young boarding school folk.

The hero and his younger boon companion dream of conquering a cannibal island where pearls cover the sandy beauh, neglected by the natives. How the younger of the two is kept busy endeavoring to prevent his hero becoming entangled with the fair sex forms one of the most humorous threads of the story, and the ability of the older of the two to get in and out of trouble is another.

Cullen Landis has the hero role. Howard Ralston is his companion, known as the Wop. The two heroines are Molly Malone and Clara Horton.

The usual added attractions, including a "Snub" Pollard comedy, complete the show.

Burntrager. Although this club owns an artistic clubhouse, this energetic committee suggests the possibility of plans for building during the year, as it has long been recognized that more commodious quarters are needed.

The chairmen of standing committees are as follows: Auditing, Mrs. Charles R. Van Tilburgh; rentals, Mrs. Fred M. Seibley; house, Mrs P. J. Swearingen; door, Mrs. E. D. Latham; hospitality, Mrs. R. W. Bucknam; printing, Mrs. E. A. Holmes; press, Mrs. Llewellyn A. Banks; finance, Mrs. Thomas F. Cooke; federation secretary, Mrs. W. A. Nickell; entertainment, Mrs. E. B. Republican Women.

During the national campaign beginning the middle of September several Republican women of national renown are coming to Los Angeles to campaign for Harding and Coolidge. Among them are Mrs. John G. South, who is chairman of the women's division of the Republican National Committee, Mrs. Mary Garrett Hay, vice-chairman of that committee, Mrs. Margaret Hill McCarter, Mrs. Josephine Corliss Preston and Mrs. Corrinne Roosevelt Robinson. The latter was the eloquent speaker who stirred the national Republican convention at Chicago when she seconded the nomination of Gen. Wood for the Presidency.

Mrs. John G. South is a charming southern woman who, as Will H. Hays, chairman of the National Republican Committee says, has done more than any other one person to win votes in the Middle Southerp States.

Mrs. Josephine Corliss Preston is a western woman, one of the few who has made her personal impress in the Eastern States as well as on this Coast. She is from Olympia, Wash., and was the first woman in her State to be elected to a State office, State Superintendent of Public Instruction. She is a member of the three committees of the national Republican party and at the present time, in addition to these mentioned, she is serving as president of the National Education Association, president of the Washington Vocational Education, State director of War Savings Stamps and a member of the Emergency Commission, N.E.A.

Originally she was prominent in women's club work and is a member of five clubs in her State at the present time.

Miss Mary Garrett Hay is one of the notable women of the East, residing in New York City. She originally hailed from the West and has all the cordiality of manner the progressive outlook and the driving force for which western people are noted.

For four years she served the National Suffrage Association as an organizer. After helping to secure the ballot for women in many States Miss Hay launched a great educational political campaign for women during which 360,000 women of New York City were taught the a, b, c's of politics and voting. She was the first woman in the State to enroll after the franchise was granted, choosing from that time the Republican party. From this beginning she was welcomed to the councils of the party and appointed to many important committee memberships.

Miss Hay is president of the Woman's City Club of New York City, president of the Daughters of Indiana, expresident of the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs ana. expresident of the New York eration. Many Los Angeles women met Miss Hay at the time of the national biennial meeting of women's clubs in San Francisco.

Club Names.

What's in a name? Lots, Shakespeare to the contrary notwithstanding. Names of people mean much to them, as witness the dismaying discomfiture of people when their names appear wrong in the otherwise calm column known as "Society." Or again take note of the pains a scenario writer takes to name his characters according to characterization. His Patricia Manners we know at once as the haughty aristocrat while his Rosy Granger we pigeonhole before we see her sunbonnet on the screen as the innocent country girl. Whoever heard of a matinee idol in any role named Eliphalet, or a villain as Reginald?

Club names have their own significance, too, and there is due emphasis laid by their members upon the correctness of their public appearance in print. It is The Ebell Club of Los Angeles, not just Ebell minus the articled handle. "Morning" added to a club name nowadays gives an organization eclat. This no doubt in this locality is due to the prestige of the Friday Morning Club. It also implies alluring leisure from the laundry and sundry prosaic morning duties.

All honor to clubs, their sponsors and their names whatever they are if the latter are not too long! Can anyone suggest an abbreviation of this—Los Angeles Federation Tenth District, California Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Association. There is a campaign on in the State organization which corresponds to this one to educate the people and the press to use this name correctly and in full. Shortening it would help immeasurably.

Philanthropy and Civics Club.

Business of importance including changes in the constitution and bylaws will occupy the time of the Philanthropy and Civics Club, at the meeting at the Elks' clubhouse Tuesday

The president, Mrs. Lillian Burkhart Goldsmith, announces that final arrangements will be made at this meeting for the complimentary reception to be given at the Elks' clubhouse the evening of September 10, in honor of the students the club is sending to college. Seats will be reserved for club members who make their application next Tuesday.

The sewing team captains, Mrs. George Adair, Mrs. Bert Farmer and Mrs. Judson Mitchell will resume their sewing contests. Each captain is urging all her needlewomen to be present Tuesday early in the day. As a result of the great competition between these teams an unusual amount of work has been accomplished during the summer and many garments have been completed for needy women and children.

Wa Wan Club.

A luncheon and business meeting will be held next Tuesday by seventy-five active members of the Wa Wan Club. Mrs. William Mabee, the president, will preside and introduce the new members into the working force of the club. The personnel of the committees will be announced for the ensuing year.

Wednesday Morning Club.

Preparations for the first event of the year for the Wednesday Morning Club are now complete. It will be a club breakfast the first Wednesday in October. Reservations may now be made with Mrs. John Hogg.

Mrs. S B. Welcome, program chairman, reports many good programs booked for the club calendar. An item of interest to the music section is the foreword concerning the section instructor for the year, Prof. Ralph Laughlin, who is a soloist at Temple Auditorium, also well known as one of the leading musical instructors of the city.

The membership of the Wednesday Morning Club is notable for its many good parliamentarians, among them the president, Mrs. F. W. Fuller, who was winner in the parliamentary contest at the district federation convention at Inglewood last spring. More will be added to this list of parliamentarians, after the section work with Mrs. John R. Dudley, district parliamentarian, who will be the leader of this section from 10 a.m. to 11 o'clock the first Wednesday of each month, in the clubhouse.

California Badger Club.

An enjoyable opening for a busy year is anticipated by the California Badger Club when the members meet for the first time after the summer vacation, at the home of Mrs. A. C. Labrie, 4346 Victoria Park Place, next Wednesday, for a social afternoon.

Pen Women.

A meeting of the Los Angeles Auxiliary of the League of American Pen Women will be held at the home of the president, Mrs. Bertha Lincoln Heustis, 418 South Normandie avenue, next Tuesday at 2 p.m.

Los Angeles P.-T.A.

The year book for the Los Angeles Federation Congress of Mothers' and Parent Teachers' Associations has just been received and indicates the many activities of this large organization.

The outline of departmental work includes the work of the scholarship committee, the day nurseries in Los Angeles, patriotic education especially among foreign parents, the public school dispensary, juvenile court, membership, hospitality, ways and means, extension programs, legislation, home and school aid, good films and education aside from that of the schools.

For the programs the very best talent of Southern California is listed to speak before the meetings of the federation associations. The list of speakers includes prominent educators, judges of the Superior Court, expert medical specialists, university and college men, welfare workers, lawyers and clergymen.

The office for the federation is 533 Chamber of Commerce Building and is open every school day from 10 to 3 p.m. The president is Mrs. Julia D. Noble, 2815 Sixth avenue, and the corresponding secretary is Mrs. M. E. Peterson, 1314 Highland avenue.

The first regular meeting was held at the Broadway Department Store auditorium Thursday, with the president in the chair. Mrs. Chalmers Smith, president emeritus, spoke concerning Maternity Cottage and the Children's Hospital.

The Ramona Woman's Club.

The Ramona Woman's Club of Monterey Park has issued invitations to a club breakfast Friday, October 8, at 12 o'clock, at the Ramona M. E. Church, corner of Garvey and Baltimore avenues. Mrs. Martin Madsen is corresponding secretary, to whom reply should be made by October 1.

Highland Park Ebell.

Dr. and Mrs. Edwin Larson entertained the Highland Park Ebell Club at their new home, 1609 South Wilson Place, last Wednesday. There were 100 members and guests present.

In the morning the club members, as usual, made Billie Burke dolls for the Council of Community Service, and after lunch was served a charming program was enjoyed. Those who gave pleasure to the guests were: Mrs. William H. Steinemann at the piano, Mr. Paul Jones and Paul Murdy in vocal duet, Mae Borheim Alberts, soloist of the afternoon, Helen Apel, dancer; Mildred McCance, reader, her brother, Raymond McCance and Mrs. William Book, pianiste.

Mr. Lou Guernsey spoke on the League of Nations and the Japanese question.

Mrs. Larson was assisted in receiving and during the luncheon by her daughter, Miss Teddy Larson, Mrs. O. J. Hill, Mrs. M. Lamar and Miss Dagmar Hyberg.

Club Personals.

In honor of Miss Millie Ross, a prominent Vassar woman, the Vassar College Club of Los Angeles gave a tea last Wednesday at Blackstone's tea room. There were nearly a hundred who availed themselves of this opportunity to meet not only Miss Ross, but fellow-students and alumnae of their alma mater.

Dr. Jessie A. Russell received word from Washington, D. C., last Tuesday of her election as national chairman of legislation of the National Congress and Parent-Teacher associations with headquarters at Washington. Dr. Russell was given authority to outline the policies for this department of the federation.

Miss Gertrude Barnum, nationally known as a specialist in industrial relations for women, is returning East the latter part of this week to take an active part in the national campaign speaking for the Democratic nominees.

Mrs. George Maynard Minor, president-general of the national society of the Daughters of the American Revolution, has just appointed Mrs. William Putnam Nye, California historian, as a member of the national committee of historical research and preservation of records.

Mrs. Fred Gardner, wife of the Governor of Missouri, has been quietly spending her summer at Long Beach, and is leaving this week for her home in Kansas City. With her husband she is interested in politics. They are prominent members of the Democratic party.

Miss Wilhelmina Van der Greberg, former president of the Los Angeles City Teachers' Club, has spent a part of her vacation compiling a list of the political candidates, both Californian and national, interviewing many of them to discover their views on the different educational policies and bills that are coming before the people and the State Legislature.

Lloyd George Went to Sleep.

King Ferdinand was indignant, I remember, that the remaking of the map of Europe should be intrusted to men who possessed so little first-hand knowledge of the nations which they were reshaping.

"A few days before the signing of the Treaty of St. Germain," he told me, "Lloyd George sent for one of the experts attached to the Peace Conference.

"'Where is this Banat that Rumania and Serbia are quarreling over?" he inquired.

"'I will show you, sir,' the attache answered, unrolling a map of Southeastern Europe. For several minutes he explained to the British Premier the boundaries of the Banat and the conflicting territorial claims. But when he paused Lloyd George made no answer. He was sound asleep!"

"Yet a little group of men," the King continued, "who know no more about the nations whose fates they are deciding than Lloyd George knew about the Banat have arrogated to themselves the right to cut up and apportion vast territories as casually as though they were apple tarts." [E. Alexander Powell in Scribner's Magazine.

HIGH PRICED WASH.

Anna Held with her buttermilk baths has nothing on the baby of a Polish family in Baltimore. Federal agents recently raided the soft drink saloon and home of Jim Rostankowski in search of whisky which was supposed to have been delivered to the saloon from a ship.

The dealer had been tipped off, and the raid promised to turn out a failure, when one of the agents happened to pass the lady of the house, who was industriously rubbing some baby's clothes in a tub. The fragrance of old whisky came from the tub. The agent stopped and investigated. It was discovered that eight gallons of whisky had been dumped into the tub to avoid arrest. Eight gallons of whisky, at bootleggers' prices, is worth about $800. The agents proceeded with the search after discovering the whisky in the tub, and a great deal of liquor was found on the premises. —[Columbus Dispatch.

PIERRE KEY'S Music Article

BY PIERRE V. R. KEY.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—The opera germ has at last inoculated the New York wholesale concert managers. It has been hovering about these dispensers of musicians and music for more than a year, so no surprise need be felt that the members of the National Concert Managers' Association should have at length succumbed to the inevitable. The venture is not strictly within the field in which the majority members operate, but the project they are considering has possibilities, and with the maturing of the plans now under consideration New York may have still another operatic organization. It will differ very materially, however, from those now established, and the ones which are yet in a formative stage, for the undertaking I mention is to be devoted exclusively to the presentation of Wagnerian works . . . sung in English.

There are several ifs to be overcome before the decision to go ahead is made, and I should not be surprised to learn that the opening performance of the suggested eight weeks' season is to be set for next spring. When it does take place the Manhattan Operahouse is likely to be the spot chosen for the presentation of "The Nibelungen Ring" ("Das Rheingold," "Die Walkuere," "Siegfried" and "Die Gotterdaemmerung,") "Tannhauser," "The Flying Dutchman" and perhaps two or three other music dramas which are regarded as more or less certain to enlist a favorable public response.

Cora Chase,

American coloratura soprano, who is expected to duplicate her European successes when she appears this season at the Metropolitan Operahouse.

The Metropolitan's success last season with the English version of "Parsifal," and the financial successes gained in London's Covent Garden Theater with a Wagner repertoire, have prompted our own managers to cast their eyes in what appears a profitable musical direction which carries the further appeal of lifting them into a channel the majority have long had secret desires to move.

ABORN A MOVING SPIRIT.

Milton Aborn is the man who laid the proposal before his associates of the National Concert Managers' Association. His wide experience in opera makes him an ideal director for such a project as this one, and, while it is yet early to state that he will be asked to take command, such an outcome appears to be as probable as it is logical.

Some ten members of this association have expressed their willingness to contribute $2500 each toward the initial working fund, to which another $25,000 can be easily secured from public-spirited men who would scarcely hesitate to lend their support to an undertaking started in so substantial a manner.

With settings possible to obtain from the Metropolitan, and a sane policy laid down and carried out with respect to operating expenses, I can see a smaller financial hazard attached to the undertaking than is usual where the objective is so artistically pretentious. Mr. Aborn certainly learned a valuable lesson during his two years as co-head (with his brother Sargent) of the Century Opera Company, and he can be counted on to cut this new coat to suit the cloth at his disposal.

With the public's operatic appetite keen for the Wagner morsels which have so seldom touched the palate during the past five years, there is no knowing what might ensue—in the way of developing a permanent popular-priced English-sung Wagner season.

A meeting of the managers concerned approaches as I write. If the decision to proceed is reached, additional and definite information of interest should be quickly forthcoming. Getting ready in time to start this particular opera ball rolling before the holidays would be difficult, yet it is not an impossibility.

HEMPEL AS JENNY LIND.

Very few persons now living go far enough back (even if they were so fortunate as to have been present on that occasion) to remember the American debut of Jenny Lind in New York's old Castle Garden. Most of us have learned about that memorable event, which took place September 11, 1850, from what has been either written or spoken. We know that P. T. Barnum forsook his elephants long enough to be an impresario, and that New York (with its thirty-five concerts,) New Orleans (which got twelve,) Philadelphia, Boston, Pittsburg, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Baltimore, Washington, Providence, Richmond, Memphis and Nashville (which divided some forty performances among them) were the most important of favored cities.

The centennial of Jenny Lind's birth is to be celebrated in New York . . . between October 1 and 10. During these days an exhibit of as many of the diva's personal belongings as possible to secure will be held in the Aquarium, in Battery Park—which is in the identical building, wherein the "Swedish nightingale" first sang to an American audience.

On the evening of October 6, in Carnegie Hall, there is to be presented a "duplicate" program of the one given by Jenny Lind, and the assisting baritone Signor Bellitti. Frieda Hempel will appear in the "role" of Jenny Lind, clad in a copy of the gown worn by the Swedish prima donna, seventy years ago. Arthur Middleton, the American baritone, will wear evening clothes, as near like those of his Italian predecessor, as can be made, and the orchestra, we are told, is to be arrayed in "quaint" suits and frilled shirts.

There is a committee in charge of this celebration, and on it—besides some prominent New York citizens in private life—are Ira N. Norris, Minister to Sweden, and the Swedish Minister, W. F. A. Ekengren.

A PRIMA DOONA TO PLAY.

I usually shy at any play which I know to be built around a prima donna. Most playwrights miss the mark they aim for, so utterly, that I generally leave before the final curtain, and feel a desire to say to myself: "Never again." But a few evenings ago I permitted myself to be taken to the Garrick Theater, where "Enter Madame" recently had its premiere.

Madame entered so cleverly, so very delightfully, and so truly in the way in which one would have expected a temperamental prima donna to enter that I am glad I saw the lady—and the rest of the players who helped make the piece so entertainingly real.

Giulia Conti (who is Miss Varesi herself) and Dolly Byrne, authors of "Enter Madame," performed a finished and workmanlike job. The central idea was human and, above all, reasonable; the situations were natural; the lines fairly snapped.

What delighted me, however, was the atmosphere created and the sticking to things which do happen in a prima donna's life. I will never forget "The Great Lover," which had a long New York run and was all about a baritone who walked in a very curved path, and showed how things are supposed to happen in the Metropolitan Opera House. As an exhibition of what does not occur in the Metropolitan—or any other—opera house, "The Great Lover" was the perfect example.

"Enter Madame" is fortunate in having gotten into the hands of one of the ablest (even if he be one of the newest and youngest) producers. Experts predicted a success for the play the moment it was known that Brock Pemberton was to produce it. When it was learned that Gilda Varesi had been engaged to be "Madame" the wise ones whispered: "Ah! At last this exceptionally gifted player is to have her real chance."

She has it in "Enter Madame," and she makes everything possible of it. Henceforth Gilda Varesi will shine as a "star." Norman Trevor also goes some distance beyond the artistic mark ordinarily attained by leading men.

But there is another "answer" about all this, which tells the real story: People are being turned away at every performance. And that, for the man who has risked a production, is worth more even than a favorable newspaper review.

SPARKS FROM THE ANVIL.

What a clanging noise we've been hearing lately. The signs of a near-at-hand music season have appeared—some of them, at least. One which cannot be mistaken is the chorus of criticism about the alleged extravagance during the lately concluded stadium concerts, and the failure of Walter Rothwell to do musically what some people expected.

If it is true (as I am informed) that numerous rehearsals were held for the preparation of "standard" compositions, then one reason for a part of the large deficit can be accounted for. One musician told me an amusing tale about the length of time spent in rehearsing certain orchestra works with particular efforts, on Mr. Rothwell's part, to secure "sand-papered" results. If this is accurate information, then Mr. Rothwell must have forgotten that "finish" is the last element possible to secure from an outdoor orchestral performance.

Mr. Rothwell is a splendid musician, and his conducting routine fairly developed; but I doubt if anyone who is posted in such matters, expected him to set any new marks here in New York. Before I go on record with respect to pronouncing on his skill as a conductor I want to hear him lead a better orchestra than he had at the stadium, and in an auditorium. Under such conditions we would very quickly get "the measure" of Mr. Rothwell. Until then I would rather not commit myself.

Rosina Galli, the Metropolitan's premiere danseuse, has just arrived from Italy. No sooner did she set foot on shore than she announced her determination to shortly take out her first American citizenship papers. It is becoming more and more the fashion for established artists of foreign birth to adopt the country which gives them not only honors, but more money for their services than they can earn at home.

It would surprise none of us to learn of the appointmnet of Andres de Segurola (the former Metropolitan basso) to the post of director of the Havana (Cuba) opera. Mr. De Segurola is to be manager of Havana's Monte Carlo, but he will doubtless have time enough to handle both "jobs." The "prince of monocles" is versatile and experienced in business.

Band for Hundredth Birthday.

Ninety-nine years ago Mrs. Johanna Tibbett of Princeton was born in County Clare, Ireland. She is still active, and her two chief desires are not to miss putting in her garden and to live to be 100 years old.

Mrs. Tibbett works daily in her garden at her home at No. 602 East State street, where she lives with her daughter.

As she rested on her hoe she remarked:

"I want to live to be 100 years old, and when I do I want the Princeton Band to come out and play for me.

Besides Being Dangerous, It Makes Them Grow Faster.

Cutting or paring a corn is always annoying, often painful and many times dangerous. Besides, it only makes the corn or callus grow faster.

The best way to remove corns is by painting them with Cactus Corn Compound. It stops the pain at once and in a short time the corns die and fall off. The remedy is painless, absolutely safe and positive in its results, and can be used in the privacy of the home.

A small bottle of Cactus Corn Compound costs only a few cents at any drug store and is sufficient to remove dozens of corns. Your druggist will refund your money if this safe and simple home treatment fails to give you satisfaction.—[Advertisement.

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it. No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.—[Advertisement.

You Can't Brush or Wash Out Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.—[Advertisement.

Hair Often Ruined By Careless Washing

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonsful of Mulsified will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.—[Advertisement.

WRINKLES!

Stop being annoyed with wrinkles, lines, freckles and sagging muscles. Madame Leone, late of New York, is holding a free exhibition of a partially treated patient. WAS CROMWELL REALLY A WET?

Opposed to Prohibition, but Stern Toward Vice.

Controversy in England is Becoming Bitter.

What Protector Declared is Freely Quoted.

BY HAYDEN CHURCH.

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Aug. 15.—"Oliver Cromwell to Prohibitionists" is the heading of a monster poster to be seen on billboards — or "hoardings," as they are called here—all over London. This poster is the latest of many which have been put out by the brewing and distilling interests of Great Britain, by whom money is being spent freely in various forms of "anti-pussyfoot" propaganda.

The Cromwellian message quoted certainly would appear to indicate that the Protector was a "wet;" at all events that he was opposed to prohibition. Addressed in 1650 to the Governor of Edinburgh Castle, it reads thus:

"Your pretended fear lest error should step in is like the man who would keep all wine out of the country lest men should be drunk. It will be found an unjust and unwise jealousy to deny a man the liberty he has by nature upon a supposition that he may abuse it.

"When he doth it, judge."

Naturally, the British advocates of prohibition do not relish this poster. They claim that it completely misrepresents Cromwell's attitude toward the Demon Rum, and are able to bring fairly convincing evidence to prove this. To both American "wets" and "drys" the controversy that is now raging anent this subject may be of some slight interest.

In a letter to the press the Rev. P. W. Newland, a leading temperance reformer and the author of a well-known Life of Cromwell, points out that the message from the Protector quoted in the brewers' poster is a few lines from a letter which Cromwell wrote to the Governor of Edinburgh Castle in December, 1650. "One sentence, without the context," he writes, "is taken from a lengthy epistle. The letter is an earnest plea for freedom in preaching, in opposition to the extreme bigotry of some of the Scotch Covenanters. For the brewers to placard it is somewhat audacious, for it is notorious that they have been unwilling for the advocates of prohibition to get a fair hearing."

But this is not all. What was Cromwell's attitude towards drinking in his day? It is easily ascertained. Five years afterward the great protector appointed his twelve major-generals and in September, 1656, he declared in Parliament that this step "had been more effectual towards the discontinuance of vice and the settling of religion than anything which had been done for fifty years."

Dr. S. R. Gardiner, the most careful of Oxford historians, tells us what they did with regard to drinking. In January, 1656, Maj.-Gen. Wordley, in conjunction with the justices of the peace, suppressed no fewer than 200 ale houses in the Hundred of Blackburn, alone, and he wrote: "Ale houses are the very bane of the county, bringing forth all manner of wickedness." A fortnight later he suppressed another 200 in Chester. Maj.-Gen. Whalley, Warwickshire, induced the justices to put down one-third of all the ale houses, and another Maj.-Gen. Berry, declared that if such orders were observed he was certain that "it would suppress one-half of the debolstness and profane practices of this nation."

DR. GARDINER COMMENTS.

With regard to these measures Dr. Gardiner comments in words which have a bearing on the present day. He states that there will always be "a widespread class of good fellows who care more for the ease and enjoyment of life than for its stricter duties, who form a vast and insert mass when spirited action is called for but who offer a stubborn resistance to a government which calls on them for a forward step towards a purer and nobler life."

There is no doubt about Oliver Cromwell's stern attitude towards ale houses and drunkenness.

ALASKA CAN PREVENT NEWS PRINT SHORTAGE.

[BY A. P. CORRESPONDENCE.]

JUNEAU (Alaska) Aug. 20.—Wood for making 2,000,000 tons of paper annually—about one-half the present consumption of the United States—can be furnished by Alaska's forests without depleting them. Col. W. B. Greely, Washington, D. C., chief of the United States Forest Service, said while here recently.

Twenty or more large pulp mills could be operated year after year in Alaska, Forest Service officials estimate. The growing new timber would be sufficient to replace that cut in the mills.

Col. Greely, accompanied by George H. Cecile of Portland, Or., district forester for the North Pacific district, and other Forest Service men, spent several days here looking over the highway and timber situation.

DE MILLE AND THE SATIRE.

grandmother was entertaining a mixed company, and I, a small boy at the time, piped up and alluded to a lady's nighty.

"Well, that's what you wear, isn't it? I persisted.

"My dear!" she exclaimed, "it's not for gentlemen to talk about! Why, my husband never saw me in my nightgown!"

"'Why, grandma,' I expostulated, and it was then the company got the shock of their lives, 'what do you wear to bed?'

"The curtain was drawn, of course, and I never did find out. But as she was a very proper person, I'm sure it must have been some discreet sort of raiment."

"Forbidden Fruit," it seems, is more serious than some of the other picture stories De Mille has made. But it has enough comedy to be classed in with his former bright satires. People love to see themselves on the screen, he says, but, of course, they take only the noble part to themselves, or the gentle kidding. When it comes to biting satire, they apply that to their neighbors.

Successful as Mr. De Mille is in this field of social satire, he declares he isn't going to feed the fans caviar three times a day. Therefore, "Something to Think About," the picture preceding the present one, made by this brilliantly versatile genius, has an entirely different theme.

Mr. De Mille says he means to make one more satirical comedy, a very light one, this time, and then he will do another spectacular feature.

It would appear as if these artistic activities were enough, but Mr. De Mille is also interested in many business enterprises. He is head of the Mercury Aviation Company, which is branching out into what he clares will be the greatest sive step ever attained feat of flying was actually plished, viz., into the launch the all-metal flying machines are to revolutionize aviation. he is an owner in large oil besides having extensive mineral lands located in Death ley.

REVIVE LORE OF ANCIENT TAHITI.

Excavations are to Uncover Ancient Temples.

Destroyed Century Ago by Missionaries.

Make Effort to Gather Relics of Old Worship.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

PAPEETE (Tahiti) Aug. 25.—The ancient lore of Tahiti is to be resurrected and the ruins of the temples of the South Pacific islands, ordered destroyed a century ago by Christian missionaries, are to be uncovered by excavation. Efforts to gather the relics of a forgotten worship are being vigorously prosecuted here.

Interest centers upon the great central temple or Marae at Atehuru, on Tahiti Island, where human sacrifices were offered to the bloodthirsty god of war, "Oro." So completely were the wishes of the missionaries carried out that nothing remains save traces of the foundations of this extensive temple. Excavations are expected to bring to light some interesting objects which, it is hoped, will reveal the purposes and uses of this ancient structure.

Marae, while being the chief temple of Tahiti, was not the oldest or the most inportant in the islands. The temple of Opoa, traces of which still remain on the island of Raiatea, was the sacred center of religion in the Eastern Pacific and not until a stone from this had been incorporated in the structure did the Marae temple on Tahiti become consecrated.

It was at Marae that Capt. Cook witnessed the ceremonies of human sacrifices chronicled in his "voyages."

The natives, while professing Christianity, and manifesting it by most active church attendance, have a deep fear of these places. Under no circumstances will they approach these temples at night, nor venture near them by day without great trepidation, believing that should they in any way offend the sleeping gods vengeance will come.

His Dream.

It's meslif wants a chance where a feller can do,
Just any darned thing that he has a mind to,
With no one the right to say ba or boo.
I don't like guvners and presdents and kings,
For I haven't no use for any such things;
I'd rither have unions and bargins and rings.
What on earth do yer think when yer struttin' about,
Wid a pair of eye-glasses hung onto yer snout,
And a rag in your pocket wid de end stickin' out?
Do yer think that because ye have been to some school,
And picked up some blarney from some other fool,
Ye expect I'm a' going' to come under your rule?
What the hill is the reason ye're agin the saloon?
Ye'll be tryin' to make us all saints pretty soon.
Ye're like a fool dog when he barks at the moon.
Yer may go on as yer goin' and have the bold face,
To trate with contempt a superior race,
But the time will yet come when ye'll disciver yer place,
When the boyes like meslif, the Soviet, and Hun,
Sit together in friendship and actin' as one,
Ye'll find yer direction and bossin' is done.
It's meslif and me friends will devide up the land,
The railroads will run and the army disband,
And then ye'll be glad to ate out o' me hand.

To Discard Freckles, Tan, Pimples, Wrinkles

It is said that creams containing animal grease cause hair to grow. You run no risk of acquiring superfluous hair from using ordinary mercolized wax. There is nothing better for a discolored skin, as the wax actually absorbs the offensive cuticle. The latter is naturally replaced by a clear, smooth, healthy complexion, full of life and expression. It's the sensible way to discard a freckled, tanned, over-red, blotchy or pimpled skin. Get an ounce of mercolized wax at any druggist's and apply nightly like cold cream, erasing in the morning with soap and water. Soon you will observe a most remarkable transformation.

The ideal wrinkle remover is made by dissolving an ounce of pure powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel. Bathing the face in the solution brings almost immediate results.—[Advertisement.

INTERPRETS HIS FILMS IN MUSIC.

Schertzinger is Selected to Make "Concert."

How He Provides Characters With Melodic Themes.

Original Method of Former Orchestra Director.

BY JEANNE REDMAN.

A score of years ago Lewis Stone played the lead in "The Concert" at the Mason Theater, and Victor Schertzinger conducted the orchestra. Last week Schertzinger was engaged as director of the Goldwyn film production from the stage play, and Lewis Stone is to take the lead.

Schertzinger is a man who combines in a unique way his picture directing with his musician's experience. And for this reason he was chosen to make the musical play into a film. "It is not, however, a matter of having musicians as interpreters," he declared, "but of directing the scenic effects so that they will carry the idea of the music to the public. We have the greatest means possible in the screen to portray program music.

"Everyone in listening to certain pieces of music sees, vaguely, pictures, and I have a new idea for getting these pictures over to the public so that they will never be forgotten.

"You know it would be impossible to have the bowing, for instance, of a violinist, portrayed in such a way that the playing of a violinist in the orchestra would absolutely synchronize with the screen, so necessarily we have to compromise by producing, not the absolute rhythm of the two together, but the sound of the one, and, from the screen, the pictures which this music calls up.

"Thus, in one part of 'The Concert,' arising from the grand piano, as the maestro is playing the Liszt 'Liebestraum' will be a hazy vision of a cavalry charge coming straight toward the camera and soaring, as it were, above the heads of the audience."

Schertzinger is that new product of the moving-picture industry called a musical director. He has every claim to the title. For, besides having been with the Boston Symphony Orchestra as violinist for two years, he has toured with Nordica, Calve and Sembrich. He has acted as soloist with the Boston, Philadelphia and Minneapolis orchestras.

CHARACTER THEMES.

His ideas for the use of music, even in nonmusical plays, are extremely original. After he has read a scenario he thoroughly analyzes the chief characters, and being a composer himself, writes little melodies which epitomize their temperaments.

These melodies he has played over and over to the actors until they are learned; indeed, until they are hummed continually, and he claims that one melody learned in this way does more toward getting the actors into the characters than a week's talk.

Throughout his rehearsals he has music. This is now furnished by a quartet recruited from the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, although there was a time when he had the entire orchestra.

When asked if these persons played during the time that the photographs were being taken—"You know actors are emotional people; they wouldn't be actors if they were not, and I have found that if music is being played during the shooting of the picture, the actors will overact. That is, they stress the dramatic points too much. So I have music up to the time I call for the camera."

Once a well-known actor was building a house, and on every occasion he would button-hole Schertzinger and tell him about the alterations in plans and all the little improvements which he intended incorporating into the structure—to such an extent, in fact, that Schertzinger could not see how he would ever get into the part he was playing.

SCHEME WORKED.

It was then that the idea came to him to write these little leitmotifs for the different people, and he tried this out on the house-building actor. He declares that ten minutes before the camera started grinding the man had forgotten all about his house, was smoothing out his costume and was ready to put his best into the piece.

In the present production the leitmotif of the maestro will be the "Leibestraum." That of his wife, the "Caressing Butterfly" of Goldmark. The girl of the picture is obviously well taken care of with the famous Aria from "Thais," and Eva acts to the rhythm of a motive from the Mendelssohn concerto.

"You know how terrible it would be to see a moving-picture program without music, and believe me, it's just as necessary to have music in the production of it," declares Schertzinger. "Actors are human, and all of them, like all the rest of us, have outside worries and troubles, which, if they are to act well, must be forgotten at the click of the camera.

"Well, music does it, and music, as long as I direct, has come to stay. If somebody offered me $10,000 a week to produce pictures with the stipulation that there was to be no music, I'd turn it down cold."

NORMA GOULD HOLDS OUTDOOR CLASSES.

For the second season Miss Norma Gould has taken a class of girls to a camp in the heart of the Sierra Madre Mountains to study and play. Following a trail for miles, taking all equipment and costumes by pack burros to a secluded spot high up in the mountains, the students found a natural amphitheater surrounded by lofty pines, where they danced and played for two weeks.

The day's program consisted of a morning lesson in Greek gymnastics as applied to the dance, advanced eurhythmics and rousing national dances. This was followed by a lecture and an afternoon lesson in pantomime.

Miss Gould is making extensive plans for next summer, when there will be accommodations for more students.

After a tour through the northern part of the State, Miss Gould will reopen her city studio, October 1.

MANY NEW WORKS.

SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA TO GIVE NOVELTIES.

Bringing to the public a distinctive series of musical novelties, the concerts by the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, as announced during the past week, promise to be of exceptional artistic interest.

There will be twelve symphony events during the season Friday afternoons and twelve popular concerts Saturday evenings. All of these will be given at Trinity Auditorium.

The Pasadena series will be enlarged to eight symphony concerts, and arrangements have also been made for a group of Sunday evening programs at the Ambassador Auditorium.

A gala concert will also be presented at the opening of the new hotel.

The musical novelties planned for the season include Scriabine's "Prometheus," Rachmaninoff's "The Isle of the Dead," John Alden Carpenter's "Adventures of a Perambulator," suite, D'Indy's "Istar," Henry Hadley's overture to "Othello," Kallinkoff's First Symphony, Hugo Wolf's Italian Serenade; Sergei Prokofieff's new piano concerto, played by that artist himself; Debussy's "Iberia," Chadwick's "Tam O'Shanter," Cesar Franck's "Les Djinns," Bloch's "Trois Poemes Juives," and Moussorgsky's "Une Nuit sur le Mont Chauve."

At the final concert it is proposed to give Cesar Franck's oratorio, "Les Beatitudes," with eastern soloists and a local chorus. This is one of the finest works for voices and orchestra.

Additional works programmed include Beethoven's Seventh Symphony, Brahms's First Symphony, Berlioz's "Symphonie Fantastique," Bizet's overture, "La Patrie," Delius's "Danse Rhapsodie," Dvorak's Second Symphony and Slavic Rhapsody, Glazounoff's violin concerto, Haydn's 'cello concerto, Liszt's Episodes from "Faust," Mozart's overture to "Idomenio," Lalo's overture to "Le Roi d' Ys," Raff's "Leonore" symphony, Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Scheherezade" and "Le Coq d'Or," Schubert's Fourth or "Tragic" Symphony, Sibelius's "Night Ride and Sunrise," Smetana's "From Bohemian Fields and Forests." Some of these works are also new to this city.

Conductor Adolf Tandler announces the engaging of various former members of the symphony orchestras in Boston, Philadelphia, New York, Chicago, Detroit, Minneapolis, and the following eastern soloists who will make at least two appearances with the orchestra: Julia Claussen, Lawrence Leonard, Serge Prokofieff, Paul Althouse, Alice Gentle and Kathleen Parlow.

Community Chorus.

The Hollywood Community Chorus will meet at the auditorium of the Hollywood High School Tuesday evening. The Hollywood Community Orchestra will be heard for the first time. Forty-five musicians will play in conjunction with the large chorus.

Hugo Kirchoffer will conduct.

New Song Number.

Bob Albright will sing a new song at Pantages Broadway Theater this week, "There's No Love Like a Mother's," the music of which was written by Lewis Kerwin and the lyrics by Kate Beirne O'Rourke.

Dance Spring Song.

The Abbott Dramatic School held their monthly matinee last Friday, at their home, 845 South Figueroa street. Children from the baby class danced Mendelssohn's "Spring Song."

Orpheus Four to Tour.

The Orpheus Four, formed under the direction of Joseph Dupuy, will leave the 17th inst. for a tour throughout the United States. They are booked into the spring of 1922. They will give a program tomorrow, at Redondo Beach, assisted by Lawrence Tibbett, baritone; Albert MacGilvray, tenor; Ruth Aker, soprano, and Nuncie Bitterman, contralto.

Russian Dancers Here.

Theodore Bekefi, teacher of classic and character dancing, has recently come to Los Angeles to make his home, and has opened a school at the Fraternal Brotherhood Building.

Bekefi first came to America ten years ago, appearing with Genee at the Globe Theater, New York. He received extremely good reviews which compared him favorably with the great Nordkin.

He will teach dancing as it is taught in Russia, beginning with the elementary studies.

He came to Los Angeles last year as headliner on the Orpheum, appearing with his pupil, Helen Morgan. He has also danced with Karsanive and Fokin, in Russia and France.

Ellis Club Rehearses.

The Ellis Club opened its twenty-fifth season of rehearsals last week.

The future concerts of this men's singing organization will be held in Philharmonic Auditorium instead of Trinity.

With the consummation of negotiations for the use of the larger auditorium for its concerts, the club will be enabled to amplify the scope of its work.

During the summer vacation the directors of the club have formulated the programs for the season's presentations. Arrangements have been made for the singing of numbers calling for orchestral accompaniment, with vocal and instrumental soloists.

Among the selections for the initial concert in November are "The Sword of Ferrara," "Idylle Mongolienne" (Frederick Stevenson,) "Venetian Love Song" (Nevin,) the soldiers' chorus from the opera "Faust," "The Desert" and the opening number which is always sung at the first concert of each season in memory of the club's founder, Judge C. J. Ellis, Sullivan's "The Long Day Closes."

The club has decided to increase the chorus to 100 members.

J. B. Poulin as musical director and Mrs. M. Hennion Robinson as accompaniste have been retained by the club.

Resumes Classes.

Mr. and Mrs. Jode Anderson, who were married recently in this city, have returned from their honeymoon trip, and Mr. Anderson has resumed his classes. His bride was Mrs. Joy McKie of Minneapolis prominent as a musician in the eastern city. They were married at Mr. Anderson's residence on Vendome avenue.

Orpheus Club Busy.

The Orpheus Club held their first rehearsal of the season last Monday evening under the direction of Joseph Dupuy at the Gamut Club. This organization plans to give its series of concerts at Philharmonic Auditorium this season.

A number of new works by the best composers are being studied, and soloists will be engaged for each concert. The organization will probably number eighty singers.

Will Garroway has entered upon his tenth season as accompanist.

Mr. Dupuy has been director since the club was founded in 1905.

Will Study in East.

Wilhelmina Rector, pianist and instructor at the University of California local branch, will leave for New York next Friday. She will be absent about eight or nine months while pursuing advanced studies at Columbia University. She plans to take a master degree in psychology.

During her stay in the East she will probably also appear in recital. She intends to give a portion of her time to the study of voice and piano.

Miss Rector is well known both in the musical and social circles of Los Angeles. She has been in charge of the classes of Brahm Van Den Berg during that pianist's absence on his foreign tour.

Organist in Canada.

Arthur Blakeslee, organist of Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church, is now visiting in Toronto, Can. He plans a series of programs in the Canadian city, and will bring out a new concerto he, himself, has composed. He will return to this city in the fall.

Classes and ensemble work, together with the formation of a college orchestra, will give added impetus, it is anticipated, to the ambitions of students of the Davis Musical College, which has just started its fall term.

The orchestra is under the direction of Theodosia Wessel.

Dr. Ray Hastings of the pipe organ department has returned from an extended vacation at San Francisco where he was heard in several concerts. The official publication of the Organists' Guild of America devotes a lengthy article to his career.

Miss Rhea Foster, an associate teacher of the college presented her pupils at the woman's clubhouse in Artesia, Thursday afternoon. The following took part: Francis Taylor, Barbara Strong, Thelma Thompson, John Stokes, Edna Zaddoc, Grace Edrington, Elitha Irish, Marion Scheifele, Beatrice Grinney, Aileen Sproul, Horace Britton, Paula Sterlie and Gladys Hix. Miss Foster closed the recital by rendering a group of songs without words by Neupert.

CLUB FEDERATION ANNOUNCES CONTEST.

The National Federation of Musical Clubs announces its fourth biennial contest for young professional musicians. The purpose of these contests is to recognize the superior ability of American teachers, by bringing their pupils into prominence, to encourage and inspire music pupils to greater effort, to give opportunity and publicity to the young talent of America, it is declared.

State contests are to be held between March 1 and April 15; district contests between April 22 and May 15, and the national contest June 8 to 15.

Contestants must be trained in America.

Rules governing contests and lists of compositions may be obtained, it is announced, from Mrs. Cecil Frankel, 6219 Hollywood Boulevard.

TIMMNER WILL BE GRAUMAN SOLOIST.

Christiaan Timmner, the Holland violinist who was unable to appear recently at Grauman's Sunday orchestral concert, because of the serious illness of Mrs. Timmner, will be the soloist at today's event. He will play the Bruch Concerto.

Timmner has an international reputation. He was conductor of the Royal Orchestra at Amsterdam before taking the directorship of the Cleveland Orchestra in this country. There he remained two years, before coming to California.

As a touch of sacred music which he proposes to give the popular concerts, Arthur Kay will play Gounod's "Ave Maria." Other numbers will be Goldmark's "Entrance and Procession" ballet, and the third movement from Tschaikowsky's "Pathetique" symphony.

OPERA TO BE GIVEN IN HOLLYWOOD.

Arrangements are well under way for the production of the opera, "Faust," in Hollywood by the De Ponti Grand Opera Company. Mme. De Ponti has selected her singers from among some resident vocalists, and also she has gone far afield for some of the leading voices.

E. C. Heintes of the New Orleans French Opera Company will appear in a leading role. He has sung with success in many of the most popular of Italian operas, it is stated.

The first appearance of the company will take place at the Women's Club of Hollywood, the first week of October.

ROTHWELL SOON TO ARRIVE HERE.

Walter Henry Rothwell, conductor of the Philharmonic Orchestra, is vacationing for a week at the hunting lodge of W. A. Clark, Jr., Salmon Lake, Mont. He will leave there Tuesday with his family for Los Angeles. He will occupy the home recently purchased at 333 Irving Boulevard.

While in New York Mr. Rothwell ransacked the music stores for new material for the Philharmonic library. Some of the recent purchases scheduled for performance this winter are Sibelius's "King Christian" suite, Wolf's Italian Serenade, Rachmaninoff's "Isle of the Dead," Rimsky-Korsakoff's overture, "La Grande Paque Russe" (in the odd rhythm of 5-2;) Bizet's "Roma" overture, Wasilenko's "The Garden of Death," and some of the lesser known compositions by Liadow, Delius and the moderns.

With the ever-increasing supply of electrical energy furnished by the development of Switzerland's vast resources in water power, consideration of various electrically driven household appliances is growing from year to year, reports Consul Francis R. Stewart, Berne. Up to the present time the use of washing machines in Switzerland has been very limited and electrically driven machines have been utilized only in public laundries.

MOSSES GATHERED BY A ROLLING STONE.

BY TOM FITCH.

Twenty years ago I was engaged in law practice in Honolulu. Unto me one day came a sea captain named Rosehill who told me that while trading in the South Pacific he had discovered an uninhabited island which was the home of what he called guano birds. He said that he nailed the American flag to a tall cocoa palm tree, in a forked branch of which he deposited a glass bottle containing a notice signed by himself and his crew, claiming the island for the United States. He said that he built a cabin and deposited therein a year's supply of provisions, and left on the island one of his crew, who was content to remain there with his common-law wife—a dusky Dulcinea of the Caroline Islands. Rosehill had sent his claim as discoverer of the island to the Secretary of State, by whom it was duly red-taped and deposited in the archives of the State Department, where it had slept for nearly a year, awaiting the trump of some resurrecting angel.

I accepted employment as the Gabriel of the occasion. I prepared an application in conformity with the guano act of Congress in behalf of Andrew Rosehill, for the right to remove the guano desposits from Marcus Island, as the atoll had been named.

The application was granted. We organized a corporation entitled "the Marcus Island Guano Company," to which Rosehill assigned the franchise which had been granted him by the United States to remove the guano deposits on Marcus Island.

We bought a staunch schooner of 100 tons' burden and loaded her with tools, provisions and supplies. We employed an assayer, and purchased an assaying outfit, so as to be able to test the guano deposits. We gave passage to the island to a biologist sent by the Bishop Museum to explore the fauna, flora and bird life of the island. We shipped a double crew, so as to be able to leave workers on the island, and, learning a few days before the Julia E. Whalen—as our schooner was named—sailed, that there were Japanese fishermen on the island who were snaring and skinning our guano birds for their feathers, we placed on board a case of Mauser rifles and several hundred rounds of ammunition.

We never learned whether guano was on the island or not. The vigilant Japanese Consul at Honolulu wired to the Japanese Minister at Washington a full account of our proceedings, which we were so indiscreet as not to conceal. That functionary cabled in turn to Yeddo and the government of the Mikado made ready a war vessel to send to Marcus Island to prevent the landing of our party. The Japanese Minister also induced our Secretary of State to cable our Minister in Japan to send a communication by the Japanese war vessel to Capt. Rosehill, directing him not to offer any resistance to the Japanese authorities, but to leave the island if the Japs demanded, and assuring him that the United States would protect his rights through diplomatic channels.

When Rosehill reached the island he found a Japanese frigate anchored in the bay. Accompanied by the assayer and two sailors, he went ashore, and was met at the landing place by a Japanese officer and sixteen marines. The Japanese officer presented to Rosehill the order of our Secretary of State directing him to withdraw from the island. Then he pointed with his snickersee to the American schooner anchored in the bay, with a limp Stars and Stripes drooping from her masthead with the dejected droop of the tail of a downhearted dog, and said: "These unworthy subjects of his mightiness the Mikado of Japan are distressed by your presence. It makes it necessary, therefore, that your excellency go on board of your worthy little ship and sail away quickly."

The ceremony of American deportation from Marcus Island was impressive. Nothing like it has occurred since the expulsion of the Acadians from Nova Scotia. It needs a new Longfellow to write a new Evangeline to describe it. In the foreground was the wrathful Rosehill and his three companions. Facing them was the representative of the Mikado and sixteen marines. The Japanese officer, to his credit be it said, had on a pair of pantaloons. The sixteen marines were breechless and barefooted, and behind the marines was a crowd of the bird skinners, clothed, like Godiva, mainly in their chastity.

"Now look here," said Rosehill. "I am going because my own government bids me to do so; and as for you and your gang of breech-clouted lubbers, and the crowd of bird-skinning sons of female dogs behind them, I would engage to come ashore with my crew, armed only with belaying pins and drive the whole damned lot of you into the sea."

Thus delivering himself Rosehill boarded his schooner and returned to Honolulu empty handed.

The Marcus Island Guano Company presented its case to the State Department with a view of obtaining the promised relief "through diplomatic channels." But our government had a fleet of islands in the Philippines, and took no interest in procuring another island and our Secretary of State did nothing in the premises.

When Andrew Rosehill, an American citizen, went upon an uninhabited and unclaimed island in the Pacific Ocean, claimed it for the United States, posted a notice of the claim on a tree and left the American flag flying there, and an American citizen living there; and when the United States accepted the acquisition by recording the claim in the archieves of its State Department, then under the law of nations the right of sovereignty of the United States over Marcus Island became as vested and as perfect as it is over the Aleutian or the Hawaiian Islands.

Months after our title was perfected the Japanese government, upon the basis of the acts of Japanese fishermen who landed on the island and tore down the American flag, issued a notice that it had annexed Marcus Island to the Bonire group, 800 miles distant. And when the Japanese government was informed by cable of the sailing of Rosehill's schooner from Honolulu with a crew, whose purpose was to work the guano deposits on the island, it informed the United States that it owned Marcus Island, and without submitting any evidence of such ownership and without diplomatic, or other negotiation, that it was about to dispatch a war vessel to the island to prevent any Americans from landing there.

It would seem to a mind untrained in the viles of diplomacy that the proper course for our government to have pursued would have been to cable this strutting turkey cock of the Asiatic walk that it would dispatch several war vessels to Marcus Island, with directions to blow out of the water any Japanese ship whose officers might attempt to interfere with the landing of an American citizen upon an American island.

Of late years we have demonstrated in our war with Germany the willingness and the ability of the United States to protect its citizens. But it was different at the beginning of the century. Then, although our flag fluttered over a continent and environing seas, it fluttered like the splendid tail of a lone turkey cock strutting across an uncontested lawn. And if another turkey cock jumped over the fence and contested our right of way did we say, "Come on Macduff. This is my lawn, and no almond-eyed, pig-tailed, wooden-shod son of an incubator shall drive me off of my own premises without a fight?" No. We said then what we would say now: "Certainly my dear fr I want no trouble with you. I here before you stuck your head out of your shell. Still, if say the lawn is yours, I will yield to you what you have and then trust to diplomacy to termine whether you had a right seize it."

THE NEW.

IN STORES AND HOMES.

NOVELTIES, IDEAS AND PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS.

By Olive Gray.

Up-to-Datest:

A smart little tailleur, seen at the United Opening, had stub sleeves, rounded open almost to the shoulder on top, and from the aperture were suspended novel ornaments of jade hung upon bead chains.

Girdles of rather large wooden beads, colored in vivid contrast to the dress or suit, terminated with elaborate tassels or other danglers.

Superlative terms of endearment to evening gowns are the narrow trains of tulle or tinsel cloth, of lace or ribbons de luxe.

Chapeaux piled high with plumage—ostrich, burnt peacock, glycerined or otherwise chemically treated feathers.

Now is the Time to Buy:

The new shoes for wear with the autumn suit, or dress or frock. Over-the-instep fastenings are the decree of the mode. Buttoned in single or double straps, or tied with ribbons, the latest footwear is most distinguished.

Play suits for little ones who can for long weeks to come enjoy the California out-of-doors. Such a sale on the floor O—you know what!

The what-with for making home truly home-like. Sales are alluring, and the time is ripe for the new in-house-things—furnishings, wall papers, floor coverings, draperies, curtains. The home has its rights and one of them is to be given added interest as the shut-in season dawns.

Now to Have 'em.

We have seen 'em—now to have 'em! I refer, of course, to the new clothes for fall. It is the fall of Eve all over again, when the new feminine apparel puts in an appearance—for, of course, all Eve ever fell for was a new notch in leaves. I mean—well, there you go again! Determined to misunderstand me, and the more I explain the worse it is!

In the No.

The modishly clad woman of the present season is more than likely to be in the no—if she is in the know. No sleeves, no back, no waist line, no skirt—almost no, at least, and underthings which are so immaterial as to be very nearly no. Hosiery, also, is quite negative, if of lace or silk.

New Brown.

Zanzibar is one of the new brown shades for autumn and it is as interesting as it sounds.

That Perky Prink.

"Neighborhood dress!" Was there ever a more likable name? Can you not see her wearing it for the morning chat across the porch rail, or over the garden wall? I can hear her say to a next-door confidante: "I don't exactly like to tell you over the phone—might be someone on the line—I'll be over in a minute;" and how glad she will be that she has on her Perky prinky dress, so she can complete the sentence she began on the wire, without stopping to change.

Fine Feathers.

Fine feathers are already made into hats—except their crowns, and they are in a for-less sale the coming week. All you have to do is to crown them yourself and they will crown you a queen of fashion. Crowns, by the way, are interesting this season. They are of such varied styles and are embroidered in so many ways, with so many materials—silks, chenilles, beads, nailheads.

Gladys's Gladness.

The joy of Gladys over her Paris garters has had a damper. Such adorable little rounders, they are, with silken dangling fruits, jewel sparkled. They were not intended to live the life of the bushel-hidden light, either; but it is now a question. You see, the Parisian fashions, when they reached our shores, were expurgated to some extent—that is, to some skirt extent. Skirts were decreed by Americans to be longer. Fully six inches below the dimpled knee, it was decreed they must extend. So disappointing! Especially to Gladys, just come into possession of a pair of those Parisian garters. I have suggested that she be a real sport Parisian and defy our national style decrees, or else that she suspend the garters, allowing them to swing free and visible. She says they were not intended as suspenders, and persists in mourning her distressing fate.

Rose Loves.

Have you ever seen anything in the way of dress adornment more fascinating than the new French hand-made roses used on evening gowns? I ask you. I mean those rather large, high colored roses, in French blue, in pink and other colors such as roses might have been in some enchanted Never-Never Land. They were shown as side trim up the jaunty skirt, as wreaths around the low waist line, as bodice garniture, in that most exclusive gown shop.

"The Privacy of a Gold Fish."

Thus spake Ann, referring to the manner of existence led by a friend who is forever in the public eye.

The Redingote.

Some of the smartest new suits shown during the united opening were of tricotine or of valdecygne, or other of the duve-varieties in weave, and were distinguished by the use of the redingote. One stunning suit disported such a coat, buttoned from shin to near the knee, over a slim, straight skirt.

Cape Capers.

The capers of capes are interesting this season. Some are frankly capes, others are a pretext of sleeves and some are mere shoulder draperies. But anyhow, capes are.

Whither Fashion Points.

Standing collars are frequently used on afternoon and street frocks.

A chic costume of midnight blue taffeta has revers lined with white silk.

With dance- frocks, long scarfs of black tulle are worn around the neck.

For dressy wear is the coat of taffeta, elaborately embroidered in color.

Chic little hats in plain solid colors are worn with the Scotch plaid capes.

Frills of taffeta edged with white organdie trim a chiffon taffeta frock.

Printed Paisley patterns on novelty ribbons are used on georgette dresses.

Appliqued figures of ribbersine and silver cloth adorn a wrap of red duvetyn.

Fancy flat braid outlines the tab effects in front and back of a fitted suit coat.

One novel wrap has three armholes, two of which are used for one arm.

A tunic of chantilly lace has jabot sides with tassels weighting the corners.

A novelty passementerie trimming on kid ground distinguishes a chiffon taffeta dress.

Long capes of Scotch plaid coating materials are being worn by French women.

For the kiddie is an Eton jacket of black satin with collars, cuffs and a skirt of sports silk.

A pretty dance frock of coral pink French organdie and taffeta has a string belt of light blue.

FORKS DATE FROM 1574.

It is hard to believe the sensation produced when forks first came into use. It was in 1574, at a dinner given by Henry III of France. Here is an account by a royal lady guest: "The guests never touched the meat with their fingers but with forks, which they carried to their mouths, bending their necks and bodies over their plates.

"There were several salads. These they ate with forks, for it is not considered proper to touch the food with the fingers. However difficult it may be to manage it, it is thought better to put the little instrument in the mouth than the fingers.

"The artichokes, asparagus, peas and beans were brought. It was a pleasure to watch them try to eat these with their forks, for some, who were less adroit than the others, dropped as many on their plates and on the way to the mouth as they were able to get to their mouths.

"Afterward a great silver basin and a pitcher of water were brought and the guests washed their hands, though it seems as if there would not be much scent of meat and grease on them, for they had touched their food only with those forked instruments."—[Ladies Home Journal.

Husband and Wife on Jury.

What is believed to be the first case on record in Michigan where a husband and wife sat on the same jury occurred in Kalamazoo court recently when Aaron Westevere of Schoolcraft and Mrs. Westevere were among the occupants of the jury box.

"Can you have a mind of your own, even if your husband is sitting on the same jury with you?" asked one of the attorneys.

"I certainly can," emphatically replied Mrs. Westevere.—[Chicago Tribune.

The One to Tell.

"You've got indigestion; that's what's the matter with you," said the doctor.

"Oh, that's what it is, then?" inquired the patient.

"That's it. You've been eating a lot of meat, I suppose?"

"I have; yes."

"Well, now you're paying for it."

"Would you mind telling my butcher that, doctor?"—[Yonkers Statesman.

Value

The word "value" is most commonly understood to be the desirability or worth of a thing.

Los Angeles' first jewelry house owes much of its progress to a steadfast policy of giving true value in all its transactions.

Nordlinger values represent not only intrinsic worth—they embody utmost desirability, attractiveness and authenticity.

Fifty-one years of consistent value-giving to the people of Los Angeles and the Southwest is the record of this establishment.

Come to the Corset Section at The Broadway and benefit by the Demonstration of

Nemo Corsets

—which is now being conducted, under the very able supervision of Mrs. A. L. Craig. She can give you some surprisingly interesting information about her special subject.

Let Her Convince You

—and we think she can—of two things;

—First, of the vast importance of choosing just the proper corset for your particular type of figure; one that really fits, flexible to your every move rather than a resisting force, as is too often the case; one that is worthy of being the foundation and the mould for your pretty frocks; one that will wear well and keep its shape because it fits.

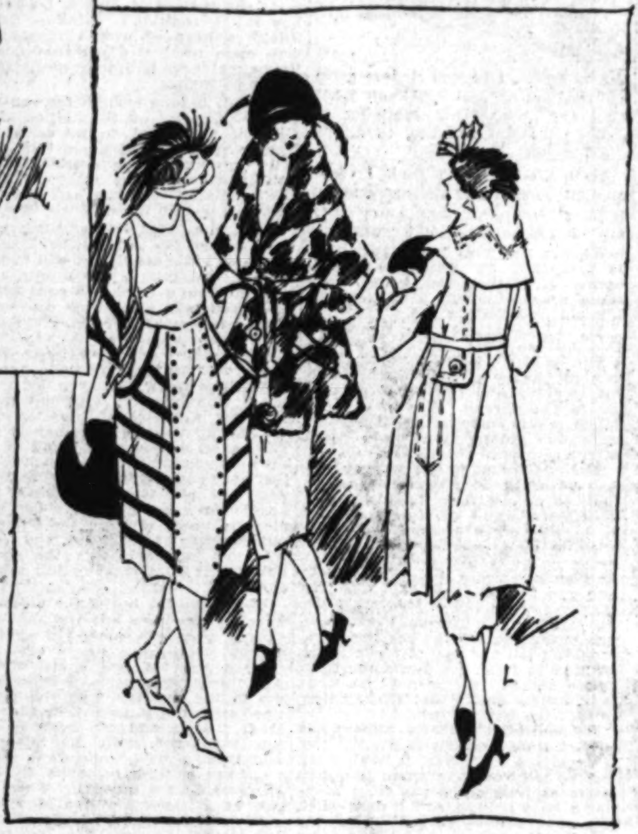
—Second, of the merits that lie in this particular make—the well-known Nemo corsets. They are fashioned with the greatest care, and are cut on lines that will give the desired silhouette of the season. They are soft, flexible and adaptable. There's a style to fit nearly every type of figure—many women who have thought it necessary to have corsets made will do well to see these. And last, but important, they are attractive and will appeal to women who insist upon dainty things.

There are Models at Various Prices

—ranging from $5.50 to $15.00. We have just received a shipment of late fall models developed in pink and white coutil and pretty brocades.
—Before you buy your fall frocks or suits pay a visit to the Corset Department.
The Broadway—Second Floor.

Let your fall shopping campaign include a glimpse at the

New Fall Suits at $59.75
New Fall Coats at $49.75
New Frocks at $45.00



—that are to be seen in such abundance at The Broadway, all fresh and new and attractive.

—When we tell you that they are garments of the better sort, we mean that they bear the marks of exclusive designs, that they show a niceness of tailoring and a correctness of cut.

—These are the attributes that women of taste seek; they are the foundation of that desirable qualification called distinctiveness. Unfortunately, costliness is too often a by-product of garments of this order, making them prohibitive for the great majority of us. That we are able to offer merchandise of such high merit at The Broadway at prices meeting the average pocketbook, we feel is an achievement. They have been purchased with exceedingly great care; they are offered to you at moderate prices. We await your stamp of approval.

The Suits at $59.75

—are of lovely soft materials, such as duve de laine, tricotine, gold tone, tinsel tone, and velour de laine. The length of the coats varies with the different styles, but on the whole there is a tendency toward longishness. Most of the models are belted or have a suggestion of a waistline. Some are fur trimmed; others are richly embroidered. They all are silk lined, either with plain or novelty linings. There's a choice of navy, brown, Zanzibar, taupe and black. In sizes 14 to 44.

The Coats at $49.75

—seem to be in prettier styles than ever this year. They're of Bolivia, velour, silvertone, broadcloth and plush—those desirable warmth-without-weight materials. All are nicely lined and you may choose from coats of short, medium or full length. Some of the models have large shawl collars, that may be drawn snugly around the neck during the cold weather; other styles are fur trimmed. The size range is from 16 to 44.
The Broadway—Third Floor.

The Dresses at $45.00

—are in such a great variety that to describe them is almost impossible in this space. However, we may tell you that they are of taffeta, satin and wool materials, some cleverly embroidered in silk or yarn, some made on straight lines with wide girdles, some piped with georgette or duvetyn. There's a choice of long or three-quarter sleeves, and a wide range of colors. In sizes 14 to 44.

Women's Silk Stockings

—The ever-shortening skirt demands that one shall be well shod and that stockings shall be the last word in quality and becomingness.
—We mention as of special interest pure thread silk hosiery in black, white and cordovan; lisle garter tops and well reinforced at the wearing parts.
—These are full fashioned stockings; priced at $3.25 a pair.

Women's Full Fashioned Lisle Stockings

—In black, white and cordovan have a lustrous mercerized finish. They have elastic garter tops with reinforcements in soles and heels.

—In sizes for boys of 8 to 18 years.

Come in Monday and see the display of Pattern Hats

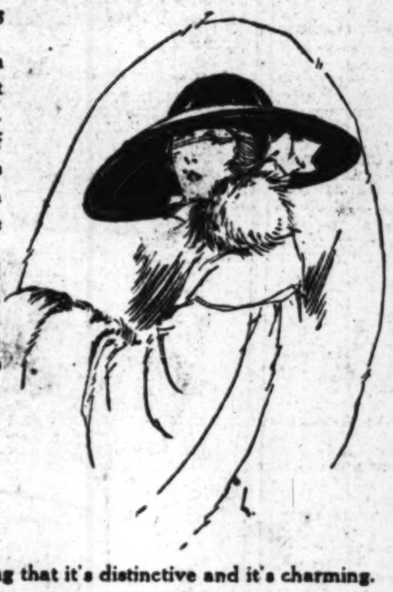
From Eastern Importers



—if you are interested in "What's smart" for the fast approaching fall and winter. Surely these are prophetic of the new whims and notions to which fickle Mlle. La Mode has, with admirable judgment, taken a fancy. These hats are here in all their pretty colorings with lovely warm browns and rich shades of henna well to the fore. When you see this tempting assortment, we predict that out will come your hatpins, off will come your hat and on will go one of these lovely new shapes.

For instance, the out-of-the-ordinary hat in the illustration is a "Patrician model," which is another way of saying that it's distinctive and it's charming.

One of the Best Ways to Achieve Modishness

—this fall, is to have a hat either entirely of felt or of felt combined with another material, such as velvet. This particular hat is of sand colored French felt and rich brown velvet. Its soft crown is of velvet and its wide, mushroom brim is of felt, with an underfacing of velvet. The hat is poised by means of a wee bandeau and the only trimming is a bow of wide grosgrain ribbon underneath the brim in the back, where it nestles becomingly over the hair.
—It is priced at $30.00.

Other Models That are Equally Alluring and smart are developed in lustrous duvetyns and rich velvets. The colors are unusually attractive and there are models for maturer women as well as for young women.

—The prices range from $12.50 to $45.00.

And the gowns they wore were wonderful to behold—and the hats, my dears, were dreams of loveliness and the coats—oh! where could one find such piquant creations this side of gay Paree? The Seamstress

Aw, Yes'm, I reckon it does seem a little foolish. But you know what they say about "God Almighty a-making women thataway to match the men."

Well, it's the men's fault I reckon that women feel thataway about tellin' their age. You know they are always talking like women's looks was the most important thing in the world and they are always acting as if they was most something criminal about a woman being old and getting old.

Ma'm? 'Course you can remember that back a little way if a woman got to be 50 years old or even younger than that, everybudy thought she ort to stoop and put on a cap and set in the corner. Yes'm, they as much as said sometimes that a woman hadn't got no right to be peart after she was a certain age.

Ma'm? Yes'm, if she was 40 she had to walk 40 and talk 40 and look 40 or else they thought it was a disgrace. And the funny part of it is the other women joined in with the men, (like they most ingenerally do to keep in with the men,) and made fun of a woman what said she was 40 and acted 25. Just like them women acted to Mrs. Margaret Hill McCarter in Topeka, Kan., when she went their to register and wouldn't tell her age. I reckon they wanted to take her down and then laugh and tell the men about it. It was such a good joke! (When they wasn't the butt of it.)

Yes'm, it looks like a woman has a hard time if she don't want to live a deceiving life. Now it is all right not to tell your age when it means so much as keeping you from making a good living. And it does when the men are so prejudiced in the offices sometimes, about a woman being old.

You know it ain't always only jest foolish not to tell your age. They are practical reasons for it. But everybudy don't see it. There ain't nobudy what wants to be ridiculed about nothing. And if a woman can be 40 and look ten years younger and git away with it, it means capital and pleasure and success to her sometimes.

Yes'm, it's just grand that out in Kansas they have got a judge what can see through something without having a headlight turned onto it. He said they don't have to tell. And it's grand for that woman to take the stand about fibbin' about her age, when it don't specially count, just for the sake of the others what are gitting along in years and has to make every year count or try to keep 'em from counting.

No'm, they ain't no use of buying what you don't need even if it is cheap. A budy hates to pay the price of new goods. But I've about made up my mind that if a woman buys out of season she has got to take such a chanct on things not being in style and then again worrying about bringing it up to date, she better pay a little more for things and have fewer of 'em and wear 'em to the bone than to have so many things on hand. Well, and if you ain't staying long in one place it is too much trouble to make 'em over when you have 'em left over, to say nothing of making over the new things what you buy on sale and have got to bring up to date. 'Course, sometimes you can pick up a bargain, but you got to be mighty sure that you need it right away and it ain't going to stay in your closet and git et up with moths. I know how you feel—Ma'm?

Yes'm, I know that it is good sense to buy anything like that what always stays in style and is a staple. Yet and still, silk don't lay away very well, and they say that it is going down right smart. But now you take that coat of your friends what she is tired of. Yes'm, I would buy it. I wouldn't mind a bit. They's a heap of people, nice and rich ones, what is doing that now, 'cause materials is so high and making is so high.

Well, it is long enough for you to have a piece cut off the bottom and I'll tell you what to do with it. You know you need a scarf in the fall to go with your suit and I'll tell you how I saw one made with a hat to match and you can have a stylish set out of it.

Well, the coat being brick red duvetyn and the suit you have navy blue, don't you see how it will fit in?

Well, you take a piece off'n the bottom about a third of a yard wide. Well, you take some blue rope silk and darn long stitches in this scarf three rows all around it, with one end left square and the other round. Then you darn it up and down acrost these three rows. And then you take and line the duvetyn with blue satin and sew a tassel of blue on the square end after you gether it up. The round end you take and cut a slit in, about three inches back from the end and right in the middle. And you put it on and turn the satin over a little like a collar and run the tassel through the slit and pull it up to fit your neck and let it meet on one side so's the tassel hangs over your right or left shoulder.

You make the hat of the pieces of duvetyn you have left and the blue satin. You can make it a right narrow brim poke, like I saw and have a kind of bell shape crown. And then you make three little flowers of the duvetyn with the petals lined with the satin and sew 'em in front. Well, and the brim of the hat is darned with blue floss to match the scarf. 'Course you might not have enough to make the hat so much of the duvetyn. Then you can have it more of the blue satin and "cut the garment accordin' to the cloth."

Ma'm? Now, there you go! Indeed I don't think that kind of a hat would look too young on you. You just stop telling your age and trying to act 35. No'm, they ain't nobudy going to take you for that onless you advertise it to 'em.

You ort to of begun not telling your age, before you was married.

Oh, yes'm, I know your husband would of called you foolish and got mad for a while if you hadn't acknowledged what age you were. They is some men though what would ruther you'd tell 'em a little fib than to think that you are gitting along. Well, and what they don't know don't hurt 'em.

Well, you take Lonny, for instance (that's my husband,) I says, when he asks me, like I've heard, "It's better to lie a little than be unhappy much."

Rheumatism
A Remarkable Home Treatment
By One Who Had It.

In the Spring of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who have it know, for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, and doctor after doctor, but such relief as I received was only temporary. Finally I found a remedy that cured me completely, and it has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted and even bedridden with rheumatism, some of them 70 to 80 years old, and results were the same as in my own case.

I want every sufferer from any form of rheumatic trouble to try this marvelous healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address and I will send it free to try. After you have used it and it has proven itself to be that long-looked-for means of getting rid of your rheumatism, you may send the price of it, one dollar, but understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer when relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay. Write today.

ASK ANY BALD HEADED MAN

Any bald-headed man will tell you that neglect, or lack of regular care, was the cause of his baldness.

You can have thick, glossy hair by giving your scalp regular attention. It takes only a few minutes each day to apply Glover's Hair Tonic, a scientific preparation of a scalp specialist, and is guaranteed to relieve all forms of hair and scalp troubles.

It destroys the cause of dandruff, relieves annoying itching, stops falling hair and promotes its growth if the roots are alive. Shampoo the scalp carefully once a week—apply Glover's Tonic regularly and you will soon see a new growth where the hair is thin.

Your hair is a valuable asset—don't neglect it, but start the use of Glover's today—the cost is trifling and the results are certain. At all good drug stores, department stores, and barber shops.

Cured His RUPTURE

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 421-G Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.—[Advertisement.

DOROTHY DIX TALKS

Men and the Beauty Cult.

BY DOROTHY DIX.

Here's a problem that keeps me guessing, as it does nine-tenths of the other women in the world, the remaining one-tenth being the pictures who have no personal interest in solving the conundrum.

The riddle is this: Why do men lay so much more stress on beauty in women than women put on good looks in men? Why do men rate beauty as the greatest asset that a woman can possess, while women put good looks at the bottom of the list of qualities they admire in men?

Nobody will contend that it is because men possess a finer, or more highly developed aesthetic sense than women have. On the contrary, the average man is color blind, and cares nothing for abstract beauty.

In proof of this, observe his clothes. Hideous tubular garments, crowned by a hat patterned either after a stove lid or a chimney pot. And, unless forcibly restrained, he will deck himself out in passionate hues that swear at each other and set the beholder's teeth on edge. Nor is the average man sensitive to his surroundings. As long as the springs are good, and the cushions soft, he can be as happy on a magenta couch on a peacock carpet in a yellow room, as he could be in one in which every tone blended into its mate.

It is the feminine love of abstract beauty that expresses itself in clothes of exquisite materials, shapes and colors. It is the woman who cannot live without beautiful surroundings who makes the artistic home and cultivates the flowers.

The indifference that the majority of men display toward beauty in general makes their insistence upon physical beauty in woman all the more inexplicable. Perhaps they themselves cannot tell why good looks attract them more in a woman than any other thing and why homeliness repulses them, though it be overlaid with a thousand attractions of mind and character.

The first question a man ever asks about a woman whom he has never seen is concerned with her appearance. He always wants to know whether she is pretty or not. Never whether she is intelligent or amiable or a good talker or companionable.

And any little fool or shrew with a pink-and-white complexion and yellow ear muffs and a willowy figure can marry whom she pleases, while the cultivated, big-hearted, big-souled girl with a sallow skin and a nondescript nose and stringy, straight hair, which she never learns how to comb, never gets in telephoning distance of a proposal from any man and at last has to espouse a career.

If it were only the fool men who married the fool girls for their looks it would not matter, but so obsessed are even the cleverest men by this beauty cult that they, too, fall victims to it and wreck their lives by tying themselves to pretty dolls who lose their only charm as soon as the paint wears off and their hair begins to get mangy.

That is the tragedy of marrying for beauty. It is the one worst bet in all matrimony, because it is bound to lose out in the end. A few short years—a spell of sickness—the inevitable strain of caring for a family—and your beauty's roses are numbered among the roses of yesterday. What then has the man to sustain him through all the long pull of domestic life if all that he married a girl for was her good looks?

Nothing. Absolutely nothing. Hence the prevalence of divorce, for when the beauty's complexion and figure are gone her wand of enchantment is broken and she has no power to hold her husband. Yet men, otherwise sane and sensible, go on gambling their life happiness away on the turn of a hair that is bound to go gray and a dimple that is foreordained to become a wrinkle. And the plain girls, who would keep a man interested and entertained all his life and make him a thrifty and happy home, and who would be better-looking at 50 than they are at 20, swell the ranks of the old maids.

There is no more pathetic thing on earth than that the women who could make the best wives and mothers so seldom get the chance to do it.

The very fact that men pick out their wives by their looks and without reference to their other qualifications, and while women consider a man's heart and brain and soul of more importance than his profile or figure, is the best possible reason why women should be given the right to pick out their mates and pop the question.

If a man was intelligent and interesting no woman would turn him down because his hair was getting a little thin on top and he was developing a bay window, for some little snip of a boy with ambrosial curls and a straight-front figure and a head that was solid bone. Nor would they prefer an ox-eyed movie-hero-looking creature, whose sole accomplishment was to wear good clothes, to a regular he-man with hands like hams and freckles on his face and squint eyes, but who had gotten out and done things.

It takes men to commit the supreme folly of marrying for beauty. Women have more sense and when women propose we shall have more rational marriages and more happiness in marriage, unless the men all say "No" when a homely woman pops the question.

MAKING MORE MONEY

Work and Original Initiative Makes Stenographer Head of Big Company.

TEACHING school may be an interesting profession, and one which carries with it a feeling of work well accomplished, but no one ever accused it of being munificently rewarded—particularly during the last two decades, when the cost of living has been continually mounting skyward.

It was because she realized the narrow financial future which was facing her that Miss Nellie Scott, teacher of a country school in Michigan, resigned her position and came east to Bridgeport, Conn., to accept a position as stenographer in a factory which manufactured wire wheels. That was fifteen years ago, but even then Miss Scott recognized the impetus which the automobile ought to give to the wheel industry and the $12 a week which she received for her work held out a promise of bigger things than the $15 which she had been making in Michigan. It was true that the factory was run down, the living conditions were bad and the surroundings far from congenial. But the new stenographer went to work to remedy these conditions as far as it was within her power. Little by little she enlarged the scope of her activities within the plant until she added bookkeeping, shipping records and timekeeping to her secretarial duties. The first raise was one of $3 a week and later, because the company was not really able to pay out more salary, she suggested and received an increase in the form of stock.

Mainly through her efforts the company was placed on a paying basis. The men and women in the factory were made more contented with their working conditions. The wheels were standardized and guaranteed. Shipments were watched with the greatest of care and satisfaction was assured to all purchasers. Then, when the president of the company announced his intention to retire and requested the stockholder-workmen to nominate his successor, there was but one name mentioned—that of Nellie Scott, who started in at $12 a week and now heads her own factory in Connecticut.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Q.: Do the various keys in music express different feelings or emotions? G. V. W.

A.: There is a general belief that certain keys do express particular emotions best and many composers consciously or unconsciously employ them. The minor keys as a class are sad, somber and melancholy, each having particular attributes. In the major keys C is simple, naive and commonplace; G is rural, merry; B flat, noble, elegant, graceful; E flat, sonorous, vigorous, chivalrous, and so on.

Q.: What makes the best roughage feed for cows—oats, wheat or corn? A. G.

A.: Exclusive use of wheat or straw as a roughage for breeding cows will produce premature, weak or dead offspring. A complete ration can be made from the corn plant. It will give normal growth and reproduction.

Q.: When is "Green Thursday?" T. E.

A.: The Thursday preceding Good Friday is known as Maundy Thursday, Holy Thursday or Green Thursday. This last name came into use about 1200 and may have been so called because the Twenty-third Psalm was usually the selection for the day.

Q.: What State is called the Centennial State? T. V. B.

A.: Colorado was given this nickname because it was admitted to the Union in 1876, when this country was having its centennial celebration of the Declaration of Independence.

Q.: Why does charcoal absorb gases? K. L. M.

A.: The property of absorbing gases and vapors is explained by the porosity of wood charcoal. The fetid gases pass into the pores of the charcoal and there meet with the oxygen previously absorbed from the atmosphere; oxidation ensues and the unwholesome effluvia are decomposed. This action, however, is usually wholly mechanical, the gases being absorbed.

Q.: Is there a milestone in Washington from which distances are measured? P. F. W.

A.: There is a stone known as the Zero Milestone which has been placed on a drive directly south of the White House grounds. The plan is to measure distances on the national highways from this point, which is on the meridian of Washington, 77 deg. west of Greenwich.

Q.: Please give a recipe for pickled onions. W. A. T.

A.: Select small white onions and sort into two sizes, one-half inch diameter in one and three-fourth inch in another. Peel, cover with fresh water and let stand for two days, changing the water on second day. Wash and put into brine for four days, changing brine at end of second day. Drain and let stand in boiling water for ten minutes, then put into cold water for two hours. Drain, and pack into jars, putting in a few small red peppers, and garnishing with sprigs of mace. Fill jars to overflowing with spiced vinegar.

Q.: How can mildew be removed from table linen? C. C. C.

A.: Wash clean and rinse thoroughly. Put linen in tub of clean cold water. Tie a small amount of chloride of lime in a piece of muslin and dissolve the lime in lukewarm water by squeezing the bag. Pour the lime water on linen in tub. Stir and leave soaking for twenty-four hours. Rinse in clear cold water.

Q.: How many negroes served in the United States Army during the war? V. A. L.

A.: There were over 400,000 negroes in the army during the World War, nearly half of that number going overseas.

Q.: Which ship was the first to cross the Atlantic under her own steam? C. H.

A.: The Savannah, which crossed the Atlantic in May, 1819, was the first to accomplish this kind of trip.

Q.: Is the second or third wife of a Civil War veteran eligible to receive a pension after his death? L. W. K.

A.: If she is his legal wife and can meet with the other conditions of the law, it makes no difference whether she is the second, third, or fourth wife.

LETTERS TO "THE TIMES."

A Chance to Help.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 27.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Your leader, headed "An Epochal Victory," sounds the true note in the statement, "the world owes France another debt of gratitude." France, today and always, stands a solid wall against the progress westward of debasing Hunnish and Slavic culture.

Returning from France, an average "American-American" is astonished to find that Boche bonds and marks are thriving in our market places, while the new French reparation bonds, issued in June to repair the damages caused by the wanton, criminal Boche in Northern France, are unknown here. To be sure, there is no money in boosting new French bonds, but money isn't everything in life, is it? I think that every actual American, having no hidden Boche sympathies, would like to own at least one reparation bond in order to be a partner in restoring the once-beautiful and thriving terrain where our honored patriots lie. The new French bond is a liberty bond par excellence; while the Boche issues are scraps of paper, so far as anyone can possibly determine now.

The issue of 8,000,000 francs of credit national reparation bonds was enormously oversubscribed by the thrifty French people last June at 485 francs (par 500.) They have already risen to 492 on the Paris market. An American who wants to own one or more of them can, without doubt, be accommodated by any reputable banker or broker. The bonds bear 5 per cent interest, mature in 1995, optional 1940 at par; there are eight drawings each year at par, with 104 large prizes. Every true American would probably like to have at least one of the bonds in order to feel a personal interest and pride in rebuilding the area made sacred by the blood of our noblest.

The Motorcycle.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 26.—[To the Editor of The Times:] When you are starting a campaign to rid the streets of reckless automobile drivers for heaven's sake don't overlook the worst pest of the highways—the motorcycle—the inexcusable, intollerable, noise-producing, death-dealing, damnable motorcycle.

These machines are usually driven by reckless boys who rip and tear up and down the city's streets with mufflers open and engine snorting. They are certainly the one great injury inventive genius has wished upon the present generation. They are of so small use and of such great detriment they should certainly be ruled off the streets except those which are used by the police officers to capture other speed demons.

Anyhow, the city ordinance forbidding open mufflers should be enforced.

SAMUEL MAY.

Strong for the League.

PACIFIC GROVE, Aug. 29.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Misapprehension is sometimes dangerous, sometimes fatal; not alone to you and me, but to all posterity. Nevertheless partisan politicians persist in trying to "fool all the people all the time."

They ignore the accomplished fact that already a League of Nations exists; and they speak as though the United States alone could retire that League, and start another on a much superior basis.

Now no one claims perfection for every detail of the League as formed; but—it contains provision for its own betterment. You cannot learn to sing, unless you sing, nor to swim unless you get in water and swim. The League is already afloat, learning to swim in the world's troubled waters.

To talk of its sending our boys across the water to be killed is false and futile in the face of the fact that for very lack of such a League we sent 2,000,000 of our bravest and best to the late war, and prepared 2,000,000 more to follow. The sole and whole purpose of the League is to preclude any such need in the future by requiring universal disarmament, and agreeing to submit to the decrees of international courts of justice.

In this work our country was virtually invited to be "destiny's leader," and to accept prominent place in effecting this most necessary of all reforms. Because there are simply two ways for humanity. To organize the world for construction and life, or destruction and death!

The League of Nations means life, health and wealth for all mankind; lack of it entails the unknown horrors and tortures of ever-more-deadly war, world-bankruptcy and starvation!

EDWARD BERWICK.

Likes the Opposite.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 31.—[To the Editor of The Times:] In your Mr. Andrews's report of the gathering of California editors at San Francisco appears the following:

"Will H. Crocker, national committeeman for California, made the hit of the day when he said to the editors:

"'I know Senator Harding! I have lunched with him and dined with him and had long talks with him, and I can tell you that he is exactly the opposite of President Wilson.'"

I am writing to thank both Mr. Crocker for the statement and Mr. Andrews for giving it publicity and further to add my most emphatic and cordial indorsement of the statement.

You should have spread it in big letters across the entire front page of your paper.

Yours very truly,
E. F. McVEIGH.

How Long? That's It.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 24.—[To the Editor of The Times:] There was an article in your pen point's column a few days which read, "Cheer up, somebody will be elected and no matter who it is, the people will run their own government." Whoever wrote that sentence reckoned without the host, that is, the host of commissioners of which we are afflicted. They seem to be the running the country just now and like the Bolsheviki, the more power they get, the more they want. They will want to run the government and we will not need a President. When a poor man wants to build a house to meet the requirements of a growing family, he has to borrow money and he often loses it, because he cannot pay the interest. But when the telephone, gas, electric light or a railroad company wants to raise a million or two, they do some trick book-keeping which readily convinces their friends, the commissioners, that they are very near bankrupt. But the man who can build a house for himself, he has to help foot the bill and no amount of persuasion from the common people, who, has to pay the salaries of these commissioners, has any effect on them. All corporations have their full consent to rob the people. How long, oh, Lord, will the people stand for it.

ADA PERCIVAL.

Adds Protest.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 31.—[To the Editor of The Times:] With the exception of one month, the writer has been a constant reader and subscriber of The Times since May, 1897. I wish to add my protest to the ones who are sick of "Doug and Mary." I notice in yesterday's Times that one of "Doug's" dogs died. Too bad. You may wonder why, if I am dissatisfied, I don't quit your paper. The reason is that the other morning paper is impossible for me.

J. B. JORDAN.

The Last Sea Cow.

The last Arctic "sea cow" was seen in 1854—about a century after the first discovery of the species by white men. When full grown the creature weighed as much as 8000 pounds.

These animals frequented shallows at the mouths of rivers in herds, and while feeding they drove before them their young, to protect the latter from danger. So tame were they that one could stroke their backs without objection on their part.

Unfortunately their flesh was good to eat, resembling beef. Whalers got in the way of depending on them for stores of fresh meat, and so, in the natural course of events, they were wiped out.—[Detroit News.

HUMAN SCARE-CROWS IN INDIA.

Men receive 6 cents a day for "scare-crowing" in India, according to information obtained by the Foreign Survey Department. When green and yellow parrots flutter down upon the rice fields of India the crop is endangered and the hour of the human scare-crow is at hand. Up from the rice stalks he rises, a wild cry on his lips, his arms waving. Then the air is filled with a confusion of bright hues as the winged thieves take flight. The human scare-crow is one of the 75 per cent of the Hindu people who depend upon agriculture for a livelihood. He is an example, too, of the terrible waste of man-power which the caste system brings to India by specifying for each caste some unchangeable task.—[Interchurch Bulletin.

Airman Fined for Stunt Flying.

At Bournemouth Police Court recently an air pilot, employed by the Bournemouth Aviation Company, was fined $250 for flying at a dangerously low altitude and for trick flying over Bournemouth, on May 9, contrary to the air navigation regulations, 1919. The defendant executed two Immelmann turns at an altitude of 500 to 600 feet. Had the engine failed, he would have had nowhere to land without danger to the public.

The defense was that the Immelmann turn was not trick flying, but merely a quick way of turning. The defendant stated that he did two Immelmann turns over the sea, and during his flight he was never under 1500 feet. This is the first prosecution of the kind in England.—[London Times.

Big Man Eater Caught.

The capture of a shark in the nets of the Federal Food and Fish Company of Newark, off the coast of Sea Side Park, N. J., has sounded a warning to fishermen that man-eating sharks such as terrorized Jersey seaside resorts in 1916 are again in the same waters.

James Hensler, head of the Newark company, reported that a shark twenty feet long was captured in their nets. The shark tore the netting. It was harpooned, killed and towed out to sea.—[New York Times.

Basically, there is a resemblance between the romance of Zane Grey and those of Gene Stratton Porter, though the resemblance lies in the psychology of the appeal rather than in the style or plot. Romantic men and women love to wallow in sentiment, and if every tree and flower and vine, every bird and beast and beetle is conceived in a sea of sentiment and painted with splashes of color, as though laid on with a trowel, almost any plot will go, providing the characters are like no wight on earth or sea except in their susceptibility to sex passion, disguised prettily as an ennobling love.

You find the same thing in Harold Bell Wright, whose "Re-Creation of Brian Kent," (Book Supply Co.) still sells at an amazing rate, though it has been "out" more than a year. Of course its popularity is largely due to its author's previous success. Mr. Wright, too, sees Nature as through rose-colored glasses; everything is sentimentalized, made honey sweet and dripping with beauty and color and light. With such an environment his characters need no personality, no inner life except that which may be denominated organic and his plots need no logic, no structure, no careful fitting in of detail so as to produce a finished whole. No, for those who like such honeyed pabulum can lose themselves in what these authors give them, and close each book with a sigh and a tear, regretting only that no other work of the same stamp is at hand. "Sic haec vita sint," as Julius Caesar would say. why will reviewers stop to knock? Is it that they fancy themselves possessing taste superior and wish to display that quality to the public?

A book that is not so sentimental as these, but that possesses a strong popular appeal is "The Portygee," by Joseph Lincoln (Appleton.) It is another of that author's Cape Cod stories, full of humor, sometimes a trifle forced, but picturing entertainingly a group of characters sufficiently original to hold the attention.

Of mystery and detective stories "The Great Impersonation," by E. Phillips Oppenheim (Little, Brown & Co.) leads all the rest in popularity. Other good stories of the type are "Whispers," by Louis Dodge, and "Blacksheep, Blacksheep," by Meredith Nicholson, both Scribner publications.

The latter transports a gentleman of fortune into the underworld, into which life he enters with a vim and vigor that carries everything before it. It is a book as full of chuckles as it is of adventure, a combination that makes it irresistible.

Eleanor H. Porter's last novel, "Mary Marie" (Houghton Mifflin Co.) bids fair to become as popular as the various popular Pollyanna books. It appeals to young girls, and to girls not so young, too, because it dwells upon those things of the heart that make life exciting and even palpitating to a large class of readers.

EDUCATOR SPEAKS.

DANGER SIGNALS FOR TEACHERS. By Dr. A. E. Winship. Forbes & Co., Chicago

An educator favorably known to all teachers in America is Dr. A. E. Winship, who for a third of a century has championed their cause through his magazine, the Journal of Education. His new book, "Danger Signals for Teachers," has unusual, timely interest not only for them, but for everybody.

It is a forward-looking book which Dr. Winship has written; he is thinking of future generations Always clear in his vision, he realizes that the educational system must be the foundation of the new democracy, and that the cornerstone of this system is the teacher, who, he says, "is the one essential in making democracy safe for our children and our children's children. The teachers are the ones who take the risk in the battle with ignorance, tradition and immorality." He points the way to achievement for the teacher who wishes to take a part in the present educational advance movement that will make a greater and better nation. He knows that in the rebuilding of the world the teachers and the schools will be equal to the great opportunity and responsibility which the war has left to them, but he knows also that they must have the support of the public. The present wrong attitude and the needed attitude of the average citizen towards the school system is well set forth.

No person in any way associated with the educational system can afford to miss the stimulation offered by this inspiring book, which throws so much light on their vocation and sets forth so eloquently the relation of the teacher and education to the life and character of the nation.

COLUMNS OF VERSE.

THE GUARDS CAME THROUGH AND OTHER POEMS. By Arthur Conan Doyle. George H. Doran Company, New York.

The author of "Sherlock Holmes," "A History of the Great War," and "The Vital Message," here presents us with a volume of poems that in a way run parallel with his prose work. We find in it the historical poems of the war and poems of life after death, a subject that has become more fascinating to Sir Arthur than even the adventures of Sherlock Holmes.

A poem with a thrill in it is "The Guns in Sussex," expressing the reactions of an Englishman to the war. The first stanza gives an idea of the beauty and power of the poem:

THE GUNS IN SUSSEX.

Light green of grass and richer green of bush
Slope upwards to the darkest green of fir.
How still! How deathly still! And yet the hush
Shivers and trembles with some subtle stir,
Some far-off throbbing like a muffled drum,
Beaten in broken rhythm oversea,
To play the last funereal march of some
Who die today that Europe may be free.

A war poem reminiscent in some ways of "The Charge of the Light Brigade," is "The Guards Came Through," but there is not the same genuine outflow of feeling in it that we find in other poems in this little volume. We quote one stanza from this poem:

"Man! It was great to see
Man! It was great to do!
It's a cot and a hospital ward for me,
But I'll tell them in Blighty wherever I be
How the Guards came through."

SONGS FROM THE JOURNEY. By Wilton Agnew Barrett. George H. Doran Company, New York.

This is a first volume by a poet of no little daring and originality. Free verse it is, remarkably free in thought as well as in form. Certainly no newborn babe has ever before had such poetry written to him as this outburst, entitled "The Adventurer:"

What is he struggling to say,
With his red, wrinkled face
And clawing hands?

He has just come out of the darkness,
Its silence is still upon him,
And already he wants to talk about life!

Hush!
Perhaps he has some great secret of birth and death,
Learned back there in the black womb,
Which he feels like stealing:
And he wants to tell it to us
And cannot.

He is more terrible than Tyche.

There seem to be several other stanzas but the arrangement is as original as the thought, and it is difficult for the uninitiated to determine.

Here is his summary of the man who journeyed:

"Myself am made unto this;
A music, a bliss,
A yearning, a sorrow. . . .
A little mad flame that the sun
Surrounds, I am one
With the light and the dust."

THE SONS OF MAINE AND OTHER POEMS. By John Chick Murray. The Four Seas Company, Boston.

A collection of poems about Maine, its farmers and its soldiers, its life of toil and simplicity, its seasons and its anniversaries, with a fair admixture of other poems. Appended is a collection of alleged humorous poems in which neither the rhyme nor the humor was caught by the reviewer. However, the slip cover declares that "The humorous sketches are especially delightful," and as tastes differ we are willing to concede that this may be so.

Most of the poems are of "the short and simple annals of the poor" variety, more than one recalling Goldsmith. The author is no imagist poet, but sticks to rhyme and reason throughout. While the quality of the verse is not especially high, there are pleasing passages and a genuine appeal now and then.

The following is a fair sample of the poems offered to the sons of Maine; it is the opening of the poem of that title:

"I sing the songs, of good old Maine the pride,
Who cast their fortune in the country side;
Whose fathers wrought our destiny and fate,
Who planted hardihood and raised a State."

NEW BRITANNICA.

Hugh Chisholm, editor of the Encyclopaedia Britannica since 1904, is at work upon the preparation of new volumes to be added to the present eleventh edition and has a large staff at work, both in London and New York. The editor estimates that almost 70 per cent of the new matter will be devoted to questions connected with the war, for, although every subject needing fresh treatment will be brought up to date, there are not many miscellaneous developments which call for extended additional space, apart from such special activities as aviation, automobiles, moving pictures and a few other among the industrial, economic and social advances reflected in the opportune census of the United States for 1920. The supplement will consist of three volumes, and these three, in combination with the existing twenty-nine of the eleventh edition, will constitute the twelfth edition. The first edition of the Britannica appeared in 1768, the second in 1777, the third in 1788, the fourth in 1801, the fifth in 1815, the sixth in 1823, the seventh in 1830, the eighth in 1853, the ninth in 1875, the tenth in 1902, the present eleventh edition in 1911, and the twelfth edition will appear in 1921. For the first time in its history of 150 years the Encyclopaedia Britannica was, in its eleventh edition, published in two distinct forms, the "Cambridge University Issue," with large type and broad margins, and the "Handy Volume Issue," with a smaller page, smaller type and narrow margins.

The editor and the contributors have found among the official classes of the countries lately at war, hostile as well as allied, the greatest readiness to supply information and to give access to all documents. All this material from varied sources is being carefully investigated. A fair and unprejudiced study of this chapter of history, regarding it with absolute calm, is needed in order that our present attitude and our plans for the future may be intelligently directed, and the editor evidently adopts this practical point of view, since he informs us that he will be glad to receive and consider any suggestions in regard to the services which the new volume can render to the public. The Scotsman who planned the first edition of 1768, announced that he would provide the public with scientific knowledge in language that the public could understand, but he gave very little space to geography, history or biography. The article on France filled only thirteen lines, and the article on Japan was in two lines, as follows:

"Japan, or Islands of Japan, are situated between 130 degrees and 144 degrees of E. Lon., and between 30 degrees and 40 degrees N. Lat."

It is true that this exclusive devotion to science had its advantage in a day when the popularizing of science was unknown, but today the most valuable of all the Britannica's characteristics is the thorough universality with which it embraces every kind of knowledge.

The editor expects to have the new volumes completed for delivery to the public next year.

Political History Reviewed.

Champ Clark,
Author of "My Quarter Century of American Politics."

CHAMP CLARK'S REMINISCENCES.

MY QUARTER CENTURY OF AMERICAN POLITICS. By Champ Clark. (Two volumes illustrated.) Harper & Bros. New York

These volumes are reminiscent and illuminating. They are rich in material for students of social and political conditions in the United States in the period covered. Though the volumes constitute a very human document, they do not add to the luster of Champ Clark. For whatever claim his long service to his country and his district may have given him to the more or less sonorous title of statesman, these revelations destroy.

Throughout we meet the astute politician, always playing for political advantage, ever ready to resort to any form of chicanery that promised to advance the interest of his party or his personal friends. The pages fairly glow with the bubbling wit, the sparkling humor and the keen-edged blade which we call satire and that more vicious form sometimes called irony, that dropped from the lips of our great orators.

The entire narrative is "sicklied over with a pale cast of thought" that comes to the surface ever and anon. Champ Clark's lifelong ambition was to have occupied that greatest of the seats of the mighty—the White House. This ambition was given its death blow at Baltimore in 1912 and the assassin was one William Jennings Bryan. For it was the irrepressible Bryan who deprived Champ Clark of the nomination at that memorable gathering. The defeated candidate seems to assume that his nomination would have meant his election. There are those who are not ready to concede this. For many thoughtful people are of the opinion that Mr. Wilson's strength before the country at that time was largely due to the fact that the country knew little about the man. On the other hand Clark was well known. Few candidates of this type have been successful in the race for the Presidency.

But while this book will not add to his fame as a statesman, it will reveal to his fellow-countrymen his ripe scholarship, his wide knowledge of political affairs and his keen ability to evaluate his political associates. That he is a powerful man, an adroit political tactitian, no one can fail to discern, but that these are the stuff of which Presidential qualifications are made, we fear few, aside from his personal admirers, will admit.

Mr. Clark is at great pains to explain how he came to change or abbreviate his name from James Beauchamp Clark to just plain, everyday Champ Clark, the most interesting part of the story being the advantage it gave him over other members of the House, in that while they are merely referred to as Representative Brown or Smith in the press reports, he is always referred to as Champ Clark, thus setting him out as a thing apart. The name thus gave him the publicity, which is, after all is said and done, a politician's main stock in trade.

One of the verbal smirches that damn the book is his sickening laudation of William Randolph Hearst, of whom he says: "Hearst is a liberal, verging on radicalism. No great reform has been accomplished, or even agitated, in this country, in a quarter of a century, without the powerful and aggressive aid of his papers and magazines." He also refers to Arthur Brisbane, Hearst's Man Friday, as the most brilliant newspaper man in the world.

As against this, however, he has the grace to pay a glowing tribute to former President William Howard Taft, whom he characterizes as "one of the finest gentlemen that ever occupied the White House." "Uncle" Joe Cannon and Representative James R. Mann are also given their due mead of praise.

The most dramatic chapter in the book is that devoted to the battle over the changing of the rules of the House and the unseating of that grim and brilliant veteran, "Uncle" Joe Cannon.

As a work of art the book will rank high in the annals of personal narrative. It fairly reeks with scholarship, but there is also a naivete about the method of presentation that has a charm for the average reader. His story of his early struggles may be characterized as "the plain and simple annals of the poor." But it is an interesting account and one that will command a wide audience.

SNAKE BITE AND OTHER STORIES. By Robert Hichens. George H. Doran Company, New York.

The six stories which go to make up this volume are strikingly diverse in theme and setting, a revelation of Hichens's many-sided genius. The first two, "Snake-Bite" and "The Lost Faith," are really short novels. "Snake-Bite" is a tale of love in the Saharah, and a man's great temptation to let his rival die of the bite of a poisonous snake. In it, as in "The Garden of Allah," the spell of the desert and what it does to men's souls is an unforgettable, haunting memory. "The Lost Faith" will recall Mrs. Marden, though the story is quite different in theme. It concerns a girl who had remarkable powers of healing which she lost in the presence of a great love when she needed them most.

The other titles are "The Hindu," a story of the consequences of auto-suggestion in the life of a great newspaper man, "Lighted Candles," a ghost story, "The Nomad," the desert's effect on one woman, and "The Two Fears."

SHORT STORIES.

THE KILLER. By Stewart Edward White. Doubleday, Page & Co., New York.

Six short stories that throb and pulse with action, high romance, daring adventure and the very spirit of brooding mystery. The book takes its name from the first story, "The Killer," which is a thriller.

Sanborn, the hero, if hero he be who goes to the house of a man like "the killer" on a dare. "The Killer" did no murder with his own hands, but it was common knowledge that by a nod or the blink of an eyelash to one of his murderous Mexican followers he could seal the doom of any man whose departure from the scenes of his mundane activities was a requisite to the furtherance of Old Man Hooper's plans.

But Sanborn was young. He was also fearless. To add that he was quickwitted and resourceful follows as a matter of course. That his sense of chivalry was aroused, when "the killer" introduced him to a young girl as his daughter, who he shortly learned was a practical prisoner at "the killer's" ranch, goes without saying. From that fateful moment things begin to happen and they continue to happen to the end of the tale.

Of course Sanborn wins out over his desperate adversary. But the manner of his accomplishing the downfall of "the killer" is an intensely thrilling bit of narrative.

"Moisture, a Trace," is the fifth yarn of the series. It is an interesting account of a long trip over the desert and mountains in a "flivver" and the ingenious method by which the driver secured in that double "dry" country of Arizona, the trace of moisture, is worth reading to discover.

The remaining four stories, "The Road Agent," "The Tide," "Climbing for Goats," and "The Ranch," are in keeping with the rest of the book. "The Ranch," "The Tide," and "Climbing for Goats," are half-narrative, half-essay and they represent the author's best work in this line. They remind us of a remark made by Capt. White (later Maj. White) in those hectic days following the entry of the United States into the World War. We asked him some question which he was unable to answer off hand and he excused himself on the ground that he had been "leaping from crag to crag" for the preceding fortnight. Well, in this little volume he has leaped from "crag to crag," for these three stories are top notchers.

LUCK ON THE WING. Thirteen Stories of a Sky Spy. By Elmer Haslett. E. P. Dutton & Co., New York.

A book describing with humor and verve the daring and strenuous work of an aerial observation officer. This account of the author as taken from the title page, is guarantee enough that he was there with the goods.

"Major, Air Service, United States Army Distinguished Service Cross. Croix de Guerre Francaise. Recipient of two special citations by Gen. Pershing for conspicuous bravery and exceptionally meritorious service. Operations Officer United States Air Service, First Army Corps at Chateau Thierry and of First Army Observation Wing at St. Mihiel and the Argonne."

The author, we are told, had a hobby for volunteering, and the practice of immediately responding when volunteers were asked for any service whatever led him into some remarkable situations which his native grit and some luck always got him through with credit.

A truly American story of strenuous endeavor, full of action, high spirits, high courage and the carefree personality of the writer.

JAMES WILLARD SCHULTZ PLEADS RELIGIOUS LIBERTY FOR HOPIS.

BY HARRY C. JAMES.

Schultz is a clever man—a very clever man. His latest boys' book, "In the Great Apache Forest," (Houghton Mifflin Company) which is executed in his usual vigorous style, is written for a purpose and in order that its purpose may be realized to the fullest extent has been clothed in just the proper garb to make its introduction possible into the very circle for which it was intended.

The book is the champion of religious liberty for the Hopi Indians and their cause is most eloquently pleaded through the mouth of a young Hopi graduate of Carlisle. In speaking of the work of the Indian agent and the missionaries in his tribe the young Indian tells: "Then came, not many years ago, one of them who said that he had been sent by the Great Father of the white men to live with us and teach us the white men's ways; we were no longer to live as we had always lived; we were all of us to follow the white men's trail on and on, up and up, until we should be just like the white men except for the color of our skins.

"Said our chiefs to him: 'As you came, so may you go, and at once. Tell your Great Father for us that we thank him for his offer of help, but that we do not need it. As we have lived here for hundreds and hundreds of years, so we intend to live. We ask but one thing of the Great Father, and that is to be let alone.'

"Said the white man: 'The Great Father has ordered me to remain here with you, and here I stay, and as the Great Father has ordered shall be done for you, so shall it be done.'

"What could we do then? Nothing. We had seen the whites tame our terrible enemies and knew that we few, weaponless Hopis could do nothing against them. This white man brought other white men to help him, and there in our own land they built houses for themselves, and houses for teaching our children their language and their ways, and houses for their gods. And, worst of all, they said that our children must worship their gods, because the Hopi gods were not; that we had made gods of idle dreams. They said that our beliefs were all lies; that there was no Under World, from which we came and to which we return when we die. They said that their gods made us, as well as the whites and that if we would not believe, would not pray as they did, then would we go to a place of terrible fire when we die, and forever burn.

"So it is with us today. Oh, how we suffer from seeing our children taken from us and taught these different ways of life! But though they are taught, though under the eyes of their teachers they speak the white men's prayers, in their hearts the most of them are at the same time praying to our own gods."

When one considers that as the book is advertised as a Boy Scout story every Boy Scout will wish to read it and further that as the majority of our American Boy Scout troops are connected with churches it will carry this propaganda against the Hopi missionaries right into the very institutions which are supporting them. Yes, you must agree that James Willard Schultz is a very clever man and has done the Hopis, the People of Peace as he calls them, a splendid service.

Notwithstanding this propaganda the story is a rattling good one and one that every red-blooded, real, honest-to-goodness boy will like. It is full of good action—has a fine grizzly bear, a few sneaking Apaches and paints a vivid picture of the work of the United States Forest Service in the Apache National Forest. HARRY C. JAMES.

Facts for Sick Women

Reliable Information

All American women know of the great success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in restoring to health women who suffered from ailments peculiar to their sex, yet there are some who are skeptical and do not realize that all that is claimed for it is absolutely true—if they did, our laboratory would not be half large enough to supply the demand, though today it is the largest in the country used for the manufacture of one particular medicine.

The Facts contained in the following two letters should prove of benefit to many women:

Buffalo, N. Y.—"I suffered with organic inflammation and displacement. When lifting I had such pain and bearing down that I was not able to stand up, and it hurt me to walk or go up or down stairs. I was going to a doctor without any results and he said the safest thing would be to have an operation. I met a lady who told me she had three operations and was not well until she took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

I felt relief after taking two bottles of Vegetable Compound and I kept on with it until I was cured. I always use Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills and they are fine. Everything used to turn sour on my stomach and the Liver Pills relieved that."—Mrs. A. [illegible], [illegible] Fargo Avenue, Buffalo, N. Y.

Sacramento, Calif.—"I had organic trouble and had such terrible pain and swelling in the lower part of my side that I could not stand on my feet or even let the bed clothes touch my side. I gave up my work thinking I would not be able to go back for months. My mother advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as it had saved her life at one time, and it put me in a wonderful condition in a couple of weeks, so I can keep on working. I work in a department store and have to stand on my feet all day and I do not have any more pains. I surely recommend your Vegetable Compound to all my friends and you may use these facts as a testimonial."—Bertha J. Parker, 3320 M St., Sacramento, Calif.

The fact is, the Best Medicine for Women is

A MONARCHY IN UNITED STATES.

Cimarron, N. M., Once Site of Vast Domain of One Man.

Estate Founded by Soldier was 60 Miles Long, 30 Wide.

"King" Ruled the Country With Absolute Control.

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CIMARRON (N. M.) Aug. 26.—This little mountain town of a few hundred inhabitants was once the headquarters of one of the greatest estates that ever belonged to one man in America—the famous Maxwell ranch—and the remains of the baronial dwelling from which it was administered still stands here.

In old books you can find some facts about the Maxwell ranch, and from oldtimers hereabouts you can learn a good deal more. Indeed, there are few persons in this vicinity who cannot tell you something either from hearsay or from first-hand knowledge about Maxwell and his doings. But to the world at large, he and his great estate are forgotten. And this is to be regretted, for it would be hard to find a more significant and dramatic passage in early southwestern history than the story of this bit of land.

AN ABSOLUTE MONARCH.

Maxwell was really an absolute monarch, ruling over a domain larger than many of the States of the Union, and several times as large as some European states that have flags and crowns. Furthermore, he was evidently a born ruler and organizer. He was one of the first men to gather and hold land in the great southwestern wilderness, to organize industries and to make other men work for his profit.

In a word, he was one of the first American capitalists in the West.

The establishment of his little kingdom marked the beginning of the transition from the pioneer days, when everything was free to everybody, to the system of private ownership upon which industrial America was built. That whole transition was fought out bloodily on this bit of soil.

THE MAN FROM MISSOURI.

Maxwell was a penniless and adventurous young man from Missouri who joined the Fremont expedition to the West. He was discharged and paid off at Taos, N. M., together with a number of others, one of whom was Kit Carson, the famous scout and Indian fighter. Maxwell and Carson were friends as long as they both lived.

In Taos lived some old Spanish families, who owned wide lands granted them by the Spanish king. They did little or nothing with these lands and had only the vaguest idea how much they owned. In addition to their lands, these Mexican Dons had large families, including beautiful daughters. Nearly all of the discharged members of the Fremont expedition, Carson and Maxwell among them, promptly fell in love with senoritas, and both of these young adventurers were soon married.

SETTLES DOWN.

Here the difference between them asserted itself. Carson, a born fighter and wanderer, deposited his wife and family in an adobe house and left them there, while he went out to make a place for himself in history as an Indian fighter and explorer. He never gathered enough property to hamper his movements. But Maxwell took his bride, who was Luz Baubien before he married her, went across the mountains, and settled here on the Cimarron, which was within the Baubien and Miranda grant.

The Spanish owners had done little with this great piece of land. It was a rugged wilderness filled with wild Indians; they preferred to stay in Taos. But their Yankee son-in-law from Missouri proceeded to do much with it. He built a house, he bought sheep and cattle, he planted corn and wheat. He did not heroically fight the savages, either; he made friends with them. Thus he displayed one of the first principles of capitalism, which is never to compete when you can co-operate.

STROKE OF GENIUS.

His greatest stroke of commercial genius came later when New Mexico was being surveyed by a government surveyor-general. The deputy surveyors were paid by the mile of line they ran. It was therefore to their advantage to survey as many miles as possible. The boundaries of the Baubien and Miranda grant, of which Maxwell had now by purchase and inheritance become sole owner, were vaguely defined by natural landmarks.

The surveyors were easily persuaded to choose landmarks which allowed for a very liberal grant, in fact, astonishingly liberal. Most of the Spanish grants were about 100,000 acres each, and there seems to have been some Spanish law limiting them to that extent. Maxwell managed to have included within the boundaries of his grant about 2,000,000 acres, and his right to this enormous territory was confirmed by Congress.

Thus he came into possession of an estate about sixty miles long and thirty miles wide, including some of the best cattle range in the State, several fine arable valleys, and a section of high mountain range where were gold, coal, and other minerals, and fine forests of pine and spruce. Game abounded and the streams swarmed with trout. Here, truly, was a domain worth owning.

AT PEAK OF SUCCESS.

Maxwell was at the height of his glory as a land baron about the year 1867. He had a great house which must have contained about forty rooms, for less than half of it stands now, and that part contains nineteen rooms. And this was no crude pioneer dwelling. The walls were tastefully papered, and it is said, elaborately furnished. Maxwell had 500 men working for him. He had thousands of sheep, cattle and horses, a flour mill and a saw mill.

He was Indian agent for several tribes, and this gave him the right to have a troop of cavalry on his place, so that he may be said to have had a standing army.

MONEY TO BURN.

He kept a free dining-room, where anyone might come and eat, but none were allowed to pay. In fact, he dispensed a practically unlimited hospitality. Once a young Englishman, passing through the country, inquired of a man sitting on the front porch of the ranch house where he would find Maxwell, so that he might pay for his breakfast.

This man was a rough-looking fellow, dressed in dirty breeches and riding boots and a bright red shirt, which was open at the neck to display a flourishing growth of coal-black hair, of which its owner was evidently very proud. The man had long black mustaches and smoked a short, cuddy pipe. This uncouth individual responded, to the amazement of the visitor, that he was Maxwell, but that no one paid him for meals.

MADE HIM PAY.

The young Englishman insisted on paying, and Maxwell steadily refused. Finally, however, he yielded to the importunities of the stranger and said that the price of the breakfast was $25. Now the Englishman backed water. He would pay no such price for a meal. Maxwell let out a whoop and a large red-haired cowboy, about six feet, four inches tall, appeared on the scene.

"Rope this son-of-a-gun and choke him till he gives up twenty-five bucks," ordered the "King of Cimarron."

The next moment the young Englishman felt a strand of rawhide close about his neck and at the same time he dived into his pocket and brought forth the desired amount in bills, which he chokingly tendered to his host. With a gesture of incomparable grandeur, Maxwell touched a match to the money, and lit his pipe at the flames, then tossed the charred remains away. The incident was closed.

Such was one of America's earliest plutocrats.

THE HELPING HAND.

"How far that little candle throws his beams!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world."

Bequests amounting to $254,200 are made to 100 beneficiaries under the will of Mrs. Lizzie L. Gilkeson, who was the widow of John M. Gilkeson, a former St. Louis commission man. Her bequests are made to institutions and individuals from Massachusetts to California. The exact value of the estate is unknown, inasmuch as no inventory accompanied the will.

Mrs. Gilkeson left $1000 to the Episcopal Church of the Ascension in Chicago and $5000 to Rev. E. A. Larabee. Sisters Mary, Rutger and Martha of the Episcopal Good Shepherd Sisterhood were given $1000 each and $5000 each was left to the endowment funds of the Christ Church Cathedral, St. Luke's Hospital and the aged and infirm clergy of the Episcopal Diocese of St. Louis.

There are bequests of $1000 each to Monticello Seminary and the Memorial Church of Opequon, and like amounts are left to St. Mary's Asylum for Girls, St. Joseph's Asylum for Boys, St. Ann's Foundling Asylum and Father Dunne's Newsboys' Home. The Newsboys' Guild, St. Stephen's Mission, Choir Guild and the Women's Guild receive $500 each and $6000 is to be divided equally among the St. Vincent de Paul Society, the Salvation Army, the Red Cross, the Little Sisters of the Poor, and the Y.M.C.A. and the Missouri Humane Society.

Racine College and the Boys' School at Hoosick, N. Y., receive $2000 each, and a like amount is bequeathed to Bishop Johnson of Los Angeles, Cal., for the benefit of the aged and infirm members of the Episcopal clergy of that diocese.

Last December when the steamer Ethele ran ashore on the coast of Newfoundland with ninety-two passengers, including a new-born infant, in immediate danger of death in the heavy sea, Reuben Decker of Bonne Bay called his dog and, putting the end of a rope in his mouth, started him to swim to the wrecked ship. The dog, holding the rope fast, plunged into the heavy sea, and, after struggling for more than an hour, reached the steamer. With the line aboard, the passengers were sent ashore in a breeches buoy, the baby being carried in a mail bag. Now the dog has a silver collar, the gift of a number of humane societies of Philadelphia.

A party of young Americans, all Rhodes scholars, has arrived in Berlin from Oxford University, to assist in the Y.M.C.A. relief work, in connection with the repatriation of Russian prisoners of war.

They will be assigned to various prison camps throughout Germany, where 175,000 Russians are awaiting ships to take them home. About 25,000 already have been sent from Stettin to Narva, but there are so few ships available it may be months before the last of them can be embarked. Meantime, the Russians are suffering severe privations.

Almost without exception, the American students served during the war with the American Expeditionary Forces or were associated with relief work in Europe.

The Salvation Army fresh-air camp, which was conducted at Maxwelton Park on the St. Charles rock road during the summer months, has closed for the season. During the time that it was operated more than 1000 mothers and children from the congested districts were entertained there.

Mothers and children were taken to the camp for a week's stay. Meals, lodging and medical attention were provided without charge. The transporting of the mothers and children was under the direction of P. Sylvester Jones, traffic engineer of the Packard Motor Car Company. Jones saw that automobiles were provided to take the mothers and children to and from the camp.

The camp was in charge of Mrs. Richard F. Stretton, wife of Staff Captain Stretton of Salvation Army headquarters. The funds to operate the camp were given the Salvation Army by St. Louisans, who contributed to the army's campaign fund of last May.—[St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Money by the Bushel.

The depreciation of our currency today is nothing to be thought of in comparison with the slump in Confederate paper money after the Civil War. Gen. Mulholland relates that shortly after Lee's surrender he heard two Confederate soldiers bargaining over a very ordinary looking horse. "He'll do for my farm, John," said one. "I'll give you $20,000 for him."

"No," said the other.

"Give you $50,000."

"No."

"Give you $100,000."

"Not much!" replied the owner. "I just paid $120,000 to have him shod."—[Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

A JAZZ ANT DISCOVERED.

Philadelphia—Ants that give jazz concerts in the center of rotten logs provided an absorbing topic of discussion at a session of the American Philosophical Society's annual meeting.

The ants with the jazz habits were introduced by W. H. Wheeler, professor of economic entomology at Bussey Institution of Harvard, in a paper, which was a result of his own investigations in co-operation with Dr. Irving W. Bailey, assistant professor of forestry at Harvard.

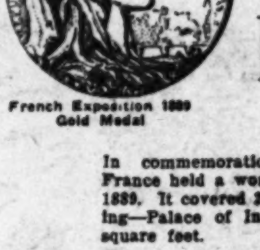
Study of the ants brought to light the fact that many of them have what are known as stridulatory organs for making sounds. This group inhabits hollow logs and is extremely social in its habits and instincts. The adult ant is provided with a sort of two-string, or two-note ukulele, which he carries on his back, and even the larva has a sort of banjo hung on his second pair of legs and played by his third.

"When the hollow log is tapped," said the speaker, "this orchestra can be plainly heard. As a matter of fact, the notes are above the pitch of the human ear, but we expect to get a complete record of the sounds this spring by inserting a dictaphone into one of the logs."—[St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Tractors to be Tested.

Facts, not promises, will be studied hereafter by the Nebraska farmer who is preparing to buy a tractor, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. For the State has decreed that all tractor types to be sold within its boundaries must first undergo official tests to determine their actual ratings. Reports of these tests will be at the disposal of the prospective purchaser, who will thus be enabled to make an intelligent choice. Necessary buildings and machinery have been completed by the State. All types and makes of tractors in local use will be rated. In all, nine tests are given in the course of the searching examination.

Cawston World's Fairs Gold Medal Series No. 1



French Exposition 1889 Gold Medal

Triumphant at Nine World's Fairs

In commemoration of its national independence, France held a wonderful World Exposition at Paris in 1889. It covered 228 acres of ground, the largest building—Palace of Industries—occupying over a million square feet.

The Eiffel Tower, tallest structure ever reared by man, loomed skyward 984 feet. There were 61,722 exhibitors, to whom were awarded 33,139 prizes.

To this marvelous exposition, lasting six months, there journeyed 25,121,975 visitors. There also went Cawston of South Pasadena, with his ostrich feathers, which he dared to show in competition with the most exquisite that Paris—art center of the old world—had to offer.

The Gold Medal, highest honor at the disposal of the Jury of Awards, was the result. No less important are the eight other Gold Medals won in later exhibitions by Cawston Ostrich Creations.

Right From the Very Heart of Autumn They Come

500 Pairs Women's New Fall Shoes, $9.45

On Sale Tuesday the First Time

—Giving impetus to the flight of thought toward new wearing things for Autumn — To turn thoughts of women more insistently to that New Store of Shoes for Women on Bullock's Fourth Floor—

—But above all, to establish and re-establish confidence in Bullock Ability to provide shoes of high character at prices that have measured down to convincing levels.

There Will Be Six New Autumn Styles—Oxfords, Ties and Pumps—Every Pair Hand-Sewed

Every pair emanating from centers of good shoemaking. Chosen by Bullock's because of their sterling worth and singular adaptability for Autumn wear in Southern California.

The Materials are White Kid, Patent Leather, Black, White and Sand Buckskin.

—They will make an initial appearance—Tuesday—in an event which bids fair to create a great deal of early provision of Footwear for Fall. Women will do this wisely, because it is only as the result of a special purchase by Bullock's that these shoes have come at this price, $9.45.

—No one should ignore this invitation to provide new shoes for Fall at a price which seems to echo from days when shoes were not used to prices that exist today. Women should not take this price of $9.45 on such splendid shoes as these are, to reflect a downward trend of shoe prices for the coming season.

—Bullock's wishes promises to this effect could be made—but Bullock's has been able to find nothing that would strengthen such a view.

—However, here are 500 pairs of New Fall Shoes which were manufactured according to a very high standard of workmanship—They are to be available Tuesday at $9.45—a price which does not in the least reflect the splendid character of the shoes.

—The sizes are complete from to 3 to 7½—widths AAA to C.

—Included at $9.45 are 150 pairs of beautiful sample shoes in size 4 B only. If you wear size 4 B, you should make every effort to share from among this special group of 150 pairs at $9.45.

—500 pairs altogether—every shoe a fine shoe—and $9.45 will be their price—Tuesday—for the first time. TUESDAY—not Monday— remember—at Bullock's New Shoe Store for Women—Fourth Floor.

"One o'Clock Saturdays"

Bullock's Closes Saturday at one o'clock every Saturday throughout the year.

—And if all the compliments which fit these new and beautiful things were paid—a whole newspaper would not suffice to print them. Come and see them for yourself, where they have congregated at the call of Southern California Land, making ready for the coming of Autumn—for they are here, effervescent with the joy of being just their own beautiful selves — at Bullock's — all through Bullock's—

—The Blouses, the Hats, the Suits, the Coats, Dresses—the Furs all so splendid on Bullock's Third Floor—the new Woolens, Cottons, Silks, Trimming—particularly the Fur Trimmings so promising for popularity this Fall—on Bullock's Second Floor. The Neckwear, Hand Bags, Gloves, Stockings, Handkerchiefs, Perfumes, Umbrellas, Silverware, Jewelry, and new things for Men to wear—on Bullock's First Floor. The Women's Shoes, Sweaters, Petticoats, Undermuslins and things for girls to wear on Bullock's Fourth Floor. And across the Bridgeway on the Third Floor, the Negligees, the wash Dresses—all so good and pretty. And the things that have come for Autumn and for school into Bullock's Boys' Store on the Fifth Floor. And then the New Fall House Decorations on the Sixth Floor—Draperies, Curtains, Lamps, Rugs, Bedding—and the fine Furniture—on Bullock's Seventh Floor. Oh, it is inspiring just to walk among them and admire them—but you can't do it Monday—remember—Tuesday will be the day—

But of all the things so splendid and so new—nothing should strike a truer note of excellence and VALUE than

He Was a Grave and Dignified Person, of, Say, Ten Years; he was wearing a soldier's hat most precisely chin-strapped on; and he was reading "Bringing Up Father," done into a book and buyable in the Children's Book Store on Bullock's Fifth Floor.

—"Is It Interesting?" asked an Ad-Scribe. "In my opinion," said he, without lifting his gaze from a rotund silhouette of "Father," "it is THE book of the year!"

—The peculiar advantages of made-to-measure skirts need no emphasis. This special Bullock offer presents an opportunity to secure particularly attractive made-to-measure skirts fitted with characteristic Bullock care and ability.

—The New Woolens that have come to Bullock's—in plaids, plain colors and white—offer themselves delightfully for your selection. They are beautiful and good. You should find it interesting to choose your new Autumn Skirt from among them—At Bullock's, Second Floor.

Queen Anne Dining Room Suite, $765.00

—A 10-piece dining-room suite in either brown mahogany or American Walnut finish—in the design of the Queen Anne Period; can be purchased in separate pieces—Buffet, $200.00; China Cabinet, $140.00; Extension Table, $155.00; Server, $80.00; Arm Chair, $40.00; Side Chair, $30.00; complete, $765.00—Tuesday.

—Bullock's Furniture Section—Bullock's Seventh Floor.

—Because—and this is the "why" of their being in Southern California, and at Bullock's at $65.00—they are part of a big consignment—too big for any two or any three stores to purchase at one time — which was ordered co-operatively, from a manufacturer of reliable standing who made them to sell to you at $65.00, because of this quantity order. Part of this consignment is here—at Bullock's—for you to see—and you will see that their manufacturer made them well.

—Perhaps the most notable feature about them is their sensible "variations" of style features which have held the approval of the women of America and the Southland—rather than a flight into the realm of "mode experiment," let us call it.

—The new colors and fabric improvements have been adopted, because of an evident goodness that assures approval. But "extreme" is a word which these suits have ignored for a thoroughly practical, almost conservative intuition, which finds its highest expression in simplicity and good taste.

Duvet de Lain, Tricotine and Crayon Check Silvertone

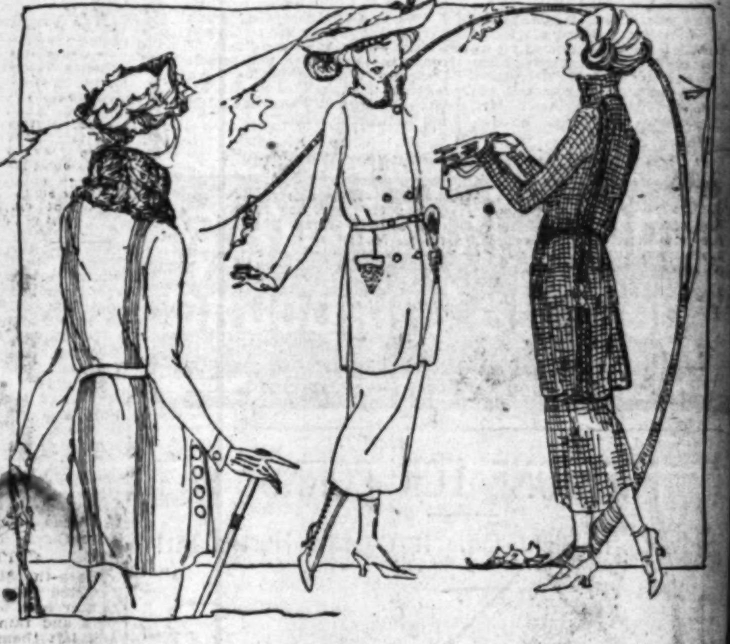
—are the weaves—chosen for their soundness, and the tailoring which has been accorded them measures up fully to the standard which such eminence merits.

—There are five different styles ready now—at Bullock's—for your scrutiny. They have narrow string belts, novel pocket treatment, button trims, cord tucking and tailored folds form interesting back variations, silk stitching has been given much leeway. One model prefers a double-breasted motif to individualize itself.

Collars of Gray Squirrel and Nutria

herald the high regard with which fur is to be regarded among the season's trimmings. They are convertible — and have somewhat of the Russian Cossack twang.

—And these Suits, exceptional at $65.00, will greet you for the first time Tuesday — at Bullock's Women's Garment Section — Third Floor.



—The suit sketched at the left is of dark blue silvertone. It has long slashes at sides with buttons and button holes as embellishment. A clever underlay of self material which is partly concealed holds the side slashes at the proper flare. The collar is of gray squirrel, convertible. A string belt claims position at the waist and narrow cord tuckings adorn the back—the pockets are small, slashed on an angle.

—This suit reflects a great deal of smartness—at $65.00—Fully silk lined.

—In the center is a Suit of silvertone in dryad brown with a convertible nutria collar. It shows a double breasted tendency. Down the back are two narrow tailored folds which harmonize with the string belt. Long plain slashes appear at the sides, with straight slashed pockets adopting silk stitching for beauty. Silk lined, at $65.00.

—At the right is a Crayon Check Silvertone in Malay brown. It has a convertible collar of self material that buttons with loops instead of button holes just to be vivacious. A string belt, of course. The pockets are done in tier fashion, having the appearance of two pockets instead of one. A tailored double fold effect runs down the back, but gives way its position two thirds down to an embroidered arrowhead motif—then resumes its way to the bottom—at $65.00.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR—
WARTS AND MOLES.
Pulling a few stiff hairs from the face may start a serious growth. Let me demonstrate free of charge how pulling, cutting, using wax depilatories and the so-called hair removers, promote growth of hair on the face. My electric machine is the only known method of killing superfluous hair, fuzz, warts and moles, without destroying the surrounding tissue. This machine destroys 300 hairs an hour. I have had 19 years' experience and devote all my time to the work. A binding guarantee that any hairs or moles I treat will never return. Many L. A. satisfied customers will testify to my skill as an expert. Mrs. F. A. Scott, suite 407 Hamilton Bldg., 430 S. Broadway.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR—
HUMILIATING AND UNSIGHTLY.
There is only one method known today of permanently removing superfluous hair, and that is Electrolysis (electric needle.) This process in the hands of a reliable and expert operator insures absolute satisfaction. I stand back of my work and guarantee any hair treated by me will be permanently destroyed, leaving no scars.

LONG BEACH POLICE WILL CONTEST SUIT.

CHIEF ASSERTS DETECTIVE WAS WITHIN HIS RIGHTS; AUTO DEALER HELD.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONG BEACH, Sept. 4.—Chief of Police Butterfield today stated he would fight to a finish the suit filed against him in the Superior Court yesterday for damages for the alleged false imprisonment of Mrs. Jessica Lewis. The Chief declared that Detective J. B. Worley, who made the arrest, was absolutely in the right and that he would stand by him to the end.

Detective Worley has been called in from his vacation to assist in the preparations to resist the charges. The Civil Service Commission, it was said today, would take up the matter of suspension of Worley at its meeting next week.

AUTO DEALER HELD.

Sam S. Spence, former local automobile dealer, arrested in Oakland early this week and now in the City Jail, was arraigned before Justice W. S. Brayton today on the charge of obtaining $1500 under false pretenses from the Farmers' and Merchants' Bank of this city. His preliminary examination was set for September 7 and his bail placed at $3500.

Unable to supply the bonds, Spence was returned to jail. He will be arraigned Tuesday before Justice Underwood on a charge of obtaining $2500 under false pretenses from the Exchange National Bank.

Spence declared that he is innocent of any wrongdoing and that he hopes to straighten matters up out of court.

EAST LONG BEACH.

Monday afternoon the name of Zaferia, this city's fast-growing industrial section on the east side, will be changed to East Long Beach. In honor of the occasion there will be a big picnic and pageant under the auspices of the East Long Beach Improvement and Industrial Association.

COMPLETE PLANS FOR CELEBRATION.

SAN PEDRO TO HONOR MEMORY OF GREAT SPANISH EXPLORER.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LOS ANGELES HARBOR, Sept. 4.—After adopting the name of the Cabrillo Discovery Day Association at the meeting held at the Chamber of Commerce here last night, the association accepted the water pageant outlined by Garnet Holme of Los Angeles and decided upon other features of the day.

An address of welcome to Admiral Rodman by Mayor Snyder, and reply, will be a feature of the morning of the day of the celebration, the date of which has been tentatively set as October 16.

Aquatic sports, including speed-boat races, swimming events, competition among sailors of the different vessels in harbor in water sports and a football game between Navy teams, are other features of the celebration, while the landing of Cabrillo in the evening will be the climax of the day.

Battleships, fishing boats, launches, yachts and other craft will participate in the great water carnival which forms a part of the pageant and, as this part will take place in the evening, all will be brilliantly lighted for the occasion.

The association is a permanent one and the day will be celebrated every year in what is hoped will be an increasingly magnificent manner, they say.

PLYMOUTH WILL HONOR PILGRIMS

Tercentenary of Sailing to be Fittingly Observed.

Eight-Day Round of Festivities is Planned.

Householders Asked to Display American Flag.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

PLYMOUTH (Eng.) Aug. 1.—A civic reception and concert in Guild Hall here will begin the eight days' round of festivities with which Plymouth will celebrate the tercentenary of the sailing of the Pilgrim Fathers from this port. The reception will be held on the evening of September 3. Mayor Lovell R. Dunstan will preside.

On Saturday, September 4, there will be a literary and historical conference under the auspices of the Mayflower Council. During the afternoon there will be a historical procession, while 350 guests of the Lord Mayor will be taken on a steamer trip through the harbor. There will be a united religious celebration at the Guild Hall in the evening.

One of the most impressive features of the week's program will be a service to be held Sunday, September 5, at the "Mayflower Stone" on the Barbican—the spot whence the Pilgrim fathers embarked, and where the crew of the American seaplane NC-4 alighted after its aerial repayment of the history-making voyage of 1620.

WILL OPEN SAILORS' HOTEL.

On Monday the British and Foreign Sailors' Society will open the Sailors' Hotel, the English-Speaking Union will give a luncheon to the Mayor, corporation officials and about 600 delegates, and the foundation stone of the Mayflower Hall, being erected by the Salvation Army will be laid. There will be civic celebrations on the "Hoe," the high ridge a mile long fronting the most beautiful part of Plymouth Bay. The Mayor will give a banquet to 250 guests in the evening.

MOTOR TRIP FOR GUESTS.

Tuesday's program includes a motor trip for 200 guests of the Mayor to Princeton, Ashburton, Newton Abbot, Totnes and Torquay—neighboring places of historic interest and noted for their scenic beauties. At Torquay the Mayor and corporation of that borough will receive the visitors and entertain them at luncheon in the Town Hall. A garden party at Torre Abbey will follow. In the evening there will be a public meeting with American speakers.

Lady Astor will give a garden party Wednesday afternoon at Saltram Park, the home of Lord Morley. It is expected 600 will attend. Another function has been arranged by the Mayor of Plymouth to be held at the corporation museum during the evening.

A luncheon and garden party will be given Thursday by the women's sections of the Free Church Council. A visit to the government naval establishments, with tea at Edgcombe Park, the home of the Earl and Countess of Edgcombe, and a theatrical gala will complete this day's program.

PLAN REGATTA OFF HOE.

A charabanc excursion for 400 guests to Burrator, the artificial lake which supplies Plymouth with water, and tea at Buckland Abbey, where Lady Seaton will be hostess, have been arranged for Friday.

Saturday's schedule for the visitors includes a regatta and swimming exhibition off the Hoe.

Each day of the celebrations there will be a performance of the tercentenary pageant, which has been arranged by the Mayflower council.

Each householder in Plymouth has been requested by the Mayor to display the American flag from his home during the festival week.

FAMOUS BEACH RESORT SCENE OF DRY RAIDS.

PROHIBITION AGENTS MAKE CLEAN-UP IN ATLANTIC CITY.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ATLANTIC CITY (N. J.) Sept. 4. Fifty Federal prohibition agents from the Philadelphia and Trenton offices today conducted the most sensational raid this place has yet seen. Nineteen hotels and cabarets were entered on search warrants and liquor valued at upwards of $100,000 confiscated.

Jacob Bernstein was shot and wounded when he attempted to escape from Deputy Marshal Voll of Trenton.

The raid was conducted under the personal supervision of the Rev. Dr. R. E. Johnson, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church Philadelphia, a duly appointed prohibition agent. Yesterday he led the raiders in Angelesa and Wildwood, where five hotels and cabarets were raided and liquor valued at upwards of $60,000 confiscated.

Many of the most interesting places near Atlantic City, which were regarded among the principal shore attractions, felt the sting of the descent.

The raids were conducted simultaneously and thousands of Labor Day visitors in all sections of the city watched the agents at work.

MUST OBEY EMERGENCY ORDER OR LOSE RIGHT.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 4.—Announcement that all failing to observe his recent emergency order to eliminate electric signs or display lighting because of an acute water shortage were liable to lose the right to use electrical energy for a month at least, was made by H. G. Butler, power administrator under the State Railroad Commission, here today.

At the same time Butler announced that orchard irrigationists could use irrigation water provided that a corresponding saving is made on the irrigation of ground crops.

Certain cities in the State were not observing the light conservation order despite the critical nature of the shortage, Butler said. The order is operative only five nights a week, Saturday and Sunday being excluded.

A thorough canvass of the situation will be made beginning Monday.

Irrigationists were asked to confine their water use to the hours between 9 p.m. and 7 a.m. Butler said that a daily unit of 75,000 horse power will be lost to the State in the very near future through the drying up of a big reservoir.

FOR THE NAVY'S FUTURE NEEDS.

Free Vacations Are Given by Government to Boys.

Made Temporary Bluejackets at Regulation Pay.

Training Stations to Supply Recruiting Material.

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

GREAT LAKES (Ill.) Aug. 18.—Uncle Sam is entertaining over a thousand American youths at vacation camps this summer. The vacation camp for the sons of the wealthy has already become a regular institution of our summer life. Hundreds of parents pay a large sum of money to send their boys to private camps during the summer, where they will receive plain food, plenty of regular exercise and a wholesome amount of discipline. This summer the Navy has invited any high school boy of 16 or over to become a temporary sailor, and spend six weeks of his summer vacation at a naval training station, with all the advantages of a vacation camp and none of the expense. In fact he is paid the same wages as an apprentice saman, $33 a month.

The summer naval schools, as these vacation camps are called, were started to advertise the Navy and help recruiting. There is one camp here and another in the East. The boys enlist for a period of three months, six weeks to be spent in active service and six weeks in the Naval Reserve Force.

The boys seem to take to camp life like a duck to water, in spite of the fact that most of them have never lived away from home before, and many of them came with very little idea of what a sailor's life was like. One youth from the Far West, for example, who was among the first arrivals, was put into rather makeshift quarters the first night and told that he would be sent to the regular barracks in a day or two as soon as things were ready.

SENT HIS OWN FURNITURE.

"Oh, that's quite all right," he replied obligingly, beaming at the officer in charge of him. "Just put me any place. I'm having my own furniture sent on from home, and I can manage with anything until it arrives."

When the news was broken to him that his furniture for the summer would consist of a hammock and a sea bag, he adapted himself to that idea quite as pleasantly. One of the best features of the summer school is the way it strips life of all nonessentials and throws boys from all stations of life together in one big democratic community, boys who have had every luxury, and boys who are there because they want to earn the $33 a month to help them through school next year.

Many of the rookies were brought to the station by their proud and anxious parents. Some of them arrived in state in limousines. A former commandant of the Great Lakes Naval Training Station and a prominent army officer both delivered their sons to Lieut. Robert Wyman, in charge, with the request that he not be sparing of discipline, not that their boys needed it especially, they hastened to add, but simply because they realized the value of strict military training in aiding young men to cope with life in general. The mothers, who come with their sons, on the other hand, are more anxious about such subjects as fresh milk and eggs, and whether sailors wear rubbers, and as for discipline, they hope Lieut. Wyman will do his best to promote a gentle, homelike atmosphere.

BOYS FIRE BIG GUNS.

But the thing that appeals to Dudley most, as to every other boy we talked with, is that they are learning to fire regular three-inch guns. They all manage to bring this into the conversation very casually every few minutes. Beside this noisy occupation they have all the rest of the regular training for naval recruits, infantry drill, artillery, seamanship, signals and rifle range.

Last week while Gen. Leonard Wood was visiting the station he called at Camp Paul Jones, the rookie camp, and gave the boys a short talk. The Governor of the State is also expected to come out and make them an address soon. Capt. Wurtzbaugh, the commandant of the station, is very enthusiastic about the school.

"We are all much interested in the success of this maiden venture in educating the youth of the nation in naval ideas," he said, "and we are very proud of the boys we have to work with. They have only been here a week but they are making a splendid showing. We hope that the naval summer school will be a permanent feature of the Navy, Congress willing."

FOREIGN BRIEFS.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

BELFAST, Sept. 4.—A motor car, in which William McConville was carrying £1300 to pay wages of factory workers, was held up by armed men near Banbridge yesterday. The assailants took the money from McConville and threw him down an embankment. They shot and killed William McDowell, driver of the car, and escaped.

HONOLULU, Sept. 4.—The Korean National Association of Honolulu has received copies of the documents presented by Koreans to the American Congressmen touring the Far East. The plea of Korean women said in part: "Day and night we will scheme to regain our lost land. In the minds of our children we will instill hatred for the Japanese. We ourselves will offer everything for liberty and independence. We would rather die and be free spirits of Korea than live and be subjects of the Mikado."

HONOLULU, Sept. 4.—The American Congressmen touring the Far East were the guests at a reception at the American Embassy in Tokio Thursday night, and attended a garden party in the imperial gardens Friday, according to cable advices to the Nippu Jiji, Japanese language newspaper here. Their program was to go to Nikko Saturday, where they will be the guests of American and Japanese society at a garden party Monday, the reports said, adding that the Congressmen were expecting to leave Japan September 10 aboard the Madawaska.

Zion National Park Created by Congress Last Year.

Contains 120 Square Miles or 76,800 Acres.

BY ROBERT B. ARMSTRONG.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Stephen T. Mather, director of the National Park Service, left Washington tonight en route to Los Angeles. He will leave there September 11 by motor with a large delegation of members of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce for Zion National Park in Utah which is to be formally dedicated September 15. Later the party will join with a party of 300 from the Salt Lake Chamber of Commerce and visit the north rim of the Grand Canyon of the Colorado.

Congress created the Zion Park Nov. 19, 1919, making it the nineteenth member of the National Park system. The area has been reserved since 1909 and was first known as the Mukuntuweap National Monument and later as the Zion National Monument.

Director Mather will preside at the dedication. Gov. Bamberger and United States Senators Reed Smoot and King, will make addresses.

Zion National Park is in extreme Southwestern Utah. It is reached by rail from both Salt Lake City and Los Angeles by the Salt Lake route to Lund, thence by motor stage a distance of a hundred miles. It is also reached by motor from Los Angeles or Salt Lake over the Arrowhead trail.

The park contains 120 square miles, or 76,800 acres. Zion Canyon is the most important feature of the park, bisecting it from north to south. It is fifteen miles in length, varying in width from fifty to 20,500 feet, with walls 800 to 2000 feet high.

Only this year ruins of the cliff-dwellings of a prehistoric race have been discovered in almost inaccessible places in the canyon walls. The Mormon pioneers were the first of our time to discover the region, entering in 1858. In 1861 Brigham Young visited the region and named the canyon Little Zion.

Housing Crisis Now Near Head in Metropolis.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 4. — With a housing crisis only a few weeks away and 40,000 tenants to be evicted October 1 in what is declared to be a plot to extort higher rent, members of the joint legislative committee on housing are today pushing plans to meet the emergency. Only two or three more public hearings will be held before the committee begins drafting recommendations for the special session at Albany called by Gov. Smith for September 20.

A deep-seated conspiracy by the landlords who sent the 40,000 notices to tenants is charged by Stewart Browne, president of the United Real Estate Owners' Association, who appeared at the meeting today in the City Hall. Mr. Browne said his organization had nothing to do with the proposal.

"I understand there was some concerted action and your board was invited to participate in such a scheme and send out notices," said council for the committee.

"There was only a suggestion that they be put out to protect the landlords, but I considered it did not protect the landlords — that it was unnecessary and stirred up strife," Mr. Browne replied.

Later he replied that the object of the notices was to "bulldoze" tenants into paying increased rent.

RETREATING TURKS DEVASTATE COUNTRY.

NATIONALIST BANDS LED BY OUTLAWS PILLAGE AND BURN VILLAGES.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

ISMID (Asia Minor) Sept. 4. — Turkish Nationalists are carrying out their threat to devastate the country as they retreat before the Greeks, it is reported here from trustworthy sources. Bands led by notorious outlaws who have joined the Nationalists are said to be beginning to pillage and burn villages on a large scale.

Greek and Armenian refugees are arriving here from the interior in great numbers. Their number in Ismid alone is estimated to be 15,000. They are being rationed in part by the American Committee for Relief in the Near East.

HOLD WOMAN FOR RAISING CHECKS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—Miss Margaret McCarthy, 32 years old, book-keeper for the law firm of Moses, Rosenthal and Kennedy, was arrested today charged with raising checks issued by her employers. She confessed that she had taken $7500 in this manner. Miss McCarthy said she had used the money to care for her sister, who is a victim of tuberculosis and is now in Arizona.

She said she had spent $2000 on her sister before sending her to Arizona in physician's fees and sanatorium bills. Miss McCarthy had just returned from a vacation, which she spent with her sister. During her absence her books were audited and the discrepancy discovered.

NAVY YARD EMPLOYEES GET INCREASE SOON.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—A new wage scale affecting about 75,000 navy yard employees probably will be put into effect on the first payday after September 15. Secretary Daniels announced today that he had completed his review of the findings of the navy yard wage board and that the increases approved would be ready for application during the present month. The schedule will be made public later.

CURACOA MAY B WILHELM'S HOME

Holland May Intern ex-Kaiser in One of Colonies.

Tiny Island is Similar to the Famous St. Helena.

Life is Dull and Even Drinking Water Scarce.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—There must have been a good deal of excitement of late in the little island of Curacoa, in the Dutch West Indies. Excitement isn't a specialty of Curacoa life, which is quiet and sun-baked and humdrum; therefore, all the more violent must have been the shock to this strange little community when it woke up recently to the realization that it might be chosen as the future residence of one William Hohenzollern of Amerongen, Holland, formerly of Berlin, Germany.

When Holland answered the Allies' note asking that William be given up to them and the Dutch government demurred, the report arose that the next demand from the Allies would be that the ex-Kaiser, in view of the danger entailed by his continued presence in Holland, so close to the German frontier and the monarchists of his former realm, should be interned in some one of Holland's island possessions scattered over the globe. The great island of Java was mentioned, along with other big Dutch insular possessions; and, in the list, little Curacoa found a place.

LIKE ST. HELENA.

If the ex-Kaiser is really to be disposed of in this way, it must be said that worse solutions of his problem might be found than an inforced residence in Curacoa. Whereas Java, Sumatra and other islands ruled over by Holland are vast in extent and thickly peopled, presenting possibilities of escape and even revolt, Curacoa is far more like St. Helena to which Napoleon was relegated after Waterloo. It is a mere speck in the Caribbean Sea, a few miles off the coast of Venezuela, so barren that scarcely anything can be raised on it, and peopled by a few thousand inhabitants, mostly blacks, the majority of whom are huddled in the one town of the island, Willemstad, just as the bulk of St. Helena's small population is centered at Jamestown, the island's capital.

Curacoa is scarcely known to any except those who travel to Venezuelan ports, for it has been for many years a regular stopping place of the American line of steamers connecting New York with La Guayra, the seaport of Caracas, the Venezuelan capital. From Curacoa this line also maintains a branch service to Maracaibo, an important Venezuelan coffee port.

Curacoa is delightfully picturesque. The town of Willemstad reminds the visitor of "Spotless Town" advertisements. It is gabled, of course—did not the Dutch build it?—and nestles on the edge of the blue Caribbean in a quaint conglomeration of gaily-colored buildings.

TWO TINY FORTS.

Steamships enter its harbor between two tiny forts, more like toys than actual fortifications. Beyond these, on both sides of a narrow neck of deep water, the town of Willemstad is clustered, connected by a bridge of boats which obligingly swings aside to permit the steamer to pass. Boats manned by stalwart negroes swarm around the steamer, black boys swim to its sides and dive with fish-like skill for pennies, and solemn Dutch customs and police officials with cocked hats and short sabers come aboard.

If the ex-Kaiser is lodged in Willemstad itself he may be quartered in one of the old forts guarding the harbor entrance or in another old fort perched on a hill a bit inland and commanding the town and its approaches. Then again, he may have allotted to him one of the big, gaily-colored villas in the aristocratic section of Schario, where the rich merchants of Willemstad live.

That will be different enough from life in his palace at Potsdam, but not so much as his life will be if the Dutch authorities decide to give him a Curacoa country residence. The "country" on the island is a few square miles of stubble-covered ground, parched by the sun, showing never a water course, dotted with villas whose owners seek to imitate the comfortable rural conditions of Holland by placarding them with high-sounding Dutch names, and tumbledown hovels of the rural negroes.

PROBLEM OF WATER.

So dry is Curacoa that the problem of drinking water sometimes become quite serious. On every house is a cistern to catch rain water, which, after a long dry spell, tastes exceedingly brackish and unpalatable.

The ex-ruler of Germany will have a hard time finding diversion for himself in Curacoa. He may drive or ride over to an ostrich farm a few miles outside of Willemstad and gaze at the ungainly birds quartered there; or he may play tennis on courts laid out behind one of the little forts guarding the harbor; or he may take sea baths close by (and get well pounded by a splendid surf;) or participate in the favorite diversion of watching the steamers pick their way between the little forts to the various anchorages in the harbor. Not very exciting after having strutted for a quarter of a century as the war lord of Germany! And, of course, he may drink the Curacoa liqueur which derives its name from the island, though much of it is now made in Europe from orange peel grown elsewhere in the West Indies.

ESCAPE IMPROBABLE.

There would be little possibility for William to escape from Curacoa, if the Dutch exercised close surveillance over him. He might try to bribe the skipper of some Venezuelan schooner to land him in Venezuela—the coast of which may be seen from the island on a clear day—but what could he do when he got to that turbulent land? It would be a difficult matter for him of the upturned mustachios and flashing eye to disguise himself sufficiently to be taken back to Europe.

Anyhow, whether William ever goes to Curacoa or not, that tiny Dutch island slumbering beneath the Caribbean sun, has had its minute in the limelight. There must have been quite a buzz and hum there for awhile before its people settled down again to watch the steamers come in and wonder whether the water supply would dry up and figure out how much profit they could make from smuggling goods into Venezuela.

WARNS AGAINST INTELLECTUALS.

Reading Public Fed to Teeth With Trashy Stuff.

British High-Brows Scored by Gilbert Frankau.

Author Was One of First to Enlist in the War.

BY HAYDEN CHURCH.

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Aug. 10.—Gilbert Frankau, whose novel, "Peter Jameson, Cigar Merchant," already published here, is soon to appear in the United States, tells me that he virtually rewrote it with the special tastes, as he conceives them, of Americans in mind, and says that he imagines he is the first British author to do such a thing.

To begin with, Frankau altered the name of his hero, which in the original version of his novel, as published here, is Peter Jackson. To Americans, he thought, or possibly was reminded, the original cognomen would be rather too suggestive of pugilism. He also, he says, took out some of the rather detailed descriptions of fighting in France which his novel contained as orginally written, and made so many other changes that, he declares, "Peter Jameson, Cigar Merchant," as read by Americans, will be markedly different from "Peter Jackson, Cigar Merchant," as submitted to readers in Great Britain. Not in the essentials, however, so it will be interesting to see if reviewers and readers on the other side of the Atlantic indorse the verdict of those here upon Frankau's latest book. This verdict is so favorable that, up to now, a fortnight or three weeks after publication, some 20,000 copies have been sold.

Frankau has gone all out of late, for besides recasting "Peter Jameson" for American publication, he has finished another novel and also written a play, and one gathers from the initial results in each case, made a decent job of both. The novel is called "Flower Folk." It is a story of adventure, for Frankau is firmly convinced that the reading public, is, as he put it, "fed to the teeth" with mere analysis and eager for more tales of derring-do. His new scene is laid in Indo-China, a "golden land," according to the novelist who visited it in the course of a round the world tour that he made just before the war. One of the principal characters in "Flower Folk" is a white elephant, (Frankau is very proud of that elephant,) which comes to the assistance of the heroes and enables them to win out in a lively tussle with natives which forms one of the most blood-stirring chapters in the book. He tells me that he has just disposed of the American serial rights in "Flower Folk" and got a tidy sum for them.

Frankau is a son of the late "Frank Danby," (Mrs. Julia Frankau,) and the play which he recently finished is a dramatization of his mother's well-known novel, "The Heart of a Child."

"Renee Kelly, the American actress who made so big a success here in 'Daddy Long Legs,'" Frankau said, "has, it appears, been attracted for some time by the character of 'Sally Snipe' in my mother's book, and been anxious to play it. Not long ago her manager approached me, as my mother's executor, for permission to have a dramatization of the novel made. I suggested that I should try my hand at making one—regardless of the fact that I had never previously attempted playwriting. The manager said very politely that he thought he would rather the work be intrusted to a professional dramatist. Negotiations hung fire for the time being, and, in the interval, I hopped to it and did the dramatization. When it was finished I asked Miss Kelly and those associated with her to give my play a hearing, with the result that they were pleased to wax enthusiastic and accepted it at once. The title? It will be the same as that of the novel, "The Heart of a Child."

SOLD A MILLION CIGARETTES.

Frankau's "Peter Jameson, Cigar Merchant" is, in all probability, largely autobiographical, for the writer's father was a leading tobacco dealer, and before he himself took up authorship with a success that might have been expected from "Frank Danby's" son, he had made a promising beginning in the tobacco trade. He was twice in the United States in connection with it, and his subsequent tour of the world, which took the best part of two years, was in the capacity of "drummer" for the house. In the course of it he sold over a million cigarettes of one exceedingly costly brand, the brand which, in his novel, he calls the "Nirvana."

Arriving back home just before the outbreak of the war, he was one of the first in England to enlist, and was commissioned to the Ninth East Surrey Regiment in October, 1914. He fought at Loos, Ypres and on the Somme, and, between whiles contributed to the famous "Wipers Times," some of the best of the light verse which sprang up so freely in the mud of the trenches. He was invalided from the service and granted the honorary rank of captain in February, 1918.

Now 34, he has seven novels to his credit—five of them in verse and two in prose. He is short and slight, is always well "turned out" and is one of the most amusing and stimulating talker I know of. Intensely virile, he has no use for the literary "school" that is occupied so exclusively with the thought, moods sensations and soul yearnings of its characters that it all but forgets to record any definite actions on their parts.

"That school," he said, "is a product of the idle nineties, when writers had nothing better to do than 'analyze,' and this process, during recent years, has been carried to a point of absolute and entire futility. One of the results of the war, however, has been to make us interested in deeds again, and for this reason I believe that from now on the man or woman who can tell a story will command a bigger audience of readers than all the 'moods-merchants' put together."

"This brings us back to America. I for one am frankly perturbed at the type of English literary man who is at present posing in your country as representative of mine.

EAST ST. LOUIS (Ill.) Sept. 4.—Motormen and conductors employed on the interurban line of the East St. Louis and Suburban Railway Company today voted to strike to enforce their demands for an average wage increase of from 50 to 90 cents an hour. RUSSIAN SCHOOL FOR REDS.

Extraordinary Methods by Which Soviet Propaganda is Instilled.

BY ERNEST SIMMONDS.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 27.—Not even in the most earnest days of the Committee on Public Information in the United States, when propaganda of every possible kind was being thrust down the throats of the American people, was the effort more desperate than that which is now being made in Russia by the soviet government to convince the entire Russian population that the soviet idea is accurate. Motion pictures are being used, but very badly; newspapers are being used with more skill; pamphlets of all sorts are being issued and the new soviet schools are being very generally utilized.

It is impossible, it has been said, for a Russian child or Russian moujik—many men and women of past middle age are in attendance at these soviet schools—to learn to read except by study of propagandist literature issued by the soviets.

Of course, the stage is being used. Probably in no other country in the world is it so vital as it is to the lives of the people in Russia.

USE CHILDREN.

One of the media for the utilization of the theater is the children. In the cities, especially in Petrograd, a large mass of trained children is available from which to choose caste, because it is the aim of the present government to see to it that every child in the capital shall get a three-months' training in the school. In the alumni it is hoped that at the end of the year the soviets will have a large mass of juvenile actors and actresses to choose from for the establishment of permanent companies. I have been informed by some who have watched the work of the children in these schools that they exhibit amazing talent.

As a part of the training is devoted to dancing and other exercises which will stimulate grace and develop the body,—the little ones are getting a physical as well as a mental benefit from the work. Probably today there are no such child dancers in the world as are to be found in these schools in Petrograd.

Every Thursday afternoon the largest theater in the capital is devoted to the child performers and usually the audiences are very largely made up of other children—those who have been under training or those who hope to be under training. Now note the character of the entertainment offered.

The stage is set for a great banquet and around the table are crowded guests of high degree, clad in silks, satins and velvets. It is laden with counterfeit dainties of a kind which the children never see in actuality, but at the mere stage imitations of which their eyes gaze with a certain pathetic greediness. The silks and satins which are used in the dresses have been taken from the loot of the bourgeois homes. There is great eloquence among the mimic guests.

At one side of the room sits a sorry looking servant who watches all this gaiety with sad and hungry eyes. It is he, it develops, who has cooked all the wonderful dishes which are upon the banquet table, but although he has devoted his life to the preparation of such things he never once has been permitted to taste one of them.

His character is developed into a symbol of that which the Bolshevist leaders claim to have been the lot of the Russian peasantry, producing everything, as they say, but permitted to consume nothing. In the song which he sings he says that while he has served faithfully all his life he has been rewarded by his master with nothing but jeers and blows. Some of the latter he explains have been with the sharp point of a sword.

ENEMY COMES.

As the happy guests are singing later a messenger brings consternation to them with the news that the enemy is approaching Petrograd. As soon as this arrives the master of the house goes off stage and returns with a sword which he hands to the servant who has been singing and orders him to take it out and use it against the enemies of the household. As he does this he also gives the servant food which he tells him to eat in order that he may have strength to fight for his master.

The servant takes the food and buckles on the sword, but says it is the first time his master has ever given him anything good and that he gives it only because he is going out to be killed. He goes, however, and the guests sing merrily.

In the next scene the servant is shown after he has gone to meet the enemy. In this scene the soldiers of both armies compare their experiences and find that all have suffered in about the same way. They have been oppressed, abused, half starved, kept alive only because of the service which they could render to their masters. Here nearly all the Bolshevist arguments are introduced and those which are not introduced are suggested. It is a "down with the classes!" "up with the masses!" scene.

Presently, foregathering, the soldiers shout together:

"Why should we fight against each other? Our masters are our real enemies. The workers of all nations are friends."

Here it develops that there are in the army Englishmen, Frenchmen, Germans, Belgians, Italians, Americans. Having discussed the matter of their wrongs at some length they decide that they will make common cause. They fraternize, shake hands, dance together, decide that thereafter all shall be brothers. They have been the downtrodden tools of the bourgeosie, but they will be that no longer.

This prepares the mind of the audience for that which of course must follow. In the last scene the servant goes back to the home of his old master, but he takes with him many of his new comrades. In the old home the company is still feasting. They have been over-eating, over-drinking, over-indulging in every way in which it is possible at a dinner.

He reports to his old master exactly what has occurred and the master is not much more horrified by this than by the new spirit which his servant displays. In a grief-stricken voice he cries: "Why, oh why, couldn't you have remained a fool a few years longer—at least until I had gone into my grave!"

This is a fair sample of the plays which the children, pupils of the Bolshevist Russian dramatic schools are called upon to act. Thus the dramatic education serves a double purpose. Children are taught to act, they are taught Bolshevist arguments. There is even a triple purpose, because the masses of the people go to see the plays and through them this Bolshevist propaganda is generally instilled.

There are also adult Bolshevist players who give regular performances at the dramatic theater. These performances are unique in that of the plays presented each player writes his own part. They deal mostly with historical subjects, but into these historic plays Bolshevist propaganda constantly intrudes of course. The plays are prepared in the most haphazard fashion, but every now and then show real dramatic quality.

The old theater and all that it represented has gone by the board. The opera, the ballet, foreign classics and all the dramas of the great native writers have been thrown into the discard. It is a new theater which Bolshevist Russia knows and, if somewhat shocking, a very interesting one. I may add that the tenets of decency and morality which prevailed in the old days of the Russian stage, although often mild and loose, are very largely disregarded in these Bolshevist performances.

Schudde is Held by Federal Jury in Army Fraud.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—Theodore Schudde, a German, was indicted today by a Federal grand jury, charged with defrauding the government by collecting $168 in back pay while using the name of Lieut. Arthur Kincaid.

Schudde, who says he obtained Kincaid's papers in Germany, after the armistice, was returned to this country as Kincaid and discharged at Ft. Sheridan, where he collected pay due the American officer. He was arrested at San Francisco.

Schudde, who claims to be a German officer, enlisted in the Army as a private, following his discharge here. He was arrested at the Presidio, in San Francisco, when a photograph of himself in a German uniform was found among his effects. The grand jury took no action on other charges growing out of Schudde's action in posing as an American officer.

HISTORIANS HEARD AT PILGRIM CELEBRATION.

STARS AND STRIPES PREDOMINATE IN PLYMOUTH DECORATIONS.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

PLYMOUTH (England) Sept. 4. The Mayflower tercentenary celebration began today with an historical and literature conference participated in by British, Dutch and American Mayflower historians.

Dr. Rendel L. Harris, chairman of the English-speaking union, who maintained that he had found part of the hull of the Mayflower used as supports for a barn in England, and Dr. Dploojion, of Leyden, both said that much of the history of the Pilgrim Fathers remains to be found.

They produced newly discovered documents giving details of the more intimate side of the lives, activities and relationships of the Pilgrims, and declared they expected to find many more.

The people of Plymouth have endeavored to make this primarily an American celebration. The Stars and Stripes predominate in the generous decorations throughout the city. The organizers of the celebration, however, frankly voice their disappointment at the small number of Americans in Plymouth.

Those especially interested in promoting Anglo-American friendship are disappointed at what promises to be the failure of Premier Lloyd George to visit Plymouth Monday to deliver a message from the English people to the American Pilgrims.

SOUND RIOT CALL TO STOP FIGHT IN CAFE.

Two soldiers and a civilian were slightly injured last night, in a free-for-all fight in the New China Cafe, 501 South Main street. Several thousand persons gathered at the cafe when the fight was at its height and a riot call was sent in. About twenty police officers responded and rescued the soldiers from an angry mob.

According to eyewitnesses the fight started when one of the soldiers threw a chair at a woman entertainer. It is said the woman retaliated by throwing several drinking glasses at the soldier and his friends, who were seated in the rear of the cafe. Friends of the entertainer also joined in the melee, and for several minutes a battle ensued with glass and chinaware taking the place of shot and shell.

The soldiers and the civilian had been sitting at a table in the rear of the cafe drinking, the police say. When brought to the Receiving Hospital it was discovered that the soldiers were severely cut about the arms and face. The civilian was also slightly cut.

Thousands are actually starving and inhabitants of many districts are living on weeds and leaves. Whole families, it is reported, have committed suicide rather than face the terrible conditions which, augmented by the coming winter, may bring about the greatest catastrophe in the history of the Chinese Empire.

SURROUNDED BY MANY ELEGANT HOMES and located on a beautiful corner, 60 feet frontage, one block from a street car, we offer a very attractive duplex house having 6 and 7 rooms, respectively. House was built and has always been occupied by present owner, so has never been abused. It's a REAL HOME, too, the living-room being 20 feet long and other rooms proportionately. It's in the heart of one of Los Angeles' most select residential districts, where there are many $20,000 and $30,000 homes and you can buy it at slightly more than 7-room bungalows are selling for. Rent one flat furnished for $125 month, thus receiving big interest on the entire purchase price and have your own home free. The price is but $13,500 and less than half cash is required. Think it over—but don't think too long, or someone else will beat you to it.

WINDSOR PARK.
HIGHEST CLASS BUNGALOW SUBDIVISION IN THE WILSHIRE DISTRICT.

This beautiful bungalow subdivision is located on Beverly Blvd. (formerly Temple st.,) one block east of Larchmont Blvd. (W. Sixth-st. car line) and adjoins New Windsor Square on the north.

WINDSOR PARK is located on the highest elevation in the Windsor Square district and is undoubtedly the highest class bungalow subdivision in the entire Wilshire district. Being restricted for 50 years insures a residential district for a lifetime.

Why not get in where conditions are active, where people are buying, where homes are being sold as soon as the foundations are in? There are more homes being built in the vicinity of WINDSOR PARK than in any other section of the city. The fact that this is practically the only part of the Wilshire district that is now restricted, the elevation which commands a magnificent view in every direction and the beautiful homes surrounding it, easily account for this fact.

Eagle Rock.

FOR SALE—BEST BUYS IN EAGLE ROCK.
We are recognized authorities on Eagle Rock values, and cheerfully tender expert valuation services free of cost. The following bargains have been selected and appraised by us and are presented with the knowledge that they represent absolutely the best house values in Eagle Rock City and vicinity.

$12,500—The rooms, fully and expensively furnished. We are directed by the trustees to sell this beautiful home and have put on it the above price, which probably represents little more than half its actual value. The house is modern, all rooms are large, the plumbing, including two bathrooms, is of the most expensive type. Two wide terraces and two spacious sleeping porches add to the comfort of the home. The furniture is mostly new and includes many sumptuous pieces, costly rugs, etc. The grounds are 100x300, beautifully laid out and planted to rare shrubbery and trees. Lily pond, fountain and summer house. Good family orchard in full bearing. Large garage.

$9,750—In all our experience in the handling of fine homes in Eagle Rock, we never before met with quite so perfect a place as this. The house is about 65 feet wide and built along Old English lines. Nine very large rooms and an unusual amount of closet space. The appointments throughout are first-class including plate glass windows, expensive plumbing, oak floors, etc. The location is especially choice and affords beautiful view in every direction. Convenient to Occidental College, churches and car line. The grounds are beautifully laid out and planted to rare semi-tropical shrubbery and flowers. Family orchard. The owner has placed the property in our hands for sale at $9750, which is a wonderful opportunity for a discriminating homeseeker of fine taste. To be seen by appointment only.

$7,500—A beautiful home place ½ block from car line and boulevard and near school, churches, library and college. All rooms are good size and well arranged, extra large screen porch 10x18. Good garage and cellar. Lot 70x270 with full-bearing orchard and many choice table grape vines. $4000 cash will handle.

$6,500—A little colonial gem of 5 large well arranged rooms, situated on north slope amid fine surroundings, wide lot and pretty garden.

$6,000—Attractive 5-room bungalow, near car line and Occidental College. Lot of 100 ft. frontage with full-bearing orchard, large garage and nice garden.

MINES AND MINING.

OIL SHORTAGE IS INCREASING—

No better investment can be made now than test holes in new territory. The country needs all the oil you can find, and you have a safe and sure market.

Don't resort to old-fashioned methods of drilling, with large and expensive machinery.

Never forget the cost of a hole increases in the approximate proportion to the "square of its diameter."

So drill smaller diameter holes with the latest and most efficient portable machines ever built for territories from 80° to 2000 feet deep. Write for particulars and circular.

Partner wanted in a used car business clearing better than $500 monthly at present and rapidly increasing. Owner requires a party with some salesmanship ability, but you need not be experienced in this particular line. There is more than can be taken care of by one man. The price for equal half interest is $800.

CANDY AND SOFT DRINKS.
Has candy making equipment and splendid fixtures; positively clearing better than $300 monthly, and there are two good living-rooms and a 2 years' lease; it's in a location where the right party can more than double the business. The price is $1250.

PARTNERSHIP
AUTO TOP SHOP.
Your opportunity to learn a good trade and make big money at the same time. The owner of this well-located shop is working alone and cannot take care of all the business he gets alone. He is clearing better than $400 monthly, and with a live-wire partner the profits can be quickly doubled. Owner will teach you the business if you are willing to work. The price for equal half interest is $1000, and more than value in sight for your money.

FOURTH AND HILL.

BUSINESS BROKERS.

WE WILL NOT SELL ANY BUSINESS THAT WILL NOT STAND A STRICT INVESTIGATION.

MR. BUSINESS OWNER, IF YOU WANT TO SELL YOUR BUSINESS OUTRIGHT OR IF YOU WANT A PARTNERSHIP, PHONE OR WRITE US. OUR REPRESENTATIVE WILL CALL AND GET YOUR LISTING.
OUR STRONG ADVERTISING GETS RESULTS FOR YOU QUICKLY.
EASY TERMS ARRANGED AND LIBERTY BONDS TAKEN AS PAYMENT.

MR. BUSINESS BUYER, MAKE OUR OFFICE YOUR HEADQUARTERS. WE ARE THOROUGHLY RELIABLE, AND WILL GIVE YOUR INTERESTS OUR BEST ATTENTION.

DOUGHNUT STAND.
I have a swell proposition to offer. The location is worth the money and the 5 year lease doing a land office business, should clear $800 a month. Experience unnecessary, beautiful clean place, something out of the ordinary. Has to be seen to be appreciated. The whole thing for $3750. See MR. STEPHENS.

TRADE.
We have a party who has good income property to exchange and some cash for a clothing or dry goods store. This is a good chance to trade. See Mr. Kent.

MANUFACTURER'S AGENCY AND FACTORY.
Has the agency for a large eastern factory with a big line, has patents of its own covering another line, and which some of the wholesalers and retailers in Los Angeles are anxious to contract for, wishes to build a plant to turn out this line. Will take from ten to fifteen thousand dollars. It is at present clearing over $10,000 per annum, and the profits are good in the new line. Here is a chance for a good live man. Salary $300 per month, and one-half the profits. See MR. LIPPINCOTT.

SO. CALIF. DISTRIBUTING AGENCY.
This business has grown by leaps and bounds, and present agent must sell as business has outgrown his limited capital. This is a proposition which will bring big and quick returns and is only limited by purchaser's ability. Will stand thorough investigation, and it is an opportunity for some one. Requires $3500 cash to buy present owner, and should have $10,000 to $20,000 for additional stock. See MR. GOLDRING.

VENDING MACHINES.
A firm which has another very large line and cannot devote its time to these machines, of which there are over 250 now in use and orders coming in every week. The machines cleared a nice profit last year and should be a big money maker this year. This is a cash business and will make a good one or two-man proposition. This should sell soon, so act quickly. The price is $4900. See MR. LIPPINCOTT.

AUTO DISTRIBUTING PARTNERSHIP.
We have a ½ interest in the best auto distributing contract in Los Angeles for sale. This contract covers six Western States and some foreign territory and is for a period of 5 years. This business is owned by a very high-grade and experienced automobile man, but he needs help and a good intelligent man can get an equal ½ interest for $7500. Some terms might be arranged. Salary of $75 per week will be paid and ½ of the profits. See MR. HOLMES.

DOLL FACTORY.
ESTABLISHED IN THIS CITY FOR 12 MONTHS AND HAS GROWN TO THE STATE WHERE OWNER CANNOT HANDLE ALONE. THERE ARE $3000 OF ORDERS ON HAND RIGHT NOW AND MORE COMING IN EVERY DAY. THERE ARE 30 PERSONS EMPLOYED AND THE COMPANY IS SELLING AROUND 1000 DOLLS DAILY AND SENDING THEM ALL OVER THE COUNTRY. STOCK WILL INVOICE AROUND $5000, BESIDES VALUABLE MACHINERY AND EQUIPMENT. PROFITS ARE POSITIVELY $2000 MONTHLY AND THE BUSINESS SHOULD CLEAR $25,000 FOR NEXT 12 MONTHS. PREVIOUS EXPERIENCE NOT NECESSARY, BUT THE BUYER MUST BE COMPETENT TO LOOK AFTER THE OFFICE END. PRICE FOR HALF INTEREST ONLY $4500 AND VERY REASONABLE TERMS. A GILT-EDGED PROPOSITION WITH HIGHEST REFERENCES. SEE MR. STEPHENS.

AUTO REPAIR PARTNERSHIP.
Something unusual in this line. Must be young man full of snap and mechanically inclined. This is a busy shop with plenty of work for more than two. Owner is tired of hiring mechanics who only stay a short time, and is looking for a good man who is willing to work and earn good money. Shop has cleared better than $500 in past and is getting better. $750 will give you an equal ½ interest. See MR. GOLDRING.

AUTO TOP AND PAINT PARTNERSHIP.
Your opportunity to secure ½ interest in large auto trimming and paint shop. Profits for the last 12 months average better than $1500 monthly. Here's your chance. All books open for inspection and every investigation courted. Regularly employs 10 men, and caters only to best class trade at top prices. Previous experience not necessary. Price for ½ interest $1650. See MR. WILEY.

CIGAR STAND.
Cigar stand located in big office building and doing daily business of [illegible]. Is being run at present by lady. The fixtures are swell and there is a big stock of cigars, tobaccos and candies. This is one of the best buys to be had. Price including stock and fixtures [illegible]. See MR. MOLLOY.

PATENT FORD AUTO TOP.
This is some proposition and should easily net you $30,000 a year. It is a convertible one-man auto top, does away with all the unsightly rods and stays in the old tops now used. The owner is president of 2 other incorporations and consequently cannot devote his attention to this. If you are a salesman and a hustler this is your chance to get it for $7500. See MR. STEPHENS.

RESTAURANT.
Splendid location and nicely equipped restaurant at $1250. Just the place for man and wife and no worry over hiring help. Business now averages $50 daily and clears $400 monthly. There is a 2 years' lease at $25 month. Seating for 20 people at counter and tables. About this proposition see MR. DRAKE.

PACKING COMPANY.
Packing a food product, all output sold for cash to large local buyer, desires services of active partner with $10,000 to $30,000 to enlarge the plant. Great demand for output but only limited by need of additional capital. Will bear the closest investigation. See MR. LIPPINCOTT.

NOVELTY FACTORY.
A factory that was started in a very small way and built the assets up to over $30,000 right out of the business, is for sale, through overwork and ill health of the owner. Its profits are at least 40 per cent, and sold to big buyers. It is turning away orders every week. Here is a chance that does not occur very often. You must act promptly. See MR. LIPPINCOTT.

BUSINESS CHANCES.

THERE'S A DIFFERENCE. There is a big difference of opinion as to how business should be conducted. Some people will say, go after the business and get it honestly if you can, but get in anyhow. We believe there is a time in the history of nearly every business man, when he will do things that is not just to his liking or ideas, but is forced by circumstances to get money by hook or crook. That period is in his early business life. If he has been successful, he will not consider for a moment being connected with anything that is shady. He likes the money but it must come clean, and he takes a pride each day in endeavoring to raise the standard of his business. That Mr. Newcomer is one of the advantages you have in placing your business in the hands of an experienced successful business concern. The firm of W. S. Rattray & Co. was started some eight years ago in the same building that they are in today. They have been successful, and today have many thousands of dollars invested with clients throughout the country, helping them along until they are able to handle their business by themselves. They won't handle and positively don't solicit anything but the best business propositions available. They seldom have a large list of openings, but nearly always have a few choice opportunities that they are not ashamed to submit to intelligent business men. How would you like to do business with a firm of that kind? We will be glad to have you as one of our clients.

BUSINESS CHANCES.

FOLLOWING briefly outlines opportunity to become affiliated directly with largest manufacturers in automotive industry. Three men, all of whom have been active in automobile and accessory manufacturing for years, are about to organize a motor service corporation on the Pacific Coast. One of these men is now purchasing agent for one of the most universally owned pleasure car manufacturers; one is sales manager for the largest motor parts manufacturer of its kind in the world; one has held an executive sales and advertising position in the automotive industry for the past fifteen years. These men know the automotive game and have worked out a service and sales proposition which gives them the exclusive representation on the Pacific Coast for the best and most universally known motor in each class, passenger car, truck, tractor, marine and airplane. This plan embodies the establishment of service stations in different sections and will control, not only the actual service performed, but the sale of the motors and also the service parts. The possibilities of such a service are tremendous and backed by the motor manufacturers themselves, is bound to succeed. It will require about $25,000 to finance this proposition and the manufacturers will put up considerably more than this in material placed on consignment. An investment of this amount either as a silent or as an active member of this organization will not only be safe but is bound to pay large dividends. SURVEY OF THE BROAD F

VOL. XXXIX.

FACT AND COMMENT.

The building record established Angeles during the month August, when all previous record were broken, should be a source civic pride, for apparently the position of Los Angeles as the fifth city in the United States in point building activities, is to be maintained. Only four other cities of the country, all of whom outrank Los Angeles in regard to size, show greater building progress.

It should be remembered that the record established during the past month was not due to the issuance of large permits through which the total was brought to a high level. On the contrary, the majority of the permits were issued for small buildings, including stores, apartments, flats and residences. Over 40 per cent of the total number of permits were issued for dwellings of various types, certainly an encouraging outlook as regards of the future of the housing situation in this city. Too much emphasis cannot be placed on the importance of the construction of dwellings, either for residences or for rental purposes, and this type of construction should be encouraged by every possible legitimate means.

Even by the most pessimistic it is felt that the city is entering upon an era of false prosperity, or that Angeles will be greatly overbuilt as a result of present activities to fall into a slump from which will take years to recover. The city has grown tremendously during the past ten years, and there is reason to anticipate anything except continuous and consistent growth. There will be a real need for these buildings, and for all that be built in the coming months. Angeles is still far behind in her building program, and with a greater flux of visitors than ever before expected during the winter months, problem will be still to find available living quarters for them.

Astonishing records of growth and building activity have also been established by neighboring communities during the past two months. Notable among these are Long Beach, Glendale and Santa Ana, which have shown a tremendous increase of population during the past ten years, and whose building activities during recent months have been such as will place these cities among the foremost of the Southwest if the record is maintained.

City Planning.

Progressive residents of the city feel that there is a need for a carefully considered program of city planning, worked out by men who understand the problems of such an undertaking, and carried consistently through to a conclusion. At present there is a move on foot to retain the services of an expert in city planning, who is to launch and carry into effect a constructive program of civic improvement. This official will co-operate with the City Planning Commission to the end that residential and business districts will be limited to well-defined zones, and other plans for the improvement and beautification of the city will be launched. As is well known, the confinement of business, apartment and residence districts within certain definite zones is a difficult task to accomplish, since clashes between property owners and the commission inevitably result over the arbitrary rulings which must be laid down. The services of an expert who would work with the commission until a definite program had been devised and launched would do much to obviate this difficulty.

The need of an expert to assist in the solution of this problem was recently pointed out by Judge Stephens, a member of the City Planning Commission. Great Improvements Under Way Will Permit Long Beach to Expand.

Recent views of big Long Beach residence tract, which has been created by filling in the lowlands south of the city, showing Belmont pier and the enlarged Alamitos Bay; street paving under way which will convert the new land into an attractive residential section.

FACT AND COMMENT.

The building record established by Los Angeles during the month of August, when all previous records were broken, should be a source of civic pride, for apparently the position of Los Angeles as the fifth city in the United States in point of building activities, is to be maintained. Only four other cities of the country, all of whom outrank Los Angeles in regard to size, show greater building progress.

It should be remembered that the record established during the past month was not due to the issuance of large permits through which the total was brought to a high level. On the contrary, the majority of the permits were issued for small buildings, including stores, apartments, flats and residences. Over 40 per cent of the total number of permits were issued for dwellings of various types, certainly an encouraging outlook as [illegible] of the future of the housing situation in this city. Too much emphasis cannot be placed on the importance of the construction of dwellings either for residences or for rental purposes, and this type of construction should be encouraged by every possible legitimate means.

[illegible] by the most pessimistic it is [illegible] that the city is entering upon an era of false prosperity, or that Los Angeles will be greatly overbuilt as a result of present activities, and fall into a slump from which it will take years to recover. The city has grown tremendously during the past ten years, and there is no reason to anticipate anything except continuous and consistent growth. There will be a real need for these buildings, and for all that can be built in the coming months. Los Angeles is still far behind in her building program, and with a greater influx of visitors than ever before expected during the winter months, the problem will be still to find available living quarters for them.

Remarkable records of growth and building activity have also been established by neighboring communities during the past two months. Notable among these are Long Beach, [illegible] and Santa Ana, which have shown a tremendous increase of population during the past ten years, and whose building activities during recent months have been such as to place these cities among the leaders of the Southwest if the record is maintained.

City Planning.

Progressive residents of the city feel that there is a need for a carefully considered program of city planning worked out by men who understand the problems of such an undertaking, and carried consistently through to a conclusion. In the establishment of a city planning commission and in preparation for the creation of such a commission, Los Angeles several years ago took the initiative, but it is a regrettable fact that no consistent program of operation has been devised and carried out.

At present there is a move on foot to obtain the services of an expert in city planning, who is to launch and carry into effect a constructive program of civic improvement. This expert will co-operate with the City Planning Commission to the end that residential and business districts will be limited to well-defined zones, and that plans for the improvement and beautification of the city will be carried out. As is well known, the confinement of business, apartment and residential districts within certain definite zones is a difficult task to accomplish, since clashes between property owners and the commission frequently result over the arbitrary lines which must be laid down. The services of an expert who would work with the commission until a definite program had been devised and launched would do much to obviate this difficulty.

The need of an expert to assist in the solution of this problem was recently pointed out by Judge Stephens, a member of the City Planning Commission. Los Angeles is facing a period of great industrial growth and expansion, and the opportunity of preventing the growth of slum districts, such as those which have sprung up in eastern industrial centers, is vouchsafed to us, providing that the Planning Commission is given a free hand and the benefit of expert advice. And the expense involved in the maintenance of the commission will be more than compensated, in the end, by the increase in property values, effected through the conservation of the natural beauty of environment of the city.

The Auditorium.

Those who supported the movement to erect here a great civic auditorium will greet with pleasure the announcement by Mayor Snyder that an effort will again be made to place the issue before the voters of the city at the general election in November. Insufficient stress upon the fact that the auditorium, far from constituting a burden upon the taxpayers of the city, would prove an asset and a source of income to the community, is ascribed by Mayor Snyder as the cause of the defeat of the project.

The narrow margin by which the plan was defeated augurs well for a more favorable result at the general election, when the voting power of the city will be massed at the polls. Careful preparation during the intervening period should prepare the mind of the electorate for an affirmative decision when the matter is again presented. Emphasis should be laid upon the fact that the auditorium would prove a source of income and remuneration rather than the white elephant which its opponents have depicted. There is plenty of evidence obtainable that such would be the case, for the experience of other cities, which have for years enjoyed the benefits of a great central gathering place for its citizens and for conventions from outside communities, is available.

Full data concerning what other cities have accomplished should be obtained and made public; particularly should the returns accruing to these cities from revenue obtained through the rental of their auditoriums be gathered and given out.

Presentation of the project at the November election, of course, has a disadvantage, for it will be only one of the smaller issues among a great number of important matters to be decided. It is hardly likely, however, that in the short time intervening between now and November, that the matter will be forgotten, and if an effort to keep the plan alive in the meanwhile is made, a heavy and probably a very favorable expression of opinion can be expected.

REALTY FIRM MOVES.

The Nimmo Realty Company has moved into new and larger quarters at 5502 Hollywood Boulevard, near Western avenue. The firm is now entering upon its fifteenth year of business in Hollywood.

BIG FILM STUDIO UNDER CONSTRUCTION.

FIRST UNIT OF ROBERTSON-COLE PLANT RISING ON TWENTY-ACRE HOLLYWOOD SITE.

That the motion-picture industry is permanently established in Los Angeles is evidenced by the erection here of a new film studio, to cost approximately $1,000,000, by the Robertson-Cole studios, Inc. Construction of the new plant is now under way on a site of twenty acres recently acquired by the company at the corner of Gower street and Melrose avenue. The Robertson-Cole Company is a New York and London firm engaged in the importing and exporting business. The firm is represented here by Harry L. Hough, who has been associated with the motion-picture industry for several years. Mr. Hough will have complete charge of operation of the local plant.

The buildings now under construction were designed and are being built by Meyer and Holler, (Milwaukee Building Company.) The architecture employed follows classical lines. Access to the studios will be through an entrance colonnade, having a width of 100 feet and a height of 40 feet. This colonnade will lead to the main administration building through an entrance court which will contain a mirror pool.

When completed the studios will comprise eight working units, each to house a separate company. Each unit will have a stage 80 feet wide by 175 feet long, together with scene dock and property-room. There will also be a separate administration building of two stories in height for each unit, containing the offices and dressing-rooms.

The administration department of the studio will be housed in the main administration building, which will be two stories in height, 60 feet wide, and 110 feet long. Plans also include a large carpenter shop, mill building, an electric shop and transformer-room, vaults, swimming pool, and property-rooms.

REPORT NEW LEASES.

The Wright-Callender-Andrews Company, through A. G. Davenport and E. R. Beal of the business leasing department, reports the lease of the storeroom at the northeast corner of Sixth and Hope streets to the Savoy Drug Company, which is now located at the southwest corner of Sixth street and Grand avenue. Through the same firm the lease of the storeroom at 629 West Sixth street to Samuel Pawder, was negotiated. A general market will be established by Mr. Pawder.

MEXICO BUYS NEW SCHOOLHOUSES HERE.

Increased educational facilities are to be provided by the present government of Lower California, which is now completing negotiations with the Pacific Portable Construction Company for the shipment of twenty ready-cut schoolhouses to that district. A representative of the Governor of Lower California has been in the city for several days completing the arrangements. The structures will be of various sizes, and all of the materials will be prepared in the Los Angeles mills of the concern. A strong financial syndicate, composed of local business men, is also negotiating with the ready-cut house manufacturers for the construction of 200 houses at one of the near-by beaches, it is reported. These houses are to be of the factory-built type, all parts being assembled into finished sections at the mill before delivery at the location, effecting considerable saving of labor in their erection. The Pacific Portable Construction Company also reports the delivery of two carloads of ready-cut material to Phoenix, Ariz., during the past week, other shipments being made to the vicinity of San Francisco, Bakersfield and Blythe.

HOME BUILDING HERE SURPRISES VISITOR.

Edward Wachner of Akron, O., who has made a detailed study of housing conditions in various large eastern cities during the past two years, was a visitor in Los Angeles last week, as guest of the Tracy E. Shoults Company. Surprise was expressed by Mr. Wachner at the great building activity displayed throughout Los Angeles, particularly in the newer residential sections of the Wilshire district. "The people of the East," stated Mr. Wachner, "are trying to fight a condition which they believe is only temporary; that is, the increased cost of building. Here, apparently, homebuilders take the present situation as a matter of course. Homeseekers are not held back by the precedent of prices prevalent several years ago, but they are going out to meet the housing problem by building more homes. This is the only solution to the great scarcity of homes throughout the country."

During the past eight days, it is reported by the Shoults Company, thirty-two new houses have been started on El Centro street, in Windsor Heights, between Third street and Rosewood avenue. In addition, twenty-seven new homes were started in other portions of this tract during the same period. Mr. Shoults also reports the sale of 160 lots since July 7, and 110 lots since August 4. Building will be under way on these lots before the end of the year, it is stated.

COUNTY TO ESTABLISH PERMANENT ROAD CAMP.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

TERRA BELLA, Sept. 4.—Supervisor J. K. McComber, acting for Tulare county, has purchased the T. Williams livery stable in this city for the county road camp, in fulfillment of a promise to establish a permanent camp at Terra Bella. The property comprises four city lots with a frontage of 100 feet and is improved with a large barn and a dwelling-house. The house is to be enlarged and when these alterations have been completed the county road crew will be provided with excellent housing facilities and ample space for the storing of equipment.

BIG TRACT SOLD.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VISALIA, Sept. 4.—W. L. Williams, recent arrival from New York, has bought a tract of 1120 acres near Lemon Cove from Phil Baer of this city. Plans are being made by Mr. Williams for converting the property into a Holstein cattle ranch, and for the construction of a permanent home.

AUGUST PERMITS SET NEW BUILDING RECORD

NUMBER OF SANTA ANA PERMITS TO SEPTTMBER 1 EXCEEDS LAST YEAR'S RECORD.

SANTA ANA, Sept. 4.—A new $10,000 garage building of two stories will be erected here in the near future, as the result of the purchase by O. A. Haley, local auto dealer, of a business lot at the southeast corner of Fifth and Bush streets, known as the Remsberg property. The purchase was made from John Cubbon at a price given as $30,000. The lot has a frontage of 115 feet on Bush street and 88 feet on Fifth. There is now a two-story structure on one corner of the lot, and it is planned to build an adidtion which will conform to the present building, the entire structure to be used as a modern auto salesroom and garage. This will mark another notable addition to "auto row," as Fifth street has become known.

Another notable improvement is a $10,000 remodeling job being carried out by the John McFadden Hardware Company on East Fourth between Main and Bush. Two stores have moved from their locations and the building will be entirely remodeled. The hardware company will utilize the entire building for its business when the work is completed.

Santa Ana is solving the housing problem in a substantial way by erecting homes at an unprecedented rate, permits having been taken out in the past eight months for 185 new dwelling houses, in addition to dozens of garage-residences on the rear of lots, which will later be improved with commodious homes. August was the record month with 120 permits issued aggregating $202,975. The largest single permit of the month was for a $15,000 residence on North Broadway. Sixty-six, or more than half of the August permits, were for new residences, averaging between $4000 and $5000 in cost. Up to September 1, the records of Building Inspector Thomas Ash show 590 building permits issued since January 1, of an aggregate value of $1,312,781. This is already $543,781 greater than for the entire twelve months of 1919.

Other Orange county cities have also been building at a rapid rate this year, the six cities of Santa Ana, Orange, Anaheim, Fullerton, Newport Beach and Huntington Beach rolling up a 1920 building total to date of $2,513,894. This is already greater by $442,000 than the same cities' totals for the entire year of 1919. The six cities show 508 new residences built this year. The figures for other towns are as follows: Orange, $267,500, sixty-eight dwellings; Fullerton, $372,000, ninety-five dwellings; Anaheim, $338,000, eighty-one dwellings; Newport Beach, $148,197, fifty-nine dwellings; Huntington Beach, $75,156, twenty new dwellings.

FINE HOMES SOLD.

The sale of the residence of the late Gail B. Johnson at 345 South Westlake avenue to Alexander H. Kerr, a glass manufacturer of Oklahoma, is reported by R. A. Rowan & Co., through whom the sale was concluded. This residence, containing twenty-one rooms, is one of the finest in the Wilshire district. The property, which was sold to Mr. Kerr for $45,000, has a frontage of about 300 feet on Westlake avenue. Other sales reported by the Rowan company are as follows: The Stuart O'Melveny home at 427 South Serrano street, to J. L. Van Norman, manager of the insurance department of R. A. Rowan & Co., $26,500; Alice M. Bluett to Curtis C. Colyear, residence at 331 South Kenmore, $25,000; to Mrs. Louis Pattison, two building sites on Plymouth Boulevard, Windsor Square; Sydney Graves, State legislator, lot on Irving Boulevard, between Third and Fourth streets; Charles Meyer, lot on Windsor Boulevard, $7500; Curtis Colyear, lot on Irving Boulevard, $7000; W. M. Petitfils, corner lot and adjoining property on Plymouth Boulevard, $28,500; W. O. Jenkins, United States Consul at Puebla, Mex., site in Windsor Square, $50,000

IMPROVED PROPERTY NEAR PORTERVILLE SOLD TO LOCAL MAN.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PORTERVILLE, Sept. 3.—W. B. Wells of the Vandalia district has purchased from A. W. Alcorn a forty-acre ranch adjoining the Wells home ranch on the Bakersfield highway, about two miles south of Porterville. Eighteen acres of the property are planted to Thompson Seedless, Malaga and Emperor grapes, interset with a heavy stand of cotton. In addition to the grapes already planted, there are about 40,000 grape and fig cuttings now growing on the place, ready for planting next year. Several acres are devoted to gardens for the production of beans, corn, tomatoes and melons. There are also five acres planted to alfalfa. Mr. and Mrs. Alcorn will probably make their home in Porterville since the new owners take possession at once.

UNIQUE BONUS PLAN.

Carpenters Share in Distribution of Profits by Realty Firm.

Unique among testimonial dinners in this city was the "bonus dinner" given yesterday evening by Victor Girard, Los Angeles realtor and subdivider of Walnut Park, to the carpenters included in his permanent working organization. Each guest found at his plate a check covering his share of a bonus of several thousand dollars distributed in accordance with a plan inaugurated by Mr. Girard on Sept. 1, 1919. Every carpenter who had completed a year's service in the Walnut Park organization participated in the bonus. Explaining the principle of his plan, Mr. Girard said it was the idea of the company to hold together competent men and to enable them to profit in addition to their regular wages through loyal and efficient service, with the end in view that better construction would result at a lower cost to the public.

Present at the dinner in addition to Mr. Girard, who acted as toastmaster, were Ernest Hall, superintendent of the Walnut Park mechanical organization: T. A. Coleman, W. C. Gibson, A. Hackbarth, W. H. Hyatt, L. D. Jones, B. T. Lee, H. I. Millard, S. A. McHargue, J. H. Neidhart, M. P. Nelson, W. Norling, F. R. Rogers, E. H. Sadler and C. G. Valentine.

LINDSAY FIRM MOVES INTO NEW BUILDING.

LINDSAY, Sept. 4.—Race and French, local hardware merchants, have moved into their new building which has just been completed on North Elmwood avenue. The building was especially designed to meet the needs of the firm, the arrangement of the structure including a large storage basement as well as a cement floored storage room in the rear. The salesroom is finished in gray enamel, with a trim of French gray, and a solar lighting system has been installed. The center of the room is taken up by a large U-shaped counter, which extends back to the office in the rear. Tables for display purposes, gun racks and shelves occupy either side of the room. Marlow and Sons were the architects and Dennis Brothers the decorators.

POMONA, Sept. 4.—The two houses built by the revolving fund, created by the Pomona Chamber of Commerce as a result of a movement to secure additional housing facilities, have both been sold. The second house to be completed under this plan was bought by Richard R. Archer, a recent arrival from Albuquerque, N. M.

BEACH CITY IS FORGING AHEAD.

Long Beach Has Remarkable Record of Growth.

City Expands Southward in New Development.

Fine Residence Tract Thrown Open to Public.

Great forward strides which have been taken by the city of Long Beach during the past decade promise to place that city among the foremost of the Southwest if the progress of the city continues along the same line of development. From a city of 15,000 people in 1910, Long Beach has expanded into a thriving community with a population of more than 55,000 residents, according to the last census figures. This is a gain of 212 per cent within the last ten years. These figures, it is pointed out, do not take into account the great floating population of the city, the thousands of tourists who annually make Long Beach their home for a few months.

The progress of the city is reflected not only in the growth of its population, but in its expansion as a commercial center as well. According to figures compiled by the Realty Board of Long Beach bank clearings for the first half of the year exceeded $87,000,000, an increase of $50,000,000 over the clearings of three years ago. The assessed valuation of the property of the city has jumped from $22,000,000 in 1910 to a present valuation of more than $64,000,000. The development of the city has been marked by great building activity during the past eight months, establishing a new building record for the community. At the present time the value of building permits issued is already greatly in excess of those of the entire year of 1919, which closed with a total of about $7,000,000 worth of permits issued. The growth of population is reflected in the remarkable increase of school enrollment, which has advanced from about 4000 in 1919 to over 10,000 at the present time.

FUTURE DEVELOPMENT.

Residents of the city advance the opinion that Long Beach is destined to become the Atlantic City of the West; a city of great apartments and hotels for the accommodation of the thousands of tourists who will visit there annually. During the past month announcement of three big apartment hotels, with an aggregate cost of over $1,500,000, to be erected on the Ocean front at Long Beach was made, and plans are now being prepared by a Los Angeles architect for another structure of this type, to be ten stories in height, which will be erected there by local business men.

One of the most marked improvements of recent months is the filling in of the lowlands south of the city, permitting Long Beach to develop to the utmost its ocean front properties. This development has until the present time been retarded by reason of the fact that the city was shut off from the ocean front by high bluffs, while to the north lay the industrial section of the city. After more than a year of work the engineering feat, through which the filling in of the tide flats which have hitherto retarded the southward growth of the city, was accomplished, is nearing completion, and a new residential section of the city is in the course of development. This work was undertaken by a group of local business men, headed by W. A. Heitman & Co.

average depth of forty feet, creating one of the best inclosed yacht harbors of Southern California. Plans are now under way for the erection of a fine yacht club building on Alamitos Bay, and when this structure is completed, it is believed that Long Beach will become the center of yachting activities of Southern California.

With the completion of this fill, more than 1000 new homesites have been added to the ocean front of Long Beach, increasing the valuation of the city's property over $1,000,000, according to a conservative estimate. Ocean avenue has been extended through the new tract, as have also the car lines from the city. At the present time the Heitman Company is pushing forward the street-paving works and other improvements as rapidly as possible. The streets are to be paved with a five-inch concrete base, it is stated by officials of the company, and the installation of water mains, sewers, electricity and gas is now under way.

When the present dredging work is completed, the company plans to move the dredgers out into the ocean for the purpose of pumping sand to the shore of Alamitos Bay, creating a fine still-water bathing beach along the shores of the bay. It is also planned to create a business district in the center of the new tract, which is known as Belmont Shore Place, and some of the property has already been sold for this purpose, it is stated.

Over half a million dollars' worth of this property, which was recently thrown open to the public, has been sold, according to the W. A. Heitman Company, which developed the subdivision, and which is now acting as its selling agent. Plans have been completed for several homes to be erected in the tract, and the construction of these houses will be started in the near future.

MARION WOMAN SEES VICTORY

Lifelong Friend of Hardings Says Ohio is Safe.

Noted Singer Was Playmate of Senator's Wife.

Returns to Southland After Eight Years' Travel.

Prediction that Senator Harding, Republican nominee for President, will sweep the country in the November election was made yesterday by Mrs. Generva Johnstone-Bishop of Marion, O.

Mrs. Johnstone-Bishop, whose great-grandfather, Eber Baker, founded and named the town of Marion, is a lifelong friend of both the candidate and his wife and is thoroughly familiar with their childhood courtship and latter-day life.

"Warren is certain to carry Ohio by a big plurality," said Mrs. Johnstone-Bishop. "He is already outdistancing Gov. Cox for popular favor in the Buckeye State and by election day he will have a much bigger lead.

"I left Marion just a short time ago more impressed than ever with Warren's abilities as a statesman and his tremendous hold on the people. He is a clean, true, firm, lovable man, thoroughly American in his every thought, word and act and is the same charming character and personality he was in his boyhood. We need a man of his type in the White House—a quiet, dignified, thoughtful statesman, willing to take counsel and dependable in all emergencies—and there is no doubt in my mind but that Warren will be elected.

"One has to spend only a few days in Marion to be convinced of the high regard in which he is held by Republican pilgrims from all over the country. The Harding front porch has become the Mecca for loyal, patriotic Americans, who invariably leave Marion with strengthened resolution to work tirelessly for his election in November.

"Mrs. Harding, who, as Florence Kling, was my constant companion and playmate in childhood, is working indefatigably for Warren's election. She has been of inestimable assistance to him throughout his public career and is laboring early and late in his interest these trying campaign days. Mrs. Harding is a charming and gracious hostess and would make an admirable first lady of the land."

Mrs. Johnstone-Bishop recalled with amusement many incidents of her childhood days with Warren and Florence, and said "they have not changed a bit from the genial, companionable, democratic and broad-minded people they were in early youth." She also alluded with a smile to the fact that she and Senator Harding owned a little stock in a small brewery in Ohio, but said the establishment had never made any money and the stock was valueless unless the buildings were sold.

Following Senator Harding's nomination in Chicago, Mrs. Johnstone-Bishop was the first person from his home town to congratulate him. As past president of the Ohio Woman's Club of Chicago, she was selected to present a bouquet of roses to the nominee's wife.

Mrs. Johnstone-Bishop is one of America's noted concert singers and is well known in Los Angeles, having sung at a fiesta here some years ago. She first came to Los Angeles about fifteen years ago and conducted a musical studio here until 1912. Since that time she has been touring the world.

A short time ago she decided to return to Los Angeles, but on the day her train was to leave she fell down a flight of stone steps and fractured her ankle. Physicians and surgeons insisted that she remain in the East six weeks for the broken member to heal, but she was so determined to reach Los Angeles at the earliest possible moment that she boarded the train and received treatment while en route to this city.

At present she is the guest of Mrs. Charles Modini Wood, 515 Shatto Place, but upon recovery from her injury she will make her home at the Devonshire Apartments.

HISTORIC LAND TO BE PRESERVED

Will Restore, Ferry House Used by Washington.

General Plan Covering Territory Mapped Out.

Government to be Asked to Build Memorial.

[BY A. P. CORRESPONDENCE.]

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 1.—The old Ferry House and Tavern at Washington Crossing, Pa., is being restored and adapted as a central building for park purposes.

All the properties on the Delaware River bank east of the river road as far as the upper end of the island, behind which boats were secreted ready for the embarkation of George Washington's troops for the attack on Trenton, have been bought by the Washington Crossing Park Commission.

This covers a river frontage of over 1500 feet and includes the point of embarkation and the Old Ferry Road leading to it. The commission also has purchased the island and 60 acres to the west of River Road which includes the ridge behind which the Continental troops were massed and drilled that eventful Christmas day before the battle of Trenton.

The commission has laid out a general scheme covering the territory in which Washington's troops were quartered after having been driven across New Jersey and over the Delaware River on December 8, at Morrisville. This includes the base of supplies and New Hope Ferry, the uppermost ferry guarded to keep the British from crossing. It covers the headquarters houses of Washington and eleven of his generals. At the graves of the soldiers who died it is proposed to erect monuments. Eventually the national government will be asked to build a memorial bridge over the Delaware at the point where Washington made his never to be forgotten journey across the swollen Delaware amid ice floes and dangers from an unseen foe.

HAWAII'S NATIVE RACE IS FAST VANISHING.

WILL BE EXTINCT IN SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS SCIENTISTS' PREDICT.

[BY A. P. CORRESPONDENCE.]

HONOLULU (T. H.) Aug. 17.—Hawaii's native race will be extinct in seventy-five years if the ratio of births and deaths set by the official figures for the fiscal year 1919-20 is maintained. This is indicated by the report of Dr. F. E. Trotter, president of the territorial board of health, which shows that during the year the deaths of pure-blooded Hawaiians totaled 1009, while there were 676 births.

There are approximately 25,000 pure-blooded Hawaiians living on the Hawaiian Islands, according to estimates. Reports for past years show decreases in their numbers.

In marked contrast with the evidence that the Hawaiians are members of a "dying race" are the vital statistics dealing with those who represent the mixtures of Hawaiian with Caucasian and Asiatic blood.

Of the Caucasian-Hawaiians, 249 died during the last fiscal year, while there were 699 births in that section of the Territory's population. The Asiatic-Hawaiian strain—principally Chinese-Hawaiian—recorded 103 deaths and 491 births.

The natural increase in the Japanese population of the Territory during the year was 3366. During the year there were 4963 births and 1597 deaths among the Japanese.

MELON CROP SWAMPS MARKET; GIVEN AWAY.

[BY A. P. CORRESPONDENCE.]

YORK (S. C.) Aug. 30.—Farmers in this vicinity are giving away watermelons and feeding them to hogs. Three weeks ago watermelons were reported selling at prices ranging from 50 cents to $1.25 each. Now the crop has swamped the market.

NEW YORK BIRTH RATE INCREASING RAPIDLY.

[BY A. P. CORRESPONDENCE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—Despite the high cost of living, shortage of housing and the scarcity of domestic servants, the actual birth rate in New York City is going up at a rapid rate, according to health authorities' statistics issued here.

The figures show that the birth rate per 1000 for the first seven months of 1920 was 22.34, against the rate of 21.90 in the same period last year.

While the birth rate is on the increase, the health department's statistics show that the death rate of children in the city is on the decline. The rate of infant mortality for the past year on each 1000 births was 83, while in the preceding years a much higher figure is on the records.

CENSUS OF SEALS TO SHOW GROWTH

Count of Noses Taken to Prevent Blind Killing.

Last Year Government Reported 550,000 Animals.

Japan and Great Britain Share in Revenue.

[BY A. P. CORRESPONDENCE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—The annual census of the seals, now being taken by the Bureau of Fisheries, is expected to show about 600,000 of the animals, or three times as many as when the government undertook the custody of them a half score years ago.

Although the seal spends much of its life at sea, its habits make the census-taking comparatively easy. Hugh M. Smith, Commissioner of the Bureau of Fisheries, explains the "count of noses" is of importance to prevent "blind killing" of the animals, for their furs, possibly resulting in their extinction.

Under present government control, Mr. Smith asserts that the seals are increasing about 10 or 12 per cent of their number annually. Last year's count showed 550,000 of which 26,000 were killed for their pelts.

VISIT ISLANDS YEARLY.

In the middle of Bering Sea, lying forty miles apart, are two islands, St. George and St. Paul, the only land to which the seals ever resort. Every spring they visit the islands to raise their young, leaving in the fall to winter in the North Pacific, and it is during the summer that the census is taken.

The killing of the animals is also done in the summer, this under the law, is confined to the surplus males. Last year lack of labor resulted in 10,000 fewer animals being killed than the government officials had planned. Japan and Great Britain, along with the United States, share the revenue produced from the seal-kill, a treaty giving this country 70 per cent of the animals, with the other two countries each receiving 15 per cent.

VALUE IS INCREASED.

"In the old days," says Mr. Smith, "when 100,000 seals were being killed annually, the government obtained $10 per skin, while now we are getting $140, which nets us about $120 per skin. Increase in the value of furs and the different method of conducting the business explains this."

Besides the sale of pelts, the government is operating a fertilizer plant on the islands for disposing of the carcass, from which there also is extracted an oil used for dressing tops of automobiles.

Sugar Crop Shipped Early.

[BY A. P. CORRESPONDENCE.]

HONOLULU (T. H.) Aug. 17.—A total of 425,000 tons, or approximately three-quarters of the season's sugar crop of the Hawaiian Islands, had been shipped by the middle of August, according to figures of sugar factories here. Within four days recently four ships left for the mainland carrying 19,850 tons of sugar from island ports.

REDLANDS SALES.

Residences Have Changed Hands During Recent Months.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Sept. 4.—It is estimated by local real estate men that hundred or more of the best homes of Redlands have been sold during the past three months, an indication of the demand for property. Real estate men anticipate a building boom in building, and consequently state that they have constantly on hand for half a hundred homes.

F. C. Campbell, who is now living in Long Beach, has sold his residence on Fourth street for $4000 to Thomas I. Brooks. The bungalow of J. E. Alman, across the street from the Campbell residence, has been purchased by Frank Orr. George Tyree has bought a home on San Bernardino avenue near Alabama from the Redlands National Bank.

Hazel Dern has sold her home on Fourth street near Home Place to Eleanor Keys for $3500. W. F. Ellis has sold his fine home at Olney and Highland streets to Thomas Mitchell. M. N. Brandenburg has just bought a large home on Eureka between Clark and Fern from John Stockman for $4000. Franklin Furst has sold his bungalow on University street to Carl Rude.

F. J. Gramlie has sold to J. D. Langford his bungalow on Buena Vista for $5500. Anna B. Lever has sold to Lillian C. Sherman her home at the corner of Fern and Cajon. J. S. Bering has bought from Harvey Hall a bungalow on Olive avenue, paying for it $3250. Mary Wilson and Tyee Harris have just bought bungalows on Linda Place. G. Calder Bennett has sold his home on Linda Place to Fred Simpson for $3800. J. B. Hedworth has sold his bungalow on University street to Rhea Igo and has purchased one on College avenue. W. P. Southworth has sold a house on Grant near the school to Eva Coe and has purchased two houses on Alvarado, one from Mrs. La Rue and the other from J. E. Weltin. Frank Parry has bought the small cottage on Olive between Eureka and Grant, just east of the large house that he owns there.

WILL ERECT PLANT.

Company Organized to Manufacture Cooling Apparatus Here.

The National Refrigerator Corporation, an organization formed by local business men, will establish here a big plant for the manufacture of cooling apparatus of all types, it was announced yesterday. The company is capitalized for $1,500,000, of which $500,000 will be authorized preferred stock and $1,000,000 will be authorized common stock. The corporation will be financed under the direction of Rourke & Co., investment brokers. Officers of the company are George W. Brown, president; John J. O'Rourke, vice-president, and J. J. O'Rouke, secretary and treasurer. The plant is to be established here, officials of the company state, for the reason that the demand for cooling apparatus comes principally from Western and Southwestern States, and from the Orient and Central and South America, which places Los Angeles in an advantageous position as regards the marketing of these products. According to tentative plans which have been made, the factory is to contain about 30,000 square feet of floor space, and will be so arranged as to make possible the progressive system of production.

PLAN MANY HOMES AT PEBBLE BEACH.

Mayor James Rolph, Jr., of San Francisco, has also had plans for a new residence drawn up, and work will soon be started on the structure, which is to be built on the forest lot owned by Mayor Rolph at Pebble Beach.

PLANS COMPLETED FOR PORTERVILLE CHURCH.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

GROWING UP IN OHIO TO BE PRESIDENT.

[Copyright, 1920, by the Tribune Company.]

BY EYE WITNESS.

In the midseventeenth and latter eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries the Hardings and the Coxes were always pioneering, always pushing on, and one caught an echo of that pioneer urge in Nominee Harding's speech of acceptance, in the paragraph where he expands a bit on Alaska, "rich in resources beyond all imagination" and destined, as he put it, "to a foremost position as a commonwealth rugged in citizenship and rich in materialized resources."

In Charles the First's reign John and Richard Harding—like the other Puritans half pushed and half pushing out of England—joined the Plymouth colony in Massachusetts ten years after the Pilgrims had founded it. Their descendants pushed on into Connecticut and then into New York and then into the Wyoming Valley in northeastern Pennsylvania, where seven Hardings perished in the dreadful massacre of July 3, 1778, which Campbell sang in the highly ornamented prosody of "Gertrude of Wyoming."

Then came the slow opening up of the Ohio wilderness as a result of that Congressional ordinance of which Daniel Webster said that he doubted whether "one single law of any law-giver, ancient or modern," had produced effects more "distinct, marked, and lasting," and again the Hardings—and the Coxes, too—pushed on, settling this time on the spots where Warren Harding and James Cox were to be born and grow up.

The Senator's great-great-grandfather, Amos, the one who married Tory Tryon's granddaughter, was the first Harding to come into Ohio, and he amply did his bit toward peopling the new national domain. He had eighteen children—twelve sons and six daughters, and passed into the country histories as "the patriarch." He must have been well on in life when he made the great trek into the Ohio wilderness in 1818, for he had grandsons then, and with him out of that Wyoming Valley of tragical memories came his son Mordecai.

Son Ebeneezer joined his father and brother in 1821. The next year saw the coming of sons Salmon E. and George Tryon Harding. In order to readily identify an outstanding man of the multitudinous Harding line you will have to think of George as Horse-and-Bridle Harding, in memory of that christening present he did not get. With him George brought from the Wyoming Valley his infant sons, Perry and Charles. Perry grew up and grew old, finally becoming the "Uncle Perry" of the "Paul Revere stuff" that the nominee was telling us about in an earlier article, and Charles became the father of the present Dr. Harding, father of Warren.

If you want to connect this year of George Tryon's arrival—1822—with the future Presidential timber Ohio was beginning to grow you might fix in your mind the fact that in April of that year a man-child ultimately to be known as U. S. Grant was born in the Ohio hamlet of Point Pleasant, 150 miles to the southwest of the Harding settlement, and in the following October, in the hamlet of Delaware, only thirty-five miles south from them, was born another baby who was one day to succeed the April baby as President of the United States and who was christened Rutherford Birchard Hayes.

Altogether, what with new arrivals from the East, and new babies on the spot, and cabin building and land clearing by the Hardings, and a certain family of McKinleys getting themselves established in the iron business over in the eastern part of the State, that year 1822 and thereabouts was laying the groundwork of a good deal of Presidential biography.

The Hardings worked hard—one had to to survive—and prospered. Pattriarch Amos and "Horse-and-Bridle" and Salmon E. took up acres and acres around the present Morrow county village of Blooming Grove which used to be called Corsica before the government took the postoffice away from it and in which a little under half a century later Warren Harding was born. It was Salmon who founded Blooming Grove, and in due time, his work done and his valiant earthly pioneering over, he was laid to rest in the cemetery which he had given to the village.

"Horse-and-Bridle" did his work, too, clearing land and raising children and building the old homestead in which Warren Harding's father was born. You can see the grand old timbers of it to this day standing hale, but quite bare of siding, in a field whither the structure was moved some years ago. Much of the beautiful walnut of the interior work was ripped out from time to time and today some of it forms part or a near-by chicken house.

This homestead was built in 1840. It originally fronted on the Lexington-Mansfield road, a few rods from its present site, and in it "Horse-and-Bridle" kept a tavern for twenty-five years, combining that calling with his farming. Whisky was cheap in the forties and the drinking was frightful. The stuff sold for 12 cents a gallon or 2 cents a tumbler, and for a bushel of rye yould could buy two and one-half gallons of whisky. A farmer would buy a barrel of whisky to carry him and his hands through harvest, "but before it was over," said old Dr. Harding, to whom I am indebted for much of this pioneer lore, "he would have to get another barrel. Finally my grandfather got so disgusted that he wouldn't have the stuff about the house—either in the family's part or the tavern part—for anything, and he became a great temperance reformer."

"Horse-and-Bridle's" son Charles grew up and married Mary Ann Crawford of the famous revolutionary Crawfords, but of this Charles, the Senator's grandfather, the only thing I learned that has any value as a detail in my picture of old time was that in 1852 he was offered eighty acres of the land on which South Chicago now stands at $10 an acre, "but he told 'em," said the doctor, "that he didn't want their swamp land."

I though Charles's son said that a shade ruefully. Not that he is a money-loving man, but he always did love to do a bit of "trading," as they called it in the old days. The Senator brought out that fact about his father. "My father has always been a benefactor to his fellow-men, and successful, too, as long as you could keep him to doctoring. But he did love to trade a bit on the side!"

And thus we are pretty well out of the woods on this Harding ancestry theme, except to add that this good old doctor with the Yankee trading strain surviving in him was born in 1844, a year after a Presidential baby named William McKinley was born at Niles, O.

So now we can go down into Butler county and see how the Cox family of pioneers is getting on.

A Home Every 100 Minutes

The Santa Monica Plant of the Los Angeles Pressed Brick Co. (pictured above) has a production capacity capable of supplying the Hollow Tile for one average five-room Hollow Tile house every hundred minutes.

This is one of the largest, most modern, and efficiently equipped plants for the manufacture of Hollow Tile in this country.

Its enormous capacity is continuously taxed to the limit, as is also the capacity of its sister (Plant No. 4) located at Alberhill, California.

The great revival of building since the war, has developed a keener investigation into the relative merits of building materials. The result has been an unprecedented adoption of Hollow Tile construction.

It costs only about the same as good frame construction. It is definitely fireproof, sound-proof, moisture-proof, and germ-proof. It is as permanent as the "Rock of Ages." Its depreciation and repair cost are practically nil.

Hollow Tile as produced by the Los Angeles Pressed Brick Co. represents the highest development in the science of Hollow Tile manufacture.

If you are contemplating the construction of any type of building, you will find it profitable to consult in advance with the Los Angeles Pressed Brick Co. A conference will involve no obligation.

FOR A LARGER BIBLE SCHOOL.

Reports Read at Christian Church Convention.

Results of Past Year Told by Superintendent.

Consecration of New College This Afternoon.

One thousand conversions, the preparation of 500 persons for teachers in the Christian Church, and a gain of $4000 in misionary offerings over the preceding year was shown to have been the work accomplished by the Christian Bible School in the past year, in the report presented by South Pacific Bible School Superintendent Edgar Lloyd Smith at the morning session of the convention of Christian churches yesterday. Mr. Smith has just completed his fifth year as superintendent and announced that substantial gains had been made in all matters of his department.

As a part of the Bible School program arranged for yesterday morning's session, a number of pastors from Southern California points spoke in reference to the promotion of a larger Bible school. Rev. J. R Roundtree of Glendora sounded an appeal for a more adequate Sunday school equipment and a greater number of teachers to secure attendance. Rev. F. S. Carter of Boyle Heights declared the need of the organization of a training department in local Sunday-schools; Rev. T. Charles Miller of Pomona, spoke of the necessity of life recruits for the ministry and mission field, and local church work, and Rev. George R. Whipple of Whittier presented a program of work including missionary instruction, home co-operation and a missionary budget.

Rev. C. A. Cole of Glendale, in an adress on "Bible School and College Co-operating," stated that after having obtained the impressions of many pastors and leaders of Sunday-school work in different parts of the country that he wished to urge the establishment of courses in the new school of Christianity adapted to the training of the lay-workers in local churches, so that the church and school would benefit reciprocally.

At the afternoon session yesterday the Christian Endeavor program for the coming year was presented by H. A. Van Winkle of Oakland. Rev. C. A. Cole, president of the Christian Endeavor, presided. The program as presented consists of three important parts. For September, October and November the young people will turn their attention upon the promotion of a churchwide school of missions. December and January will be devoted to the training of church officers and missionary leaders of the local church. The remaining part of the year will be taken up with a State-wide Christian Endeavor efficiency contest in which points will be awarded for attendance, for taking part in Sunday-school programs, personal work, attendance at the State convention, and for missionary offerings.

Many brief, pointed addresses were made by members of the Christian Enndeavor at an elaborate banquet held at the First Christian Church last evening.

"The Making of a Preacher," an address by Dr. I. N. McCash, president of Phillips College at Enid, Okla., will feature this morning's session of the convention. C. R. Hudson will also speak on "Church and College Co-operating," at the afternoon session at the Bible Institute.

A consecration service will be held at the site of the new school of Christianity following the afternoon session. Evening services at the Bible Institute will conclude the convention.

Membership of the Los Angeles Central Y.M.C.A. reached 7100 on the 1st inst., according to a report to secretaries of the association by George Ballmann, director of membership, at the annual conference in Huntington Beach yesterday. The half rate for returned enlisted men has been extended, he anounced, to Jan. 1, 1921. The saving to these men to date was said to be $18,000.

The educational department of the Y.M.C.A. will open its course for the fall next Tuesday. A wider range of studies is to be offered this year than ever before, it is announced. Commercial lines will include bookkeepng, stepography, typing, commercial forms and methods and dictation. A complete course in mining, mechanical and electrical engineering also will be offered.

The new night course in accountancy will open on September 14, under the direction of Dean I. C. Louis, W. M. Pargellis and A. E. Smith. New business and professional courses will be offered during the fall and winter, including advertising, salesmanship, public speaking, Spanish, investments, credits and efficiency.

Journalism Classes Suspended.

[BY A. P. CORRESPONDENCE.]

BERKELEY, Sept 2.—Journalism classes at the University of California were suspended when the fall semester opened, because, it was announced, of the need for strict economy and the inability of the university to obtain experienced instructors. Students requesting journalism instruction are being referred to one course in the English department. This class, it is expected, will be the nucleus for later development of journalism work.

CHAMBER OF CITY RANKS NEAR FIRST.

Only Chicago Boasts Larger Membership Than Los Angeles; New York Lags.

With the addition of 1600 new members since the first of this year Los Angeles now has the second largest Chamber of Commerce in the nation, according to statistics just made public by the United States Chamber of Commerce.

While Chicago's Chamber of Commerce has 124 more members than the local civic-trade body, Los Angeles leads New York by almost three hundred members. The membership showing of the local chamber is the more remarkable when comparative population is considered.

Here is the table compiled by the United States Chamber of Comerce, giving a list of cities, the membership of their chambers and the population of the municipalities:

City—	Chamber membership.	Population.
Chicago	6,795	2,701,212

USES SANDWICH MEN TO FIGHT H.C.L.

NTW YORK UNIVERSITY TEACHER DIRECTS ATTENTION TO MARGIN OF PROFITS.

[BY A. P. CORRESPONDENCE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Old-fashioned sandwichman publicity has been chosen by Dr. Robert Grimshaw, efficiency engineer and faculty member of New York University, for an attack on the high cost of groceries in the Washington Heights section of this city.

Dr. Grimshaw served notice that grocers would have to cut their prices or hear from him. Quotations remaining virtually unchanged the doctor's bill-boarded sandwichmen paraded throughout. Washington Heights's main thoroughfares and market sections heralding the wholesale prices for garden truck showing a wide margin below retail costs.

Washington Heights housewives generally have noted the Grimshaw sandwichmen and their message, and "everybody is talking about it."

FACTS ABOUT FRANCE GIVEN TO AMERICANS.

VISITORS TO COUNTRY PRESENTED WITH BOOKLET OF FIGURES.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

PARIS, Aug 15.—A little booklet entitled "Facts and Figures Regarding France" in which the story of the devastated departments and the work of reconstruction is visualized in a series of tables is being given to the Americans visiting France. It is issued in English by the Commission for the Devastated Regions, whose president is Andre Tardieu.

Contrasted with the burdens of a national debt seven times that of 1914 and taxes more than four times as great are the hopeful possibilities of rapidly improving export trade, the acquisition of the potash, iron and steel industries of Alsace-Lorraine and the gradual development of France's water-power possibilities.

The new source of electric power is estimated at 9,000,000 horse power, of which 750,000 horse power have been utilized and an additional 850,000 horse power will be producing during the coming year. Now that France is so short of coal, the powre question is regarded as among the most important, for each hydraulic horse power is considered equivalent to a ton of coal saved.

PUBLIC LIBRARY HOURS.

Holiday hours will be in force Labor Day, tomorrow, and Admission Day, Thursday, at the Public Library, it was announced yesterday. Reference and periodical departments at the main library will be open from 1 to 9 p.m. and all other departments will be closed.

if you had bought beach frontage in Long Beach a few years ago

One thing is certain, you would have made a lot of money. But why hark back to what would have happened if you had bought. Because you have a similar opportunity facing you today—an opportunity which does not require as much "vision" to see it as was necessary in the early history of Long Beach.

This opportunity is at

Alamitos Bay

The facts are present to prove the opportunity. You don't need to use any long distance vision binoculars to see what the Alamitos of the future is going to be. The census reports of every Southern California city adduces a conclusion which has no apparent alternative. Southern California must have larger facilities for seaside life and recreation. Our present still-water resorts are entirely inadequate to take care of even present demand. And what about the fuure?

It is generally recognized that Alamitos Bay is one of the best, if not the absolutely best located still-water yachting harbor in all Southern California. The reason it is not built up solid today is because the bay has not been deep enough for extensive yachting, and the bathing beaches have been undeveloped. But now this is in process of correction. The bay is being dredged to a depth of 30 feet. The building of a yacht club house has been announced, and the dream of the originators of Alamitos Bay is apparently about to be realized.

You can buy lots here now at ridiculously low prices—beautiful natural sand lots, within, at the most, 300 feet of either the bay or the ocean—and it seems inevitable that with the completion of the present dredging project, Alamitos property will skyrocket in value.

Come down Sunday or Labor Day. Observe how little there is of Alamitos property.

Visualize its close proximity to Long Beach, to Los Angeles, and other population centers.

There are some very excellent buys open right now in Ocean Front apartment-house sites — some real money makers. Let us show them to you.

Certainly the time to buy for maximum profit margin is now.

IRISH IGNORING BRITISH COURTS.

Volunteers Ordered to Prevent Judges' Sitting.

Cut Off Water Supply from Police Barracks.

Men of Military Age Asked to Train for Army.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

DUBLIN, Aug. 15.—Intensity of public sentiment in Ireland against British rule is evidenced by the actions of the recently elected Sinn Fein local councils. Westmeath County Council has decided that all the courthouses in the county shall be closed and the government officials resident in them evicted.

The Irish volunteers have been ordered to see that no judges are allowed to enter the buildings for the purpose of holding any courts not recognized by the Dail Eireann, or Republican Parliament. Some councils have passed resolutions to raise contributions for the maintenance of the republican army.

CUT OFF WATER SUPPLY.

At Claremorris, County Mayo, the local Council has adopted a resolution appealing to all Irishmen of military age to undergo a course of training in the republican army, and will not give any position in the service of the Council to men who have not undergone such training. In other places the local councils have decided to cut off the water supply from the police and military barracks. At Enniscorthy, County Wexford, where this was done, the authorities promptly hit back and the Council room was raided by police and soldiers.

PLAN TO ELECT JUDGES.

Meetings have just been held throughout Ireland for the purpose of selecting the judges who are to preside over the Sinn Fein parish courts. These courts have jurisdiction in all cases under £10 in value, and it is intended that their judges shall eventually be elected by the votes of the people in whose districts they operate.

Pending the organization of electoral machinery for the purpose they have been selected by a conference composed of the members of the Dail Eireann for the constituency, the members of the County Council, one clergyman of each denomination from each parish, the members of the urban and rural councils, one representative of each Sinn Fein club, one member of each company of volunteers, and one representative of each trades union body. The judges so selected are to act till December when there will be a regular election by ballot of the voters.

SOME COURTS SIT OPENLY.

At Limerick the police invaded a Sinn Fein court and seized the papers, but scores of courts are held every day and interference is not attempted because their time and place of meeting are usually kept secret except to the parties concerned. In some places, however, courts are held as openly as the King's courts.

MEXICAN PETROLEUM BOARD FUNCTIONING.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

In the effort to bring the government and the petroleum interests into closer relations, the latter will be permitted to attend the sessions of the board and present claims or give information, but without the power to vote.

Another of the announced purposes of the board, of which Gen. Trevino, Secretary of Industry, Commerce and Labor, is chairman, is the dissemination of information regarding the petroleum industry. The board has begun functioning.

DAILY TRADE TALK.

Week in Review; Holiday Observance; Stocks and Bonds.

BY CHAPIN HALL.

Two holidays, one thrust upon us and the other acquired, together with usual month-end adjustments somewhat slowed down activity in a few lines during the week, but following th resumption of business on Tuesday there will be a greater stirring about than has been evidenced since the early days of the summer.

The most encouraging signs of the week was the remarkable development of the building program, and the revived interest in the investment markets, together with a tendency towards somewhat easier credits, continued optimistic crop reports, a break in the sugar market, ready assimilation of increased railway and electric rates, growing volume of retail trade, increased export inquiry, announcement of new water carriers, and more liberal labor supply for ranch work, made the period one of satisfactory accomplishment.

At large the railroad situation is improving; freight is moving steadily and gross incomes are large. The tendency of prices in the wholesale markets to seek lower levels continues and in a few instances retail prices have been affected, although, it is to be admitted, this is scarcely noticeable in Los Angeles.

A GOOD SHOWING.

There has been a tendency—to over-accent the decline in cotton prices as an indication of an impending downward sweep. The European situation, while still complex, appears to be clearing somewhat and heavy payments will be made on obligations soon due this country by the Allied nations. The crop movement is practically financed, and the scope of this accomplishment reflects great credit upon the bankers of the country. There has been a slight increase in failures, but many of these difficulties were the result of sand foundations put in during the stress of unusual conditions and profits. The stable business of the country retains its stability, and while proceeding under reduced sail is making good progress towards Safe Harbor.

The high cost of living is still an active issue. Because of the high prices during the season of greatest supply storage stocks are not up to normal, and this will result in continued high prices for many staple articles throughout another winter. To offset this, however, wages remain high. Production is slowly gaining on demand, and by spring there should be material reductions with the trend between this time and a half-year hence downward. Government statistics show that meat production in this country for the first half of 1920 was millions of pounds less than normal.

CREDITS AND PRICES.

Bank credits continue extended, but this does not mean that deflation is not going on. Manufacturers are conducting their affairs cautiously and merchants are not inordinately building up their stocks. The recent declines in wool, silk, leather, rubber and sugar have had their effect upon business sentiment, and credit is not being so urgently sought as it was a few months ago. Rather it is being required for seasonal needs, to protect inventories and to gradually liquidate stocks on hand.

It has been suggested that if merchants would bring their inventories more in line with current business, taking losses boldly where necessary, they will face the future in far more comfortable positions than if they refuse until the last moment to liquidate, and they will, at the same time, materially contribute to a strengthening of the country's banking situation.

DOMESTIC PROBLEMS.

Domestic problems are being more clearly defined and there is evidence that we are approaching a period of increased confidence and hard work. Labor is displaying a better disposition to co-operate in the effort to overcome handicaps.

Financial statisticians admit that credit conditions have eased up during the month. There has been a liberal liquidation of commodities held from the market in the expectation of larger profits, and the release of these frozen credits has had its effect. The net result is that while there have been developments both favorable and unfavorable, fundamental influences on the whole are working toward normal readjustments.

HOLIDAY PERIOD.

While yesterday lacked official sanction it was a rather completely observed holiday in the financial district. Exchanges and many offices were closed. Banks, of course, observed the usual Saturday hours, but after noon the streets wore an almost Sunday aspect. Tomorrow, Labor Day, will be closely observed by Los Angeles and there will be no resumption of business activity until Tuesday.

TEXAS HOLDING COMPANY.

Los Angeles investors interested in the Texas Holding Company have been advised of a reported strike in No. 1 well in Young county, Tex. The Texas Holding Company has approximately 3000 acres of land between the Burkburnett and Ranger fields. No. 2 well in Throckmorton county has reached a depth of 800 feet, while the holdings in Ventura county are also being developed. These comprise 414 acres, ten miles northeast of the town of Ventura, and a part of the Senator Bard estate.

MINING CONSOLIDATION.

A mining consolidation that is creating some local interest is that of the Kaibab Smelting Company, the United Tungsten Copper Mines and the Union Metals Corporation. All are Arizona corporations. The consolidation has been effected during the past week and the new concern is reported to have a capital of $5,000,000. The head office will be in New York, with a branch in London and an office in Los Angeles from which the mining operations will be conducted. Garner & Company, Citizens National Bank Building, are said to be responsible for the consolidation.

NORFOLK BONDS OFFERED.

The Harris Trust and Savings Bank is offering $800,000 City of Norfolk, Va., one-year 6 per cent bonds, due September 1, 1921, at 99 1-4 and interest yielding over 6 3-4 per cent.

STOCK EXCHANGE BUSINESS.

There was a remarkable revival of interest in stocks dealt in on the floor of the Los Angeles exchange immediately after the first of the month, and in spite of the two holidays the business for the week showed a marked improvement. In volume 259,397 shares were traded in to a total value of $238,713.62. Four hundred and forty bonds changed hands during the same period, valued at $87,018.64.

PROTECTED FINANCING.

Monterey Oil Lands Syndicate, a local concern selling oil-bearing lands in Monterey and San Luis Obispo counties under an original plan of depositing Government bonds to the amount placed in escrow by the purchaser and giving him the right to take down either the land or the bonds within four years, has secured the Citizens Trust and Savings Bank to act as trustee. Six wells are down on an average of 1000 feet on adjacent locations surrounding the property. Two of the most active neighbors are the Shell Oil Company and the Carissa Oil Company, the latter headed by D. C. Jackling, the mining magnate, and Herbert Fleishhacker, president of the Great Western Power Company and the Anglo and London-Paris National Bank of San Francisco.

MILO IS FIRM; BARLEY DROPS TO WEAK CLOSE.

Milo remained firm, with some of the shipments showing a slight upward tendency during the session on the local grain exchange yesterday, but barley, in sympathy with the decline of the outside markets, reflected a weaker undertone for all deliveries. Milo moved up despite the fact that little interest was taken by traders in any of the shipments of this cereal, ten-day milo closing 25 cents per ton higher, while in the future months, October advanced to a close 50 cents per ton above preceding quotations. Ten-day barley held firm throughout the day, but other near-by deliveries were 25 to 50 cents per ton lower at the close, with two cars for twenty days' shipment selling at $2.25. Barley futures also moved downward to a weak close, September making a decline of 25 cents per ton, while December barley dropped 50 cents per ton. A car of spot Twin Falls white bran brought $64.

GRAIN MAKES SHARP DROP IN CHICAGO.

SEPTEMBER CORN LEADS DECLINE UNDER HEAVY LIQUIDATION.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—Heaviness in the cash grain markets was reflected in futures, especially in September corn and oats and December wheat. Prices were higher early but declined and closed well toward the inside of the day with a weak and distrustful feeling.

Closing trades were at losses of 1¾ to 2 cents on wheat. September corn lost 1⅛ cents while distant futures were ⅛ to ⅝ cent higher. Oats were off 1¼ cents for the near deliveries and ⅝ cent for May, while September rye is 2 cents lower and December up 1¼ cent and barley was 1 to 1½ cents lower for the day.

Liquidation was on in September deliveries of coarse grains all week and corn was off 7 cents with cash off 10 cents. Oats lost 3⅛ cents for September and about 3 cents for cash while deferred futures are ⅝ to 1 cent lower on corn and 1 to 2¾ cents off on oats, as compared with a week ago.

September rye is 2½ cents lower and December 3 cents higher while barley is ½ to 2⅝ cents lower, September leading.

September and cash corn declined rather sharply but failed to affect the new crop deliveries. There was scattered liquidation in the September and also selling of that delivery and buying of December by speculators which narrowed the difference to 18 cents at the last, against 21 cents Wednesday. Considerable evening up for the double holiday was under way at the last making the final rally.

Hedging pressure and stop-loss selling carried September oats off sharply. At one time it showed 2¾ cents under the blackboard quotation from the December, but a strong rally came and the finish was at 1 cent loss. The range:

UNDERTONE OF LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET FIRM

POTATOES WEAK AND UNSETTLED; PRICES AGAIN DROP 25 CENTS HUNDRED.

Quiet trading, together with a firm undertone for all lines of fruits and vegetables with the exception of potatoes, marked the session on the local produce market yesterday. Early country arrivals were in good supply, and for the most part of very good quality, but buying was active during the first hours of the day, with the result that the homegrown offerings were readily absorbed by the trade. The later morning arrivals were light, and there was little tendency for the market to weaken toward the close of the session. The carlot market for potatoes was still unsettled; buying was very small, the few sales which were recorded during the day made at around $2.75 per sack for best northern stock. To retailers, the market for Stockton Burbanks ruled around $3 per sack, a decline of 25 cents per hundred from previous quotations.

Peaches were slightly higher yesterday for good stock, which was in brisk demand throughout the day. Most of the offerings, however, were of poor quality, with the result that the ordinary run of the stock continued to rule around $2 to $2.25 per lug. Sales of fancy stock were made as high as $2.40 per box, however, an advance of 15 cents per lug over the prices of the preceding day. Watermelons moved up about a quarter of a cent per pound, although supplies were again liberal, and the demand was dull. Grapes continued in heavy supply, and the majority of the sales were transacted at Friday's price level, with only the extra fancy stock bringing a premium over the prevailing prices.

Back of this Bond—

The Personal Guarantee of J. Ogden Armour

One of the attractive features of the Sutter Basin Company Land Mortgage 8% Serial Gold Bonds is the unconditional guarantee of J. Ogden Armour, described in the legend on the back of every bond:

The payment of the principal and interest on this bond has been unconditionally guaranteed by J. Ogden Armour of Chicago, Ill., in accordance with a written undertaking and guarantee delivered to the Continental & Commercial Trust & Savings Bank of Chicago, as trustee, for the the holder of this bond.

Many of our clients are inclined to accept this guarantee as sufficient reason for investing their funds in this excellent bond.

But without the guarantee, this bond would be attractive. It is secured by a first mortgage on 55,122 acres of excellent, exceedingly productive soil whose value is conservatively placed at $17,000,000. The mortgage is preceded only by the Company's share in a reclamation assessment which amounts to $3,850,000. The entire assessment has been funded into a bond issue whose earliest maturity is after the last maturity of these bonds.

We unhesitatingly recommend this security as a sound and profitable investment for your surplus funds. If you have funds available or soon to become available, we shall gladly make reservation for you—without obligation. Call, write or phone for full information today.

A Tax Exempt Investment

In purchasing an irrigation district bond the following points should be considered, viz.: The character of the district; Adequacy of water supply; Class of settlers, and Proximity of markets and transportation facilities. The James Irrigation District meets each one of these tests to a full degree.

General Character of District.

The James Irrigation District comprises 26,648 assessable acres of rich, productive land 24 miles southwest of Fresno.

General Character of District

The soil is a rich sedimentary clay loam common to delta formations and is ideal for fruit raising and diversified farming. Several thousand acres are producing alfalfa which is always a factor of safety in any agricultural community, and in addition hog raising is engaged in extensively.

Adequacy of Water Supply.

Waters of the Kings River by gravity and waters of the San Joaquin by riparian rights are available for the District and are ordinarily ample. To absolutely insure irrigation at all times the District also owns and operates 37 artesian wells of 1000-foot depth. Some 53 shallow wells are now being drilled.

Class of Settlers.

Practically all the land of this District is owned by actual settlers who are developing it for more intensive cultivation. A majority of these land owners lived within 85 miles of the District and were therefore well equipped to know land values before purchasing here. Their holdings average forty acres each, which is considered the ideal farming unit under present labor conditions.

Proximity of Markets and Transportation.

The district is about equidistant from both the Los Angeles and San Francisco markets and is traversed by several paved county roads which connect directly with State arteries. The City of San Joaquin which is in the center of the District, is served by a branch of the Southern Pacific Railway.

• For these reasons we believe the 6% Serial Bonds of the James Irrigation District due 1928-42 are an excellent investment for your surplus funds. These bonds are exempt from California property taxes and the Federal Income Tax.

UNITED STATES
ENGLAND SOUTH AMERICA
A Triangle of Financial Strength

The wealth of these countries forms a tower of financial strength greater than the imagination of man! Yet by a curious temporary condition now existing it is possible to get the security of a prosperous, stable government and, with the return of the English pound to a basis of normal exchange, a bond yield far in excess of what is generally considered safe consistent with security.

Capitalization, $250,000

Wesley Roberts Building
Los Angeles, Cal.

This Company has perfected automatic machinery, and has in process of manufacture other machinery for the simplification and facilitation of the manufacture of violins, other musical instruments and their accessories.

The original source of supply of such products was eliminated by war conditions and there exists now a complete dearth of supplies. The foreign markets are without raw materials, labor and capital. We shall soon, aided by Automatic machinery and modern processes, be able to supply the world with a product better and more accurate than was ever before obtainable.

This Company was originally capitalized at $65,000 but because of the magnitude of the field available for our products we were compelled to increase and enlarge our original plans. The new capitalization is for $250,000.00. The stock is full paid and non-assessable.

We have a large stock of ebony, maple, spruce, cedar and other valuable woods and our machines are producing daily.

We are offering a limited amount of stock the proceeds of which are to be used in marketing our products.

This is an unequalled opportunity for investment.

SHIPPING BOARD BOATS FLEECED.

Defrauded by Sharp Practices in South America.

Find General Agreement to Mulct Vessels.

Necessary to Send Special Agent to Stop Practice.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 31.—The United States Shipping Board has been defrauded of many thousands of dollars through practices which amount to systematic fleecing of Shipping Board vessels in the River Plate trade, according to reports to the board by Capt. G. L. Carden, special representative of the Shipping Board Emergency Fleet in Buenos Aires.

Capt. Carden, accompanied by Capt. of Engineers L. C. Farwell, arrived here a month ago to take charge and protect the board's interests.

"When I arrived here," he said to the Associated Press correspondent, "ship chandlers, repair men and others connected with the shipping industry seemed to be in a general agreement to mulct the Shipping Board vessels to the limit.

"'The Shipping Board is rich,' they said. 'We will get what we can.' Accordingly, the board was charged for things not received and overcharged for things received until it became so obvious that I was ordered to this port to take charge. In receiving my orders I was told that, while the board appreciated the fact that expenses of all sorts were high in Buenos Aires and Montevideo, still, it felt that there must be something wrong when their vessels paid such prices, for instance, as $4 a pound for butter.

PREPARE FOR PLUCKING.

"It seems that the practice was, when a Shipping Board vessel appeared in the roads and signalled its desire to enter, for those who had hopes of selling the vessels supplies to prepare for a plucking of the golden goose. The result was that when the vessel cleared bills were presented to the steamship agents, and promptly paid, since it was Shipping Board money, for every conceivable item at prices based on nothing except a desire to obtain easy money.

"Our arrival put a quick and effective stop to all this. We now have all Shipping Board vessels calling at this port report directly to us, we alone having the right to authorize purchases of supplies or expenditures for repairs. All repairs at present must be made according to specification and under bond. Every bill must have my signature before it will be paid, and the result of this has been a saving of as much as 50 per cent on many items. Conditions formerly were so bad that I have even heard that in some cases food was thrown overboard in order to create a shortage so that purchases could be made."

SAVED $75,000 IN MONTH.

During the first four weeks of the supervision provided by the new arrangement it was officially estimated that a saving for the Shipping Board, which means for the United States government, of $50,000 for food alone and $25,000 for repairs was made. As a result of this campaign at least one arrest is expected when a certain ship arrives in New York.

There are twenty-three lines under the Shipping Board, which have vessels calling at ports in this jurisdiction. There are on an average twenty-two vessels on hand at all times. The average cost for maintaining these is from $1500 to $2000 each per day. Before the war an American vessel on the River Plate was a curiosity.

BOATS HELD BACK.

"Since the Shipping Board had no officers of its own to take charge of its vessels in ports throughout the world," continued Captain Carden, "it was usually necessary to intrust the care of its ships to established agencies. Many of these steamship agents had already for years been the representatives of foreign and possibly competing lines. The result has been that in many cases American vessels have been held back while other ships were given the preferences, causing the expenses of American ships to mount up through port charges and lost time.

"In all River Plate ports, losses from this source have been very great, as well as those through overcharges for supplies, repairs, and so forth. There is one case on record where an American ship was held up for months for repairs and charges totaling about $300,000 were piled up against her. But we are seeing to it now that Shipping Board vessels get into port and get away again without unnecessary delay. The saving to the Shipping Board from this undoubtedly will be several hundred thousand dollars annually.

AGENTS ARE WARNED.

"Agents who have the interests of other nationalities more at heart than American are coming to learn that they are not entitled to more than a legitimate profit from American vessels and must handle them efficiently if they want American business."

Captain Carden and his assistant, Captain Farwell, are officers of the United States Coast Guard, detailed on Shipping Board service. During the war Captain Carden was port captain of New York and had charge of loading more than 345,000,000 tons of high explosives, making a record, it is said, of never having had an accident or lost a man.

CITRUS REVIEW OF WEEK.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 4.—The peak of the high prices on Valencias has been reached. The demand shows a slackening up due principally to the high prices Valencias have commanded at this particular season when local eastern fruits are in liberal receipt.

F.o.b. trading has not picked up since the freight rate advance went into effect on August 26. Buyers had a real opportunity to save money before the advance went into effect and were not slow in placing orders. It is expected that it will be another two weeks before f.o.b. trading will again be resumed.

September 1 estimates show 2000 cars of Valencias remaining for shipment. Last season, shipments were liberal during September, October and November with over 500 cars for December and a small carry-over in January.

Reports on the new crop of navels are being cut down somewhat and there is some doubt as to whether the crop will equal that of the 1916-17 season which was the heaviest season on record. Central California orchards are showing up more fruit than early estimates indicated and best-posted authorities look for an increase of 30 per cent in the crop over last year.

LEMONS.

The market on lemons continues slow with trading on a hand-to-mouth basis only.

F.o.b. quotations remain on a basis of $2.75 to $3.25 per box.

There are 15,000 boxes of foreign lemons on hand and available for sale in the next thirty days.

A sale of 4700 boxes foreign lemons at New Orleans this week averaged $2.25 per box.

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—The turn into September was attended by signs of a change for the better, not only in the speculative position of the securities market, but also in the investment situation. The latter phase was indicated mainly by the general advance of underlying railroad bonds, many of which kept pace with the broader demand for shares of recently reorganized properties.

Rails of the class recognized as prime favorites in the prewar period, notably dividend payers of the Pacific and granger groups, also strengthened, some mounting to the highest quotations of the year. Money rates seemed to justify recent opinions of leading financial interests that credits and general business are likely to manifest better tendencies in the last quarter of the year. A large part of the week's call money was offered at 6 per cent.

Nonessential loans were under continuous scrutiny, however, not only by the Federal Reserve Board, but also by private banks at leading centers of trade and industry. This tended to restrict new buying and caused additional curtailment of production in steels, equipments and affiliated specialties.

Carson Well No. 2—located by a prominent geologist—is within approximately three thousand feet of the Hawthorne mighty gasser, Carson Well No. 1, now drilling, is located on the Dominguez lease, within four miles of this mighty gasser.

Positively Last Offering Initial Stock at 50c Per Share

The famous HAWTHORNE GAS WELL—broke loose a second time on Saturday, September 4th, and repeated its operation of Friday, August 13th. Thousands witnessed its mighty gas flow—many of the stockholders of the CARSON OIL CORPORATION—which has an adjacent lease—were on the ground to witness this inspiring sight.

THE CARSON OIL CORPORATION has 863 acres in leases in the Redondo Oil Field, including a valuable lease adjacent to the Hawthorne well.

The Company has already started two wells—Well No. 1 is now operating on the company's Dominguez Lease. The lumber is now being put on the ground for Well No. 2—adjacent to the Hawthorne Gas Well.

What this gas well is worth is shown by the statement in the El Segundo Herald of August 20th—"At the minimum estimate is $62,500 per day, and at a maximum estimate, $125,000 per day."

NO WONDER THE SHARES OF THE HAWTHORNE WELL ARE SAID TO BE SELLING FOR TEN FOR ONE TODAY.

A prominent geologist, who has just made a report for the Carson Oil Corporation, makes the statement that there will be a forest of derricks surrounding the Hawthorne well.

WRITE FOR THIS REPORT—also a reprint from the El Segundo Herald, and our big colored map of the REDONDO OIL FIELDS.

CANNIBALS ONCE LIVED IN TEXAS.

Former Inhabitants Were Semi-Nomad Tribes.

Bones of Humans Are Found Split for Marrow.

Probably Followed by Indian and Other Races.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

AUSTIN (Tex.) Sept. 1.—In an age of the dim and distant past a race of cannibals inhabited the greater part of the region that is now embraced in the State of Texas, according to anthropological discoveries that were recently made by Dr. J. Walter Fewkes, head of the bureau of ethnology of the Smithsonian Institution, and J. E. Pearce, professor of anthropology at the University of Texas.

These early and prehistoric inhabitants lived a nomad-like existence, roaming from one part of the wilderness to another and killing, with rude stone weapons, members of their own race for food. In discussing the results of research work made by him and Dr. Fewkes Prof. Pearce said:

"The life history of these people has been read from the records they left in their burned-rock mounds of kitchen middens. These mounds are piles of broken and charred bits of limestone three or four feet high and sometimes as long as 100 feet. They are made up of the kitchen refuse of these prehistoric peoples, who had regular camp sites at frequent intervals along the Edwards Plateau, extending from Austin westward to New Mexico.

"These people evidently were advanced to the stage of paleolithic culture, an earlier age than the period of neolithic culture, to which most of the American Indians belong. These early Texas inhabitants had arrows and spears tipped with flint points, chipped, but not polished. They did not polish their stone weapons, nor did they engage in any form of agriculture. They were, however, skillful skin dressers, for we have found skin scraping tools made of flint.

"The kitchen middens which we discovered are the only thing of their kind in America, so far as I know, although they have been found in other parts of the world. At these sites, camps were located with a great fireplace in the center over which huge slabs of limestone were placed as a sort of primitive stove upon which to cook the meat the inhabitants killed.

"We know these people were cannibals, for among the refuse heaps have been found human bones split apart in order to get at the marrow.

DEERS WERE COMMON.

"The soft limestone slabs, being exposed to the weather, broke from time to time and were cast aside near by, to be replaced by new ones.

"In the course of our investigations we have completely examined some fifteen of these mounds and in them have found thousands of splendid specimens of chipped arrow and spear heads, as well as scraping tools and other implements. Bones of the deer which were prevalent in this region are found in profusion, indicating that this was the principal article of diet."

The report of the investigation is to be published by the Smithsonian Institution. The University of Texas will retain possession of a collection of material unearthed. This will form, Prof. Pearce said the nucleus for a museum in anthropology.

When the present investigation on the Edwards Plateau has been concluded work will be started upon the "funeral mounds" in East Texas, which are the work of an entirely different race of people, according to Prof. Pearce. These people, he said, lived in a later period. Their pottery and polished weapons have been found in the mounds.

CLEAN-UP AGAINST RUSTLERS STARTED.

ARGENTINE GAUCHOS MAKE VIGOROUS RAIDS ON COW THIEVES'S HAUNTS.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 7.—Vigorous raids on the haunts of cattle rustlers by round-up parties representing ranch owners and the authorities are making clandestine brand changing as unpopular on the pampas as it became on the plains of the North American West with "the coming of the law."

In a round-up just completed by officers and ninety-eight gauchos, as the herd-riding and taciturn brothers of the Texas cowmen are called, 2000 head of cattle have been recovered with brands that showed signs of "funny work."

This was in the province of Buenos Aires, the most populous of the Argentine provinces. From the less-settled provinces also there come from time to time reports of rustling and summary punishments that lead one to think of the old Wyoming or Idaho days. The rolling pampas of Argentina, scarcely ever broken by the sight of a tree, have had much the same history as the North American Western plains.

In past years, especially in the more distant provinces, the cattle rustler at times flourished. One picturesque outcome of this in the past was the effort of the Welsh colonies among the foothills of the Andes, of Patagonia to set up an independent authority because rustling was not put down by the government.

EXERCISES PLANNED FOR ADMISSION DAY.

Exercises commemorating Admission Day, which is the seventieth anniversary of California's admission to Statehood, will be held Thursday at Trinity Auditorium under the auspices of the Orders of Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West.

Among the speakers will be Edwin A. Meserve, chairman; Mayor Snyder, Phillip I. Carey of Berkeley and John S. McGroarty. Patriotic and civic organizations have been invited by Robert L. Hanley, in charge of arrangements, to attend.

Observance of Admission Day also will be extended to public schools, State, city and county offices, banks and many business houses.

ACTION

Action is the watchword; Action, energy, life, and a determination to win for its stockholders the greatest possible gains are the words that characterize the directorate of SOUTHERN COUNTIES OIL COMPANY.

Development of the immense holdings of Southern Counties Oil Company will begin as soon as material is delivered. Mr. Kuck, the President of this Company, is in daily conference with oil mining men, lumber and oil mining machinery dealers.

Brilliant Prospects

That the holdings of Southern Counties Oil Company will prove wonderful money makers for its stockholders is the opinion of the best geologists, the most experienced oil men and other careful students of such matters. Among the most enthusiastic believers in the development of the lands of this Company, is Mr. William Stephens, who says: " . . . YOU MAY EXPECT PRODUCERS OF THE LARGE 'GUSHER' TYPE, RUNNING INTO THOUSANDS OF BARRELS." Now, Mr. Stephens' opinion is worth while. His predictions as to the quality of land for oil development are usually borne out by the final facts.

Immediate Income

One of the sensations in oil circles was the recent resolution by the Board of Directors of Southern Counties Oil Company, to devote any production over 100 barrels per day, 50% to dividends, 50% to further development of its holdings.

This is in pleasant contrast to the usual procedure of other oil companies, who use their ENTIRE production for development. The directors of Southern Counties Oil Company feel that the production from the lands of this Company will be so plentiful that 50% will be ample for development. Thus, as soon as oil flows in the above amount, the Stockholders in Southern Counties Oil will immediately benefit financially.

DETROIT (Mich.) Sept. 2.—Automobile export demand for the fiscal year is nine times greater than the [illegible] mark. Records for the fiscal year 1920 just ended show that automobiles and parts of automobiles valued at $232,252,376 were shipped to foreign countries.

The demand for American machines brought with it a corresponding demand for equipment. The value of automobile tires exported during the fiscal year 1920 was $39,-[illegible], as compared with $22,630,-[illegible] the year before. The total of automobile engines shipped was 39,-[illegible] valued at $6,070,449 compared with [illegible],445, valued at $4,434,244, the year before.

MOTOR CARS FOR BUSINESS USAGE.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—A New [illegible] banking firm recently investigated sales of motor cars to [illegible] buyers. It was shown that to [illegible] per cent of the buyers the automobile is a business necessity. All of these 9368 buyers, it was found, were purchasing their automobiles on time payments. Of the remaining [illegible] per cent only a few cars were being used exclusively for pleasure, the remainder being used at least a part of the time for business. [illegible] of conditions points to the conclusion that at least 90 per cent of all automobiles are in use at least a part of the time for business purposes.

Scores of Machines Lined Up for Sociability Run Around the Rim of the World.

To Test Beauties of Big Bear Country.

A hypsographic sketch by Charles H. Owens of the route to be followed by the sociability caravan of motor car dealers and owners which will trek into the Big Bear country next Saturday. Three days will be spent on the Rim of the World jaunt and special preparations have been made all along the line for the accommodation of the Los Angeles motorists. The photographs above are of Big Bear and Little Bear lakes, both of which will be included on the sociability route.

SWING ON SINISTER SHADOW

Auto Club Out to Obtain Conviction of All Motor Stealing Bandits.

There is a sinister shadow hereabouts into which auto thieves flee to escape the law.

Sometimes, according to detectives of the Automobile Club of Southern California, the thieves are thrust into it and thus evade jail sentences of any kind.

REGAIN PROMINENCE.

Auto thefts in August regained their pristine prominence here with the stealing of 134 cars, of which seventy-two have been recovered, leaving about $62,900 worth of cars lost to owners.

This marks the beginning of the fatal winter season in automobile thief circles, says the Auto Club, and from this time on motorists have to be on their toes, or even their garages will be stolen along with the cars. However, there is a ray of hope in the fact that during August of last year there were 172 machines taken in Los Angeles.

ALL A MISTAKE.

A mistaken sense of pity on the part of owners here in refusing to prosecute thieves after they have been pinched and the car recovered is the sinister shadow to which the club's theft bureau refers.

Two auto owners in the past month have been so kind hearted that when they got their cars back they declined to prosecute the young thieves, who, for lack of a witness against them, were turned out of jail and allowed to run loose again to do as they please about stealing other machines.

RELIEVED GLANCE.

For the most part, it is pointed out by the authorities, auto thieves are young and innocent appearing, and an auto owner is so glad to get his car back that he casts a relieved glance at Little Lord Fauntleroy auto thief, with his curly locks and his big blue eyes, and asks that the dicks let him go, fondly hoping that he will sin no more. But baby blue eyes, say the club detectives, has no thought of not sinning any more.

In fact, he can hardly wait until he gets out on the street to sin as hard as he can by stealing the car belonging to the neighbor of the kind-hearted person who gave him his sinless liberty.

LITTLE EVIDENCE.

Another poignant difficulty in securing the conviction of auto thieves in this bailiwick is the presentation of e vidence. It is pointed out that murderers are often given life sentences or are hung, all on

NEED FOR CARE IN EXPORT BUSINESS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Great care will be necessary in the next two or three years in handling European export business, according to Samuel A. Miles, show manager of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, who has returned from abroad. The English and French are keen for American cars, are buying them now at abnormally high prices and probably will continue to do so. Establishment of new agencies and upbuilding of new business during the next two or three years will be attended by risks and should be undertaken only by concerns of unquestioned financial standing.

AN AUTOMOBILE FOR EVERY TEN PEOPLE.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CLEVELAND, Sept. 2.—In Ohio there is one automobile for every ten inhabitants. This information is set forth in a report just issued by the Department of Agriculture, which contains the following Ohio auto statistics:

Autos registered in 1919, 511,031; per cent of increase over 1918, 23.8; miles of public rural roads, 87,000; road miles per square mile, 2.1; motor cars per mile of public rural road, 5.9.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BUFFALO, Sept. 2.—G. M. Graves has been appointed assistant sales manager of the Stewart Motor Corporation. He was formerly connected with Pierce-Arrow.

FEW INDICATIONS OF GLOOM

Motor Car Sales During Month of August Show Consistent Growth.

BY WARDE FOWLER.

Investigations being conducted through the various automobile centers of the East show that manufacturers are well satisfied with the general trend of the industry. Indications are that the motor car situation is very similar to the general business situation all over the country. Both have been developing in a satisfactory manner during the past month, although this does not mean that present conditions are all that could be desired.

TOWARD NORMAL.

"The general trend has been toward normal and permanent conditions," according to a statement of the National City Bank of New York, "and existing disorders at present are no greater than might be expected in accomplishing the adjustments that are necessary."

Although there is a better feeling in banking circles as to the credit situation many manufacturers believe that the end of the period of free and easy handling of "automobile paper" by the banks will eventually result in the establishment of the motor industry upon a more stable basis than ever before.

ON CLOSER LINES.

Being faced with the necessity of doing business along closer lines the business will now plant it's feet upon solid rock and conduct itself in the more conservative way of older industries, the manufacturers stated. The resultant stability will be a condition that could only have been attained by "going through the fire."

The fact that the railroad situation has improved decidedly during the past month and gives promise of continued betterment is an added reason for optimism in automotive circles.

This feeling of general satisfaction in Eastern motor car manufacturing centers is reflected directly in the automobile industry in Los Angeles.

According to figures given out yesterday by the Auto List Company, motor car registrations in Los Angeles city for the month of August exceed all other months with one single exception. In other words, August, which is supposed to be a rather quiet period in the automotive industry, has gone ahead of

MAXWELL REPORT SHOWS EARNINGS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DETROIT, Sept. 2.—Maxwell Motor Company's report for the fiscal year ended July 31, last, is expected to show net earnings of about $4,250,000 after all charges except depreciation and Federal tax provisions. In the preceding year net earnings were $3,229,000, but they were reduced to net profits of $1,529,500, or $11.64 a share on the first preferred stock, after deduction of $930,000 depreciation, $600,000 reserve for contingencies and $170,000 reserve for Federal taxes.

Depreciation for the year just closed is not likely to be so heavy. Allowing $500,000 for it, eliminating the net profits after all charges, for the year ended July 31, 1920, should approximate $3,500,000 or $27 a share on the first preferred stock.

BIG BEAR TRIP DRAWS A CROWD

Scores Enter Sociability Run Over Rim of World.

Dealers and Owners Alike Are Included in Line-up.

Special Preparations Being Made for the Caravan.

At the unholy hour of [illegible] o'clock next Saturday [illegible] the Rim of the World sociability run will pull out from in front of the Automobile Club of Southern California with much grinding of gears and racing of motors. A hundred cars, loaded to the roof with sociable motorists, are expected to be in the line, and none of them are expected to return to Los Angeles until some time Monday. Three days of driving and tramping around the mountain region back of the orange groves will make anybody sociable that isn't feeling that way when they start out.

THE DIRECTIONS.

From the Figueroa-street headquarters of the club the caravan will proceed in the general direction of San Bernardino where, after a brief stop, the cars leave the much traveled highways of the citrus district for the mountain road leading to Little Bear Lake. Reasonably good traveling should bring the caravan to the Little Bear resort before 1 o'clock and luncheon will be served on the edge of the lake at that time.

After lunch those who can't digest their meals without exercise or who like to shake the festive shimmy for other reasons, will be allowed to scud around the floor at Little Bear to the inspiring music of the high altitude orchestra. For those who like sea travel, trips on the lake have been arranged to take up the time before a start is made for Big Bear.

THE NEXT STOP.

Big Bear will be reached at about 6 o'clock the same evening and there will be big doings there with a new dance hall, lots of music and those huge, welcome bonfires that seem to go so well with the big, wild country of the San Bernardinos. Sunday morning will be a wonderful time to explore the whole country around the lake and excursions into the interior and motor-launch trips have been scheduled for the visitors. Then there is a barbecue arranged for Sunday afternoon before the trip down Mill Creek Canyon to Forest Home, where the caravan will stay until Monday morning. All hotel accommodations have been arranged at Big Bear so that everybody will be conveniently fixed up and the rates are being made especially attractive.

The time for leaving Big Bear will be about 2:30 p.m., which will bring the party through the 3:30 control and into Forest Home in good time for dinner.

RAH FOR FRANK!

Frank Culver, who is so well known to many Los Angeles people, has assured the run his best possible hospitality to make it a record-breaker for enjoyment and will provide one of his special dinners Sunday night.

Anyone desiring to leave Forest Home after dinner, in order to reach Los Angeles earlier than the rest of the party, will have the opportunity to do so, although it is anticipated that, with the orchestra jazzing at this resort, there will be very few who can resist lingering. There is a mighty good time in store for Drops Over from Chicago in a Liberty Six.

George Schnurstein checked in at the McKelvey Motor Sales Company last week after an enjoyable trip cross-country from Chicago. Mr. Schnurstein had nothing but praise for the performance of the Liberty six, but did register a kick on prices charged for grub in the Yellowstone National Park.

CLUB WALLOPS MOTOR THIEVES.

circumstantial evidence which, however, is so weighty that it must be given credence or a dangerous criminal turned loose on a helpless public.

With auto thieves this does not work. Even if the thief is caught with the goods and several other very damaging facts appear, he doesn't get the jug, or even a taste of it, unless direct evidence is produced by those concerned in running such offenders to earth.

BRIGHT BEACON.

One of the brightest beacons shining through the fog of defeated justice hereabouts so far as auto thief convictions is concerned, points out the theft bureau, is the recent conviction in the case of one young man who was given from one to fourteen years in the pen by a local court for embezzling a car belonging to Richard Parsons of this city.

This conviction was secured after some special detective work by Officer Harry Hickok of the Auto Club, who returned the man to Los Angeles from Cheyenne, Wyo., whither he had chased him. Co-operation given in the prosecution by Mr. Parsons proved to be an example of note to all owners who allow a mistaken sense of pity to dull their appetite for justice, points out the club.

To date this year there have been 952 automobiles stolen in Los Angeles, of which 719 have been recovered. During all of last year there were 1120 machines stolen, of which 928 were recovered. Private rented garages still serve thieves as hiding places for stolen cars, say the police.

MOWDER NOW WITH HANDLEY KNIGHT.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

KALAMAZOO, Sept. 2.—F. L. Mowder has been appointed comptroller of the Handley Knight Company. He comes from the Toledo Scale Company, where he held a like position. During the war he acted as accountant in charge of the financial division on cantonment construction, following which he was financial representative of the Air Nitrates Corporation of Toledo.

COSTS MONEY TO EAT IN THE YELLOWSTONE.

MOTOR CAMPERS ADVISED TO BUY SUPPLIES BEFORE STARTING ON TRIP.

Motorists who are anticipating a trip into one of the national parks will do well to purchase an ample supply of edibles before entering the park—that is, if they have any regard for the coin of the realm. For, according to numerous reports, foodstuffs in our scenic playgrounds are to be secured only upon the payment of a king's ransom.

Corroborating these reports is the information given by George Schnurstein of Chicago, who recently checked in at the McKelvey Motor Sales Company at the conclusion of a lengthy jaunt in a Liberty six that carried him through several national forests. Especially are exorbitant prices for table supplies to be found in the Yellowstone National Park, where, says the Chicagoan, tinned goods retail at double and even treble their usual market value.

Schnurstein set out from the Windy City early in June, traveled up into Canada, and returning south to Minneapolis, headed the Liberty towards Yellowstone Park, over the trail bearing its name. Among his equipment was a log chain which he found invaluable in helping unfortunate fellow-travelers out of the mud along the route into the park. Having been forewarned, he bought his provisions before entering the Yellowstone portals—a precaution he found no cause to regret. Speaking of the scenery en route, Schnurstein asserts that the country between Cody and the park equals in scenic beauty the territory within the boundaries of the park itself.

Leaving the Yellowstone, the Chicagoan went into the Mt. Rainier National Park, and he still carries upon his windshield the insignia of the two parks. Thence he made his way to Los Angeles, arriving here with a meter reading 5400 miles traveled since Leaving Chicago. The Liberty was handled with such ease, he said, that he averaged 160 to 200 miles a day without any strain upon himself.

BIG BEAR TRIP DRAWS CROWD.

BACK HOME.

After breakfast Monday morning the entrants will leave for Los Angeles, passing through Redlands on the way, having rounded out a distance of some 230 miles through a country teeming with interest and enjoyment. This trip is at any time an education in itself and when it is connected with organized enjoyment it is hard to imagine anything better.

Entries will be received addressed to the General Manager, Motor Car Dealers' Association 1344 South Figueroa street, at any time, and everybody is invited who can enter a car. There is no charge of any kind for the entry. Everyone is urged to send in their names and the size of their party at the earliest date and all entries must be received by the evening of Wednesday, Sept. 8.

All organizations interested in automobile activities are co-operating to make the run a huge success and it is felt that the motoring public will respond heartily.

QUESTIONNAIRE PROVES UTILITY OF AUTOMOBILE

MERCHANTS, MANUFACTURERS AND PROFESSIONAL MEN LEAD AS OWNERS.

Practical everyday use of the automobile has been strikingly proved by the return from a questionnaire just completed by the Liberty Motor Car Company of Detroit. The questionnaire, sent out to many thousands of Liberty owners, was conducted in part to determine the utility of the car. The reports showed that there is practically no one using the automobile primarily for pleasure and that almost all owners consider the automobile as part of their necessary business equipment.

Nearly one-third of the replies came from merchants, who absolutely need the automobile to conduct their business with efficiency. They need the auto to get from their suburban homes to their offices and they motor about the city on business trips. One business man reports that he has to make six business calls during one day of the week. Using the street cars he can cover only three of the places during calling hours, but with the motor car he can cover all six and have time to spare.

Professional men make up one of the largest groups of those represented in the replies to the Liberty questionnaire. Physicians have trebled the area they cover by use of the auto. Lawyers and dentists also find the motor car indispensable in their business.

WHAT KEEPS AIR IN THE CASING?

Motorists are often puzzled to know what keeps the air in the tire. A sensitive little mechanism commonly called the plunger and strong enough to hold back air pressures as high as 70 to 125 pounds to the square inch, functions here. This little valve, which consists of a plunger about an inch long, a bit of spring and rubber, is responsible for the well-being of the tire.

It is located inside the valve stem, and seats against a treaded metal core. It should never be removed unless absolutely necessary. When it is taken out, it should not be replaced unless all the parts are in perfect working order, according to Miller tire men.

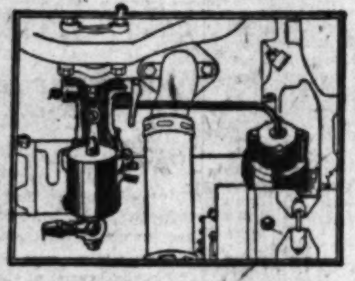
SAXON

Duplex engineering

—double oil control for double work

Motor speed and motor work are two distinct functions—double duties forced upon every motor.

Saxon does both efficiently, because it has two oil-controls operating within the motor. In addition to the conventional control, which supplies oil only according to motor speed, Saxon also has a patented automatic vacuum control, which supplies oil according to actual work—regardless of motor speed.



Duplex Lubrication —another Saxon advantage

Saxon

This is the scientific principle of Duplex Engineering (for Duplex means double) as applied to Saxon's motor. This double control enables Saxon to meet every lubrication demand. It avoids under-lubrication when the motor is pulling through deep sand at slow speed and over-lubrication when the motor is skimming along the boulevard at high speed.

Every vital factor of the Saxon motor, every important feature of the chassis is Duplex. When you see these patented features in our showroom, and hear them explained, you will realize why Saxon is two years ahead of present standards.

Upon request we will gladly send you "Brass Tacks," an interesting and informative booklet containing the story of Duplex Engineering

Horse Team Hauling Gets Knock-out at Riverside

Every time the motor truck and the old-time horse team meet in an economical hauling setto, the truck always scores a knockout.

After careful study and some hesitation as to the practical economy of such a step, the Street Department of the City of Riverside recently purchased a Moreland truck and utility trailer.

They were put to work hauling rock, gravel, cement, sand, etc., and careful records kept for purposes of comparison with horse hauling.

The Department finds they can haul as much with this truck and trailer as seven teams were able to haul on short distance work, or as much as ten teams on long distance.

With the present cost of teams they figure an easy saving of from $50 to $75 a day in favor of the truck.

There's only one moral attached to that story.

The truck and trailer are shown in the picture herewith.

Complete stocks of parts for Moreland trucks, also for other trucks using standard units, are instantly available at all Moreland service stations. See what Moreland Service means.

Has Your Truck a Family Tree?

Do you know anything about the antecedents of the truck you now own or are thinking of buying?

Motor trucks are products of development. The pedigreed horse is the one you'd bet your money on. The dog of a prize-winning lineage gets the blue ribbon. It takes a university education to train a college president.

Motor Trucks Never Are Prodigies

They can't be "born wonders," or any kind of marvels. They have to be the outgrowth of years of experience.

In 1898 the first American motor truck was built. It was a MACK. Production then was very slow and limited. Every truck had to be made by "hand" and up to 1904 only 20 had been built. In 1905 the MACK factory was established at Allentown, Pa. Every year since 1898 successful manufacturing experience has been built into MACK trucks. No other truck has a history comparable to the MACK'S.

SCHUMACHER WALL BOARD CO. OF CALIFORNIA
SCHUMACHER WALL BOARD CO

Keep in Touch with Dealers by Trucks.

One of a fleet of several White trucks owned and operated by the Schumacher Wall Board Company of California. Prompt deliveries of this company's products was essential and they selected the Whites to do the work.

MOTOR TRUCKS GIVE PROMPT SHIPMENTS.

BUSINESS CONCERNS FINDING THEM ESSENTIAL FOR EFFICIENT OPERATION.

The products of the wheels of commerce revolving in Los Angeles are increasing in the world-wide scope of their market in many lines of manufacture, from the heaviest machinery to the lightest toy and bric-a-brac. Building material finds its place in this category and the Schumacher Wall Board Company of California, manufacturers of Schumacher's wall board, is playing a leading role in supplying demands in this direction.

Foreseeing the essential role of automotive transportation in modern business, the officers of the Schumacher company took the initiative to keep abreast in the field by employing motor trucks in assisting their dealers in receiving prompt shipments, so that quick, effective distribution might be made. To this end various makes of motor trucks were given the test of service and a careful analysis made of the entire situation, which resulted in the decision to standardize entirely upon Whites, because they were found to give the greatest amount of service at the least operating cost. Today the White equipment brings the dealer closer to the Schumacher factory with an effectiveness which means the essence of prompt delivery and that in turns spells increased business through satisfied dealers and customers.

MOTOR PRODUCTION STILL INCREASING.

Manufacturing conditions are better today in the big eastern automobile centers than they have been for months, according to advices received this week by the W. P. Herbert Company, Chandler and Cleveland distributors for Southern California.

"A letter received last week from the Cleveland factory informed us that Cleveland production had touched a mark of as high as 120 cars per day," said Don Smith, general manager for the W. P. Herbert Company, yesterday. In view of the big demand for Cleveland cars that has existed here since the first Cleveland was shipped to Southern California, this enlarged production is very encouraging to us.

"A new addition to the Cleveland factory which has recently been completed has given access to additional floor space, and with the greater manufacturing facilities now at the command of the factory it is probable that the next few months will see even the present high production mark materially bettered."

NEW SOURCES OF INCOME.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO (Ill.) Sept. 2.—General Motors Corporation derives most of its revenue from the manufacture and sale of passenger automobiles, comprising six divisions—Buick, Cadillac, Chevrolet, Oakland, Oldsmobile and Scripps-Booth. In addition the company turns out motor trucks, farm tractors, agricultural implements, refrigerating machines and electric house-lighting systems. It also has a substantial interest in a number of automobile accessory manufacturing concerns.

That General Motors is planning to greatly increase its income from sources other than passenger automobile business is indicated in the company's activities in the development of its various other enterprises.

On a sixty-acre site at Grand Rapids, purchased early this year, two new plants will be located. One plant will be used for the manufacture of Sunny Home electric lighting systems and the other for turning out frigid air iceless refrigerators. No details have been made known as to the size of the production scheduled for electric power plants, but it is planned to ultimately increase present output of less than 30,000 refrigerators a year to 100,000 a year, as demand greatly exceeds output. Average price of these refrigerators is $400, representing a gross business of $40,000,000 a year on the basis of 100,000 machines. This is equivalent to nearly half of the annual gross sales of General Motors in the three years preceding 1915.

Delco Light Company of Dayton, O., another new division of General Motors Corporation, has the largest factory in the world devoted exclusively to the production of electric light and power equipment for individual use. The Delco light is a more expensive system than the Sunny Home. The foreign department of the Delco light has become a part of General Motors Export Company, and it is planned to cover intensively practically all the civilized world. Export sales already have extended until today there are 125 distributing points established outside the United States.

ENJOYS POLICE ESCORT.

Returning from a trip to San Diego last week in the interests of the Daniels eight, W. Sterling Hebbard of the firm of Hall-Hebbard enjoyed the experience of being chaperoned all the way across Orange county by a vigilant motor cop. Just what was the object of the cop's solicitude, Hebbard never learned, but he is not strong for such personally-conducted tours.

"I crossed the Orange county line below Capistrano about 5 o'clock in the evening," said Hebbard last week. "Right away the cop came out of his place of concealment and trailed in behind me. I was not exceeding the limit, but he must have figured the Daniels looked like speed.

"Anyhow, that bird trailed me clear across the county. I stopped several times, and he stopped. I slowed down to fifteen miles an hour and so did he. Most of the time he kept about twenty-five feet behind me, and we rode in that fashion from below Capistrano to north of Anaheim. We made quite a procession, and I suppose the natives figured I had some sort of a personal body guard trailing me. I'm frank to tell you, though, that it got my goat before we reached the county line."

Hebbard reports much interest in the Daniels in San Diego. He declares San Diego has at last paved every foot of the road within the city limits and that a short stretch of dirt road near La Jolla is the only remaining bit of highway without pavement between Los Angeles and San Diego.

NO SIGNS OF GLOOM FOUND.

practically all others in new car registrations.

Fifteen hundred new cars were registered in the city alone compared to a scale of from 600 to 1400, during the other months of the year.

BETTER SHIPMENTS.

Increased shipments of motor cars to the Pacific Coast during the summer months has enabled many distributors to catch up with back orders and to be in a position to give immediate deliveries on many models. The automobile shortage which existed a few months back, is rapidly being relieved although there are at the present time many dealers who still have orders on file which are far ahead of possible deliveries.

Statements from several representative dealers of Los Angeles on business conditions during August give an idea of the automobile situation in this city.

DECIDED INCREASE.

B. L. Graves, branch manager for the Ford Motor Car Company for Los Angeles, gave some interesting statistics on Ford sales in Los Angeles for August. "Increase in Ford sales for August, 1920, over August, 1919, has been approximately 250 per cent," said Mr. Graves. "Of course shipments are coming through in much better time from the factory than they were a year ago. But this is not entirely responsible for our gain in sales. August has shown a consistant growth over other months of this year as well as over last. Reported slumps in sales can hardly be varified by this growth."

"August has been the biggest month that Studebaker has ever had in Southern California," according to Paul G. Hoffman of the Paul G. Hoffman Company. "We have sold and delivered more new machines than in any month we have been in the automobile business. Increasing shipments and a steadily growing demand has made this record possible. We still have unfilled orders on hand and the prospects for the coming months are more than satisfactory."

Don Smith, general manager of the W. P. Herbert Company, Chandler and Cleveland distributors, was likewise emphatic in declaring the thirty days just closed to have recorded a new high mark for sales for both lines, which his company represents. "More Chandlers were delivered in August in Southern California than in any month during all the years that Chandlers have ben sold here. Cleveland sales likewise exceeded all previous records for a thirty-day period."

BEST EVER.

Fred Albertson of the Albertson Motor Company, and president of the Motor Car Dealers' Association of Los Angeles reports that August has been the biggest month in Dodge sales, not only for Los Angeles, but for the whole country. "There has never been a month in the history of the Dodge Brothers organization that has equaled this one. Sales throughout the country have been greater than at any time during the six years this company has been making cars. And unfilled orders for Dodge cars on file in our offices, lead us to believe that September will beat August," said Mr. Albertson.

H. J. Coger of the Troy Motor Sales Company, stated that the month just past exceeded in delivery and sales of new Nash cars any similar month in the history of the Troy organization.

NOT ENOUGH.

"Our Hupmobile sales have been governed merely by the number we received," according to P. H. Greer of the Greer-Robbins Company. "We are using every means in our power to get more cars for Los Angeles and are shipping by water and resorting to drive-aways of considerable distances, to increase shipments to this city. There has not been an unsold Hupmobile on our floors for two years, and there are no indications now that there will be any in the immediate future."

L. V. Starr of the J. W. Leavitt & Co., Oldsmobile distributors, says that August has been one of the best months of 1920, with sales and deliveries reaching record proportions.

TRUCK SALES GOOD.

Gilbert Woodill of the Pacific Motors Corporation, reports truck sales particularly good during the month just past, and motor car deliveries well up to normal

H. W. Tuttle of the Howard Automobile Company, announced that August sales for Buicks were over twice as great as a year ago, and that they showed a consistent gain over the other months of the year.

These reports are from only a few of the motor car distributors in Los Angeles, but they give a very good idea of the satisfactory condition of the automobile industry in Los Angeles.

PAYS REWARD IF THE MOTOR BOILS.

MOTORIST HAS FULL CONFIDENCE IN COOLING QUALITIES OF HIS ENGINE.

"Gold is not so easily come by nowadays that people are risking the loss of it carelessly, and a person must be thoroughly assured that he is right before he gambles with it," according to Art Hansen of San Bernardino, who said in discussing this matter: "And I am right. I mean every word I say." Mr. Hansen and his friend had been talking of a sign painted clearly on the back of his Essex car. It reads: "$20 in gold if this stock Essex stops for water, or boils—anywhere, anytime."

Most San Bernardino people know Art Hansen, the popular Essex dealer there, and they know that he makes numerous trips over the Waterman Canyon switchbacks to the Rim o' the World in the San Bernardino mountains. This is a strenuous trip and tests the cooling qualities of an automobile to the utmost. Still, Mr. Hansen persists that the statement on the back of his Essex is not extravagant, but merely indicates his faith in his car. "Anyone is welcome," continued Mr. Hansen, "to flag me at any time and I will willingly stop and show them my motor meter. The Essex never overheats."

WARN DRIVERS TO DIM LIGHTS.

Many Accidents Caused by Glaring Reflectors.

Some Counties Tak Strenuous Action Against It.

Arrests for Evasion of the Law Are Being Made.

Blinding headlights have figured so frequently lately in auto accidents that steps to curb their brilliancy are being taken wherever possible throughout the southern part of the State.

Officials of the Automobile Club of Southern California have received scores of complaints from members who, in trying to obey the State law on headlight glare, have themselves suffered from others who make no attempt to follow the legal provisions.

QUITE A SCHEME.

A suggestion which comes from the northern part of the State is being followed at this time in some counties. This is that motorists traveling at night, who note a car approaching the headlights of which are blinding, inform the approaching driver that his lights are too bright by winking his own lights. It is up to the approaching car at this signal to dim the lights or automatically deflect them.

However, much more strenuous efforts are being made in some localities by the authorities to stop the number of accidents attributed to glaring headlights. These efforts include arrests for evasion of the law.

AWFUL GLARE.

"Many deaths and innumerable serious injuries in auto accidents can be deliberately traced to the awful glare of headlights on the rural and urban highways," is the word received from the Automobile Club. "This is becoming appalling and will have to stop.

"Courts and individual arms of the law are already taking steps to see that the practice of carrying glaring light is curbed. Therefore this statement is issued from the club as a warning to automobile owners to either deflect and dim their lights or suffer the consequences, which in Southern California are going to be most severe."

Highly Decorated Studebaker Tours the Coast.

This machine, a Studebaker 1914 model, was sent out recently by Motor West on a tour of the Pacific Coast. The decorations consist mainly of various accessories that adorn the car. R. L. Lee, the official pilot, reported remarkable performance in spite of the fact that the Studebaker had traveled many thousands of miles in the six years of its life.

"MOTOR WEST" SENDS OUT HIGHLY DECORATED CAR ON MISSIONARY JOURNEY.

If the remedy is good—tell your neighbor. Such is the policy of R. L. Lee, circulation manager of Motor West. As evidence of his good intentions, please note the above picture of his 1914 Studebaker.

No, it's not a political campaign ad, nor is it a new "movie" stunt. This overdressed, highly decorated 1914 Studebaker is the advertising car sent out by Motor West on its annual trip covering the Pacific Coast States, to gather data that is of interest to the automotive trade and of value to its many readers. The tour was made purely from a missionary standpoint.

The car, in charge of R. L. Lee, left Los Angeles June 7, and covered in all 6500 miles. The Coast route was followed to San Francisco, then the Pacific highway, inland route to Portland, including the famous Columbia River highway drive. The farthest north point reached was Olympia, Wash. Many side trips of interest to tourist were taken on the return trip, including Crater Lake, the Ice Caves near Portland, Or., and Klamath Falls and Klamath Hot Springs, Cal. Careful observations were made of all points of interest, available camping grounds, conditions of roads and scenic spots.

Of course there was another object in making the trip, and that was to introduce to the trade as well as to the car owner, the many automotive products made and advertised on the west coast, in an unique way. The names of various accessories were painted all over the car and there were several working models. The car was equipped with practically every important and reliable accessory brought out during the last year, and the decoration as well as the completeness of the equipment made it an attraction.

"We made the entire trip," Mr. Lee told Paul G. Hoffman of the local Studebaker agency, "with an expense of $1.85 for mechanical upkeep and never changed a tire. And with the proper attention to lubrication, an inspection of your battery once a week and being sure every morning that your tires are inflated to the pressure recommended by the manufacturer, any standard car with standard equipment should do as well."

FREAK AUTOMOBILES ARE NOT POPULAR.

The day of the "freak" automobile is decidedly past, as far as any great public popularity is concerned. More and more the trend of automobile design is toward standardization, for public favor today is following engineering practice that has been tried and proven satisfactory by years of actual usage.

"The Cleveland six was designed at a peculiarly opportune time for this reason," says Don Smith, general manager for W. P. Herbert and Co., distributors for the Cleveland. "The Cleveland engineers were able to profit by the experience and failures of scores of other automobile manufacturers. The vital features of automobile design were fairly well crystallized when the Cleveland engineers commenced their work of planning the Cleveland six. An exhaustive study of modern automobile design together with careful research and experimental tests, guided the Cleveland engineers in their work.

"As a consequence, it is interesting to check the construction of the Cleveland and compare it with the tendencies in various features of design as exhibited by the statistical data compiled concerning the percentage of increase made by various units of design in the past ten years.

"First of all, the six-cylinder motor has shown in the past ten years an increase of 46.85 per cent in popularity. The chain drive for the cam-shaft such as the Cleveland uses, has shown an increase in popularity of 10.34 per cent.

"The disc clutch, such as Cleveland employs, has gained in favor at the rate of 34.90 per cent.

"Pressure feed lubrication for the motor, such as Cleveland uses, has gained 43.52 per cent.

"It is this combination of proven and popular features of construction in the light and economical Cleveland that largely accounts for the remarkable popularity which it has achieved in a comparatively brief period."

LOSS OF POWER IS CAUSED BY LEAKS.

"We find the average man to be sadly lacking in his knowledge of how to obtain true economy and real efficiency in the operation of his motor car. To the average motorist a piston ring is a piston ring just as a pig is a pig. So much has been said on the subject of everlastingly keeping the "combustion chamber" free from leaks and consequent waste of power and fuel that it would be difficult to add much to this subject as it is one which embraces far too large a field and can be but briefly touched upon herewith," says Hal Baker, sales manager of the Western Auto Supply Agency, agents for the Peerless high compression piston rings and who maintains some fifteen retail auto supply stores at principal points throughout the country.

"It does not require a highly paid mechanical engineer or any great stretch of imagination, to diagnose the needs of the motor that shows lack of power, too much carbon, pre-ignition, vibration and a heavy drag on the pocketbook in the consumption of gasoline and good lubricating oil."

J. R. Owens Co's Battery Firm is in Full Swing.

The smell of fresh paint may be present and shavings left by the carpenters still to be seen if you look very carefully, but all this does not necessarily indicate newness if you care to look behind the scenes. The opening last week of J. R. Owens Company, Inc., at 433 West Pico brings to Los Angeles, lock, stock and barrel, a former St. Louis firm which has come to stay.

"We believe the Pacific Coast had something especially good to offer us," said J. R. Owens, president and treasurer of the corporation, yesterday, "and we can see a great future for the storage battery business here. As evidence of our confidence in Los Angeles as a business field, based upon previous visits here and the most careful investigation, we have brought from St. Louis our entire sales service organization and already have begun building for that future."

The firm has secured exclusive distributing rights for the Wol-kee red cap battery in Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Utah, Nevada, Arizona and California, as direct factory representatives, and will handle wholesale, retail and export trade. Appointing of district representatives and dealers already has been begun. In addition to the actual finished product, parts, separators and equipment will be handled, with a highly-organized service department as an important adjunct.

J. R. Owens, president of the firm, formerly was with the sales department of the Owens Bottle Company of Toledo, and is a son of M. J. Owens, head of that firm, also vice-president and general manager of the Libby-Owens Sheet Glass Company of the same city.

C. F. Cassidy, vice-president and sales manager of the local concern, formerly was general sales manager of the McNaull Tire Company of Toledo, while H. O. Leppig and E. A. Helquist, district sales managers, also were with the same tire firm. R. L. Schneider, service manager, formerly was with the McNaull Tire Company. The members of the new firm have for the past several years covered half of Missouri and two-thirds of Illinois as battery distributors.

AUTOMOBILE IS TIME ECONOMIZER.

ALSO DOUBLES PRODUCING POSSIBILITIES OF A MAN'S MINUTES.

"The automobile of today is a proven time economizer and an efficiency producer," says Gilbert Woodill, Manager of the Western Motors Company, local Kissel distributor.

"The owner of an automobile not only makes the most of this time, but his car saves him time, and in these days time saved is money made."

"Owning an automobile doubles the producing possibilities of a man's minutes. That is why his hours produce the greatest results. What you accomplish in half an hour without an automobile, he duplicates in ten minutes with an automobile. He concentrates his time; the nonowner scatters his. There is no limit to his area of operation, while the nonowner's area is limited. He is reducing his minutes, while the nonowner is adding to his hours. The automobile is an investment, while the nonowner's method of transportation is an expenditure."

ACTIVE EXPORTING TRADE BUILT UP.

With an active export market in trucks the Acason Motor Truck Company is reaping the benefit of five years' attention to export business. This is a class of business that cannot be secured in a hurry and the fact that Acasons have been exported steadily for the past five years has resulted in a repeat order business from established markets. The Acason factory has one schedule for India for regular monthly shipments up to 1921. Acason trucks are in use in the following places: England, France, Portugal, Spain, Brazil, Argentine, Cuba, Java, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Bombay, Madras, Rangoon, Singapore, Trinidad and China.

TOOL DESIGNERS TURN OUT LONG BLUE PRINT.

In addition to carrying on the regular work of the department, the tool designers of the Willys-Overland in one month turned out 7200 yards, or almost four and one-half miles of blueprint, showing in detail the tools and fixtures used in making the new Overland car. The blueprints were for Willys-Overland-Crossley, Limited, of Manchester, Eng.

Moth Balls and Kerosene Give Very Fair Power.

Modest Operators Don't Mind Boosting Prices.

Operating Costs for Trip Are Almost Nothing.

Moth balls and kerosene, ether, distillate, airplane gasoline and just plain gasoline—these are some of the various fuels that Lee S. Geiselman found necessary to burn in his Buick while touring from Denver to Los Angeles over a circuitous route that covered 5185 miles. With his wife, Geiselman arrived in Los Angeles last week to visit their daughter, Mrs. Roy Griener, in Hollywood.

And the Buick tourists found as wide a range in fuel prices as they did in the variety of the power fluids. At Klamath Falls the modest operators of the filling stations were charging 80 cents a gallon for gasoline and 30 for kerosene.

"In fact," Geiselman told Harold W. Tuttle, assistant general manager of the Howard Automobile Company of Los Angeles, "we found the best gasoline at the cheapest prices right in Los Angeles. Had our Buick not been able to burn any sort of fuel that we could obtain we would still be waiting along the road, as many others that we saw were doing."

The Geiselmans departed from Denver July 3 over the Yellowstone trail for the yellowstone National Park. They report that the roads within the park are very good for cars, but that some of the trails across the plains are in miserable shape.

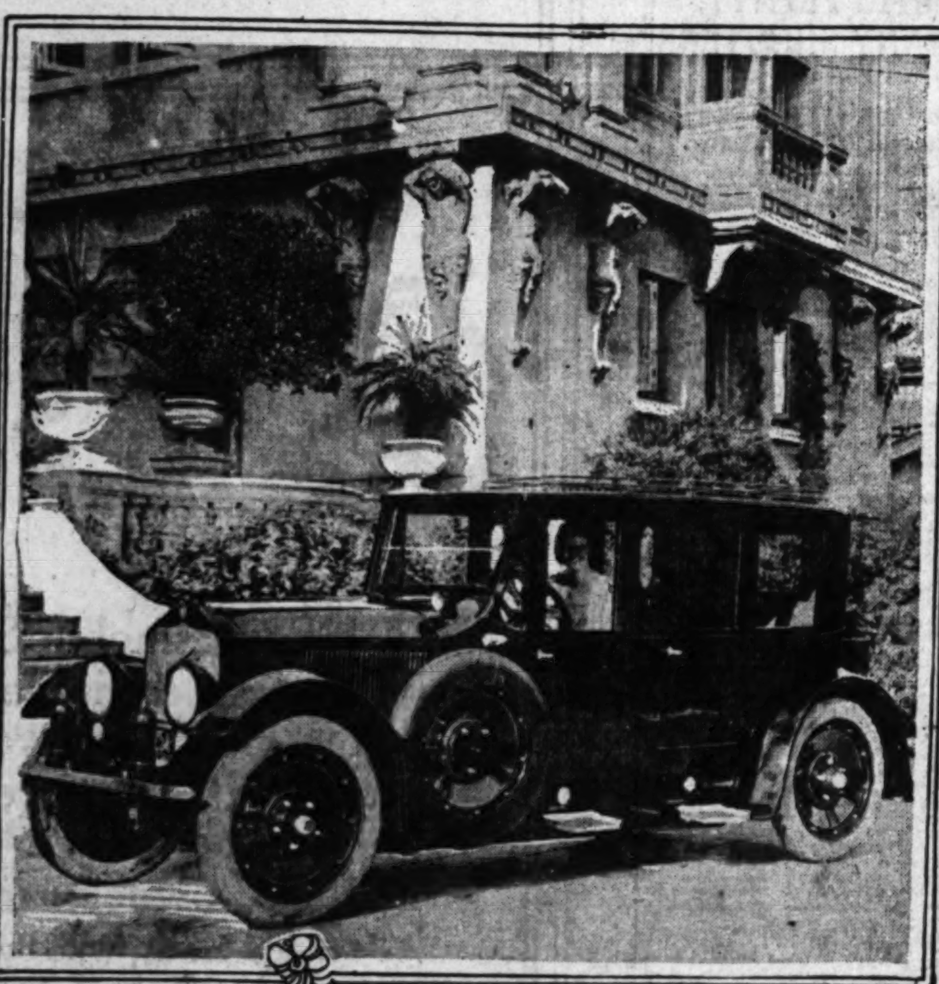
GREAT FISHIN'.

After visiting the land of the geysers the tourists went through Montana, enjoying some "great fishin.'" Glacier National Park was the next to be visited, and from there on the route led to Spokane, Seattle and Vancouver. A souvenir of the trip across the border into Canada is a sticker on the windshield warning motorists to turn to the left in passing vehicles.

Returning to Uncle Sam's domain, the Geiselmans visited Mt. Rainier and Portland, then Crater Lake National Park.

Geiselman kept an accurate count of every gallon of fuel used on the trip. His record shows that he put in 265 gallons, which, divided into the 5185 miles covered, gives an average of 19 10-11 miles to the gallon.

"I also had a page in my book for repair expenses," he said, "but did not have to set down one figure, as our only operating expense was for fuel, oil and tires. My car arrived here in such good shape that I could start today on the return to Denver without having it touched."



Here's a Sedan that Doesn't Look Top-heavy.

A special National sextet creation built for F. A. Hartwell, owner of the Garden Court Apartments. The chassis permits unusually low construction and the top of the car only hits the six-foot mark.

NIFTY CREATION DELIVERED HERE.

CUSTOM BUILT SEDAN SEEMS TO HAVE EVERYTHING FOR CONVENIENCE.

Los Angeles can well be proud of its latest creation, a custom-built National Sedan, sold to F. A. Hartwell, owner of the Garden Court Apartments. Owing to the advanced system of body mounting on a National chassis, this sedan is built especially low to the ground without sacrificing head clearance, or making the car in any way cramped. The top of the car is exactly six feet from the ground. Although this body is exceptionally low, it can be easily raised for all kinds of touring conditions, by simply adjusting the shock absorbers.

The car is finished in deep maroon, black upper body with purple stripes. The upholstering is silver grey broadcloth, striped with purple. The interior fittings are of sterling silver of the Adam period, which include all the little nicetles that "my ladye" would enjoy. On the rear can be found a double trunk rack which provides ample room for suit cases, and other traveling paraphernalia. On the top of sedan is a trunk and luggage rack, which is very adaptable because of the lowness of the car, making it absolutely practical to carry luggage in that position. In fact, the designer of the car made every adaptation that would make it truly a touring sedan.

AUTO CLUB CHIEF ON THE WAY HOME.

TRAVELED THROUGH EAST FOR ROAD INFORMATION OF VALUE TO MOTORISTS.

Mr. E. J. Steinke, district manager of the Long Beach, San Pedro and Whittier offices of the Automobile Club of Southern California, is en route westward from the Barley Motor Car Company at Kalamazoo, Mich., after an extended trip through the East for the purpose of obtaining road information which will be of value to motorists contemplating making a trip by automobile to the East.

After leaving the Barley Motor Car Company in the latest sport model Roamer, Mr. Steinke visited most of the principal automobile clubs en route and studied their method of operation and in turn communicated to them any information pertaining to the Automobile Club of Southern California which would aid them in building up a road service for their members.

In a letter to Mr. W. D. Wright of the Wright Motor Car Company, local distributors of the Roamer, Mr. Steinke said that he was exceptionally well pleased with the performance of his car, more especially from the fact that he had driven through much very bad weather. Shortly after leaving the factory it began to rain and rained most of each day since then, making the eastern roads almost impassable in some places.

STRICKLAND TRIES MOUNTAIN HIGHWAYS.

WANTS TO GET IDEA OF ALL CONDITIONS DURING TOUR OF COAST.

With G. W. Strickland, chief engineer of the Peerless Motor Car Company of Cleveland as his guest, Stanley W. Smith of Smith Brothers, Peerless eight distributors for Southern California, has been on a week's motor tour that has included the Yosemite. The two left early last week and are scheduled to return the first of the week.

On his first trip to California, Strickland was not only desirous of seeing much of the wonderful scenery for which it is noted but he also wanted to learn at first hand the conditions of travel that an automobile is ordinarily subjected to in this State.

With the Yosemite as their objective, they went north by way of the Bishop country, Mono Lake and the Tioga Pass. Returning they are traveling by way of Fresno and the San Joaquin Valley. "I believe this itinerary will enable Mr. Strickland to get the experience he wants," smilingly commented Smith before starting, and Strickland just as smilingly agreed with him.

DODGE DESIGN IN NEW BERLIET CAR.

BUT THE FRENCH AUTOMOBILE WILL BE SOLD FOR FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS.

A striking instance of the wide difference in American and European production methods was contained in a brief paragraph in the current issue of Motor World. The item was contained in a cabled dispatch from Paris, giving the news of the various French automotive factories, and dealt with the plans of the Berliet factory for the production of a new model.

"This car, which was designed to sell at $5000, normal exchange, is a close copy of the American Dodge, and it is reported that Dodge Brothers of Detroit have been awarded heavy damages against Berliet for infringement upon their design," the French dispatch ran.

"Berliet, according to the dispatch, has just built a big new plant near Lyons," said Fred S. Albertson last week, in discussing the foreign item. "The European manufacturers were taught many lessons concerning quantity production by the terrific necessities of the war. Nevertheless, to produce a car which is a close copy of the Dodge Brothers car, they are forced to retail it at a price around $5000, normal exchange.

"Unless one has been through Dodge Brothers factory and watched the various production processes it is hard to realize what tremendous efficiency has been achieved in their production methods, and how far machinery has replaced human effort at every possible stage."

STANDARD TIRES ARE ALWAYS THE BEST BET.

HALF-PRICE PROPOSITION USUALLY GIVES THAT PERCENTAGE OF MILEAGE.

During the recent temporary conditions in the automotive industry officials of the great rubber companies sound a note of confidence and optimism. The automobile business and its allied industries is second in America to the railroads, and as such is secure.

But there is an equally positive note of warning of vital importance. As a people, we have just emerged from an orgy of spending. In the new era, it is important for the motorist to distinguish between true and false economy as regards tire mileage, for it is an established fact that 90 per cent of automobiles are essential to business.

To the uninitiated all tires look very much alike—the "no name" tire as well as the product of which any manufacturer might well be proud. It is not reasonable to believe that a motorist can get a tire just as good as a standard make for half the price. The guy tire may have all the beauty and symmetry of the nationally-known tire and yet be made out of shoddy. Buying standard make tires is the safest insurance against roadside emergencies.

In tire mileage, it is not first costs that count, but cost per mile. To determine this, add to the purchase price the cost of repairs and divide the total by the mileage. This will quickly convince even the most confirmed bargain hunter.

Among the big companies, the Miller for years has been telling the motorist of the huge sums of money expended in making uniform tires. It is well, however, to consider at the present the enormous savings that could be effected by this and other reputable companies were present high standards to be let down.

ACCURACY IN ALL PARTS OF MACHINE.

SEVENTY-TWO HOURS SPENT INSPECTING EVERY CADILLAC MODEL.

In the manufacture of any piece of machinery, acruracy is effective only in so far as it is carried out through every separate part of the mechanism. It is quite futile, for example, to finish one segment of a bearing to exceptionally close limits, if the opposing segment is not ground to an equal degree of fineness. Even with both segments alike exact, their exactness is to no purpose if the bearing surface of the shaft they support is not made with corresponding care.

And so on, from bearing to bearing and from part to part, each adjustment is independent for perfect functioning on the one just before it, and, in turn, forms the basis for those that come after. Once committed to a program of accurate construction, there can be no turning back. Anything short of completeness renders the entire scheme a thing of inadequacy and wasted effort. It is a part of the penalty one pays for attempting extraordinary things, that the quality of extraordinariness must be continued in everything that is done.

There is reason, therefore, behind the fact that in the manufacture of each Cadillac car more than seventy-two hours are spent in gauging and inspecting the various parts. In other words, it would take one man eight days of nine hours each to check the limits of accuracy in the Cadillac. This includes merely the inspection of finished parts.

MOTOR TOURISTS HATE TO DEPART.

MORE OF THEM HERE NOW THAN EVER BEFORE ACCORDING TO SALESMEN.

The salesmen in the several branches of the automotive industry in Los Angeles, because of the nature of their business, are daily in touch with motorists from all parts of the country and elsewhere, and it is the opinion of Miller A. Crane, manager of the tire division of the California Sales Company, that there are more motor tourists in Los Angeles at this time than ever before at a corresponding period.

"Usually at this time, many of the tourists from other States have returned home in order to place children in school. It is the experience of salesmen in our big Republic tire sale that there is an unusually large number who are remaining here with the intention of placing their children in school. Some intend remaining for the winter, while others are looking for homes. The great increase in the school registration indicates such a condition," he declared.

KLIMBING KATE STILL GOING UP.

Dort Road Scout Car Has Piled Many Feet High.

Has Reached Great Altitudes at Blue Lakes.

Immense Record Made Before Vacation Trip.

"Klimbing Kate," the Dort road-scout car, has piled many thousands of feet of elevation to its previous altitude record until now the car has a total of over thirty miles elevation to its credit. In figuring the record only such elevations as exceed 4000 feet level have been counted and with the exception of the summits of the Castiac and Tejon ranges all of the altitudes have been 7000 feet elevation, or over, even going as high as 8050 at Blue Lakes, some forty miles south of Lake Tahoe.

Over 62,000 feet of the record was piled up prior to the Dort starting on a vacation trip carrying L. G. Thompson of Earle C. Anthony, Inc., State distributor of the line, with his wife and son through the High Sierras.

FOR THE SIERRAS.

Leaving the San Joaquin Valley at Stockton the car was headed for the Sierras over the Kit Carson trail. The first summit was Peddlers, marked 7280, after a drop of considerable altitude the Carson Spur was rounded and then another drop required a climb over the summit of Kit Carson Pass at 7862. From the summit of Kit Carson Pass a long winding grade led into Hope Valley, where the car was turned south to Blue Lakes, the fisherman's paradise (but not in the month of August.)

Silver Lake, Twin Lakes, Blue Lakes, and Lake Tahoe were visited in succession, but the lake fishing was very poor for some reason; nobody was able to explain other than that August was a poor month to fish.

ON TO RENO.

After stops of some time at the points mentioned the trip was continued through Truckee over the Yuba Pass to Reno and then south again by way of Minden, made notable by Mary Pickford and the divorce court of that county seat.

After passing through Devil's Gate to Bridgeport came another drop and another long climb to the rim of the valley in which lies Mono Lake. Turning off the road a few miles below the Mono Lake the party visited Grant and Silver lakes which carried them to a 7200-foot elevation again. With no fishing worth while at those points the Dort was once more headed south and climbed the 8000-foot summit out of the Mono Valley called Dead Man's Pass. From this summit the road led through a beautiful pine forest for many miles, then across some smaller valleys and over a 7500-foot summit for the long, steady down-hill run to Bishop.

After leaving Bishop and passing through Independence and Lone Pine the main road was left once more to visit Cottonwood Creek, the home of the golden trout.

Half a dozen of the beauties were lured by salmon eggs or fish worms, but the water is too low for good fishing on the lower stretches of the stream. Some nine miles above the intake, where Los Angeles diverts the water through a power line and then to the Aqueduct, there is a lake where good catches have been reported this season. It can be reached by foot or pack train over a good trail.

AT LONE PINE.

At Lone Pine a fine view of Mt. Whitney, the top of the United States, was had. It is but little higher than many other peaks which surround it, despite its elevation.

From Cottonwood Creek the Dort ran straight through to Los Angeles, quite a bit over 200 miles as the final day's run.

Road conditions throughout the High Sierras were quite good along the main-traveled roads. The Kit Carson trail was in very good shape, but as the lumber companies had begun to haul lumber out of the mountains it will probably be badly cut up soon.

The road between Woodford on the Carson road and Lake Tahoe on the Placerville road was quite good, but Luther Pass requires considerable low-gear work with a loaded car.

Fast Beverly Races.

ticed into taking charge of the general arrangements for the show while Mr. Young centralized his efforts on the 250-mile race which will wind up the 1920 racing season. Mr. Ferris has a record of providing the public with what they want, among other big accomplishments being that of putting on the first aviation meet at Domingues Field ten years ago, the biggest and best aviation meet ever held.

Mr. Young has managed more successful automobile races than most men have ever seen, including half a dozen Corona and Santa Monica events and the two winter races, which opened the Los Angeles Speedway. He and Dick Ferris between them should have no difficulty in hatching up a program that would make any tightwad feel that he had received a great deal more than his money's worth.

In the meantime the drivers are doing their best to make things exciting by coming into the homestretch of the season, with four of the pilots bunched for the leadership. Gaston Chevrolet, who ran up a big lead on the rest of the drivers by winning the Indianapolis race, was shut out of the money at Elgin and thus gave Ralph De Palma, Tommy Milton and Jimmy Murphy a rare chance to get up in the neighborhood by taking first, second and third places and grabbing off the championship points that went with those positions.

As a result of the Elgin event Tommy Milton went into first place in the championship standings. Chevrolet is a good close second and Jimmy Murphy is right on Chevrolet's trail. Ralph De Palma was nowhere at all previous to the Elgin struggle, but his clear-cut victory in that event brought him not only a nice fat sum of money, but a sufficient number of points to put him within shooting distance of the title.

There will be some first-class scrambling around the track at Beverly on Thanksgiving Day, unless some terrific upset occurs in the meantime, as the four leading pilots are now all so close that there is little chance of any one of them pulling away from the bunch before the final event of the year. It seems almost certain that the man who wins the big 250-mile event at Beverly will likewise be the Speedway Champion for 1920.

The drivers who are not in the running for the championship, can be counted upon to provide a lot of hot speed Thanksgiving Day, just on general principles, as the $35,000 in prize money would look pretty good to any of them whether they won the title or not. The lap prize feature is certain to add greatly to the excitement.

A number of special features are being planned now and will be announced from time to time, as the arrangements are completed.

LIMITS PLENTY, MANY SHOOTERS

Dove Opening Draws Like the Famous Mustard Plaster.

Everybody Goes and Gets 'Em, but Birds Average Small.

Unusual Feeding Conditions a Handicap to Hunters.

Opening of the dove season Wednesday, September 1, failed to indicate that a midweek opening date was any serious deterrent to the proper celebration of this most popular of late summer sporting holidays; for every place that promised doves was fairly thronged with the hosts of licensed hunters whose scatter guns were cracking it to 'em so generally that the whole countryside sounded like a moving-picture battle.

QUITE SPOTTED.

Sport was decidedly spotted. Some sections usually good for excellent opening sport were spoiled by lack of feed, due to changes in farming methods whereby gardening replaced the grain crops that provide so fertile a field for the dove-weed that is usually the key to locating these artful little dodgers in gray when experts are scouting to stage the scene of a good shoot.

Generally speaking, shooting was better near town than further. Hunters seemed to take it for granted that the farther they went from the big cities, the more birds and the less competition would they encounter. Most forget that there are proportionally more sportsmen in the little towns than in the cities.

BIG INVASION.

The grain valleys below Riverside were literally invaded by squads of small-bore dove enthusiasts, who found no difficulty in warming up their "sixteens" and "twenties" on the elusive quarry, but the sport was inferior to that of last year, despite a very great plenty of birds. The late rains scattered feed widely, and encouraged a late breeding to such degree that small birds were greatly in the majority. Young doves never are very fat, as they are growing too rapidly, and being easier game than their parents, they naturally predominate in the bags.

A lot of limits were bagged right about the edges of town as was predicted by the Fish and Game Commission. Some slipped out for a couple of hours in the evening, and "got theirs" in jig-time around watering places.

GREATEST RAID.

Next week-end will see the greatest raid of the season against the remnant of doves that stays on the job. The Fish and Game Commission "opening day" was loading every mail with books of licenses for its wide-scattered retailing sales agents, who were indeed doing a "land-office business."

With relatively few exceptions, failures to bag limits "opening day" were not ascribed to any undue wildness of the doves. General opinion agrees that the birds were given better protection by the fish and game deputies during the summer than ever before. Arrests and convictions for dove and quail "soonering" have been numerous enough to show a proper activity and such stiff "plasters" as the $50 fines that such judges as Knox of Ventura have been handing out, appear to have exercised a wonderfully deterrent effect upon the ever-shrinking minority that would play fast and loose with the protection of game during breeding periods but for the fear of prosecution and penalty.

COMPLICATIONS ARE ELIMINATED TODAY.

EIGHTY PARTS SUBTRACTED FROM APPERSON WITHOUT LOSS OF EFFICIENCY.

"The first eight-cylinder motors built in America were confessedly rather complicated affairs," declares Harris Hanshue, manager of the Los Angeles branch of the Apperson Motor Car Company. "Realizing that every part that could be subtracted from the eight without lessening its efficiency made it just that much better a motor, the Apperson brothers proceeded with that end in view. So successful were they, that they actually subtracted eighty parts from the conventional eight-cylinder design.

"It is well known, for example, that many of the finest cars made in Europe use the thermo-syphon method of cooling, thereby getting rid of the complication of the water pump. The Apperson designers experimented until they discovered the secret of successful thermo-syphon cooling, and adopted it in the Apperson. They devised a valve action that removed the complicated "trigger-board" that still is a feature of many eights. Just what that last item means is best illustrated by the fact that it costs $50 less to completely overhaul an Apperson motor without the trigger-board than it does a motor which has this added complication.

"They did not forget the matter of economy, either. An Apperson cylinder takes only an eighth or less the quantity of gas sucked in by a cylinder of a four of equal motor power."

A STRONG BELIEVER IN MODERATE SPEED.

DRIVES 60,000 MILES AND NEVER GOES OVER TWENTY-FIVE MILES PER HOUR.

"Does it pay to drive at a reasonable speed? I'll say so," said H. E. Thomas of San Bernardino a few days ago. "Some may hanker for thrills and breaking speed laws (to say nothing of necks,) but I find it more profitable as well as more pleasant never to pass twenty-five miles an hour on my speedometer."

Mr. Thomas continued telling that he believed this to be one of the chief reasons for the long life of his car. "I have driven my Maxwell touring car four years," he said, "and have gone with it 60,000 miles with never a fault in the car. It has never been overhauled, and I think this is partly due to the fine quality of Maxwell cars, partly to the fact that no one has driven it but myself and that I never drive faster than twenty-five miles an hour. I'm for Maxwell first, last and all the time. Who would not be, indeed, with an experience such as this?"

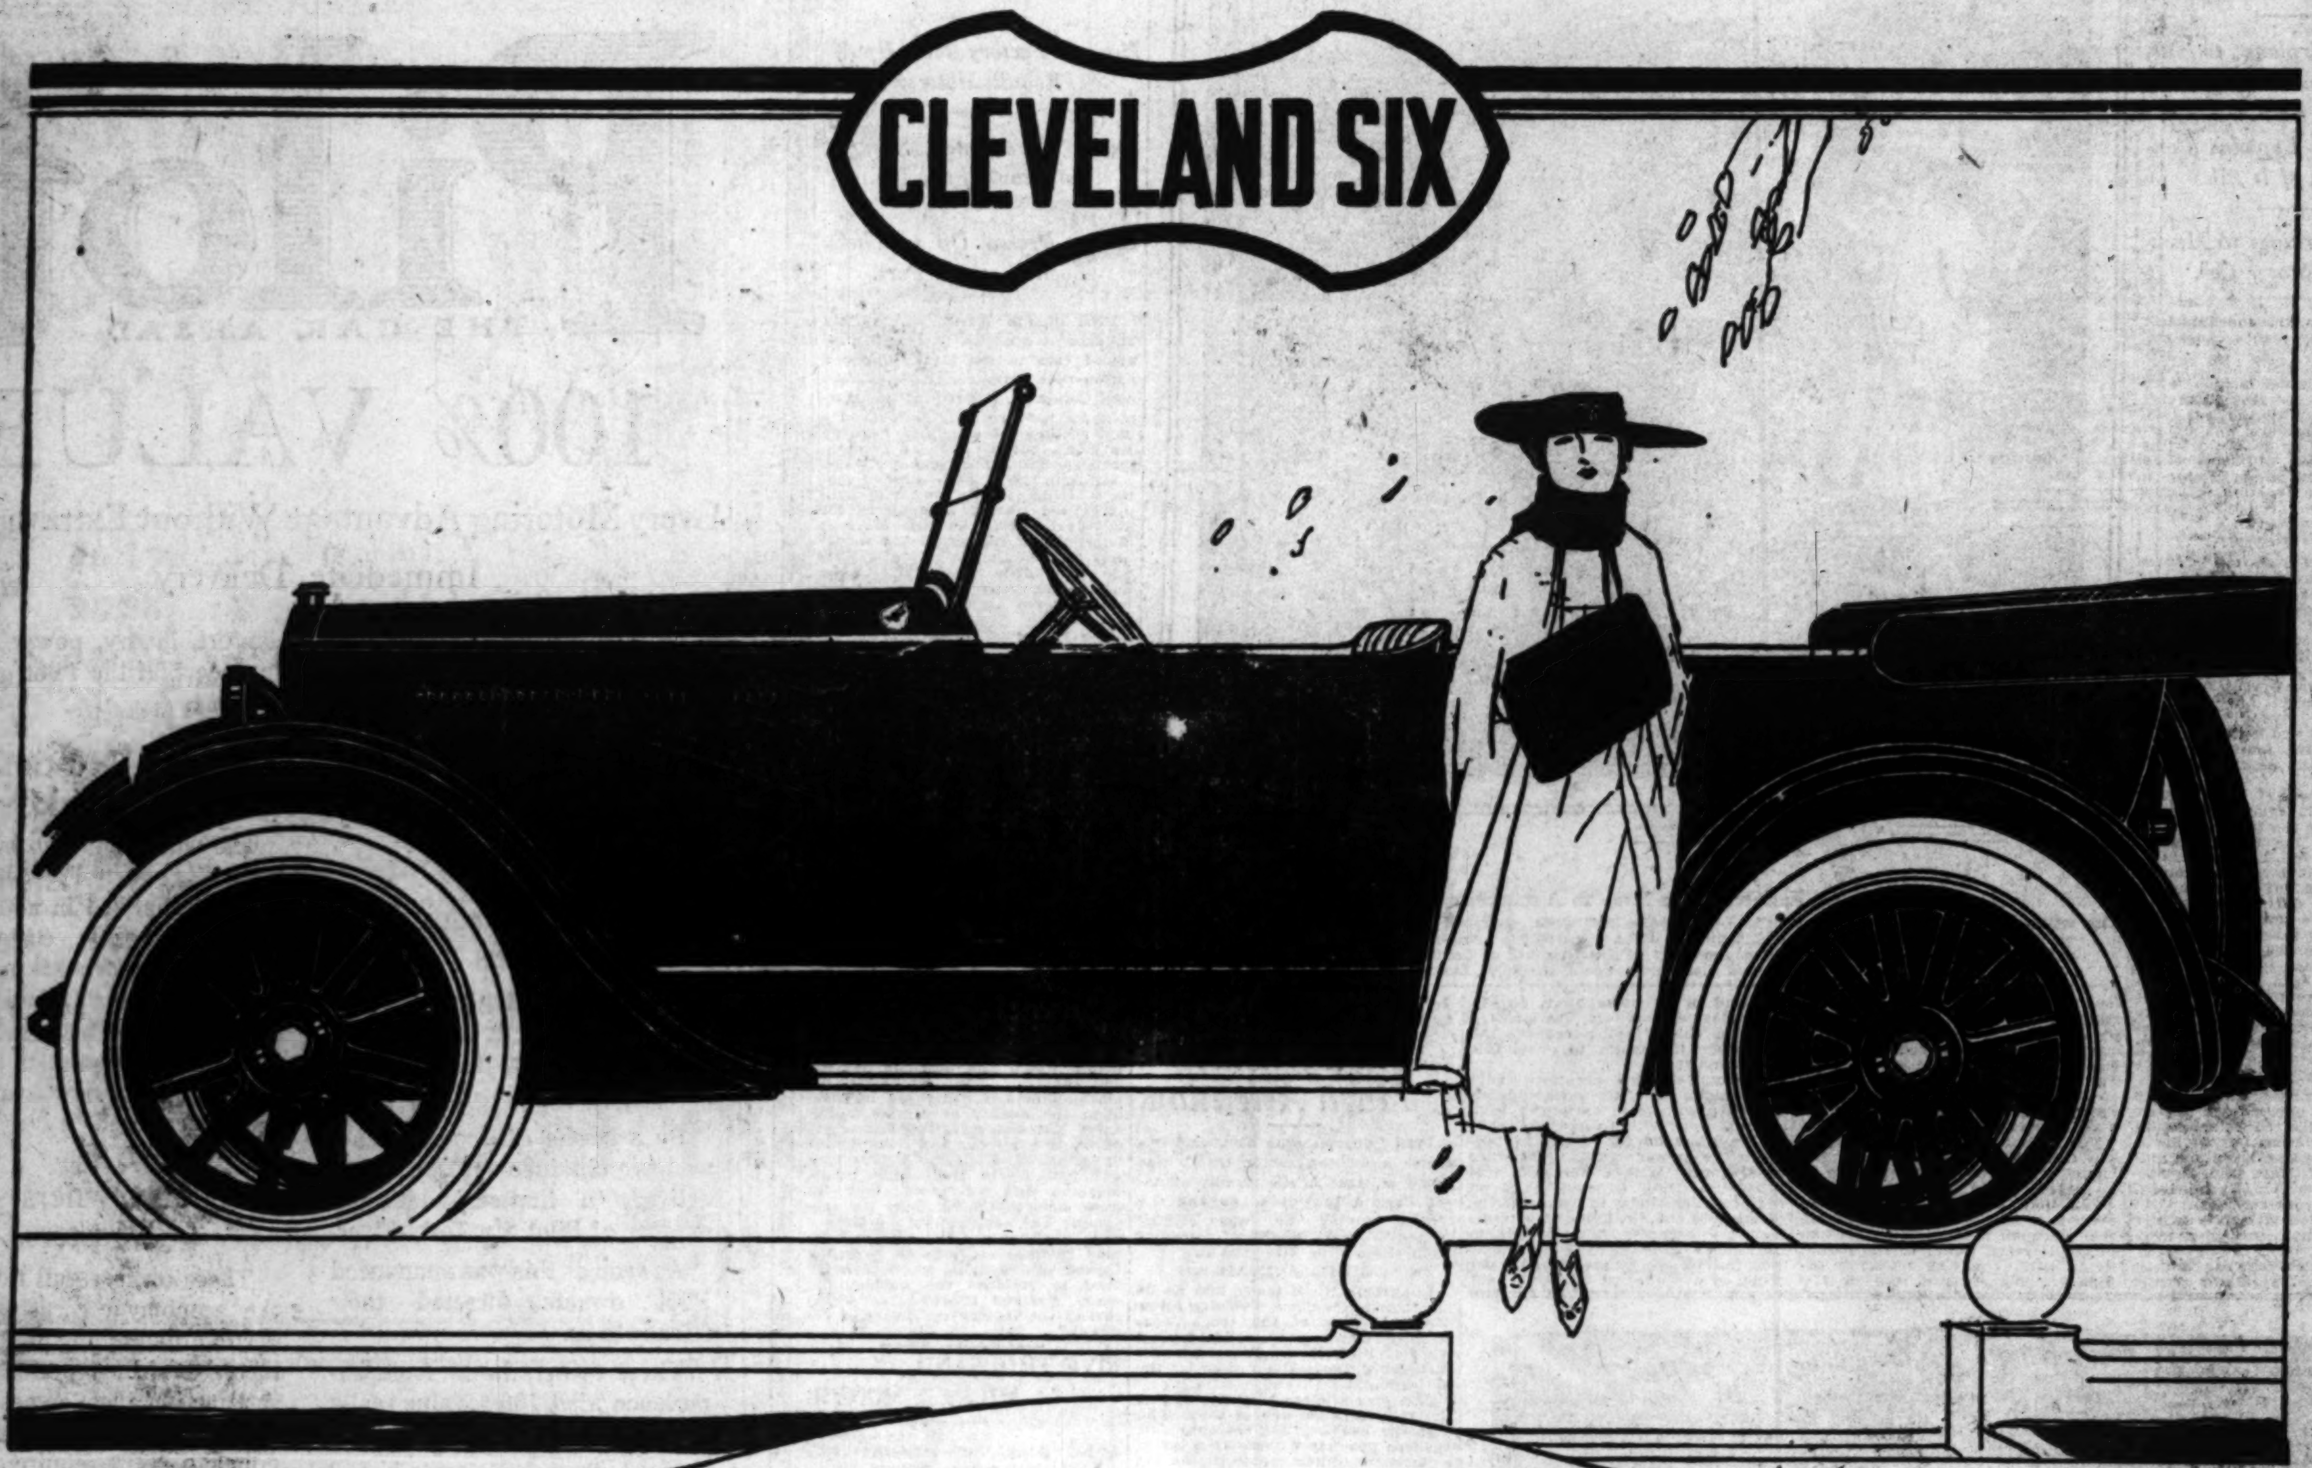
CLEVELAND SIX



Thousands Know That No Other Light Car Gives So Much In Real Satisfaction

The Cleveland Six has won its place of favor among thousands of discriminating buyers by its splendid performance in daily service. There has been no appeal of weird claims, no stunt records. Those who sell the Cleveland sell it for what it really is, a distinctly better car. And those who buy it, buy it with the understanding and conviction that it is a better car, that it will serve them honestly.

The Cleveland has made its friends by its character. It is of sturdy construction, dignified in line, handsomely finished and alive with power. The exclusive Cleveland motor, quiet, pliant and powerful, the most highly refined of the enclosed overhead valve type, is foremost among light six motors. Its rapid acceleration, its pulling power which takes it flying over the hills and its economy of fuel, mark it as an unusual motor. Drivers who know motors by experience say there is no other like it.

You will be interested in the ease of handling your Cleveland, how lightly it steers, how easily it shifts and at the instantly positive action of its brakes. And for comfort, the long underslung springs smooth out the roughest roads and add pleasure to country driving.

A real ride in the Cleveland will show you, better than we can tell you, what a good car the Cleveland is. A real ride will show you qualities that do not come with many other cars.

Beautiful body lines place the Cleveland above the usual plane in appearance. The open-car upholstery is of genuine hand-buffed leather. The sedan and coupe are upholstered in rich velour.

VARIABLE PITCH PROP IS TESTED.

Slows Up Airplane to Advantage on Landings.

C. R. Savage Explains Construction of It All.

Compares Workings to Mechanism of Motor Car.

Out at Mercury Aviation Feld last Monday five army planes came flying in from March Field. The first three swooped into the landing space and lit in conventional fashion, with their momentum carrying them far down the field. With the last two, however, the procedure was different. As the landing gear was within about five feet of the ground the noise of the motor lessened, much as when an experienced automobile driver goes through his gears, then increased suddenly.

SWIRL OF DUST.

A huge swirl of dust rose in front of the plane, which stopped as though a gigantic hand had slowed it down. In seventy-five feet from the point where the landing gear had first touched the plane had come to a complete stop, turned and started to taxi back. The last two planes to arrive were equipped with the wonderful new variable pitch propellor, invention of two Los Angeles men, and hailed by aviation experts as the most important advance in years in the field of aviation.

Quite a number of Los Angeles men interested in aviation were on hand to welcome the planes. Among them was Clair R. Savage, sales manager of J. W. Leavitt & Co., Oldsmobile distributors. Savage saw a year and a half of service in the Aviation Corps during the war, much of the time acting as instructor at North Island, and he naturally was keenly interested in the newest advance in airplane equipment. Both Robert I. Eustis and Seth Hart, the Los Angeles inventors of the new "prop," were likewise on hand to welcome the ships, and they explained to Savage the exact functions of the invention.

UNDER A HANDICAP.

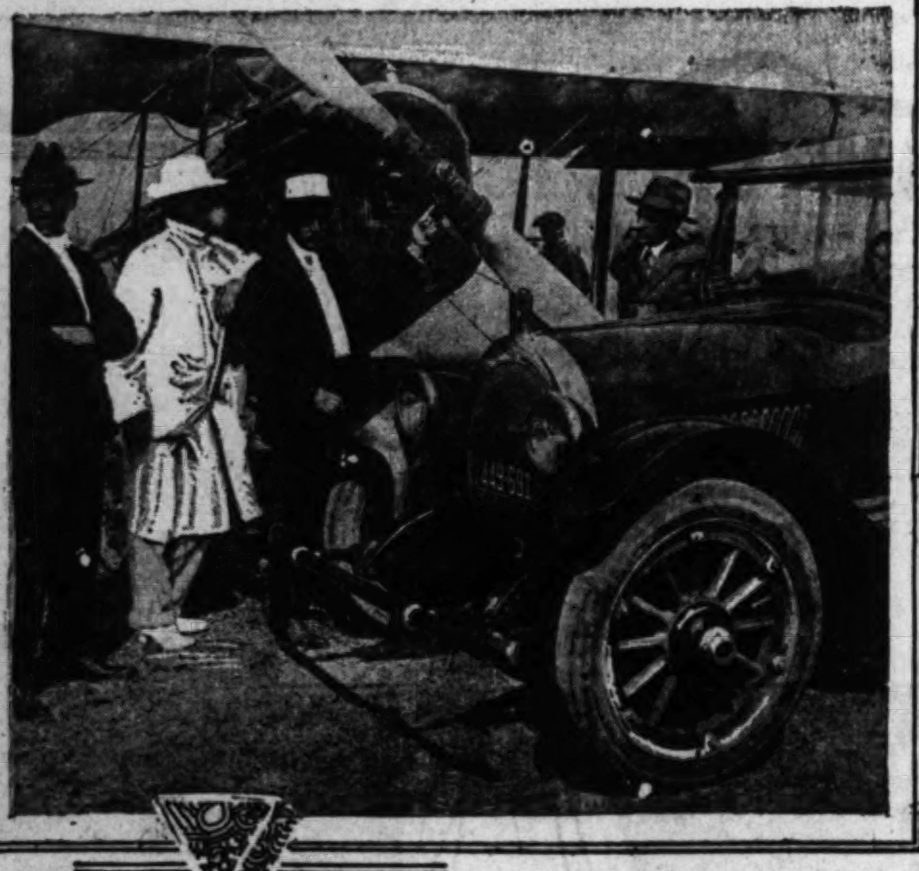
"An aviation motor which has to use one of the old style propellers is under virtually the same handicap as your Oldsmobile would be if it was equipped only with a single gear ratio," Hart told Savage. "The flexibility which the transmission gears give your car is comparable to the added flexibility which the variable pitch propeller gives to the airplane.

"When you start your car you use low gear, to give the motor greater leverage to overcome the inertia of starting. Similarly, with the variable pitch propeller, when the pilot starts to leave the ground he sets the blades with only a slight pitch. The lessened load this imposes upon the motor enables it to quickly reach its maximum speed and gives a quicker take-off.

"Once in the air, and cruising at say from 5000 to 10,000 feet, the blades are set at a greater angle to give more speed to the craft.

"In high altitude cruising, however, it is necessary to again lessen the pitch of the propeller because of the lessened power of the motor. At an altitude of 30,000 feet, an ordinary airplane moton has lost 75.4 per cent of its horsepower, due to the rarified atmosphere. The lessened pitch of the propeller reduces the load upon the motor to offset this loss of power.

"Perhaps the greatest gain through the use of the variable pitch propeller will be in extremely high altitude work with a motor equipped with a supercharger which maintains the power output regardless of altitude. With a motor of this type, and using a heavy pitch on the propeller blades to overcome the thinness of the air, flying at extreme altitudes becomes feasible. Ships are being built today equipped in this fashion which are intended for flying at altitudes up to 40,000 feet.



Likens Variable Pitch Prop to Automobile Gears.

Unique Houling Stunt Attracts Much Attention.

Fred Lungren, who owns and operates a five-ton motor truck, was busily engaged in the vicinity of Ascot Park a few days ago and the unique hauling he was staging caused a wide diversity of comment from those who witnessed it.

QUITE A LOAD.

Lungren's Mack truck had as its load a concrete block weighing seven tons. In tow of the truck were a huge steam road roller and a wheeled road plow. The truck was furnishing the motive power for the entire outfit.

"Do you suppose they are testing the road?" asked one of those who saw the event. "I'll bet they are, because you know there is a lot of agitation claiming motor trucks are destructive to the roads," said another. "That's probably some kind of a test they are putting on."

But when Lungren, who was driving the truck was asked about it, he explained it quite differently. No test was being made intentionally, although the performance could well have been so construed. The road roller and plow were needed in another part of the city and for the roller to get there under its own power would have occasioned too long a delay. Lungren was called upon for his truck to tow the outfit because of the greater speed that could be made.

LUMBER WORK.

Lungren's Mack is a five-ton model, having a 204-inch wheelbase, being built for lumber hauling. In order to get sufficient traction on the rear wheels the concrete block weighing seven tons was carried as a load.

AUTOMATIC LAMP IS DECLARED O.K.

Motor Vehicle Department Says New Device Complies with the Law.

The motor vehicle department of the State of California has just approved the use on the highways and streets of the Lexington two-way lamp, which is a device whereby the glare is eliminated from approaching cars by throwing the rays of light downward. This is accomplished by the use of vacuum, which automatically moves the reflector in the front lamps, thereby directing the rays of light downward.

The advantages of this method of control are manifest. There is nothing left to the judgment of the driver of the car as to how far he should deflect the projected beams to come within the law, because upon turning the switch the light is immediately deflected to the proper position required by the law.

There are only two positions possible, one entirely up or one down. If the motor comes to a stop automatically the lights will run to the no-glare position.

Motorists whose cars are equipped with this device not only protect the other fellow, but in a great many instances will save themselves from accidents caused by throwing high-powered lights into the eyes of the driver of the approaching car. Although placing this system on the Lexington minute-man six costs several times as much as the most expensive lens, the manufacturers had in mind that there are times when driving over rough roads that all the light that can possibly be obtained should be at the owner's beck and call, while at the same time the light could be directed downward so as to obtain the right degree of safety.

NEED ATTENTION DURING SUMMER.

"During the warm months of the year more attention should be given to the radiator because of evaporation. It should be filled at more frequent intervals," says Ed C. Engle, distributor for the Anderson car, "and also due to the fact that after evaporation more sediment is deposited in the radiator therefore should be flushed out at specified intervals.

"Because of heat, lubrication should be given more consideration, small parts, such as spring shackles, wall bearings and universal joints should be oiled more often in the summer."

GUARANTEE ON RENEWED CARS.

Mormon Factory Backs Up All Rebuilt Motors.

Issues Certificates Showing Condition of the Job.

Charts Drawn Up to Check Each Working Part.

First of the great motor car builders of America to offer its renewed cars to the public under a nation-wide policy, Nordkye & Marmon Company, builders of the Marmon car have recently announced a new method of handling renewed Marmons that has aroused keen interest everywhere in the motor trade.

Hitherto the manufacturer of motor cars has left the matter of handling used cars strictly up to the individual dealer, but the Marmon factory under its new policy recognizes the importance of making every owner of a motor car a satisfied owner, regardless of whether he purchases his car first hand or not.

A NEW POLICY.

"Under the new policy, when we send a Marmon car through our shops for a thorough renewal prior to reselling it, our repair men check every mechanical feature of the car, according to a chart prepared by the factory," said Al G. Faulkner last week. "When they are through, the chart shows an exact record of the condition of every feature of the car.

"This chart is mailed to the Marmon factory, and their mechanical experts there check it over carefully. If the report shows that the job of renewing has been done thoroughly in accordance with Marmon mechanical standards, the factory issues a certificate of renewal to be signed by the local dealer, carrying a ninety-day guarantee on the renewed car which is virtually the same as that carried by a new car.

STANDARD SYSTEM.

"To my mind this is a splendid policy which the Marmon factory has adopted. The reputation of Marmon or any other car depends upon the quality of service which every Marmon car gives, regardless of whether the car was bought new or second-hand. It has always been our practice to thoroughly renew Marmon cars which we take in trade before offering them for sale again. The adoption by the factory of this method of standardizing Marmon renewal methods all over the United States will unquestionably tend to stabilise the market for every Marmon renewed car which carries the factory certificate of renewal."

FIVE THOUSAND MILES A MONTH.

LONG DISTANCE RECORD SET BY STANDARD EIGHT IN TAXI SERVICE.

Five thousand miles of travel in the first thirty days of service is a decidedly strenuous initiation for any car to get. Yet such was the mileage reported after a month of usage by one of the fleet of twelve new Standard eight cars in use by the Day and Night Taxi Company.

"Five thousand miles is half a year of ordinary touring," said Glenn R. Keith of the Standard Steel Automotive Corporation last week. "Yet G. P. Dickerman showed me last week the speedometer on one of their Standard eights that had been in service just thirty days and the 5000-mile mark had already been passed.

"The long distance taxi work which the company does piles up mileage faster than almost any other usage. This particular car had been sent to Little Bear on a trip before it had been driven 200 miles. Three round trips to San Diego, Tia Juana and the Imperial Valley, six round trips to Santa Barbara and several trips to San Bernardino were among the journeys the car had made in the first month.

"The Standard eight had been in the hands of seven or eight different drivers in that time, which is none too good for a car, as most experienced motorists know. Yet in spite of the hard usage and the long mileage which the car has to its credit it did not appear in our shop for the slightest adjustment in the entire time."

A. N. WAYNE JOINS REPUBLIC TRUCKS.

NEW SALES ORGANIZATIONS BEING PERFECTED FOR HUGE OUTPUT.

After having been connected with the Ship by Truck Bureau since its start as manager for this district, A. N. Wayne has joined forces with the largest manufacturers of motor trucks in the world.

Starting the first of the month Mr. Wayne took over the management of the advertising department of the Commercial Motor Company, Republic truck distributors for Southern California. He will also interest himself in the sales end.

New sales organizations are being established all over the country to take care of the enormous increase in production of Republic trucks, which will now be started since John N. Willys has taken over the control of the Republic Truck Corporation.

DON'T LET THEM SWIPE YOUR CAR.

"A very simple method to insure your car against theft is to cross spark-plug wires Nos. 4 and 5, or Nos 5 and 6 o nthe six-cylinder cars," says J. P. Gibson, proprietor of the Pico Motors Company, distributors for the Crow-Elkhart car. "If this is done no thief can drive your car without spreading an alarm that will attract the attention of pedestrians within a couple of blocks.

Crossing these wires, which is easily done, causes a back-fire, resulting in heavy artillery, which is as good as any burglar alarm."

"If more care would be taken to see that cars are locked in some fashion, there would be fewer automobiles stolen."

NOTHING WRONG AT THE PLANTS.

Indianapolis Factories Going in Good Shape.

Feel that Business is Getting More Stable.

Sound Reasons Behind Reductions of Working Forces.

INDIANAPOLIS (Ind.) Sept. 2.—There is nothing the matter with the automobile industry in this city, the Indianapolis Automobile Trade Association announced today, following the completion of an extensive survey made during the past two weeks.

The association made its investigation following the publication of a dispatch in all parts of the country in which it was stated that "tightening of money by banks will force a suspension of the automobile industry in this city within a short time." The results of the inquiry completely refute the statement.

UP TO CAPACITY.

Heads of motor factories were interviewed and their pay rolls examined to see just what cut in working forces, if any, had been made. Without exception the manufacturers declared that rather than facing a shut-down because of financial conditions they are expecting to continue capacity production straight through the winter. Several said that they believe the end of the period of free and easy handling of "automobile paper" by the banks will eventually result in the establishment of the motor industry upon a more stable basis than ever before.

Being faced with the necessity of doing business along closer lines the business will now plant its feet upon solid rock and conduct itself in the more conservative way of older industries, the manufacturers said. The resultant stability will be a condition which could only be attained by "going through the fire."

QUITE WRONG.

The erroneous dispatch, which was sent by one of the national news services, included these words: "Thousands of employees of the auto factories of this city have already been laid off and the forces are being reduced still further."

There is no truth in this the trade association asserts. The manufacturers make no bones of the fact that they have reduced their working forces, but none of the eight principal factories in the city has laid off as many as 1000 men, while it is doubtful if the total number of men dismissed by all will reach this figure.

Sound business reasons are behind the slight reductions in every instance. One factory, which really was hard hit by the tightening of the banks, reduced its force to approximately one-third, but this was preliminary to rebuilding of finances upon a basis firm enough to render such action by the money powers ineffectual in the future.

Factories which have not been materially affected by the money stringency say their staffs have been slightly reduced for these reasons:

(1.) To balance stocks.

(2.) To prune the "culls" from employees.

Factories influenced by the first consideration have been goaded to the limit of production for three years. Their managers have known for some time that stocks were so badly out of balance that a part of their men were standing idle while another part was working full speed. Accordingly, when they saw a slight slackening in demand coming, being confident that the underlying demand is as good as ever, they seized the opportunity to balance stocks so as to be in good shape for the harvest to come.

Manufacturers who have been weeding out their inefficient workmen are taking advantage of the first opportunity to do this they have had since the war period. It is no secret that the labor market has eased here so that automobile makers are once more able to be choosers as well as payers.

What is probably more indicative of the sound condition of the industry than anything else is the fact that the H.C.S. Motor Car Company and the Lafayette Motors Corporation, new concerns, are going right ahead with building operations, the latter upon more than a million-dollar scale.

MOTORISTS WARNED AGAINST FREAKS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—The Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, through the vigilance committee, warns motorists against moth ball economizers now on the market. The report credits the United States Bureau of Standards with the statement that these "economizers" have no appreciable effect in giving gasoline more "pep."

Laudatory letters used by manufacturers of these tablets, it is found, result from the fact that along with the tablets the maker sends instruc- Motorists who have been using a richer mixture than is necessary are fooled into the belief that the moth-ball and not the adjustment makes a saving.

OUGHT TO GET THE MEAT AX FOR THIS TYPE OF CARELESS MOTOR DEMON

Have you ever waited at a curb to let an automobile pass, only to have the driver go by at full speed and throw mud and dirty water all over you from a puddle in his path?

USUALLY TO BLAME.

There are occasionally times when a motorist may not be held responsible for a mishap of this sort, yet it cannot be denied that this is one offense for which the driver seldom has any justification. A slight turn of the wheel could nearly always keep the wheels out of the puddle, or a slight reduction in speed would make it possible to get through without splashing.

Many a woman, gowned in dainty attire, has had her costume ruined by mud and water and has watched the car go on its way, with the driver quite unconcerned over the damage he has done. She knows it would do no good to take his number, for the offense he has committed lies just outside the pale of the law.

OF NO MOMENT.

To the motorist the incident is usually of no moment, and quickly forgotten. But to the pedestrian who sustained the mud bath there is the annoyance due to the damage to his clothes, and the mental wear and tear which accompany futile rage.

For this sort of thing does make people mad, and what adds to their anger is their knowledge that the mishap was caused by the carelessness or deliberate heedlessness of the driver, and by the further fact that the motorist doesn't care a hang whether he did any damage or not.

CONGRATULATED.

The great body of motorists is to be congratulated, says the United States Tire Company, on the fact that this sort of driver is decidedly in the minority. Nearly all drivers obey the laws with great care and exercise toward other motorists and pedestrians the simple courtesy that the American principle of a square deal typifies. The fellow who drives as if he were the only person in the universe who had any rights on the highways is growing less and is as unpopular among other motorists as he is with pedestrians.

SAYS THEY'RE CHEAP NOW.

"Never before in the history of the American automobile industry were automobiles as cheap as they are today. Never before has the automobile been within the buying range of as many people as it is today, and very few statistics are required to prove it."

This was the declaration here last week of E. B. Wilson, manager of the Los Angeles branch of the Willys-Overland Company, who has recently returned from a visit to the big Overland factory, and he brought back with him the figures to prove his rather startling statements concerning the automobile industry.

"Before you or I or anyone else buys an article, how does he figure whether he can afford it or not? He compares its cost with his income. In other words, he figures how many day's income he is going to have invested in the article if he purchases it," continued Wilson. "Let's check up the situation of a carpenter, for example, who has been figuring on the purchase of a motor car, say ever since 1903, when he was first bitten by the motoring bug.

"Back in 1903, the average market price of a car was $1438. The union wage for a first-class carpenter was $3.75 per day. Therefore, the purchase of car back in 1903 would have represented sixteen month's wages for the carpenter.

SEVEN YEARS LATER.

"Seven years later, suppose we compare again. The carpenter's wages have risen to $4 per day, but the average price of a car is a trifle higher than it was in 1903. In 1919 the average car cost $1471, so that the purchase of a car would still represent for the carpenter fifteen and one-half month's income.

"In 1914, prices of American automobiles hit the lowest mark ever recorded, and wages had risen slightly, too. The carpenter was getting $4.12½ per day, so that the average car would only cost him nine and three-eighths months of labor.

"In 1919, with the prices of all commodities skyrocketing, the price of the average car had climbed back to $1103. But the carpenter's union wage had climbed actively, too. Instead of the $4.12½ cents per day that he was getting in 1914, the carpenter was now pulling down $7 for every day's work. Consequently the purchase of a car in 1919 represented no more than six and one-half month's investment of labor, or little more than one-third what it did back in 1903, the much-mourned 'good old days' of low prices."

NEW HIGHWAY TO BE PICTURESQUE.

STRETCH OF CONCRETE LEADS INTO COUNTRY OF GREAT HISTORIC INTEREST.

With work rapidly nearing completion of the last link of the highway connecting Ventura and Los Angeles by way of Sauguas, there looms the prospect of one of the most picturesque drives in all Southern California.

Last week a party composed of Maurice Dimond, head of the Elgin-DuPont Company, his family and friends, in an Elgin six, made a tour of inspection and found that in the near future one can see the real birthplace of Southern California history, and at the same time enjoy a most intensely interesting ride.

"Follow the highway out through San Fernando and stop at the old mission there," says Dimond. "This spot marks the real historical monument for Los Angeles. Its graceful arches and cloisters fairly reflect the romance of early days. From there the road winds over the Newhall grade and through the tunnel. A quite different grade is presented today, compared to the steep climb on over the mountains, known as Fremont Pass. It was a test of mechanical endurance to make the climb in the days of motor car infancy.

"Out through Saugus and over the concrete highway the road swings to the west and over rolling hills to Fillmore. Close to this town is the home of Ramona, at Camulos. It was here that the famous love story delightfully described in Helen Hunt Jackson's tale of "Ramona," had its real foundation. The old house of adobe still stands and the wonderfully fertile fields that abound serve to give evidence of why the early settlers chose such favored spots.

EARLY PISTONS WERE WEIRD CONTRAPTIONS.

SIZE AND WEIGHT WERE ABOUT THE ONLY THING THEY REALLY HAD.

To the eye of the experienced mechanic or engineer no single feature of the early types of internal combustion motor seems more odd than the pistons used in the engines of two decades ago. Apparently they were built with the single idea of making them enormously strong. The small-bore motor was virtually unknown twenty years ago and the pistons of the one and two-cylinder cars of those days are something to marvel at for size and weight.

"It did not take many years for engineers to realize that the huge, heavy piston was extremely hard upon the bearing surfaces of the crankshaft and connecting rod. Furthermore, they began to do a little figuring as to the energy required to stop and start the piston at the end of each stroke, and, as a consequence, they began an earnest search for lighter pistons," says T. A. Tibbot, sales manager of the Western Motors Company, Kissel distributors.

"The use of the small-bore, long-stroke motor was a great step in this direction, for the smaller cylinder lessened greatly the size and weight of the piston. But the search of the engineers still continued, and, with the development of light but exteremely strong aluminum alloys, it was thought that the question of piston material was solved. The aluminum piston was widely adopted and did possess the merits of extreme lightness and adequate strength.

"But Kissel designers have used in their custom-built six a piston of gray cast iron, made by them especially according to their own design. They have achieved a very light piston, yet a very strong design, reinforced with webs of metal. The top of the piston is highly polished, making it almost impossible for carbon to collect on its surface. It is just an example of the care which Kissel designers have everywhere exhibited in the construction of their car."

Moon's Proven Units
—Try to match them

Twelve units tell the story of any automobile. Put it down in black and white that these units are the measure of the value you are getting for your money. Don't be satisfied with a car that has merely one or two good units, but demand that all twelve be of proven quality.

Then match them up, unit by unit, with those of the Moon 6-48—motor, carburetor, starter and ignition, battery, clutch, transmission, universal joints, axles, springs, radiator, steering gear and frame. In the Moon, each and every one of these units has confirmed its title of proven quality. Each embodies the best motor knowledge of our entire generation. Not one or two, but all twelve are the product of specialists who know no equal in their respective fields.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—There w me a time—and it is not so fa ay that it cannot be alread en—when few golf courses will n trapped as severely as they oug be.

I know the pretty story of the tir siness man who goes out after y of hard work and much worr r an easy and restful round of gol does not want a difficult course.

BEST OF IT.

Nevertheless he is going to hav e that will be difficult, and it wi his stint to make the best of it he would have his share of th joyment the game holds for thos o have the more admirable atti de toward it, then it is inevitabl at he learns to recover from diff lties. And this can be learned.

By my reference to the more ad irable attitude, I mean the bein pleased and even dissatisfied wit play of one's self that prove le or no progress.

FIX METHODS.

Get your methods fixed in your d and then seek out all sorts o nkers and difficult places and actice playing out. I can think o better way than this to learn t well. But first we must get our thods—our theoretical recoveries ere are those, I am sure, who uld sneer at the mention of theory lied to the learning of golf or thing, but the fact remains tha theory must be there before the actice can commence. If the theory not in the mind of yourself, then is in the mind of your instructor. We shall theorize rather general at first:

STARTING OUT.

We shall take it for granted, for sake of discussion, that you are rting out to learn to recover. You in a bunker, half-buried in the d—or rather, if you would, your ll is so situated. You want to get first of all, and, of course, you uld like very much to get out lliantly. Don't try to make a rkling shot. Be content to get in the easiest way. A time may e when you will need to get to green from such a lie, but hold r heroic efforts until you have rned to merely get out.

You are being punished for a wild ot and you would do well to lise it. If you happen to be in d of a stroke, then you would ter allow your hopes to rest upon chance of gaining it in your rt game than of gaining it by r recovery shot. That is comn sense; and common sense, if lied to your game of golf, is sure assist you.

OBSERVATION.

If you have the opportunity to tch a first-class player you will erve, it is more than likely, that is very conservative in his efts to execute niblick shots— turally the more conservative as ball lies the more disadvanecously.

With such short space I can no re than scratch the surface of sand in this literary bunker. But another article I shall go deep-continuing instruction of a sort the hope that I may make some bitious one a better golfer by it. I suppose I shan't go any further n through a short discussion of oving the sand-ensconced ball, ich I mentioned in a paragraph ove.

LOTS OF POWER.

First, you must determine to use e a lot of power. You will need for in getting your ball back to course from a nest in the sand. are not going to strike the ball ctly. You are going to hit an an inch and a half or two es behind the ball, clearing the d with your niblick with sufficient e to disturb the sand enough to uade the ball out of the pit. A swing is required, of course. I you are going to strike one, one a half or two inches behind the . The explanation for the variable ance is that the more sand there be between the point of impact the ball, the less distance will ball go. The determination of the ll of range is to be made by yourand by practice.

Remember, the gravity of the sand he bunkers of one course is probnot the same as in those of your . Playing on a strange course, roke or two may be your loss in ustoming yourself to the bunkers e.

BROADWAY SPECIALS

By HARRY A. WILLIAMS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—An inquiry from the West has been received by me as to how great the difference, if any, between major and minor league umpiring.

Naturally, there is a difference, but it probably is not as marked as in the playing end of the game. This difference, however, does not possibly lie so much in any superior judgment on the part of the big league arbiters, or even to greater natural ability, but to more intensive requirements of mind and body.

Major league umpires give the impression of being "keyed up." It is sort of a super-alertness. As a rule they cover more ground than a minor league umpire, and are better than getting "on top" of the play. Their superiority is most apparent on the bases. There the judgment of the major league umpire shows to the best advantage. He seldom calls a wrong one on the paths, and the protests are resultingly few. On balls and strikes there are almost as many complaints as in the minors. Behind the plate a finer judgment is required, and the definitions of balls and strikes are such as to leave plenty of latitude for argument.

Yet I know of one arbiter in the National League, who is almost hopeless on the bases, and yet gives even and general satisfaction when sorting out balls and strikes. He presents the strange contradiction of being the poorest judge on the bases in either league, and the best in either behind the plate.

Naturally, the standard is higher here than in leagues of lower classification. The majors for one thing, have the pick of the country, and are financially strong enough to pay salaries which will keep good men on the job. But there is a wide range of difference in the majors. The average is high, but now and then you see one who looks hopelessly bad. Unquestionably, there are some major league umpires who really belong in the minors, and a few minor league arbiters who would not look out of place in the majors. But taken in the large, the majors have a big edge in the quality of the refereeing.

One advantage of being up here is that you never see the arbiters long enough at one stretch for them to pall on you. They seldom stay in one town for more than one series, and the average series is from three to four days. And the umpires are not paired off for any length of time. Frequently a change is made in the middle of a series, one of the umps simply disappearing and another bobbing up in his place.

As a rule they are good men physically, generally being ex-athletes. Ernie Quigley, ex-football player, sometimes known as the "iron umpire," is as fast as a boxer on his feet, and extremely powerful. He has had a few encounters. Since then nobody has questioned his ability to whip any man in the circuit. And he is apparently without fear. His final decision in a recent game in St. Louis almost started a riot. Somebody locked Quigley's dressing-room under the stand so that he could not get in. Then a big mob, ominous and threatening, barred the way. Quigley walked straight into the mob, and it parted for him without a murmur. A man on the fringe of the mob did hurl a pop bottle, but not one of the toughs in that bunch made a move to strike the umpire at close quarters.

Bottle throwing is much more prevalent up here than in the minors, and as these are often hurled from the second or third decks of the stands, the umpire's life is not infrequently in jeopardy. One of these heavy bottles hurled from any height is sufficient to fracture even an umpire's skull, but fortunately the marksmanship is generally poor, although I have seem them zip within inches of the umpire's unprotected dome. Because of the growing tendency to snipe the umpires with empties, and the inability of the officers to cope with the situation, it is probable the practice of selling soft drinks in hard bottles will eventually be abolished.

The personal equation enters into umpiring here the same as elsewhere. Some of the umpires seem more tolerent of certain players than of others, and nearly every pitcher would prefer too work with some particular umpire judging balls and strikes. There is one well-known pitcher who swears by all that is holy he can't win with one particular arbiter working in the wake of the wood. This ump, he claims, has found that he has less stuff on his fast ball than on his curve. "He will give me the corners on my fast ball, and won't give me anything at all when I use my curve," this pitcher told me. "He thinks that this will induce me to use my fast ball more, and if I do he knows they will hit it. This fellow has it in for me, and there is no use in my trying to win when he is on the job. And I haven't any comeback, either." How much of this is based on fact and how much on fantasy is problematical but the umpires being human, like the players, possibly have their likes and dislikes, although in a great majority of cases they try to forget these.

During a recent jump from Chicago to St. Louis, Johnny Evers spun an interesting one about Pete Compton, which I don't think has reached the West. It pertained to Jake Beckley, familiarly known as "Old Eagle Eye," and when Jake laid the hidden ball trick on the shelf as no longer any good.

Beckley was the last of the big-leaguers to use this "Joe Miller" of the diamond. He cherished it through his declining days as a big-leaguer and then took it to the minors with him when shipped from the Reds to Kansas City.

He has been known to attempt the trick a dozen or more times in a single game and it became one of the standing jokes of the National League. Every time the pitcher threw to first in an effort to catch a man off, Jake would tuck the ball under his wing and wait for the runner to step away from the bag, which, incidentally, the runner never did.

When Beckley landed with Kansas City he figured that, being new in the league, nobody would be wise to his wiles with the subtly hidden ball. During Beckley's first game Pete Compton, then in the American Association, reached first. The pitcher attempted to catch him off. Jake slipped the ball under his arm, as usual.

But his reputation had preceeded him, and Compton refused to budge from the bag.

The pitcher made another attempt. The throw was near the ground, and Jake instead of putting the ball beneath his arm, tucked it under the base before straightening up. Compton, however, observed what he was doing.

"Gwan, dig that ball out of your arm pit," said Pete, "I'm wise to you. I know where you got that ball."

"It ain't under my arm, honest it ain't," protested Jake. "Look here, and he waved both arms in the air."

No sooner had he raised his arms when Compton made a dash for second. Beckley began clawing at the base, but the ball stuck, and before he could get it out Pete was at second.

Thus the last sad rites were conducted over the hidden ball trick as far as "Old Eagle Eye" was concerned.

Gives Table of Loads to Go on Pneumatic Tires.

Many motor truck owners who have changed their tire equipment from solids to pneumatics are sometimes puzzled as to the maximum weight they should allow loads to reach on the air-filled tires. An exceptionally useful table has been figured out, supplying this information, and it is given below.

"Of course, it is not expected that these figures will be followed exactly," says the sales engineer of the Fisk Rubber Company, "but experts have worked the thing out both in theory and practice, and any truck owner will do well to follow the table as closely as possible."

The table gives maximum loads for both front and rear wheels, together with the proper tire sizes to be used on all trucks from three-quarter to five ton weights:

WALTER P. CHRYSLER NAMED AS HEAD OF OPERATIONS IN CHALMERS MOTOR CAR PLANT

The announcement that Walter P. Chrysler has been made the chairman of the managing committee in charge of operations of the Chalmers factory has set the automotive world agog, for the name of Chrysler is one to conjure with. Coincident with this announcement, it is stated that the working capital of the Chalmers organization has been increased by several million dollars. This important information was received last week by P. H. Greer of the Greer-Robbins Company, Chalmers distributors.

"At the same time, I am advised that Hugh Chalmers, organizer of the Chalmers company, is a member of the managing committee that Chrysler heads, and is to co-operate actively with him," said Greer. "Arthur E. Barker, formerly supervisor of districts for Dodge Brothers, has been made the new general sales manager. In this capacity he is in charge of domestic and foreign sales and service and advertising."

As first vice-president and manager of the Willys corporation and identified in a high capacity in all the widely-diversified Willys interests, assistant general manager of the General Motors, and president of the Buick company. Chrysler is recognized as one of the most important figures in the entire automotive industry.

"In a communication received by me, Mr. Chrysler places emphasis on the fact that quality must always be the first consideration in the manufacture of Chalmers cars, with quantity as a secondary factor. The high reputation that Chalmers has attained is to be fully maintained," declared the well-known distributor.

PISTON RINGS SELL IN LARGE NUMBERS.

"When the sales of a piston ring climb from a few thousand to millions per annum in just a few years that piston ring must have some emphatic advantages.

The patented spiral cut has solved the problem of making a one-piece ring completely gas-tight. There is no gap, and the ring uncoils with perfect circular expansion against the cylinder wall. It also makes the strongest and most durable construction, equal width and thickness all around, no weak or thin places. "This spiral principle is an exclusive Inland feature," says A. A. Derry, manager of the Los Angeles Motor Supply House, Inc.

A piston ring is simply a metal washer fitted into a groove around the piston head. Its purpose is to maintain a gas-tight, oil-tight seal between the piston head and the cylinder walls.

Stop Buying So Much Gas!

The Overland Sedan

Costs by the Month, Saves by the Mile!
Eats Up Distance, Saves Dollars!

On a railroad it is the trip and not the ticket that completes the transaction; and it is so with an automobile.

No institution can build up good-will on good-byes.

The Willys-Overland organization is just as interested in Overland owners after they have bought as before they are sold.

Saving you money on the up-keep is just as important as saving you money on the price of the car. And when gasoline began to go up four years ago, word went out to our designers that Overland owners must be protected, and the price of gasoline must be brought down—but not at the price of comfort!—get that, for that was the crux of the problem.

Hypothetically, it was impossible, and yet—

Under the stimulus of a great public need, and spurred on by the pride of a great reputation, the designers of the Overland have Done the Thing that Couldn't be Done!—they have unraveled still another insoluble secret of mechanics, by creating that marvel of mechanism, the new Suspension Triplex Spring, permitting the use of light alloy steels for economy, and acting as a pneumatic buffer between the road and you!

What the new Overland car and its remarkable improvements cost to create we shall never know. But we do know that it cost $6,000,000 to get ready to incorporate them into the new Overland car, and that the Overland car was a great car before these improvements were initiated and adopted.

So it seems a fair conclusion: That an institution that will voluntarily upset the ramifications of one of the greatest automobile manufacturing plants in the world, in order to reduce the gasoline bills of Overland owners, justifies the past, the future, and the immediate confidence of the American people.

GREER LEAVES ON TRIP EAST.

Will Attend Meeting of National Automobile Dealers.

To Stop at Detroit for Short Visit to Factory.

Expects to Divide Time Between North and South.

P. H. Greer of the Greer-Robbins Company left yesterday on a flying eastern trip. As vice-president of the National Automobile Dealers' Association, he will attend a quarterly meeting of the organization to be held at the La Salle Hotel in Chicago, September 9-10. Press of business here and in San Francisco made it impossible for him to be present at the last quarterly meeting of the association.

He will also make this an occasion to visit Detroit, where he will meet Walter P. Chrysler, recently made chairman of the managing committee in charge of operations of the Chalmers factory, and Arthur E. Barker, now general sales manager of the same organization.

Before leaving Greer said: "Our volume of business here and in San Francisco has grown to such an extent, that I feel that in the future I must divide the greater part of my time between the two cities." Upon his return to the Coast he will go to San Francisco.

The Greer-Robbins company recently secured a lease on the large three-story and basement structure located at 1035 Grand avenue, which has been occupied as a used car department and paint shop. The building is undergoing a course of renovation.

SLOWING UP HAS A BENEFICIAL EFFECT.

MEN BEING ABSORBED BY INDUSTRIES THAT ARE BADLY IN NEED OF HELP.

While the slowing up of numerous industries in the East because of the tightening of bank credits has released thousands of workmen, the situation has a beneficial result in that these are being absorbed by other industries that have been sorely in need of help, according to D. F. Poyer of D. F. Poyer & Son, who last week returned from a two weeks' visit to the Transport truck factory at Mt. Pleasant, Mich.

"The Transport factory is operating at about 70 per cent of its full capacity. It is the policy of the company to keep sufficiently ahead of orders so that no unwieldy surplus of stocks shall be on hand. This policy has been rigidly maintained since it began operations two years ago,"; he said.

"It is worthy of note that the Transport Truck Company, with a $5,000,000 capitalization, has never had to borrow a dollar since it began business. When the tightening up process started and rumors were flying thick and fast, the company desired to ascertain from four banks where it carries balances, what their attitude would be in event it was necessary to go to them for financial assistance. The answers from every one pay tribute to the company's high financial standing as well as the character of the product it is building."

TAKES CHARGE OF SERVICE STATION.

WELL KNOWN BATTERY EXPERT TO HELP PASADENANS KEEP RUNNING.

An announcement from Auto Row the past week to the effect that F. W. Birnie has resigned as general service manager of the Western Auto Electric Corporation and has purchased the Pasadena branch Willard service station of this company should be of particular interest to all Pasadena readers.

Mr. Birnie began his long career in the battery business way back in 1905 with the California Electric Dispatch, which operated a fleet of large electric trucks in competition with the horse drawn trucks of that early date. It may also be of interest to many motorists to note that while the batteries in these trucks were much larger than the ones used in the present day the principles have remained the same.

In 1906 Mr. Birnie became associated with the Electrical Construction Company, at that time one of the largest automobile electrical houses on the Pacific Coast. In 1907 Mr. Birnie commenced putting his battery knowledge into practical construction and built several batteries for famous racing cars. One was used on Barney Oldfield's "Green Dragon" and another on Bruno Sibel's "Red Devil." It was with these cars and equipped with Mr. Birnie's storage batteries that these men completely shattered all world's records on a dirt track, which held good for several years.

WHAT TAKES PLACE INSIDE A BATTERY.

EXPERT SAYS IT CAN BE LIKENED VERY NEATLY TO THE HUMAN BODY.

When you place a casual toe on the starter button and a cold stiff motor with, perhaps, high compression, promptly begins to turn over, has it ever occurred to you to wonder what is taking place in the battery that is furnishing all the power?

Listen to Mr. Harper, manager of the Los Angeles branch of the Western Electric Company, distributors of Titan storage batteries, he says: "Electrical energy, or power, is a very difficult thing to describe in its action as compared with other forms of power such as steam.

"It is more like the human energy that we generate within our own bodies than any of the mechanical forms of power.

"A storage battery can be likened to the human body quite easily. The plates are the muscles, the grids on which the plates are built the bones and the electrolite solution circulating through the batery, the life blood. This circulation must be free and unrestricted or you have a weak loggy battery—the human comparison. That is where insulation enters in as a very important factor. Then the plates must be big, strong muscular plates or you haven't much power and for good muscles you need good strong bone to build on—the grids."

GASOLINE STATIONS HAVE GREAT CAPACITY.

In the Willys-Overland plant at Toledo, O., are four gasoline stations with a capacity for 40,500 gallons of gasoline and the daily consumption is about 3200 gallons. The company's fuel oil tanks have a capacity of 140,000 gallons, while the daily consumption is 6500 to 8500 gallons.

Buys Home First and Then an Automobile.

A new King eight recently delivered to George N. Montgomery, who came to Los Angeles not long ago to make his home. Mr. Montgomery bought a home first and then selected the King as the next most important factor for enjoying Southern California.

HOME FIRST, THEN MACHINE

Some people come to California with the hope of some day going back to the old home town, but not so George N. Montgomery and his wife. They pulled up stakes and came West and in the West they are going to live if the Montgomerys have anything to say about it.

The first thing that Montgomery did was to buy a home and he picked out the finest home he could find. Then he looked around for a motor car that matched it and selected a King. Now he says he is satisfied and is settling down to hard work as manager and owner of the Hall Mark Picture Corporation of California.

"When Mr. Montgomery came into our salesroom, he looked as if he was earnestly seeking something that he really wanted," says Francis C. Davidson of the concern that bears his name, "and we straightway set out to show him that the King was just the answer to his search.

"Back in New York, where he hails from, they want what they want when they want it and Montgomery evidenced every indication that he was a dyed-in-the-wool New Yorker. And just to prove that out here in California we can even satisfy a New Yorker, we anchored him to a new home and then assisted him in annexing a real motor car.

"It was no easy thing to prove to this customer that the King was all that he expected of a car. We drove it at fast speed, at slow speed, climbed hills, backed up and went ahead, did stunts that would do justice to any scenario and after all this we came back to the salesroom and the car was in its new owner's hands that day."

PRAISES TRAINING SCHOOL.

That the educational and vocational schools instituted last October by the United States Army for the training of enlisted men in the service are a success, and that they are destined to fill an important position in the country's educational system, is the important statement made by Claude E. Whitcomb, instructor of the automotive department at Camp Funston, Kan. Whitcomb, while on his vacation between school terms, is visiting his father in this city.

He has been an interested visitor at the plant of the Master Carburetor Compny, where he has been accorded every courtesy. He explained that he made use of the Master in his classes at the big Kansas post in carburetion instruction.

"These schools are not only teaching men a vocation—they are also building character, which is equally if not more important. Possessing a vocation and the right kind of a character, a man is bound to be an A-1 citizen. Under existing regulations a man may enlist in the army for one year, get his room and board for nothing, be paid beside and receive training in the following branches: Carpentering, concrete work, plumbing, drafting, printing, including linotype operating, shorthand and typewriting, book-keeping, farming and general automotive mechanical work," he explained.

Dealer Says That Tires Won't Drop With Other Stuff.

One of the few things that did not materially increase in price during the period of the war was motor car tires. A comparison of prices four years ago and today shows a very small percentage of advance as compared with the ordinary articles of life.

"For this same reason, tires will not drop in price along with other articles," says Frank Price of Nelson & Price, distributors for Hartford cord tires. "At least, there will be no decline in the price on the standard well-known makes of tires. The shoddy tires that have come upon the market during the days of underproduction will first cut their prices and then retire from business as soon as their stock of tires is sold out.

"A tire like the Hartford cord represents the biggest value of today by comparison. A tire that will travel 20,000 and more miles as against shoddy tires that quit at 6000 to 7000 miles, is worth over three times as much, yet its cost is but a few dollars higher. And don't forget that a cheap tire also runs up the cost of tubes. We have customers that have driven Hartford cords over 20,000 miles and never had the air out of the tires. This means that the expense of inner tubes has been reduced to practically nothing."

REFINEMENTS IN THE NEW MODEL.

DEEPER AND HEAVIER FRAME ADDS TO STURDINESS OF THE MACHINE.

The tendency of the times in the manufacturing of motor cars is not to change styles but to increase the dependability and strength of the product.

In the drive for light weight economy many features develop that demand stronger construction, even though the cars built already have given no trouble on account of their lightness. One of the makers who has adhered to the policy of refinement and improvement is the Oakland Motor Car Company.

Instead of changing the construction of the car, they have simply made improvements in the chassis and in the body. The series 34-C Oakland to all appearances is no different than its predecessors, but a careful check of the various parts shows it to be a muchly revised car.

"The frame, which is the foundation of any car," says A. R. Miller, of the Los Angeles Oakland Company, "has been strenghtened in the Oakland. It is a heavy channel type and is five and one half inches in depth. A frame of this size on a car of the proportions of the Oakland is really greatly oversize, but an oversize frame is an advantage and not a handicap."

ENGINE BUILDING DEPARTMENT SOLD.

ROOT AND VAN DERVOORT TO SPECIALIZE ON KNIGHT MOTOR CARS.

Automotive trade journals last week carried the news of the sale of the automotive engine building department of the Root and Van Dervoort Engineering Company to the Moline Plow Company. Root and Van Dervoort have long been widely known in the motor trade as large builders of motors for other manufacturers, but the closing of the deal announced last week transfers this department of their business in its entirety to the Moline Plow Company.

"Henceforth the Root and Van Dervoort Engineering Company will concentrate upon the production of R. and V. Knight sixes and fours," said W. B. Conditt last week in commenting upon the deal. "The transaction just closed, of course, did not include the immense amount of machinery and equipment devoted to the building of R. and V. Knight motors. It was only recently that the company acquired much additional space and equipment in the shape of the big ordnance building in which they manufactured munitions during the war. This property, together with the former R. and V. Knight equipment will continue to be used in the manufacture of R. and V. Knight cars."

RALPH MULFORD JOINS EXPERIMENTAL STAFF.

Smiling Ralph Mulford has joined the engineering and experimental department of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company, according to advices received from the factory last week by Bob Evans of A. E. Evans & Co., Southern California distributors for the Paige.

"Mulford needs no introduction to Southern California motorists, for they have seen him in action in too many of the big Southern California speed events in years gone by," said Evans last week. "Mulford is one of the oldtimers of the racing game, for he set up in business as a speed merchant in Philadelphia as long ago as 1907.

That same year he won a twenty-four-hour road race in record time, driving his car straight through the long grind without once calling on his relief driver. That feat of skill and endurance won him wide reputation among the racing fraternity. In the years that have elapsed since he has taken part in most of the big races all over the country. He made his last appearance in Southern California at the opening races on the Beverly Hills Speedway last spring."

"DUTIFUL DOROTHY" ON NONSTOP TRIP.

A Dort car called the Dutiful Dorothy arrived in Los Angeles last Tuesday from San Diego after the motor had been running constantly for a week at that city.

It started on a tour of Southern California soon after its arrival here, visiting the various Dort dealers of Earle C. Anthony, Inc., State distributors of the Dort line.

It was planned to run the motor for a week only at the San Diego store of the Anthony firm, but as there seemed to be no reason why it should not continue indefinitely to purr smoothly on, it was driven to this city and started on a tour of the State.

After making calls on Southern California dealers, it will be driven to Sacramento for the State Fair week at that city and also to be present at the housewarming of the new Anthony Building just erected to house the sales department of that firm.

Stops will be made at Bakersfield, Fresno, as well as Stockton, where there are Anthony stores, then at some of the intermediate towns where the Dort is represented by subdealers.

"[illegible] Rohlfs and the designers of [illegible] machine believe they will make [illegible] 300 miles an hour in [illegible] actual race," Mr. S. E. J. Cox, [illegible] and builder of the bullet [illegible], declared after the tests. [illegible] says that he had the motor [illegible] at but half its maximum [illegible] is feared the wings would be torn off, due to the great speed. This means that with the shorter wings to be used in the race possibly 100 miles an hour can be added to the already remarkable record if the motor is run at full speed.

OUT TO GET IT.

"If this proves to be true the Gordon Bennett cup will be brought back to America to stay, as no other machine has nearly approached this speed, and it is doubtful if any developed for this contest will do so," he continued.

The "Texas Wildcat" has many remarkable features innovated for the cup race. The most remarkable is the twelve-cylinder, 400-horsepower motor. This power plant is expected to prove the one deciding factor in the contest as its power-weight ratio is lower than any other aerial engine. The motor is also compact and presents less surface in flight than any engine of half its horse power.

NOT TOO LARGE.

The machine is but twenty-two feet from tip to tip and twenty feet in length. Such dimensions have been held out of question on a plane of such tremendous power. The propeller is a third as long as the spread of the planes and over a foot thick at the hub.

Considerable trouble was experienced in taking off and landing, it being necessary to attain a speed of more than 100 miles an hour before the machine would leave the ground. In landing it was found that the plane must be traveling at least ninety miles an hour to sustain it until the wheels could safely touch the ground.

LANDING SPEED.

Such great landing speed necessitated the sudden stopping of the machine as few fields could be found large enough and level enough to permit the plane to gradually come to a halt. Several types of aerial brakes were experimented with, but only one contrivance has proven practical. This consists of a small parachute which, in flight is retained in the fuselage of the plane, under the canvas covering. On landing a long slit is torn in this cloth and the parachute jerked out. As the air fills it the plane quickly comes to a halt.

SERVICE GUARANTEE TO COVER BATTERY.

MANUFACTURERS CERTIFY TO THE LIFE OF THEIR SPARK-MAKER.

Few motorists give more than passing thought to the part that the modern storage battery plays in the continuous and efficient operation of a car, but the mysterious box, with its plates, terminals, distilled water and various other parts feeds the life spark to the motor.

The manufacture of storage batteries has reached the point, where, at least one factory is backing its product with an iron-bound guarantee of service. Sulphation is the arch enemy that has heretofore stood in the way of a guaranteed storage battery. But the National Carbon Company, Inc., manufacturers of Everready storage batteries, have positively overcome sulphation, and are backing their faith in this battery with a written guarantee against sulphation.

An official of the Woodill-Hulse Electric Company of this city, Southern California distributors of Everready storage batteries, in discussing the subject of storage batteries, says:

"The storage battery is, without doubt, one of the most vital, and at the same time least understood, parts of a motor car. Most drivers give but little, if any thought, to the faithful service which he receives from his storage battery. Particularly is this true in the case of the Everready. Everready enjoys a special distinction in that it is sold under a positive guarantee of service. When a customer purchases an Everready battery he is insured by the manufacturer against the ravages of sulphation. This is an entirely new departure and is arousing a big amount of interest among motorists. The Everready is unquestionably the 'big noise' in the storage battery line."

AUTOMOBILE CLUBS SHOW 'EM THE WAY.

CROSS COUNTRY WITHOUT AID OF MAP—DEPEND ON CLUB INFORMATION.

That the efficiency of the various automobile clubs throughout the United States is such that one may safely motor from the Atlantic to the Pacific without so much as a map in their possession is attested by the arrival of a party of motorists in Los Angeles who journeyed some 8000 miles over the continent sans a chart of any description.

ZIG-ZAG TRIP.

Mrs. Wellford Reed and Mrs. Lethia C. McGee, accompanied by W. B. Lumsden, Franklin representative at Raleigh, S. C., left that city on June 23 and since then have zig-zagged their way to practically every point of interest in the United States, depending entirely upon the directions given by the auto clubs from town to town. They have nothing but praise for the efficiency and cordiality of these organizations, especially that of the Automobile Club of Southern California, which, they say, has no equal in the country.

Journeying from Raleigh to Washington, D. C., and thence through Indianapolis and Chicago to Milwaukee, the party took the Yellowstone Trail from the latter city to Yellowstone Park. From there they traveled into Washington, up into Canada and back down the Coast highway to Los Angeles.

COMPARE NOTES.

Arriving here, the party, having made the trip in a Franklin and Mr. Lumsden being a representative of that car in Carolina, it was natural that they should drop in at Ralph Hamlin's establishment and compare notes. There they saw on display the Franklin which recently made the 500-mile low-gear run through the blazing stretches of the Imperial Valley, encountering a temperature around 125 deg.

Apropos of the terrific heat Mrs. Reed said that east of the Cascade Mountains in Washington they traveled through country that sweltered under a temperature of 120 deg., which is a climate inconsistent with the popular opinion of the northern State. In fact, Mrs. Reed, while disavowing any intention of "knocking," said that this part of Washington was the only unpleasant feature of their long trip.

STATISTIC FIEND FIGURES IT OUT.

SAYS HE HAS TO SHIFT GEARS HUNDREDS OF TIMES A DAY.

The man whose insatiable appetite for statistics, led him to the knowledge that his barber took 547 strokes with his razor in removing the alfalfa from his countenance, is not the only one with a highly developed thirst for facts and figures.

The Burton Transfer Company, which handles under contract, the work of hauling the noncombustible rubbish of the city of Los Angeles, has a driver whose interest in his work has led him to watch the operation of his truck with extreme care and observation. As a consequence the company has a wealth of facts and statistics that have been extremely valuable to it in its business. It knows just what its trucks are doing all the time and how much it is costing them, which is important if success in truck operation is to be attained.

The company uses Moreland trucks exclusively in this work, at present using ten. This particular driver runs one of the first worm drive trucks ever produced by the company. It is over five and one-half years old and except for the always necessary new brake linings and such things, has never cost a cent for repairs.

This work calls for constant stopping and starting, subjecting all the gears and driving mechanism to unusual strain as well as being a drain on the fuel mileage record. The driver referred to found by actual count on a day of regular work that he had to shift gears 572 times from a dead stop, not counting any other shifting that might be necessary during motion.

MOTOR VEHICLES HAVE AN EDGE ON RAILROADS.

FIGURES ON DEVELOPMENT DURING PAST FEW YEARS ARE REMARKABLE.

"An idea of the development of motor transportation during the past ten years can be obtained by comparing it with the development of railroad transportation," say House & Meyer, Inc., Southern California and Arizona distributors of the Maibohm six.

"A comparison of railroad mileage with highway mileage made by the builders of the Maibohm shows that throughout the entire United States the highway mileage is approximately ten times greater than the railroad mileage, the figures showing that there are 2,478,552 miles of highways and 253,626 miles of railways.

"For every mile of railroad we have there are ten miles of highway; for every railroad car there are three motor cars. We possess a motor vehicle for every fifty-nine yards of railroad right of way.

"A comparison of the railroad mileage in the various States shows a decidedly unequal distribution of transportation facilities. In Rhode Island, for instance, there is one motor vehicle for every nine yards of railroad track, while in Nevada there is but one motor vehicle for every 434 yards. Texas, whose railroad mileage is 35 per cent greater than that of any other State, has one motor vehicle for every eighty-five yards, as compared with one motor vehicle for every 188 yards in Louisiana, its neighboring State."

CAR IS DESIGNED FOR ROUGH GOING.

In the construction of the Climber the manufacturers have been governed by the road conditions in the country surrounding the place where the car is built. Little Rock, Ark., is located in a State that until recently has lain dormant, and its roads are nothing more than trails. Highways there can be measured by the foot instead of by the mile.

"It was to build a car that would stand up on such makeshifts of roads that the Climber people set out to do," says R. L. Magee of the Magee Motor Sales, distributors for the Climber and the Metz. "Wherever they could make the car stronger they did so. Overstrength was necessary. Axles, shafts, wheels, motor, transmission and clutch all had to be ready to do double duty at all times.

"The result is that Climber is without doubt the sturdiest car of its size to be found anywhere. Even the clearance of the car had to come in for its share of careful consideration. Deep ruts demanded more clearance and it was allowed. The Climber has eleven inches of road clearance and the axles protect the mechanical units from damage where even the eleven inches are not sufficient to take the car through."

TRUCK SIZES FOR ALL REQUIREMENTS.

NEW SERIES OF DUAL-VALVE CARS WILL GIVE PURCHASER WIDE LATITUDE.

With the expansion of its line of models, the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Company's latest product, the dual-valve motor truck, offers its exclusive haulage advantages to virtually every phase of transportation actility, according to Robert O. Patten, truck sales manager of the company.

"Each equipped with dual-valve engines and double ignition, the two-ton, three and one-half-ton and five-ton trucks and the tractor unit meet all haulage requirements above the field of the light delivery vehicle," says Mr. Patten. "Each of these units carries to its special field a power ability 30 per cent greater and a hill-climbing ability 50 per cent greater than heretofore attained. And this with 20 per cent more economy in gasoline consumption."

No factor which counts for lower haulage cost has been overlooked in the Pierce-Arrow dual-valve truck, says Mr. Patten. The qualities of durability and reliability upon which Pierce-Arrow reputation has been built have been enhanced by improved and modernized manufacturing methods. A new accessibility of design, conserves to a marked degree the time spent in repair or replacement work. Speed, always a Pierce-Arrow attribute, will figure even more prominently as a productive factor. The two-ton unit's speed has been increased from sixteen to eighteen miles an hour, while on pneumatic tires, this unit will travel twenty-three miles an hour. The three and one-half-ton's speed is governed at sixteen miles an hour; on pneumatics it will travel twenty-two miles an hour. The five-ton truck's speed is fourteen miles an hour.

FINISH INCLOSED JOBS ON ARRIVAL.

FIND THAT OWNERS LIKE TO SELECT THEIR OWN COLOR SCHEMES.

Because the inclosed car of the sedan or the coupe type is essentially a family car, the average owner of such a machine is more apt to be particular regarding its appearance. The ordinary open car is used so much today for commercial purposes, that most owners of such models are inclined to be less particular regarding its looks. The car that is a family possession and used largely by the women folks is much more apt to be carefully considered concerning its color and finish.

"For that reason, we are having our Columbia Six inclosed models finished to order in Los Angeles after their arrival here," said Andrew Baldwin of the J. V. Baldwin Motor Company, Columbia distributors, last week. "Since adopting this policy we have found it extremely popular among our inclosed car buyers for it enables them to pick the exact color scheme they desire. The average inclosed car as it comes from the factory is as a rule rather a somber and conventional-colored affair. Southern California buyers are noted for their propensity for individually colored cars, and I believe this tendency even more marked among inclosed car buyers than among open car users."

HERNDON ENLARGES H.C.S. SALES FORCE.

STAFF HARD AT WORK GIVING ALL PROSPECTIVE OWNERS A DEMONSTRATION.

With a prospect list of 300 persons waiting for demonstration in the new H.C.S., Harry E. Herndon, local distributor for the new car built by Harry C. Stutz, was forced to enlarge his sales force still further last week. The arrival of a carload of H.C.S. cars gave Herndon the benefit of a demonstrating car, something he has not hitherto enjoyed, and his salesmen are hard at work giving the long list of interested "prospects" a ride in the H.C.S.

Among the men added to the Herndon sales force were C. W. Moffat and L. J. Humphries. The former has had long experience in selling high-grade cars, his initial sales experience being gained in the sale of Rolls-Royce cars with a distributor in Scarborough, Eng. Moffat's sales experience was punctuated by four years in the Royal Flying Corps, and he was later connected with the Wolsley in Toronto, Can., and with an American firm in Detroit. Humphries is new to the automobile business, but has had many years experience as a salesman.

Maibohm

True Artisans mould the coaching of Maibohm cars. The permanent beauty of old school coach work, with square doors which swing on long hand-wrought hinges, gives an everlasting charm to this car whose rugged chassis seems to improve with use. Imagine these appointments in a car of light weight, flexible valve-in-head power range, low maintenance cost, and then marvel at the moderate price of Maibohm—the lightest good six made.

DIRIGIBLE R-38 BIGGEST AIRSHIP

Being Built in England for American Navy.

Will be Ready to Take Air Late in November.

Trained Crew Ready for Ship's Trial Flight.

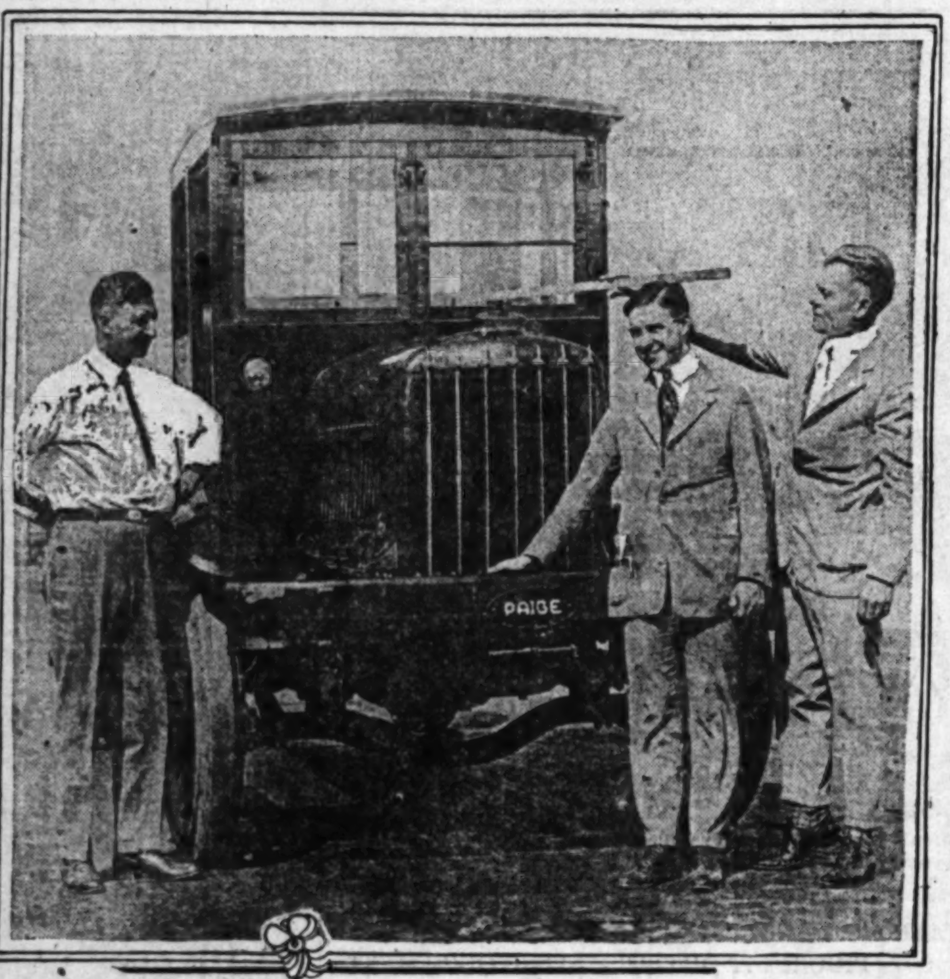
[BY A. P. CORRESPONDENCE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Latest reports received at the Navy Department are that the dirigible R-38, now being constructed for the American Navy by the Royal Airship Works at Bedford, Eng., is more than 60 per cent completed and probably will be ready to take the air by the latter part of November.

When the great dirigible, which will surpass in size any airship ever constructed, thrusts her nose out of the hangar at Bedford for the first time there will be a trained-to-the-minute American crew aboard to put her through her trial flight. Several training cruises on the British dirigible R-32, offered by the British government for that purpose, already have been made by American naval personnel who will form the R-38's crew and the mammoth airship will be manned by experienced sailors of the air when she sets out on her trans-Atlantic flight, which, officials say, will be made next April or May.

With a gas volume of 2,724,000 cubic feet, the R-38 will surpass in size the largest rigid airship yet turned out by the Zeppelin company, the L-71, by 304,000 cubic feet and the British dirigible R-34, which crossed the Atlantic last year, by 711,000 cubic feet. Her six engines will develop 1950 horsepower, or 130 more than the most powerful Zeppelin craft, and drive the great gas bag at an estimated maximum speed of seventy-five miles an hour.

To accommodate the 694-foot stretch of the R-38, the naval airship hangar at Cape May, N. J., already had been lengthened to 700 feet and also increased in height. The two large hangars now under construction at Lakehurst, N. J., probably will not be completed until July, 1921, or after the R-38's arrival.



This New Paige Truck is no Infant.

"Bob" Evans got out with a measuring stick last week and found that the new Paige three-and-one-half-ton truck had a radiator that was taller than "Biz" Clark, sales manager for the local Paige distributors. The big wagon is built for heavy-duty work and looks the money all the way through.

Turned Down with a Soft Answer.

It was the sweet scent of the lilies in the conservatory, the beauty of the young girl's hair or the excellent champagne he had taken at supper that led to his proposing in the obscurity beneath a palm.

"It cannot be," she said. "I am unworthy of you."

"Oh, rubbish!" said he.

"It is true; it is true." And she sighed.

"You are an angel," he said, ardently.

"No, no; you are wrong," said the girl. "I am vain, idle, silly, utterly unfit to be your helpmate through life."

He laughed lightly, then said in a soothing voice:

"Why, this is sheer madness. What sort of a wife do you think I ought to have?"

"A very wise, deliberate, practical woman," she replied, "one able to live on your salary."—[Scranton Times.

THRILL IN JUMP IN PARACHUTE.

Army Sergeants Meet With Trying Experience.

One Loses Much Blood in Drop of 20,600 Feet.

Other in Rudderless Plane Makes Safe Landing.

[BY A. P. CORRESPONDENCE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Army aviators have long since ceased to get many thrills out of routine or even "stunt" flying, it is said, but an exception should be made in the case of two sergeants who recently set out to break the world's altitude record for a parachute jump at McCook field, Dayton, O., according to an Air Service announcement. The men were Sergeants Strong B. Madan and Ralph Bottrell.

The sergeants, without intimating the nature of their objective, took the air in a Le Pere two-seated plane with Madan as the pilot and Bottrell wearing a standard army parachute of the double-pack type. After flying for an hour the plane had reached an altitude of 20,600 feet and Sergeant Bottrell started to climb out of the cockpit to make the jump.

The release ring of his parachute, however, accidentally caught on the fuselage of the plane and the parachute opened prematurely, dragging the sergeant out over the tail of the machine. Bottrell's arm struck the rudder of the plane as he went by, tearing some ligaments of his arm and stripping off a sleeve of his fur lined flying coat. A strap of his harness at the same time caught the rudder and tore it from the plane. The parachute itself was damaged but opened as the sergeant cleared the machine and started his long descent.

Sergeant Bottrell lost considerable blood from his injured arm during the drop, but made a safe landing in a plowed field and received medical attention in time to prevent any serious result from his injury.

Meantime, Sergeant Madan, in a rudderless airplane 20,600 feet in the air, was having troubles of his own. He finally found a position where he could maintain a straight flight by keeping the throttle in a certain position and tilting the plane with the ailerons. In this manner he glided down to within about 8000 feet of earth, where he managed to make a wide turn by juggling his throttle and aileron controls, straightened out and made a perfect landing without further damage to his machine.

LANGUAGE HE UNDERSTOOD.

The sergeant was instructing some recruits in the mysteries of marching movements. After explaining and illustrating his remarks several times, he approached one recruit, looked at him silently for a moment, and demanded his name.

"Fitzgerald, sorr!"

"Did you ever drive a donkey, Fitzgerald?" was his next inquiry.

"Yes, sorr," was the man's reply.

"What did you say when you wanted him to stop?"

"Whoa!"

The sergeant turned away and immediately put his squad in motion again. The men advanced a dozen yards or so, when he rasped out:

"Squad, halt! Whoa, Fitzgerald!"—[London Answers.

ACCORDING TO INSTRUCTIONS.

When the De Smythkins got on in the world a little, Tim, their handy man, was promoted to a decayed dress suit and the title and emoluments of butler. In this capacity he had been taken severely to task by Mrs. De Smythkins, Sr., for allowing some visitors who inquired for her son's wife to go away without having announced the fact that she was at home.

"If this happens again, Tim, you must say, 'My mistress is out, but the dowager Mrs. Smythkins is within. Please step inside,'" she wound up.

And Tim promised to obey. Long words, however, were not his strong point, and when a few days later more visitors called, the word "dowager" refused to remain in his mind. "My mistress is out, sir," he said, "but the—er—ah—the owld badger is within. Pray step inside. Sure, ye needn't look surprised. 'Tis what she towld me to say herself."—[Tit-Bits.

A Costly Typographical Error.

Errors are the bug-bear of the printer, and despite every precaution they creep into the most high-grade work.

An error that cost $2,000,000 occurred a few years ago in the government printing plant at Washington.

It was all due to a misplaced comma.

The copy of a particular tariff bill provided that "foreign fruit plants, etc," were to be admitted free of duty, the idea being to encourage the culture of high-grade varieties of fruit trees and grapevines in this country.

When the bill was printed "foreign fruit plants, etc," read "foreign fruit, plants, etc." and as a result oranges, grapes, lemons, bananas, came into the United States free of duty for a year.

The error cost the government just about $2,000,000 in revenue.—

Pat's Strange Mix-up.

Pat was employed as a hodcarrier during the new building operations. One morning he happened to be late. Putting on his clothes in haste, he hurried away without noticing that he had put on his trousers with the back to the front.

Arriving at the building just in time, Pat was soon climbing the ladder with his first hod of bricks, but half way up he fell to the ground.

His mates rushed to the rescue. "Are you kilt?" they asked.

Pat opened his eyes and for a moment gazed wonderingly at his own legs. "No, bedad," he said, "but I've had a terrible twist."—[Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

CHALMERS

With HOT SPOT & RAM'S-HORN accomplishes more with the low grade "gas" today than many cars did with a high test "gas" years ago

Quality First

THE resourceful minds in the Chalmers engineering corps have wrestled with the gasoline problem, solved it; and now a Chalmers does undreamed of things with low grade gasoline.

Hot Spot and Ram's-horn, accepted by the public and the automobile trade alike, as the means of getting out the power that nature stored in gasoline, perform engineering miracles.

That they get the power out is well known.

That they increase mileage from "gas" is well known.

That they reduce vibration is well known.

That they save in up-keep and repairs a large sum each year is well known.

But how well known are these facts:

1. A Chalmers engine is practically carbon exempt.

2. A fouled spark plug is seldom found in a Chalmers.

3. An improperly adjusted carburetor is seldom experienced in a Chalmers.

Only those who drive a Chalmers know, and they will tell you that these are but a few of the reasons why a Chalmers is one of the few great cars of the world.

TOURS COUNTRY ON HIS BICYCLE.

Doctor, 73, Pedals from San Diego to Nebraska.

Has Traveled 30,000 Miles in Past Twenty Years.

Now Visiting Mother in Indiana, Who is 94.

BY T. R. PORTER.
[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BLAIR (Neb.) Sept. 2.—Dr. John Warner, 73 years old, of 106 West B street, San Diego, Cal., rode into Blair last week on his bicycle upon which he has traveled 30,000 miles in the last twenty years.

After visiting a niece here for three days the old man, who looks about 50 years, tuned up his bicycle and put out for Medaryville, Pulaski county, Indiana, to visit his mother, Mrs. John Warner, who is 94 years old and the oldest woman in that county. Warner was born in Medaryville, served throughout the Civil War in an Indiana regiment and went to California thirty or forty years ago.

This is Dr. Warner's third bicycle trip from San Diego to Blair. It took him six weeks to make the trip. The cost was something like $19, which included his food and lodging en route.

Repairs to his bicycle during the trip was 15 cents for a patch on his front tire. Gasoline and oil cost nothing. Room rent cost him just $1.50 for the six weeks. He slept outdoors every night but one. And he cooked every meal for himself all the way from California to Nebraska.

KIT ON HANDLE BARS.

Warner's "kit" is certainly some kit. His cooking utensils consist of two little tin pans which fit into each other, a little skillet with a detachable handle and a canteen for water. His bedding consists of two pieces of canvas, two blankets and a small air pillow. All rolled together his kit fits on his handle bars. He sleeps out of doors in rain, snow or moonshine just the same.

"And I'm riding straight towards the 100-year mark," Warner says.

Twenty years ago Warner had tuberculosis and was fast nearing the grave.

"You are walking with one foot in the grave," a doctor assured him.

"All right; henceforth I shall cease to walk and I shall ride," he answered.

Warner was a physician himself. He had practiced medicine for years and was pretty well off. So he gave up his practice, bought a bicycle and started out for health.

SIMPLY WANDERED.

He simply wandered. He had no set place in view, but went wherever the notion struck him to go. For twenty years he has followed the same rule. Three times in that period he has ridden up to the front gate of his niece, Mrs. Minnie Triplett, here in Blair, dismounted and called, "Hello!" The first word they have ever had of his coming was when his cheery "Hello!" rang out.

There is scarcely a city in the United States in which Dr. Warner has not appeared in the last twenty years. But he never sleeps in one when he can get out of it. He will spend the day in the city, but at nightfall, winter and summer, he takes his old "bike" and rides out into the country, maybe a mile, maybe ten miles, rolls up under a tree and goes to sleep. The next morning he rides back into the city, perhaps. Perhaps he goes on and sees the city again in four or five years.

On his present trip from San Diego he averaged forty-five miles a day. "But I didn't ride during the heat of the afternoon," he explains. "I usually lay off three or four hours and ride in the cool of the evening."

RESCUE IN DESERT.

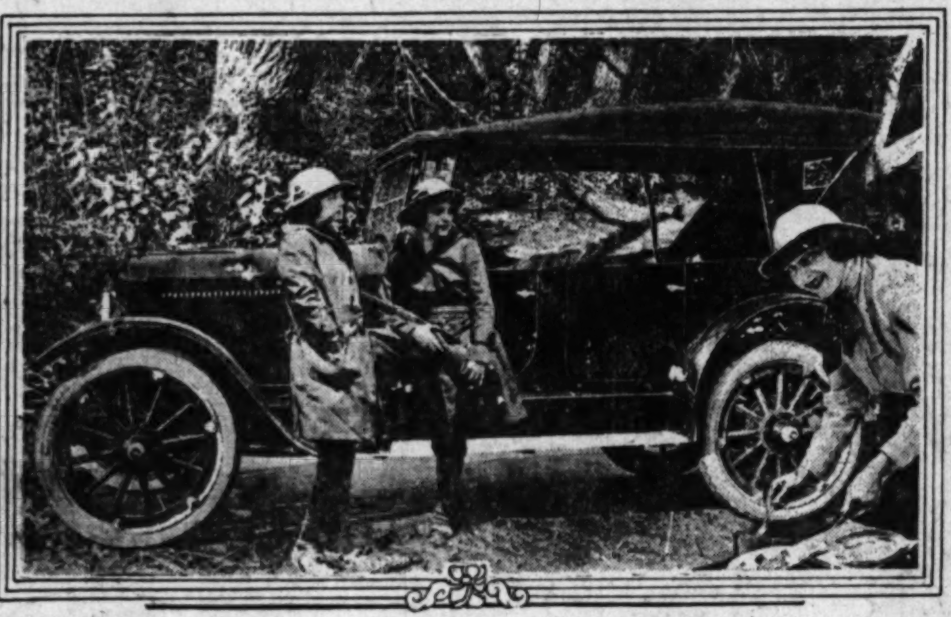
Along the last of June, while crossing the desert in Nevada, Warner came upon two young fellows who had started walking across the waste of sand without knowing what they were doing. They had no water and were fifty miles from any. They were both about three parts dead and would never have lived to reach water.

From his canteen Warner gave the two young fellows a few swallows each. Their lips and tongues were swollen and parched. To have given them as much water as they wanted would have meant death to them. He had to fight them to make them relinquish the canteen.

After remaining with them half a day and seeing them strong again, he gave them his canteen of water, knowing that on his bicycle he could make a stream long before they could hope to do so. So, when he reached Blair last week, he had a new canteen.

While at Blair Warner received word that his mother in Medaryville was not well. So he "hitched up his bicycle," as he said, and started for Indiana.

"The automobile is a wonderful invention, but for longevity and health and downright pleasure give me the pedal-propelled old bike," says Dr. Warner. "I can go anywhere an automobile can go and can go lots of places an auto can't touch. And except on the very best roads I believe I can really make better time than an auto can make. But I'm not riding to save time. I'm riding for health and pleasure. I'm riding for the century mark."



Gardner Outing Club is Howling Success.

The Misses Evans, Cardiff and Gates started out recently on their vacation in a Gardner light four. They tackled all the mountains in sight, but never found one that they couldn't climb. The car made such an impression that the young ladies declared they would never try railroads again when vacationing.

FOR CITY'S TUNNELS.

Owing to the fear Hawaiians have of working in tunnels, and because their bulk precludes them working satisfactorily in more or less contracted space, some of the tunnels which the city is digging in the Nuuanu section to develop greater water supply for the city are being worked by expert Japanese workers. Mayor Wilson found that this plan had to be adopted, and the work is progressing satisfactorily.

Most of the tunnels in the Territory, which were opened to develop water sources, have been worked by Japanese.—[Pacific Commercial Advertiser, Honolulu.

When the Cowboy Called.

"Will you send up a card, sir?" asked the maid servant of Bill, the cowboy, who called to see a friend in the West End.

"Will I send up a card, did you say?" he inquired, as he thrust one of his hands into his overcoat pocket.

"Yes, sir," replied the maid.

"Is that the fashion here?" asked the cowboy.

"Yes, sir: at least it's customary," explained the maid.

"Well, of course, if it's customary I'll have to reg'late myself accordin'. What suit does he want—hearts, diamonds, clubs or spades? Here, take him up the blessed pack and let him have his choice!"—[Tit-Bits.

"Fine Arts in Religion."

As a result of the demand for leadership in the field of religious music, pageantry and art, which was largely created by the drama department of the Interchurch World Movement, the school of religious education and social service of Boston University has announced the organization of a department of fine arts in religion. Prof. H. A. Smith, chairman of the committee of music, pageantry and art in the American religious education survey department of the Interchurch, has been appointed as the director.

GAS PRODUCTION JUMPS.

Facts gathered from such sources as the U. S. Geological Survey, the U. S. Bureau of Mines and the American Petroleum Institute, show that the present production of the gasoline and oil is the largest ever recorded, according to H. J. Coger of the Troy Motor Sales Company.

"Far from there being any slackening in production, May showed by far the greatest gasoline output in history," said Coger last week. "No less than 381,079,291 gallons of gasoline were refined in this country in the single month of May. This was at the rate of more than twelve million gallons per day, and the report of the Petroleum Institute declares that efficiency in the refining of oil is becoming greater every day, and that more and more refiners are putting in better processes.

"Another encouraging feature is the apparent stabilization of conditions in Mexico, as evidenced by the increasing shipments of oil from that country. The June shipments of oil from Mexico were well over eight million barrels, or at the rate of a hundred million barrels per year. This is about double the rate of shipment for the year 1919."

BUSY MEN LIKE SEDANS.

Early morning evidence that the sedan is becoming increasingly popular as a car for business men and that its manifold advantages over the open touring models are bringing it to the very forefront of motordom, may be had by anyone who cares to go to the wholesale markets during the early hours of any market day. Here one can find proof positive that the business man who rises with the lark is going to his work in a closed car, for among the cars parked near the markets the closed car is fast taking the place of the open models.

In fact, so well does the sedan meet the needs of these early morning business men, that Harry Lord of the Lord Motor Car Company, Velie distributors, has been centralizing his sales effort during the past few weeks on Velie sedans among this class of prospective buyer, with the result that three Los Angeles wholesalers are now the proud possessors of as many Velie sedans, and an additional shipment of the Velie sedan is due to arrive at the Lord sales-room tomorrow, one car from which has already been spoken for by another wholesaler.

Said Lord yesterday, "The Sedan is a guarantee in itself of a cosy, comfortable drive at any time and any place. So the scores of Los Angeles men whose business requires them to be downtown early or late are not slow to see the advantages offered by the new Velie sedan. One short drive in this luxurious car and they are ready to abandon the open model for the Sedan. Then when we warn them that the Velie sedan is scheduled for a 20 per cent advance in price very soon, it is not long before their names are on the order form."

AMONG THE FANS.

Herbert Morrall, president of the Boston Checker Club, and checker editor of the Boston Globe, has published a useful chart on the two-move restriction, for the student and expert, showing what he considers the best and strongest replies for the first sixteen moves. It gives the player a good idea how to confine his opponent to certain lines of play. If you care for one send 10 cents to Herbert Morrall, 7 Brookside avenue, Boston, Mass.

"Ye editor" arrived home a few days ago, but have not had an opportunity to examine the mail that accumulated during my absence. Several contributions are on hand which will appear in due time. Correspondents will please have patience for a few days. Will also try and have more tourney news ready for next Sunday.

LIVE RUBBER VS. ROCKS.

Rocks ranging from "good throwin' ones" the size of a hen's egg to hefty specimens big as a football are enough to awe motorists, particularly when such obstacles loom up ahead of the car on a mountain road. Visions of blow-outs are usually the motorists' portion, but there is one pilot in Los Angeles who "should worry" as long as the rocks ahead are not really large enough to block the road.

He is E. E. Shields, a Hollywood owner of a Winton, whose tire worries vanished with the application of Perfections, according to a letter he has written to H. P. Rehbein, a Hollywood dealer who in turn passed the letter along to the Perfection distributors, Guasti, House & Giulii, Inc.

"Have just returned from a 200-mile trip in the San Bernardino Mountains," Mr. Shields wrote, "and the Perfections on my Winton do not look like they have been off the pavements.

"After going over the hardest part of the trip, where the rocks ranged in size from a hen's egg to a football, and driving in the dark, I was so fearful that the treads were chewed up that I hardly dared inspect them.

"When I threw the light on them I was agreeably surprised to find them as good as new. They're sure the livest rubber I ever rode on."

TRAP GUN AND ROD

BY TOM MARSHALL

[This is the forty-seventh of a series of articles, dealing with trapshooting, hunting and fishing by Capt. Tom Marshall, a noted authority on the great out-of-doors.]

"Where fish have wings and fly." Imagine the surprise of an inland water, stt his wings and gracefully mouth bass would emerge from the water, stt his wings and gracefully fly in midair a distance of 200 yards, to again take water ready for a dry fly or seductive minnow.

AT CATALINA.

In company with my old friend (world's champion wrestler) Frank Gotch, as a running mate, we headed for Santa Catalina, Magic Isle of the blue Pacific, day dream and mecca of all Coast tourists and fishermen. En route, across the twenty-six-mile channel, our boat was convoyed by a large colony of gulls, wise, but wary cormorants, followed our boat's wake. A lazy brown pelican crossed our bow at low elevation, in quest of finny filling for his capacious pouch or empty maw. Porpoise and shark gracefully disported, topping the wave crests of those gentle, undulating, ground swells.

Many flying fish, about fourteen inches long, sprung from the water on their aerial flights, covering in many instances a distance of over 200 yards. Their gauze wings scintillated in the sunlight, their forked tails at intervals tapped the crest of a wave, accelerating their flight.

In many instances flying fish were evading tuna, albacore, or some other deep-water denizen, as they rushed after them just below the surface and directly beneath the flyer.

DELVE INTO SEA.

At Avalon, we boarded a glass-bottomed boat, which enables one to visually delve into the innermost and internal secrets of Old Neptune, gazing directly down into "Davy Jones" lockers. We ran out over the submarine gardens, where beds of iodine kelp are suspended in the water by olive-shaped air bubbles. You marvel and wonder at the marine gardens or aquatic forests.

Blue crystal water of the Pacific enables you to see down and distinguish at a distance of sixty feet, different phases of aquatic life and vegetation. Iodine, ribbon, and sea grape kelps. Feather boa, sea kelp, sponge and coral mosses. Fishbone, maidenhair and chiffon ferns, the arena of marine life is represented by fish of the following varieties: Bass, octopus, jellyfish, sea porcupine, shark, perch of the gold, blue, green, silver and convict brands. An occasional one-claw lobster threads his way around the rocks. All to be seen through the boat's glass bottom, where fish swim complacently about, undisturbed by the purr of propellers.

Our boat jogged on down to the seal rocks, where seal have become chummy and are seen at very close range. The following day Gotch and I essayed a fishing trip after albacore with "Shorty" acting official boatman. We were trolling about three miles off Moonstone Beach, with no success. "Shorty" located a colony of gulls about a half mile to the west and headed his boat in that direction with an assurance we would find a school of fish at that point, explaining that birds were there feeding on small fish, who had rushed to the surface in an effort to avoid larger fish below.

SHOWER OF BAIT.

Upon our arrival Shorty threw overboard a shower of sardines from the bait box, which slowly descended to be seen a very considerable distance down. Albacore darted about in every direction in quest of our lure. This semifeeding is designated by Catalina fishermen as "chumming" the school. While albacore were rushing our "chums," Gotch and I were industriously baiting our hooks and getting them overboard. An albacore immediately rushed my bait. I saw him coming, he struck, taking the lure with a gulp, his hungry associates rushing a good second.

My line became taut, reel sang a lullaby, my leather thumb brake or drag was pressed hard down. The silver beauty for a second rested, only to get a better start. A number of direct snubs induced a season of "sulking" on his part. Setting the butt of my pole in the socket, I commenced "pumping" him toward the surface. During his rusher feet were lost where before I had gained inches.

My muscles were at tension, aching with fatigue. It was unethical and against angler usage to shout for help, it would only invite derision. Every move made by my fish could be seen, enabling me to anticipate his tactics. Repeatedly the long-finned scrapper was almost to the boat. The sight of Shorty's face and fear of the gaff would again put him in frenzied action. The fighting power of both my fish and self were growing less aggressive from fatigue. When I finally landed him within gaffing distance, forty-three pounds of meat was landed aboard—I was all in.

Question: I am a boy 11 years old. Am very anxious to learn to handle and shoot a gun, which you say is right. All of us boys read your articles. Mother don't think I am old enough and says it is a dangerous line of sport. If I get a gun, would you buy a twelve or sixteen size? FRED McLEAR.

Rock Island, Ill.

Answer: You are too young to go afield with a gun alone or with small companions, but not too young to learn to handle and shoot under the instruction of an older and experienced person. Tell your mother the percentage of accidents with a gun, based upon the number handling, are less than in any other line of sport. My advice in the purchase of a gun would be to get a twelve gauge, not too light weight, as that invites recoil. You will soon learn to shoot under an experienced instructor.

Question: What are the chances for a good flight of ducks this fall? Has there been any reports from the Canadian fields? DAVE CLARIDGE.

Aurora, Ill.

The reports are very meager. The season up to date for young birds has been very propitious. An abundance of mast and feed is assured, hence it is safe to say we will have a good flight of migratory birds this fall. Get your muskets oiled up and ready for quick action, the season will be open under Federal laws and a general good time among the frisky mallards is anticipated.

Question: Are snipe protected as a migratory bird under the Federal laws? T. R. W.

Bellingham, Wash.

Answer: Yes, snipe are included with protected migratory birds.

ARIZONA DEALER VISITS BIG CITY.

Charles Miller, one of the best known high-power automobile men of Arizona, has been spending the past week in this city. Mr. Miller is the manager of the R. D. Roper Motor Company of Phoenix, the State distributors for the Moreland truck. He has been visiting the company's new plant at Burbank, familiarizing himself with the methods of manufacture and generally lining things up for a vigorous campaign.

LUBRICATION GIVES BETTER RESALE VALUE.

A LITTLE CARE OF WORKING PARTS WILL GREATLY LESSEN DEPRECIATION.

"If the average motorist realized how far proper lubrication of his car would go toward preventing its depreciation in value he would probably spend a little more time in seeing that every part of it was well greased," declares C. A. Roesch of the Alemite Lubricator Company.

"Everyone who has ridden in an old car that has been neglected in this matter has noticed the squeaks and rattles and the wobbly steering apparatus. These things are bound to have an effect on the prospective purchaser of a second-hand car and thus vitally effect its resale value. They could be prevented to a large extent by a little more care in the lubrication of the car."

"Before the advent of a high pressure lubricating system like the Alemite there was perhaps some excuse for the motorist neglecting the messy job of lubricating the chassis with the old-fashioned grease cups. But now with this very efficient method of lubrication which has been adopted as standard equipment by 125 manufacturers of automobiles and tractors there is little reason for allowing a car to depreciate in value through carelessness."

ACCESSORY BRANCH IS GREAT SUCCESS.

MOTORISTS FEEL ASSURED OF GETTING PROPER EQUIPMENT FROM DEALERS.

Acquiring a new building every month or so seems to have become a habit with the J. V. Baldwin Motor Company. Some time ago the firm having taken over the Columbia as well as the Saxon line found that their business had grown to such a point that further expansion of their already spacious quarters was necessary and subsequently an adjoining building on West Twelfth street was acquired.

At the time it was announced that the new building would house an automotive accessory department as well as permitting an enlargement of the company's stockroom and service department. That the innovation met with the hearty approval of the various Saxon and Columbia owners is attested by the amount of business the accessory department enjoys daily. In fact, its popularity is increasing so fast that the firm is beginning to fear they will have to expand their quarters again.

Andrew Baldwin attributes the success of the venture to the fact that motorists desiring accessories would naurally feel assured of getting the proper equipment from the dealer handling their car. "I believe," said Baldwin, "that an accessory department has a place within the business of any well-conducted automobile establishment."

THREE CARS FOR A SINGLE FAMILY.

YOUNG FILM STAR, HIS AUNT AND HIS GRANDMOTHER EACH TRY THE TULSA.

Three generations of the same family ordered three Tulsa cars last week. The first one was purchased by John Henry, Jr., one of Mack Sennett's stars, who is 2½ years old. The second was purchased by Mrs. L. H. Steed, his aunt, and the other one to Mrs. O. H. Davis, his grandmother.

Although Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Steed drive their own cars, John Henry, Jr., is compelled to have his driven by his mother, Helen Parker Davis.

It is a very unusual happening that three members of one family, representing three generations, should own and operate one make of car, but such is the case, according to Mr. G. W. Smith of the Guarantee Motors Company, distributor of the Tulsa car in Southern California and Arizona.

The Garden Beautiful in Southern California.

INFORMATION BOTH PRACTICAL AND SCIENTIFIC. BY ERNEST BRAUNTON.

Dragon Tree, Canary Islands.

The famed dragon tree of Tenériffe, said to be 7000 years old.

ONE contemplating the ornamentation of new grounds should seriously consider following a color scheme, if harmony of colors is desired. Hundreds of gardens in Southern California are spoiled by one plant—the magenta bougainvillea—that harmonizes with nothing. Of course, it possesses different degrees of undesirability. On some houses it can be tolerated, but as for harmony there is none. On the other hand, the brick-red bougainvillea, B. lateritia, has a warm, softened hue that easily blends into most color schemes.

Shades of red and scarlet (not pink) harmonize well with yellow and orange, and in this climate such combinations are easily obtainable. We have many fine acacias, brooms and bottle brushes that will furnish the needed colors in trees and shrubs, and among harbaceous plants such shades and colors are the rule, rather than the exception. Our most common plants such as geraniums and fuchsias abound in reds. Of course, white is permissible in any color scheme for, strictly speaking, it is not a color but the absence of any. The plants available for the red and yellow scheme may be seen on every hand. Nevertheless many will be pleased to see a list of the possibilities so we append one of the more common trees, shrubs and vines. The herbaceous and bulbous plants are too numerous to list.

Trees, red: Eucalyptus ficifolia, Erythrina, Sterculia acerifolia. Trees, yellow: All Acacias, Hymenosporum, Grevillea robusta. Shrubs, red: Bottle brushes (Callistemons, Melaleucas, etc.,) Camellia, Fuchsia, Grevillea, Thelemanniana, Heteromeles (Christmas Berry,) Flowering Quince, Jerusalem Cherry, Hibiscus, Lantana. Shrubs, yellow: Abutilon, Berberis, Brooms (Spartium, Genista, Cytisus,) Cassia, Cestrum, Jasmine, Hypericum, Kerria, Lantana. Vines, red; Antigonon, Bougainvillea (lateritia,) Passion Flowers (Passiflora and Tacsonia,) Dioclea glycinoides, Lathyrus splendens, Manettia bicolor, Tecoma radicans and T. grandiflora. Vines, yellow: Bignonias venusta, Tweediana, Buddleia, Honeysuckle and Jasmine.

A Weeping Mulberry.

Here it is seen in its winter undress.

Time to Cull.

Phlox, dahlias, cannas and other flowers of many shades and colors are in bloom; it is a good time to cull. There are sure to be some not especially desirable to the garden owner. These should be marked while in bloom and either thrown away now, at the end of the flowering season, or marked and given away when dormant. Our gardens should contain nothing with which after a fair trial we are not pleased. Better far to discard such plants and fill their places with those that satisfy. At the same time plants may be marked for color of blossom, so that another year we plant in a better sequence. One of the most common garden mistakes is that of endless mixture. One will buy a dozen plants of a like kind and color and put them in several places whereas they should all be grouped on one spot. This method of planting should obtain in all garden work whether the subjects be trees or humble bedding plants. We should visit a certain part of the garden to see one thing and move on to see another sort or color. Such a garden has character. If we see all things at all times the garden is not beautiful, though bright with color.

Plants for Shade.

For shade the list is not extensive and remember when planting under large trees it is not so much a question of shade as of food—the trees use all that is available. For plants in shade use: Ferns, begonias, aspiditras and vincas. For shrubs use: Hypericums, fuchsias, hydrangeas, rhododendron (native species,) privets, berberis (or mahonia) and laurels. For shade-loving climbers: Clematis, smilax, climbing fern, climbing asparagus, akebia, ampelopsis, aristolochia, ivy, mandevillia and stephanotis.

Best Annual Blue.

For strengthening the garden's color forces in blue, no annual is so good as the ageratum. Though ordinarily used in bedding and borders in contrast with such plants as geraniums, amaranthus, etc., the rose, white and blue ageratums are exceedingly attractive when mingled with alyssum, candytuft and similar plants. They grow well upon most all soils and through a wide range of climate; for that reason, many combinations with them are possible. The plants are neat, bushy and erect, with a continual profuse clustering of pretty brush-like flowers throughout the year. The dwarf blue sorts make fine borders and are much used where contrasting color effects are desired.

Care of House Plants.

Procure strong, healthy plants. See that they are properly potted and repotted when necessary without being overpotted. During the period of active growth and blossoming, they need an occasional feed of liquid manure. Never allow plants to get dry enough to show signs of wilt; neither drench them so continuously that the soil is sodden. Good drainage is essential to all plants whether in pot or garden, but far more necessary in pot plants in the house where all conditions are at best somewhat artificial.

Care of Garden Hose.

Do not leave the hose attached to the hydrant when through watering; neither leave it full of water and lying on the ground. Coil it up and hang it out of the sun, not once in a while, but every time you use it. If properly cared for a hose will last fully twice as long as if left in any shape and full of water.

Modern Petunias.

One of the most free-flowering of our old garden favorites is the petunia, and it is especially good in hot, dry climates, but unfortunately few people know the petunia at its best. If you have only seen those grown from common seed you have not seen even a fairly good flower. The only way to get good petunias is to buy small plants grown from cuttings, or the best of seeds.

Century Plant, Mexico.

Not the common species but one with beautiful yellow flowers.

School Grounds.

It is strange that towns and communities will decorate their cemeteries and allow school-yards to remain bare. Would it not be better to reverse the rule and care for the living rather than the dead? It certainly is too late to benefit those who rest in the cemetery and not too early to instill a love of plant life into those who attend school. The principal life and happiness of an individual is largely dependent upon his knowledge of the things about him—of their relations to each other and to himself. Reform in this branch of public improvement would be much easier had the children of the previous generation been educated to a love and knowledge of plant life.

Garden Aphis.

Lice may be killed on plants by steeping one pound of tobacco stems in five gallons of water, steeping until the water gets to be the color of strong tea. Strain and then apply the liquid over and under the leaves by means of a small syringe. This application will be found as effective as fumigation. It should be applied before the insects are seen, rather to prevent their coming than to destroy them. If allowed to get a foothold, it often is a hard struggle to dislodge them. Plants may be sprinkled with clear water and then sprinkled lightly all over with the fine tobacco dust purchased from any tobacco store at a very small cost. This will effectually prevent any injury from lice, if done in time.

Botanical Specimens.

Botanists press flowers and plants between blotters. If you wish best results get the best blotters. The size in use by professionals is approximately twelve by eighteen inches. Take a page of newspaper the size of The Times, double it once and you will find it nearly the size of your blotters. Lay your plants on one-half of this, shut up and alternate these plant sheets with blotters. The blotters must be changed every day and the wet ones dried in the sun. Many plants will change color no matter what treatment is given and botanists make no effort to prevent it beyond changing blotters every day. Plants in process of curing should be subject to pressure by weight varying in accordance with material on hand but twenty-five pounds is light enough.

Modern Salvias.

Wonderful strides toward perfection of the salvia have been made in late years, and some of them are worthy of a place in any garden. There are only about 550 species of salvia in the world so that if one were to grow a goodly collection he would have room for little else in an ordinary garden. The family contains annuals, biennials and perennials and is divided into two great divisions as to colors. One branch flowers only scarlet or red, the other runs from white to violet, and often one flower has both the latter colors or some shade of blue with white. The old tall-growing S. splendens has been much improved of late, both in color and habit. The latter-day types should find a place in every garden of any size or pretensions.

Filling Hanging Baskets.

When filling a hanging basket fill the sides as well as the top with plants. The proper way to do this is to first line the bottom and about two inches of the side firmly with moss and then put in small plants of vines, lobelia or whatever is desired. Push them through the mesh, letting the roots rest on the soil and the tops hang down on the outside. After putting in several plants around the circle line the basket with moss up to two or three inches further, but do not have a plant in the upper circle directly over one below. Continue in this way to the top and in time you will have a veritable living basket. If a basket is already planted, punch holes through the moss with a lead pencil and put in slips of Wandering Jew. In time they will cover the moss fairly well.

Is California to Be the Hardwood Center of América?

BY BURT C. MARSHALL.

THE planting of a tract of sixty acres to red gum trees (Eucalyptus rostrata) near Buena Park by Hamphill & Faucett, this year, and the raising of 160,000 more red gum seedlings by these men for next season's planting may mean the beginning of a great agricultural and manufacturing industry for Southern California. The Buena Park men believe they have solved, through more than six years of continuous experiment, the problem of growing Eucalypt which will adequately take the place of the hardwood ordinarily used for furniture and interior finishing.

Furniture men and builders realize that it is the growing scarcity of hardwoods that is boosting the price of furniture and high-class interior finishing away beyond the reach of the man with the ordinary income. During the late war the area of hardwood forests and the total available footage of hardwood trees in this country decreased enormously. The United States Forest Service finds, after a long inquiry on this subject, that the hardwood forests along the Ohio River and in the Appalachian region have become practically exhausted, and that the furniture and interior finish lumber men have turned toward the West, where it has been found that the hardwoods are less numerous than was at first supposed.

Eucalyptus trees make a more rapid growth than any other hardwood, in fact, eucalyptus globulus makes more growth in three years than the fastest growing eastern hardwood tree does in six. But these trees cannot be grown in latitudes where the temperature falls below 14 degrees, Fahrenheit. That means that only the lowland portions of Southern and Central California and Arizona can grow the coming supply of furniture, veneer and interior finish hardwoods.

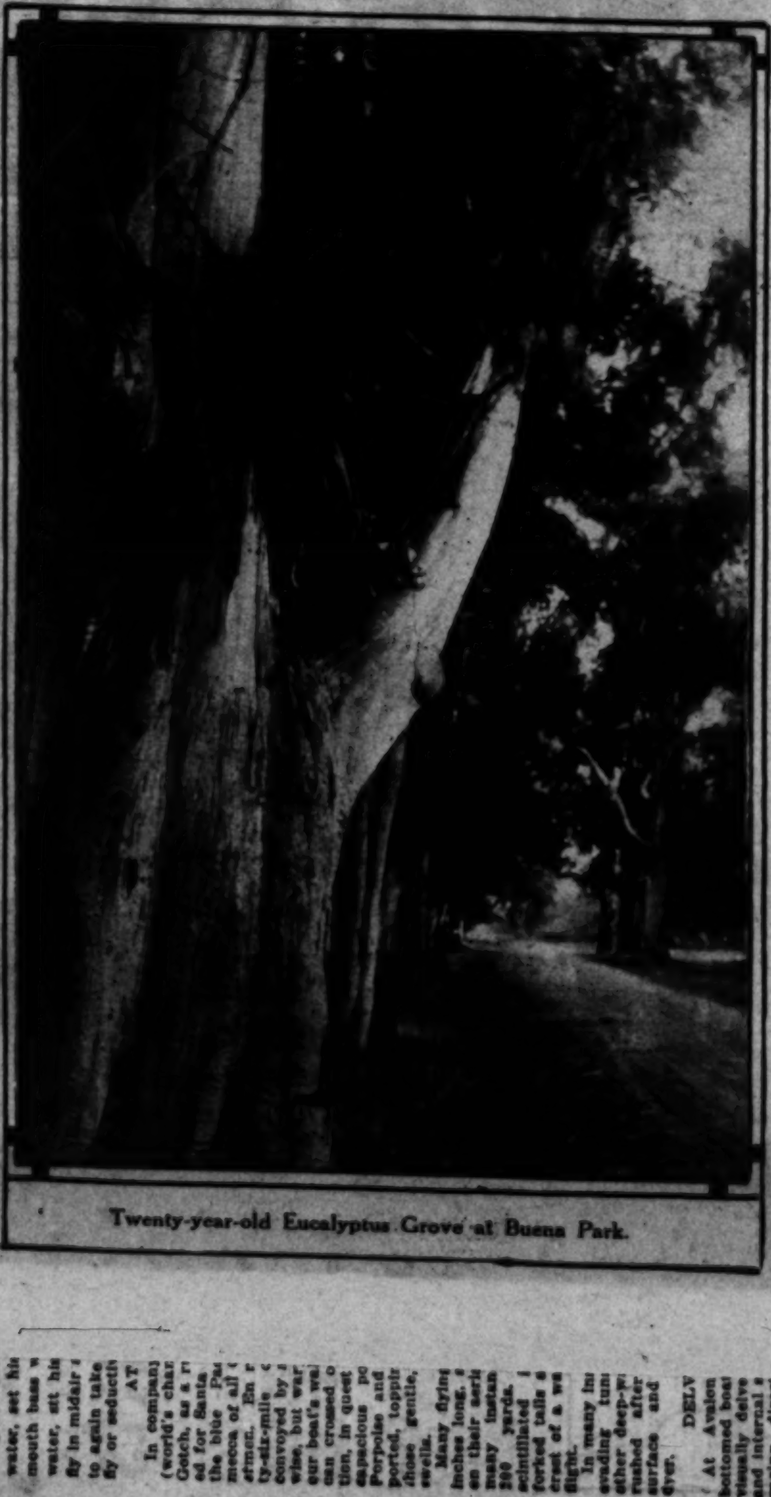
The Buena Park men have made an exhaustive study of the possibilities of eucalypts as producers of furniture hardwoods. They have tried many varieties in their efforts to find the Eucalypt which would check and warp the least, and yet give a brilliant finish when cut and polished. They have tried the blue gum, the grey gum and the forest gum, but a variety of rostrata which they have developed has been the best of any of the kinds. This red gum does not twist in growing like other rostratas tried in timber plantations in California, and a means has been found to stop checking or cracking of the wood while it is being seasoned. In the ends of each log "S" irons are driven while the wood is being seasoned. This, it is found, prevents checking, and the timber can be sawed into very fine boards or veneer which takes a high polish and makes a beautiful wood.

A dozen years ago, when the eucalyptus planting fever was at its height, and promoters pointed the way to "millions" through the setting out on barren lands of mesa any kind of tree bearing the name eucalyptus, many forests were set out. The "get-rich-quick" people who invested in dry lands for the growing of these trees generally lost interest in their plantations within a few years, and the saplings were allowed to die for lack of care, or were burned or cut off. These "forests" were generally of blue gum, a variety totally unfit, because of its very rapid growing qualities, for furniture and interior finish timber. Those who did cut their timber after a few years found that the timber checked so badly that it could not be profitably sawed for any kind of lumber. This discouraged most of the planters. The Buena Park farmers, however, went to Australia, studied varieties and methods for producing lumber and now believe that the eucalypts are bound to stage a "come-back" so strong that the owners of lands where there is deep soil and a water supply are bound to take up this new agricultural industry as one of the most promising in Southern California. They believe that furniture makers will, within a few years, be compelled to depend upon the eucalyptus forests of Southern California, Mexico or Australia for a large proportion of their hardwoods.

It has been found in Australia that eucalyptus rostrata produces timber adequate for furniture lumber in twelve years. This rate of growth which depends largely on soil, water supply and care, is more than twice as great as that of the fastest growing oaks, hickory, black walnut or maple.

"On the Pacific Coast a natural hardwood is wanting. Oak and other hardwood lumber shipped in from Eastern States commands such high prices as to make their use impracticable for most purposes. There is need for some hardwood that will grow rapidly and make good lumber. Of the woods tried out eucalypts appear to be the most likely to fill the needs," so said T. D. Woodbury, assistant district forester, in 1912. This was before the enormous demand and depleting supplies created the eastern hardwood famine and before Hemphill & Faucett completed their extensive experiments. Now the need and the cost have been greatly magnified. The Buena Park men are not selling land or selling stock. They are capitalists interested in the development of Southern California and their own lands, which they intend to keep.

A Giant Eucalyptus.



Twenty-year-old Eucalyptus Grove at Buena Park.

These men found that, in order to develop eucalyptus for timber, good, loamy soil with a surface water supply was necessary. Trees for cordwood may be grown profitably on land costing not more than $80 per acre, with indifferent soil and without a water supply, but good gum trees fit for furniture lumber must be produced on good, deep soils, with irrigation.

After the trees are felled, the great problem has been to prevent the timber from cracking and checking. All rapidly growing hardwoods contain a large amount of water, and when this water evaporates, cracks appear which injure their value as timber. Mr. Faucett learned on his trip to Australia that red gum checked the least when grown properly and when the logs were bound with "S" irons driven into the ends.

Open piling of eucalyptus logs, with the logs piled close together and covered with brush, has been found the best way to season them for cut lumber. Two years are required to season eucalyptus lumber sufficiently for drying. Thoroughly dried eucalyptus wood possesses every requisite of a first-class furniture wood. There has never been any attempt on a large scale to manufacture furniture from this wood, but many pieces have been made with great success. If thoroughly seasoned material is used, there is little danger that furniture or finish made from it will not hold its shape.

Cooperage, vehicle makers and tool-handle makers also await a hardwood supply, and may turn to the California and Australian eucalyptus, although some better way of treating these woods to prevent warping will apparently have to be worked out before the eucalypt will be sought for by the tool manufacturers. The yield of common blue gum for cordwood has been found by Federal investigators to bring the planter $30 per acre per year if left to grow for twelve years. The yield of red gum is not quite as large as that of blue gum, but grown for furniture wood in Australia, the yields are reported to have been as high as $1065 per acre per year where trees are allowed to attain a twelve-years' growth.

Here bids fair to be an industry for many owners of lowlands and one which requires a minimum of labor.

MAKES BIG SUCCESS WITH STRAWBERRIES.

SAN BERNARDINO.—In Summit Valley Dr. C. N. Hewitt, director of the Summit Valley Farm Bureau center, has made a great success of growing strawberries on his ranch among the big pines in Sawpit Canyon. Dr. Hewitt fairly carved his attractive ranch out of the manzanita and buckthorn that covered it so thick that where it is left standing it forms a wall close enough for a fence. He has built his house out of shakes made from the big pines all about and piped water down from Sawpit.

His strawberry bed is of the Everbearing variety and is set out where the leafmold and other humus deposits are ages old. This summer he has picked and sold 800 boxes of berries from three-fourteenths of an acre. There is a new crop just coming on and he estimates he will have at least 200 boxes more which will make 1000 boxes from the plot, or at the rate of around 4500 boxes to the acre. A good market has been found at Victorville.

Dr. Hewitt has quite a lot more berries set out and expects to have some of this year's plants on exhibit at the Southern California Fair.

Thirty persons were present at the Hewitt Ranch for the August meeting of the Summit Valley Farm Bureau center. The subject was berries and there was much live discussion after the formal talk on the subject by the assistant farm adviser, B. H. Ormand. Berry raising is just now a live subject among the homesteaders up there.

One of the dam sites recommended by the government for the big irrigation project for the west side of Victor Valley is on Dr. Hewitt's place and in case the project is carried out fifty-five acres of his land will be under water.

HAWAII HEARD FROM.

The Board of Commissioners of Agriculture, Territory of Hawaii, has notified H. J. Ryan, Los Angeles county horticultural commissioner, that, hereafter, no more shipments of potatoes or apples will be accepted at the islands from Pacific Coast ports until they are inspected and declared free of insect pests and plant diseases. This is a result of the receipt at Honolulu of potatoes and apples badly affected by diseases and pests.

On Exhibiting Your Fowls At Fall Fairs.

AN OPPORTUNITY FOR POULTRYMEN. BY HENRY W. KRUCKEBERG.

AT SUCH prominent fixtures as the State fair at Sacramento, the Livestock Show in Los Angeles, the Fresno fair and similar fall exhibitions, competition in the livestock division this year promises to be quite keen. And in livestock we include the poultry and pigeon shows. Now it goes without saying, other things being equal, that the exhibitor who is "up" in the art of grooming and properly preparing his show specimens has the edge on the fellow whose stock may be of equal quality., but who has failed in putting his birds in the best of showroom condition. In the general run of fall fairs this feature of the show game may not be so important as it is in the larger fixtures where the entries are greater and the competition for honors and prize money much keener. In white plumaged breeds this will call for washing a few days before shipment takes place; in the parti-colored and dark selfs this operation is not so essential.

Obviously the showroom specimens should be seggregated from the general flocks and given individual quarters. It is important that they be made docile and accustomed to handling. This makes it easier for the judge to examine them without annoyance; it also prevents mishaps in the way of damaged plumage, and so improves the chances of winning. With the dark selfs and the parti-colored a clean run bedded to pure straw or sand will do much to furbish up the plumage and to remove grime from legs and feet. Individual coops where possible are advisable, as it will accustom the birds to showroom conditions; frequent visits to the birds also has a beneficial influence because it accustoms them to the hum of human voices. All show specimens should be in the best of physical condition but not too fat. The Standard calls for certain weights in most of the large breeds, which will constitute a cut if the bird does not measure up, bantams are cut for overweight. Birds too fat lack symmetry, and hence take a lower place over those that are in fine fettle. Those varieties that have feathers on their toes, such as the Brahmas and Langshans, should be kept on straw so as to avoid damaged plumage.

Birds intended for exhibition should preferably be limited to a grain ration, as this is the base of showroom feeding; it is not good practice to subject them to a radical change of ration when entering the competing classes.

Since most shows are now held under the rules of the American Poultry Association, it is important to observe Standard requirements. The first thing is to disbar all disqualified specimens; the second thing is to eliminate those possessing the larger volume of faults that are subject to "cuts" or discounts on the part of the judge. This can best be done by going over the birds with a copy of the Standard of Perfection in hand, and eliminating the faulty ones until the best birds in the flock are finally selected. Where one understands the breed he is handling this is not a difficult task; the novice, however, may be more or less in doubt on properly applying the Standard. In such cases it may be the part of wisdom to consult with some experienced breeder who knows the exhibition game.

Two or three days before going after blue ribbons, white fowls should be washed, an operation that may call forth expressions that will rhyme sweetly with the word lamb. When properly done it approaches the atmosphere of high art; when improperly done it is worse than a daub. When operated on a large scale it demands special facilities, which make it all the more difficult where the proper accommodations are wanting. In its more simple forms the ordinary practice is to have two tubs of water in a warm room. Dip the birds into one of these, and then rub a good article of soap into the plumage, making the stroke with the lay of the feathers; gently manipulate until the suds have permeated the plumage and loosened the dirt and grime. Then wipe the bird as dry as possible and dip into the tub of clean water and thoroughly rinse out all the soap, wipe the bird again and put into a very warm room to dry. Some breeders advise a third rinsing in clean water, but two immersions when properly done will put the bird in first class show condition in so far as cleanliness is concerned. Keep the birds in the drying room until perfectly dry, and then place in a coop in the bottom of which is a liberal coating of clean straw.

All breeds, whether the plumage is washed or not, should enter the showroom with clean combs, beaks, wattles, feet and legs. After washing these, take a bit of flannel in sweet oil and sprinkle lightly with emery powder and polish up the beak and shanks. If there is dirt under the scales on shanks remove same with a toothpick and a little sweet oil. The bird should reach the judge in the pink of condition, physically and free from dirt in all sections. To remove dirt that may have collected in the creases of face and comb, bathe same with a solution of two parts sweet oil to one of alcohol; this can be delayed until about the hour of judging.

Naturally all this calls for some handling of the bird, which (unless great care is exercised) may cause damage to the plumage, particularly the large feathers. In the case of small ones, they can often be plucked out; it is also allowable to "pull" off-colored feathers, provided the act does not disfigure the bird, or cause it to be disqualified or badly "cut." Obviously one should breed to overcome such defects, but it is practiced more or less among exhibitors, and if one has this sort of competition to meet, there is no other course.

Shade for Fowls is all Essential in Summer.

How often do we hear the expresion in the showroom, "Oh, I have as good birds to home." Now that may all be, but why not show them? What good are they as prize winners in your backyard, with their perfect head and leg points and correct color of plumage? The place to find out how much of type and color they really possess is the exhibition room. If they win, your opinion of them is not only verified, but you may become the possessor of a good piece of prize money. For bear in mind that in this respect our fall fairs are quite liberal—indeed, so much so that the livestock entries promise to call out a splendid showing of domesticated animal and bird life.

Eliminating the Poor Layers.

Much has already been said in these columns on the importance of culling, an operation that is more or less timely at all seasons of the year, but more especialy during the moulting period when production is light and there is presure on one's bank account for runnig expenses. We take the following pertinent paragraphs from a bulletin of the Colorado Agricultural College, not because it necessarily affords anything new, but because it states the facts governing the selection of the profitable producers. In culling acurately to handle each hen individually, closely observe the following:

One of the outstanding characteristics of a non-laying hen of the yellow skinned varieties is the deep yellow color found on the shanks, on the beak, around the vent, around the inner edge of the eyelids and on the ears of the white lobed varieties. When these hens are laying, this yellow pigment is all needed to form the egg yolk, and none is deposited on the body, and consequently the parts just enumerated are faded or whitish in color.

The pelvic or pin bones of non-layers are thick, curved in and close together. On laying hens they are thin, straight, flexible and wide apart, three fingers breadths or more. Measure each hen for this distance between the pin bones when culling.

When a hen is laying heavily her body is deep, a condition brought on by the enlarged intestines and egg mass. The depth of body is measured from the pin bones to the end of the keel and a good layer shows a depth of more than four finger breadths from the pin bones to the keel. Test each hen for this depth.

Non-layers generally have a firm, drawn up, meaty or fleshy abdomen and differ from high producers much as a fat beef cow differs from a good dairy cow. Feel the abdomen of each hen.

The vent of a good laying hen is large, open and moist, while that of a non-layer is small, closed, puckered and dry. Look at the vent of each hen when you handle.

The comb of the non-laying hen is dry, pale, hard and often covered with small scales. On a laying hen it is red, soft and larger. Look at the comb and feel them.

Contrary to popular opinion the early molting hen should be culled. Under normal conditions, hens that molt early are not very high producers. The early molter is much like the cow that goes dry three months too soon. Mark the hens that start molting first and get rid of them.

The Fontana Land Company's Giigantic Poultry Plant at Fontana.
A San Fernando Valley farmer solved the problem by planting a species of quick-growing reed plant.

At all times cull all sickly, inactive hens. Good layers are active, healthy birds, always looking for something to eat. In careful culling all the factors mentioned should be considered and only the best birds held over the winter for breeding. If flocks are carefully culled each year, and if the birds are given good care egg production can be considerably increased.

What's the Matter with Eggs?

At the National Poultry Parliament, recently held in England under governmental authority, the astounding fact was developed that the consumption of eggs in England just before the war averaged 113 per capita of population per year; in other words less than 2½ eggs per week per person. It is fair to assume, since the price now is much higher, that today it is even under that figure. Similar investigations made by the Canadian government are to the effect that the per capita consumption of hen fruit in the Dominion is under four and one-half per week. Under these conditions to read that England hopes soon to grow enough hen fruit to supply home demands would indicate no extra heavy crop. But aside from this line of argument is it not really astonishing to learn that so few eggs enter into the human dietary of these two great bodies of English speaking people? Are we to infer from these statistics that Richard Roe's rolled oats and John Doe's corn flakes have backed the nutritious egg off the English dining tables by advertising campaigns and a so-called educational propaganda? And if these English and Canadian conditions, as to the cosumption of hen fruit, are even aprpoximately correct, how are we to know that the per capita consumption is any more in the United States, or even as much? To only think of the matter along economic lines is to give one visions of the feasibility of extending markets for poultry products beyond the dreams of avarice. Are we thinking straight or are we off our poultry trolley and wandering among the flesh pots in the realm of web and feather in advocating a publicity campaign exploiting the nutritive value of eggs among the bipeds that wear clothes and molt no feather? Who knows?

Pure Air and Pure Ground.

Tainted ground is often the result of long occupation by fowl and to the presence of decaying vegetable and animal matter. Pure air and a pure soil are two things that stand for health; when either becomes vitiated trouble is bound to follow, sooner or later. Diseases of the respiratory organs, such as catarrh, colds, roup, etc., can often be traced to illy-ventilated houses. In such case it is the part of wisdom to at once alter conditions for the better. With a tainted soil, the simplest method is to plant it to some quick growing crop like barley, which will sweeten it and render it habitable, although in the case of city or family flocks, this is not always possible. In such cases fresh lime should be air-slaked, crushed into a powder and spread over the surface until white. As a precaution against scalding the fowls' feet, the soil should be raked over it a trifle. In this way the soil may be purified. The droppings and all bits of food and decaying vegetable matter should be frequently removed from the runs of birds confined to limited quarters. Pure air, pure water, pure soil and wholesome feeding are a quartette that will do much to maintain a prosperous flock, be it large or small.

Clean Nests and Dust Baths.

During these hot summer days some attention should be given to the nests of laying hens. If allowed to go neglected, they soon become a source of trouble because constituting excellent harbors and breeding places for lice and mites. The nesting material should be changed frequently, and the birds and contents dusted with some good insect powder. In well drained situation and friable sandy soil, the nests had better be without bottoms; these, if the nesting material is kept clean, will do much to prevent the introduction of vermin. Another item to remember is the dust bath. Wet down the soil and, when sufficiently drained to render the earth moist and mellow, spade it up. The hens will do the rest.

If possible locate the chick brooders on ground that has recently been cultivated, thereby eliminating the danger of tainted soil and possible disease.

SUNDAY MORNING, SEPTEMBER 5, 1920.

FARM AND TRACTOR SECTION.

Devoted to the multiform agricultural interests of the great Southwest and issued every week with the world's biggest Sunday newspaper.

EDITED BY HAROLD M. FINLEY.

Communications from practical farmers, ranchers, stock raisers, poultrymen, gardeners and others engaged either in a large or small way in the vital work of food production are gladly received.

Good clear photographs of interesting farm and garden activities are always welcomed. The Los Angeles Times Farm and Tractor Section is the only farm journal in the west printing illustrations in the incomparable rotogravure process.

Co-operation Pays.

WHILE the new crop of lima beans is being cut and in some places threshed, there remain in warehouses possibly as many as 100,000 sacks of the 1919 crop, a large carry-over. Officials of the California Lima Bean Growers' Association report that about 12,000 sacks of beans belonging to members remain unsold. But there are many more belonging to non-members, the so-called "independents," which have as yet found no market. In other words, the men who preferred not to incur the expense of organization and marketing on a co-operative basis are "holding the sack" instead of the growers who are members of the association.

The growers who organized and put up their money for expenses of investigating markets, sold the greater portion of their beans. The men who stayed out still have a large portion of their crops yet to sell in the face of the new crop. About 60 per cent of the lima bean growers are in the association. The 40 per cent who prefer to sell independently are holding from 70,000 to 90,000 sacks. The carry-over of the association beans is not a menace to the 1920 market, the beans of the "independents" are. Had all the bean growers joined in the effort to advertise the merits of the lima bean, and to secure a market for the product before the 1920 crop was threshed, the lima bean growing industry would now be on a much better footing.

The officers of the American Farm Bureau Federation who were here recently to investigate California's co-operative marketing activities were much impressed with the way in which the agricultural producers of this part of the country get together for mutual benefit and protection. They are going back East to urge the producers of their own regions to merge their activities along similar lines, holding up California methods as a model for the country. Now that the investigators are gone and out of earshot, it may be fitting to remark that a lot of California agriculturists can learn valuable lessons of like import from their brethren who are co-operating to such good purpose.

California Scores.

ALTHOUGH deficient rainfall in the central and northern part of the State last winter cut down the total agricultural production for the year, California leads the country in quantity and quality of production of many crops, according to the August report of the United States Bureau of Crop Estimates. Of the twenty-three crops reported on by the bureau, California leads in quantity production in ten. The Golden State, this year, is first in production of barley, beans, peaches, pears, oranges, lemons, apricots, hops, cantaloupes and walnuts, and is second in the quantity production of rice and onions. The State is first in the condition of cotton and price received for this staple. The California cotton farmer, because of the superior quality of the fiber grown here, received an average of 64 cents per pound; the average for the United States was 36.8 cents.

The prospective yield of barley in California this year will be 30,000,000 bushels. South Dakota is second in production, with 19,000,000 bushels.

For a "dry" year, 18,882,000 pounds of hops, a record crop, is, to say the least, a "lot." California will produce this amount of hops this year, it is estimated, and Arizona hops this year, it is estimated, and Oregon will produce about 75 per cent as much.

California this year beats Michigan in the production of beans, it is estimated, with a crop of 4,464,000 bushels, although the area, 265,000 acres, is less than the number of acres given to bean crops in the Wolverine State.

Georgia may be called the "Peach State," but the production of peaches in that State will be but 3,906,000 bushels this year, to California's 15,873,000 bushels—and Georgia is the second State in the production of peaches.

About 22,367 acres are in cantaloupes in the southern district of California, a third of the acreage of the entire country. Colorado is second, with 8281 acres.

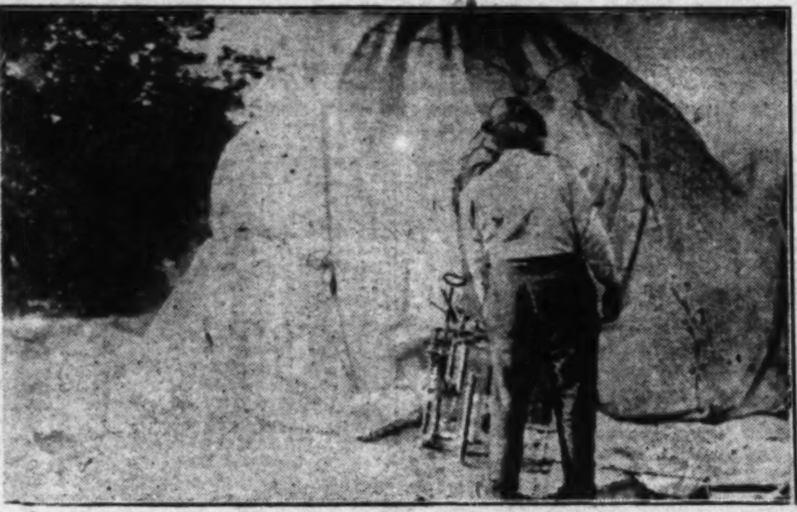
Until this year, the price received by hog raisers in California was, generally speaking, below the average received by farmers in the other States. Now California hog men are getting an average of 14 cents per pound, while the average throughout the country is 13.65 cents. In August, last year, the California price was 17 cents, and the average price throughout the country was 19.22. Better hogs and better marketing methods have wrought the change.

Dairy cattle come higher in this State this year, also. The average price of milk cows in August was $101.50 in California and in the United States, $91.23. Corn brings the farmers more in California, an average of $1.68 per bushel during August, while the average price was $1.63. Barley brought $1.52 a bushel, and the farmers in other States received but $1.21. Potatoes raised here brought $3.42 per bushel, while the average price was $3.02 abroad. The price of sweet potatoes in California shows an even greater contrast, $4.46 per bushel as against the $2.23 average. Hay was worth $23.80 per ton, and elsewhere $20.89 per ton. Butter brought the California farmer 58 cents per pound, the average throughout the country being 52 cents. Eggs brought 45 cents per dozen, elsewhere, 40 cents, and chickens 29 cents per pound, while the average United States price was 27 cents.

BUREAU MEN BANQUET.

SAN BERNARDINO.—Practically every director and officer of the San Bernardino County Farm Bureau, several of them accompanied by their wives, showed their interest in the organization by going over to the Glenwood Mission Inn at Riverside last week to attend the dinner given by the two counties in honor of the delegation of farm bureau officials from the States of the East and Middle West who have been touring the various States in quest of data on co-operative marketing. On account of his special interest in the subject, R. B. Peters of the San Bernardino County Farm Bureau acted as master of ceremonies. Several of the San Bernardino county directors came from beyond the mountains as far away as El Mirage, Baldy Mesa, Adelanto and Apple Valley. The west end of the county had a full delegation. Wonderful Alberta peaches from the ranch of A. R. White, in Apple Valley, were presented to the visitors.

ONSLAUGHT OF SCALE LENDS NEW INTEREST TO FUMIGATION WORK.



"Shooting" a Tree in Daylight Fumigation of Citrus Grove.

THE unusual prevalence of scale during the present season has during the past few months caused citrus growers everywhere to manifest a decided interest in the new liquid gas method of fumigation which was last year for the first time given a trial on a rather extensive scale, practically displacing all other methods. In fact with many growers the dirty condition of the trees this season has not only aroused a greater interest in the new method but is directly attributed to its use. In order to get the straight of the matter and to permit growers, fumigators and investigators to discuss the situation prior to the beginning of the fumigation season, Farm Adviser Robert W. Hodgson of Los Angeles county recently conducted a fumigation and spraying school at Pomona where more than four hundred citrus growers heard the new method and the results of last year's work discussed. The statements which follow are culled from the various addresses and discussions which occurred at this meeting.

About three years ago work on the use of liquid hydrocyanic acid gas instead of the sodium cyanide and acid was begun by a small group of investigators. The method was improved very rapidly and apparently possessed so many advantages over methods used in the past that the second year after its announcement saw a substantial acreage treated according to the new method and this last season witnessed the practical displacement of all other methods of fumigation in favor of the new. The method in brief consists of the use of the liquified gas vaporized under the tents by discharge through atomizer nozzles instead of the old method of dissolving the cyanide and adding to it a measured amount of acid which generated hydrocyanic acid gas in a metal chamber, the force of generation expelling the gas through a rubber hose into the tent.

Early in the sessions of the fumigation school all stigma, or at least most of it, attached to the use of the new method in connection with the very large amount of scale in orchards at the present time was removed and then followed a discussion of the various factors responsible for some of the poor results obtained.

GOOD SCALE YEAR.

The unusual prevalence of scale this season and consequent dirty condition of the trees was declared by both Horticultural Commissioner Ryan of Los Angeles county and R. S. Woglum of the Deaprtment of Agriculture to be due to weather conditions during the two past seasons. In fact, ever since the famous heat wave of 1917 conditions favoring the development and spread of scale were declared to have existed. The result has been that while a satisfactory kill three years ago left but few live scale on the trees, there being comparatively few to start with, the same per cent of last season left many times as many live insects with a consequent condition of more adults coming through the season to increase the infestation this present season.

ADVANTAGES OF NEW METHOD.

The liquid gas method possesses a number of advantages over the older plans, according to the testimony of many experts present at the meeting. It requires less labor, since there is no necessity for a horse-drawn cart carrying materials. The gas comes all ready to use and hence cuts out the necessity for daylight mixing of materials, which was necessary with the cyanofumer. There is no residue, the disposal of which was a source of considerable worry to fumigators and growers. Of particular importance with the present high cost of tents is the fact that burning of the tents is reduced to a minimum with the new method. Injury to the fruit and trees is also materially reduced, according to recent investigations reported by Mr. Woglum.

Another big advantage of the liquid gas method as brought out during the past season is its special adaptability to daylight work, which greatly extends the period of possible fumigation and hence makes it possible to use two crews of men instead of one and thereby to cover a much larger acreage in a twenty-four hour period.

The main drawback to its use brought out in the meeting was the poor results obtained at relatively low temperatures at which fairly good and commercially satisfactory results were obtained by the older methods. This is largely made up for, however, through the possibility of daylight fumigation. Several fumigators are planning to begin fumigating with the liquid in the afternoon, when conditions are right, and to continue until the temperature drops to about 50 deg., when the cyanofumer will be started and the liquid gas method discontinued. Attention was also called at the meeting to the fact that certain factors are operative in the new method which do not need to be considered in the old at all. Some of the factors mentioned in the discussion as affecting fumigation work follow:

INFLUENCING FACTORS.

Temperature. A difference of 5 or 6 per cent in kill has been noted between the illuminated and shaded parts of a tree during sunshine fumigation and, at temperatures below 60 deg., there is a marked falling off in efficiency with the liquid gas method, while with the cyanofumer good work was done at forty. Higher temperatures render the insects more active as well as increasing the penetration of the gas, which probably accounts for the better results.

Cover Crops. With the liquid gas method the factor of cover crops has been found to be of the utmost importance. Trouble is always experienced in fumigating orchards having heavy cover crops, as in getting the tents close to the ground extra "kicking in" is necessary. With the new method the amount of gas escaping is somewhat larger and very frequently the gas is solidified and caught by the cover crop in front of the discharge nozzle, preventing the rapid vaporization which is essential for successful fumigation. Discing down the cover crop about the skirts of the trees and keeping growth out from under the trees was recommended as necessary to insure success.

Dosage. The amount of gas discharged into the tent is of the utmost importance and depends upon the size of the trees. Schedules used during the past season have been found to give large trees too small a dosage and with corresponding poor results. New and more accurate dosage schedules are now being worked out. It has been found necessary to apply heavier dosages in the lower down and cooler districts than in the foothill sections on account of the greater dormancy of the scale and the resultant greater difficulty in obtaining a satisfactory kill. "Guess" scheduling was strongly deprecated at the Pomona meeting as being the cause of considerable poor work. Measuring or taping each tree was declared to be the only safe way.

Season. Fumigating at the right season was declared to be an important factor and accountable for much poor work. In most districts the hatch is practically over by September 1, but in all cases a careful examination should be made, as too early fumigation gives poor results, on account of not getting the eggs. The older the young scale yet, the harder they are to kill. Consequently proper timing is of the greatest importance. In many districts and particularly last year what is known as "off hatch" conditions occurred. This simply means a later hatching of eggs after the fumigation has already been done. Double fumigation was stated to be the only satisfactory method to handle this condition and this generally cuts out the necessity for fumigation the following season.

Which Hen Represents Your Flock ?

Is your flock passing normally through the moulting period, marked by the perfect health of properly-fed hens—or do ragged, thin hens predominate?

At this season of the year it is desirable that the diet of hens be varied by the addition of a Moult Mash. The tendency in the fall is for the hen to eat too little mash, resulting in an abnormal moult and delaying profitable egg production.

The feeding of one-half ounce of dampened P.C.A. Moult Mash with Buttermilk to each hen every day insures her comfort during moulting time—promotes rapid, normal moulting and speedy return to laying.

P.C.A. Moult Mash With Buttermilk is NOT to be considered in any sense a substitute for P.C.A. DRY MASH, which, the year 'round, should be the basis of all poultry diet. Feed P.C.A. Moult Mash in conjunction with P.C.A. Dry Mash and note the immediate benefits to your flock.

P.C.A. Moult Mash With Buttermilk should constitute a part of the hen's feed until the first of the year at least. Many successful poultrymen feed this mash all year (one-half ounce per hen), and obtain remarkable results.

If you do not thoroughly understand the care of hens during the moult, write to us for detailed instructions.

REPORT EARLY MOULTING.

REDLANDS.—Some of the poultrymen of this section complain that the hens have started to moult early this year and are inclined to lay it to the long spell of hot weather. It cut down the egg production in July and August materially but the poultrymen say that the average of the summer months will be good because of heavy laying in June.

Legumes are deficient in the fermentable constituents needed for palatable silage.

SIMPLE MIXTURE MAKES HENS LAY

By W. S. Burgess.

Any poultry raiser can greatly increase his profits, easily, quickly and at little expense by taking advantage of the 35 years experience of a successful poultryman.

A lifelong study of egg production has resulted in a formula of buttermilk and other ingredients that puts pep into lazy hens. This formula is now put up in tablet form and is called Combs' Buttermilk Compound Tablets. Simply feed in water or mix with feed.

I am so convinced that this wonderful formula is always successful that I say, kill the hen that won't lay after using it. Try Combs' Buttermilk Compound Tablets on your own flock—if in 30 days your egg production hasn't greatly increased and your feed bills been reduced, and if every one of your flock isn't healthy, the tablets cost you nothing.

One Million new users are wanted, so for a limited time any reader of this paper can get the big regular $2.50 box (enough for a season for the average flock) of Combs' Buttermilk Compound Tablets for $1. Send no money—simply send your name, a card will do, to Mr. R. C. Combs, Manager Milk Products Co., 10 Meriden Creamery Bldg., Kansas City, Mo. The tablets will be mailed immediately, and in a short time you can bank on getting more eggs or the tablets haven't cost youa ting more eggs or the tablets haven't cost you a cent.

DOWN-TO-DATE REPORTS FROM TIMES CORRESPONDENTS

ESCONDIDO.—A complete and extensive poultry exhibit, an elaborate citrus display which will embody a demonstration of packing, as done in a modern packing plant, and many other exhibits of all kinds of agricultural and farm products will be among the principal features of Escondido's Annual Grape Day Festival to be held September 9. The intention of the committee of displays is to show the various agricultural products of the valley in a way to impress upon visitors the great diversity of these products and their relative importance from a financial standpoint. Grape Day is Escondido's special celebration and comes in the height of the grape season. Ten tons of choice muscat grapes are to be distributed to visitors as a means of demonstrating the quality of the valley's vineyard products.

CO-OPERATION PAYS.

SAN BERNARDINO.—The Farm Bureau center members at Chino and Grand Terrace are both finding co-operative buying profitable. Chino farmers have co-operated in buying bean sacks with the result that several cents have been saved on each sack. Since there are 5000 sacks needed the saving is no small item in reckoning the profit on their bean crops. Grand Terrace farmers have recently been making a fight on the Argentine ant, and have found that by buying poison co-operatively they save a very considerable sum. These are small beginnings, but those who have been working together feel that their success points the way to other more important operations.

POWER FOR RANCHES.

HINCKLEY.—Ranchers around Hinckley are mightily pleased over the coming of electric power to their farms as it means much added comfort and efficiency. "It will mean much development in this section," said George Siemon, a successful farmer of this region and director-at-large of the County Farm Bureau. "With electricity to bring power onto the ranches and into the houses there is no doubt that much new land will be put under cultivation and that much improvement will take place on the existing ranches. The lift out of the river is only a few feet and water may be had for lands in this vicinity by anyone who will go after it. There is some good live stock in the region and some good orchards of deciduous fruit are coming into bearing. There will be much use, in fact, for the new power resources. Hinckley, which is about eight miles from Barstow, is combined with that place and Daggett in the Barstow-Hinckley-Daggett Farm Bureau center, of which Dix Van Dyke, of Daggett, is director.

SANTA ROSAS YIELD WELL.

TERRA BELLA.—N. T. Bradford reports a profitable season's return from three acres of Santa Rosa plums on his Terra Bella ranch. The 1920 crop brought a little more than $1000. For the past three seasons the returns have been around $1000 per crop. The trees are seven years old. Mr. Bradford has three acres of Tragedies and three of Famosa plums, but both seem to be light bearers on that particular piece of ground. Mr. Bradford believes that the Santa Rosa, Diamond and Climax are well adapted to this district.

ORANGE COUNTY FAIR.

HUNTINGTON BEACH.—One of the most important events in the agricultural and horticultural history of Orange county is to be the 1920 Orange County Fair, to be held at Huntington Beach Thursday, Friday and Saturday, October 7-8-9, when the wonderful production of the county will be shown with individual and community exhibits. Orange county's soil and oil production this year is expected to reach $90,000,000 and the county fair has been named the "$90,000,000 Products Show" in honor of this record. Community exhibits will be installed by Garden Grove, Costa Mesa (formerly Harper,) Yorba Linda and other communities, competing for a handsome prize. The Farm Bureau has "adopted" the fair, which is staged by the Huntington Beach Chamber of Commerce and will co-operate in every way to make it an overwhelming success. Besides the displays of Valencia oranges, lemons, sugar beets, beans and other diversified crops, there will be a large poultry and pet stock department, while the ladies will compete for ribbons in the baking, fruit preserving and canning and needlework departments. Louis A. Copeland, president of the First National Bank of Huntington Beach is chairman of the fair committee and J. K. McDonald of Talbert, is secretary.

CITY TREASURER'S ACRE.

RIVERSIDE.—What a city official with a hobby, supplemented by knowledge and enthusiasm, can accomplish outside of office hours, is demonstrated by Harry N. Dunbar, city treasurer of Riverside. Mr. Dunbar has a single acre at the corner of Penrose street and Prospect avenue, every foot of which is under intense cultivation. The space not occupied by a lath house, glass house and seed beds is devoted to vegetables, fruits and flowers, rewarding their owner with convenient profit and satisfying attractiveness. Corn and melons vie in development with the hedge of brilliant-hued zinnias which surrounds the plot. In the large lath house are being propagated fancy palms, foliage plants, ferns, begonias and ornamental trees. Before taking up his duties as city treasurer, to which office he was recently elected, Mr. Dunbar served the city for a long term of years as superintendent of parks, and with such success as to make his venture on the one-acre plot unquestionably a profitable one.

FIX TOPPING PRICES.

SANTA BARBARA. — Twelve tons of sugar beets per acre is the average for the present crop in this district as estimated by the field men of the Betteravia sugar factory. Under normal conditions it is said the beets would average around twenty tons to the acre. Lack of sufficient rains during last winter and spring have cut into the 1920 crop enormously. The beet interests have just agreed upon a wage schedule for beet topping this season. This price ranges from $2.85 for the four-tons per acre crop to $1.15 per ton on a fifteen-ton per acre crop, and 95 cents on a twenty-ton per acre crop. Last year four tons of beets per acre were topped for $9.40. The price this year is $11.40, or $2 more than last year. Ten tons per acre last year cost the grower $12 and this year it will cost $15.

NEW STOCK FARM.

TULARE.—Madrigal Moolke 2nd, famous Holstein cow, maker of many records, developed and raised on the Higdon Farms, and which was sold to the Santa Maria Farms of Tulare, will be seen at the Tulare County Live-stock and Agricultural Show which is to be held here September 14-18. The Santa Maria Farms, a new local stock-breeding farm, is establishing a reputation among Holstein breeders for the high quality of stock it carries. Beside this famous Higdon cow, the Santa Maria Farms will exhibit three other head, all of which were developed by William Morris and Son, Woodland.

COTTON PROMISING CROP.

BAKERSFIELD.—Wylie M. Giffen, president of the California Associated Raisin Company, and lessor of the Famosa fruit orchards, twenty miles north of Bakersfield, believes Kern county will be one of the greatest agricultural centers in the State and that it will also continue to hold its supremacy in oil production. "I think Kern county has a remarkable future in cotton raising," said Mr. Giffen. "I was particularly impressed with the fine crops I saw on a recent trip through the county. There is no cotton any place in the State which looks better than that in Kern county." Mr. Giffen was also very enthusiastic over all other crops which he saw growing and predicted Kern county will eventually be one of the greatest fruit and agricultural sections in California.

"CANTS" BRING GOOD PRICE.

LINDSAY.—The shipment of Lindsay cantaloupes ceased Saturday, August 14, and thus far prices, according to the shippers, have been eminently satisfactory. As high as $6.50 for standard crates has been received. With the news that Lindsay's early crop is all on the market comes the news from Turlock that their melons, in many instances, will not be picked because of the low prices recently being quoted. The crop here ripens several weeks earlier than in the Turlock district and an unusually high market was found. Shipping here commenced on July 12.

PEARS ARE MOVING.

PALMDALE.—The shipping season for Little Rock Bartlett pears is at its height. Nineteen cars so far have been shipped. The majority of these were for eastern points. Owing to the thorough spray methods practiced in this district the past season, but very little codling moth is showing up. The quality of the fruit is exceptionally good and running about 50 per cent fancy grade.

PLANS FOR RIVERSIDE SHOW ARE GROWING.

RIVERSIDE.—The plans for the live-stock show at the Southern California Fair to be held at Riverside October 13 to 19 are reaching such proportions as to interest stockmen throughout the State. The swine show will be unusually comprehensive and will include animals from some of the best herds of the State. A special department has been organized this year to take care of the young breeders, the boys and girls who are getting into the business through the medium of club work.

The cattle department will show an even more vigorous growth than will the swine. With the dairy breeds very largely in the ascendency much interest is being shown in this feature. Prof. J. B. Fitch of the Kansas State Agricultural College, one of the best-known cattle judges in the United States, will judge dairy cattle. Prominent breeders are bringing the best from their herds and there will be some sharp contests. Shorthorns, Herefords and Poland Angus will be represented in the beef breeds.

The agricultural exhibit will be housed in a huge tent and will be participated in by at least seven of the southern counties. Riverside county does not compete for the county prizes, but there are large community prizes offered and every community of the county will compete for these latter awards.

The poultry show will be the ninth annual event of the kind to be held at Riverside and will be far larger than any of its predecessors. This year's goat show will surpass even that of 1919, which was one of the largest events of the kind ever held in the country.

The largest tent on the grounds will contain an exhibit of the products of the industries of Southern California. This will not only be one of the most attractive features of the fair but will be educational as well. The tractor and farm implement display will be an attractive feature again this year.

SCOURING THE ORIENT FOR RARE PET STOCK.

Just southwest of Los Angeles in the suburb of Inglewood there has recently been established one of the most unusual live-stock farms in the United States. In a seventeen-acre grove of eucalyptus, Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Rabb are breeding and rearing an almost endless variety of game birds and pet stock, having invested $75,000 in an enterprise which reaches out to the furthermost corners of the Orient for rare pets and fowls and which has for a market the whole of America.

The Rabb farm, which is not a "show place"—curiosity seekers being discouraged from entering the inclosure—is surrounded by a high wire mesh fence. Once inside, the privileged visitor is almost bewildered by the array of birds and beasts there being raised. There are pheasants, thousands of them, parrots of rare lineage, cuckatoos of distinguished ancestry, parakeets, lorikeets, unusual canaries, queer little lorries and love birds, zebra doves, waxbills, crested cuirass, emus, kangaroos, many rare species of waterfowl, ringtailed apes, ferrets and other bipeds and quadrupeds out of the ordinary kind.

Mr. Rabb established this pet stock farm last year, having come from Marmot, Ore., where, in the shadow of Mt. Hood, he launched forth some four years ago into his unusual business. In the northern State Mr. Rabb started to raise pets as a hobby, then got into the thing so deep that now, he says, it would be almost impossible for him to get out, at least on short notice. He sends representatives to India, Borneo, The Philippines and other oriental countries searching for birds of rare form and plumage for American homes and country estates. He has standing commissions from numerous wealthy persons to procure for them unusual denizens of the forests of Asia and the East Indies. This stock is brought to Inglewood and acclimated before being shipped to various parts of the country for installation in aviaries or release in game preserves.

"I find that my present location is easily the best for the acclimating of these animals from various climates and altitudes," says Mr. Rabb. The baby pheasant, for example, is like a young turkey, very vulnerable to damp and exposure. Our loss of chicks here does not begin to compare with that in the Northwest. The farm here in Inglewood will be expanded. The Pennsylvania State Game Commission has ordered 5000 pheasants from us for stocking the forests of that State, and these will be delivered in October. Many others will go out at the same time. The Milwaukee Zoo has put in a standing order for rare pheasants and other birds. Our big job is to get competent, reliable men to bring out of Asia and the Orient the rare specimens for which the market exists."

One branch of the unique Inglewood industry is the raising of 500 Rhode Island red hens to hatch and rear the young pheasants to the age of three weeks, when they are turned into pens. The birds are shipped at the age of about five months. The Rabbs expect to set 20,000 pheasant eggs for next season's hatching and will use Japanese Silkies as well as the "Reds" for mothers. They are specializing in the breeding of a dozen species of pheasant of magnificent plumage, among them the Manchurian eared pheasant, the Impeyan, Reeves and Silvers. The Chinese or Golden pheasants are the most numerous, these being in greatest demand.

The feed bill of the Rabb pets is quite mountainous. For instance, 2000 pounds of fish are bought each week to produce "gentles" through decomposition. Without these "gentles"—there is another far from pleasing word for them—the pheasants would not thrive. Other feed furnished the pet stock includes jellies, meal worms, millet, wheat, corn sunflower seed and fruits of many kinds. Shriveled wheat unfit for milling is purchased in carload lots from two of Mrs. Rabb's brothers who own big farms in the Northwest.

One feature of the business is the loaning of birds and four-footed animals to motion picture companies. Some of the denizens of the Rabb farm are now quite accomplished film artists.

NEW CROP PROMISES EXCELLENT RESULTS.

APPLE VALLEY.—C. G. Lewis of Apple Valley is giving a first year's tryout to a corn new to this locality. It is called the Mexican Hard Flint and is distinguished by its hard, close-set grains and its early maturity. When the corn had been planted forty-five days it was well tasseled out and the ears were forming nicely. It was also well above Mr. Lewis's head. Fifteen days later, Mr. Lewis said, he picked an ear twenty inches long which was hard and thoroughly mature. It was well-filled out and a good size for its length. There had been a little work by worms at the small end of the ear but the quick hardening after tasseling out had apparently made it impossible for the worms to do much. This corn has been grown by Dix Van Dyke on the big Van Dyke ranch on the Mojave River near Daggett for several years and he recommends it highly.

If it does as well in Apple Valley as at Daggett, and the indications are that it will, the results will be very valuable to this locality where the growing season is rather short though soil and water conditions are excellent.

Mr. Lewis has for a side line a large flock of turkeys, some hundreds in fact, which will be able to make the most of some of the new corn crop before they bid farewell to the world at Thanksgiving and Christmas. At present these turkeys are getting a good part of their living from an orchard interset to alfalfa.

Mr. Lewis, who is director for his farm bureau center, is greatly interested in getting up a creditable exhibit from this district for the San Bernardino county exhibit at the Southern California Fair and one of the exhibits from his own place will be some choice alfalfa seed.

HOLLOW HILL CATTLE TO "MAKE" THE SHOWS.

COLTON.—Prize cattle from the Hollow Hill Farm near Colton, owned by G. W. Wilder, millionaire publisher, are being exhibited at the State Fair at Sacramento and will be shown at the Tulare and Ventura fairs, the Los Angeles Live-stock Show and the Southern California Fair at Riverside. The stock is in prime condition, having been under the expert care of Max A. Kipf, who took them north far enough ahead of the State Fair to get them nicely settled and conditioned before time for judging. The string of high-bred Guernseys from Hollow Hill includes the veteran prize winner, King of Hollow Hill, head of the herd; Primrose King, of Hollow Hill Farm, Grand Champion cow at the Southern California Fair last year; Rosa King, of Hollow Hill Farm, who has just finished the test for two-year-olds and who produced 480 pounds of butterfat; Imp. Cherry Third of the Effards, who as a four-and-a-half-year-old took fourth in the United States for butterfat production and several other good ones.

Imp. Cherry Third of the Effards produced, during the test which won her an important place in milk and butterfat production, 15,000 pounds of milk and 735 pounds of butterfat. Among the others will be a junior yearling bull and a bull calf out of Rebecca of Sunnyview, who as a four-and-a-half-year-old took sixth in the United States with a production of 559 pounds of butterfat.

Just before starting with the herd to the State Fair the authorities at Hollow Hill invited the public to come and see beautiful Guernseys that are to go on the show circuit.

Cull out and prepare for market all fowls, old or young, which appear weak, slow or dull; fowls with drooping tails, rough plumage or crow-shaped heads; all scrubs except those which have laying points; all hens which moult early; and all males except those strong, vigorous and of a pure type desired for breeding.

FAIR TO BE HOUSED IN MAMMOTH TENTS.

OWENSMOUTH.—The two big tents each 130 by 240 feet in size, which formerly housed the National Orange Show, have arrived and are being erected on the fair grounds to house the San Fernando Valley Fair and Market which will be held here September 15, 16, 17 and 18, and which promises to surpass all early expectation as to the amount and variety of products that will be displayed and the extent of the stock and poultry exhibits.

The fair which is being held as a demonstration of what the aqueduct water has done in bringing prosperity to the San Fernando Valley, will probably not only open the eyes of the outside people but will make the valley people themselves "sit up and take notice." The increase in pure-bred stock alone in the valley is worthy of such a celebration.

The harvesting of the baby lima bean crop of the San Fernando Valley is in full blast. The yield will be somewhat curtailed by the hot, dry weather of the summer and inability to get water at the proper time on some of the fields.

According to the water department there are now 239 acres of bearing peach trees and 921 acres of bearing apricots in this district. The same bureau reports that owing to increased acreage under cultivation, 25 per cent more water was used during July this year than last year.

Result of Over-irrigating Cotton.

Above, too much moisture supplied during early stage of growth has brought forth non-fruiting nodes. Below, almost perfect pin stalk, with central stem and well-placed branches heavy with bolls.

FARMERS STUDYING COTTON IRRIGATION.

EL CENTRO.—Imperial Valley is now beginning the harvesting of cotton, about $80,000,000 worth of the fleecy staple, the great money crop of the valley, the thing that brings more cash into the banks of Imperial county than any other one agency.

Cotton farmers are beginning to note the effect of improper irrigation on the plants as compared with the right kind of watering. On this page are two illustrations of Pima cotton stalks taken June 27. The lower one in the picture is a perfect specimen, shooting straight up with the bolls already showing although it still had two months to grow. The other figure shows the branching out stems that seldom produce cotton. It had too much water and became rank in growth at the expense of fruiting.

Experts advise that seed hereafter be taken from perfect specimens for planting, stating that cotton is just like pure-blooded poultry—like begets like—and the perfect specimen cotton seed will bring perfect plants the following year if common sense is used with the planting, irrigating and cultivating.

CROP AREA SHOWS GREAT INCREASE.

RIVERSIDE.—The fruit acreage of Riverside county was increased by 1254 acres during the 1920 planting season, according to a report just issued by County Horticultural Commissioner D. D. Sharp. Of the increased acreage peaches lead with 394 acres and walnuts follow with 265. Of nonbearing trees, 1672 acres are credited to peaches and 924 to walnuts.

The total acreage of the various varieties of trees both producing and nonproducing, is: Oranges, 19,268; lemons, 5315; pomelos, 454; almonds, 1842; apples, 2902; apricots, 7549; cherries, 602; olives, 3100; peaches, clings, 3289, freestones, 1648; pears, 1017; prunes, 742; walnuts, 2275; pecans, 60; avocados, 34; citron, 26; dates, 304; figs, 16; grapes, table, 1061, raisin, 425, wine, 400; plums, 74; persimmons, 33.

The acres of full crops is as follows: Alfalfa, 20,020; cotton, 28,026; grain, 64,916; hay, 37,410; peanuts, 750; potatoes, 616; sweet potatoes, 177; Indian corn, 1045; sorghum, 4542; onions, 3132; tomatoes, 366; beans, 625; beets, 1040; total, 162,704 acres.

ONSLAUGHT OF SCALE.

Resistant Scale. The statement was made that in certain districts dosage schedules which formerly gave satisfactory results no longer will do the work. An increased resistance has been acquired by the scale, necessitating heavier dosages. A dosage heavy enough to effect a kill was advised, attention being called to the fact that a small amount of injury occasioned to the tree is very much better than a poor crop occasioned by heavy scale infestation.

A factor of some importance in liquid gas work mentioned by Prof. Quayle of Riverside was that of machine delivery. He has found that it generally takes from seven to nine strokes to deliver all the liquid gas from the chamber, whereas most operators have only been in the habit of using in the neighborhood of five.

That the commercial fumigators have their own problems aside from the question of satisfactory work was attested to by F. G. Wyman of Pomona, who listed the six most important as finding satisfactory weather conditions, obtaining reliable labor, purchasing tents, obtaining the co-operation of growers, preventing damage to fruit and trees, and getting the work done when the growers want it.

Mr. Wyman stated that ideal fumigation weather occurs only occasionally and that it is necessary for the greater part of the work to be done at times when allowances for adverse weather conditions must be made. Satisfactory labor able to stand up to the strenuous work of "pulling" tents is both difficult to get and expensive, he stated. He asked closer co-operation on the part of growers in getting irrigation out of the way and in aiding in making the work easy and convenient. Occasional damage cannot be avoided, he stated, but experience gradually will bring it down to a minimum.

ENTRIES FROM OTHER COAST ARE RECEIVED.

Enlarged in scope by an organization headed by C. R. Thomas that has been active for the past eight months, the Los Angeles Live-stock Show, to be held at Exposition Park, Los Angeles, October 2 to 10, is now drawing entries from as far away as the Atlantic Coast. The show is no longer a local affair. It is being supported by breeders all over the United States. The Corn Belt is interested, several entries from Illinois and Iowa being promised.

Exhibitors this year will find special added provisions for displaying their stock to the best advantage. Seventeen buildings are now being erected and will be completed long before the show opens. There will be special sheds for judging and these sheds will be made available for the sales which are to be conducted during the final days of the exhibition. An extensive wash rack will be built to enable exhibitors arriving at the exposition quickly to put their stock in readiness for display. Railroad tracks are to be extended so that carloads of animals can be unloaded at the grounds.

The horse show, which will be held daily, will be a big feature as $7500, with a $1000 sweepstakes, are offered as premiums for the winners. A ring 110 by 300 feet has been laid out for this show.

Indian corn is more easily harvested and put into the silo than crops like alfalfa, clover, rye, etc., and when it is cut for silage the maximum quantity of nutrients is preserved.

SECURE CATTLE JUDGE.

RIVERSIDE.—Prof. J. B. Fitch, noted as a judge of dairy cattle, has consented to judge the dairy cattle exhibited at the county fair to be held here in the fall. Word to this effect was received today by John E. Wherrell, president of the Southern California Fair Association, in a letter from Prof. Fitch, who will come directly from the National Dairy Show at Chicago in October.

EXHIBITORS DRAW FOR SPACE AT POWER SHOW.

At the office of the Far West Sales Company, 169 North Los Angeles street, Los Angeles, last Monday, exhibitors who have applied for more than 60,000 square feet of space at the National Tractor Show of the West, to be held in Glendale September 20 to 26, drew lots for choice locations in Verdugo Woodlands, where the big show is to be held. Following the selection of space exhibitors began preparing their exhibits, making trips to Glendale with material.

President Rainey of the Tractor and Implement Dealers' Association and Guy H. Hall, the manager of the show, are busy with plans for the big farm power event. The material for the bridge approach to the grounds is being taken out to the site and a sawdust floor is being placed in all the aisles.

The show site is laid out into lots each 15 by 20 feet in size, the streets from First to Eighth street radiating from Central avenue. The dance hall at Verdugo Woodlands is being transformed into a cafe.

Already more than 100 exhibitors have applied for space, and it is believed the number of exhibitors at the show will be greater than at the National indoor show at Kansas City in February. The number of square feet already spoken for is in excess of 60,000, with more than two weeks more to go. Exhibitors occupied 85,000 square feet at the last Kansas City show but it is believed that this figure will be exceded at the Western National event.

FIFTH DOWNEY FAIR IS A GREAT SUCCESS.

DOWNEY.—With an excellent attendance the Downey Community Fair staged by the Downey Fair Association of which W. M. Booth is president and H. Koopmann, secretary, proved the most successful of the five fairs held to date. Thousands of visitors thronged the fair grounds during the two days, Thursday and Friday, August 26 and 27. Exhibits both industrial and agricultural were better than ever and the amusement features were more numerous than at any previous fair.

The agricultural exhibits attracted particular attention, a splendid display of fruits grown in the local neighborhood being the main feature. As fine apples as are to be found in the State are grown in the Downey vicinity, as was shown by the exhibits. A wide assortment of peach varieties was on display and a feature of particular interest was the large exhibit of quinces. Corn sixteen feet in height conclusively proved that Southern California can produce corn equal to the best in the country and a gigantic sunflower over twelve feet in height indicated the promise this section has for sunflowers for silage. Agricultural machinery constituted a considerable part of the industrial display, there being a large assortment of pumps and irrigation material and spraying outfits. The poultry and rabbit show attracted some fine entries.

One of the most interesting features of the fair was the pig club competition held by the Boys' Pig Club of the Downey High School. Three classes were held, the winners in the boar class being, first, Greenwood Sannett Peter, belonging to Charles Cooper; second, Big Greenwood Bob, belonging to Byrum Zinn; third, Dorwood Odin, owner by Bruce White. In the sow class, first was Golden Beauty 2nd, belonging to Byrum Zinn; second, Greenwood's Queen of the Blacks, owned by Bruce White; third, Queen Nelokia, belonging to Frank Boheim; and fourth, Greenwood Miss Sannett, owned by Charles Cooper. In the best pen class Bruce White took first, Frank Boheim, second, and Charles Cooper, third. The boys are planning on exhibiting at the Los Angeles Live-stock Show in October.

GROOMING STOCK FOR FAIRS.

LOMA LINDA.—Max Kipf, one of the best-known dairymen of this section, who recently sold his dairy interests near Chino to J. G. Norton, is to take the prize stock of the Hollow Hill Farm to the various fairs of the State. Kipf is now grooming the Guernseys and is of the opinion that Hollow Hill will "clean up." Norton has sold the dairy ranch to W. B. Covington, who for many years owned a dairy ranch in San Timoteo Canyon, but who has been in Imperial Valley recently.

HAS UNIQUE FEATURES.

A new member of the growing small tractor family which will soon be introduced to Southern California is the "Do-It-All" tractor, manufactured by the Consolidated Gas and Gasoline Engine Company of New York City. The machine which is designed either to be operated by a man walking behind or to pull riding implements has a number of unique features. Among these is its adjustable bull wheels which by lifting or depressing on furrow ridges and hollows and in hillside work keep the machine level at all times and reduce strain.

SUBSOILING GAINS IN GROWERS' FAVOR.

BY H. A. CRAFTS.

The new art of subsoiling in California is becoming a cult; and this in a popular sense, too. How important it is that practical things should first be idealized. It is when people begin to think about things that things develop.

The subsoil plow is one of the concrete forms of modern farm idealism. It has been developed in various sizes also, in order to adapt it to both the size of the farm tractor and the condition of the soil to be operated upon.

There is nothing like sub-soiling to receive, retain and conserve moisture. It breaks up old plow soles, loosens up baked soil, reaches a depth that will store moisture and let the crops root deeply. It also permits air to penetrate the soil as well as water, a great help in feeding the growing crop.

Practical results in the use of the subsoiler are in evidence in ample variety. The use of the implement in cultivating the sugar-beet fields of California has been found most valuable.

One big sugar company found their beet fields giving poor results. That was back in 1897, before farm tractors and subsoilers came into general use. The land, however, was plowed as deeply as possible with the animal power then in vogue and by this means from six to eight tons of beets to the acre were obtained. Then came the tractor and the subsoiler and this company was quick to utilize them. They plowed in some cases as deep as twenty-one inches and then mulched the surface. The result was a yield of fourteen tons to the acre on an average, over 1500 acres.

Another fact that stands out in bold relief is that the land had never been manured, the better yields being the direct results of deep and thorough tillage.

GOOD SET OF COTTON IN PERRIS VALLEY.

PERRIS.—Those who predicted that the growing season in the Perris Valley was too short for the profitable production of cotton seem to have been wrong, for the growth of the cotton on the 1700 acres planted this year has been very rapid and the development of the bolls under the influence of the recent warm weather has been very satisfactory to old cotton men. More than 100 bolls have been counted on some stalks and some of the fields have begun to turn white, while the blossoms are still coming. At first it was expected that but one good picking could be had from the fields but cotton men from Texas recently stated that two and perhaps three pickings will be possible on account of the rapid growth made. It is believed that the valley's first cotton harvest will average better than half a bale to the acre, which is greater than the average for the United States.

Machinery for the gin to handle the Durango, the only type of cotton planted, has been purchased and is on the way. The gin will be installed in the Woodward Building, on Main street. It will cost about $10,000. Efforts are being made to get an adequate supply of pickers.

TO START ROTATION.

CALEXICO.—Many wise cotton growers are planning to put half their acreage into alfalfa this fall in order to start a permanent system of rotation; to raise alfalfa for three years and cotton three years, alternating the alfalfa with the cotton. Thus greater yields of cotton will be assured, and the alfalfa will be like money in the bank.

Testing Testers

Gauges, micrometers, standards of all kinds are constantly testing, to the exactive Holt standards of accuracy, every part employed in "Caterpillar" Tractors. But lest they prove false to their trust, every one of these instruments of precision is regularly tested by a master standard.

This master regards accuracy as a matter of 100,000 parts to the inch. A fraction of a hair's breadth error will not pass. Booklet 443 on "Accuracy" tells why.

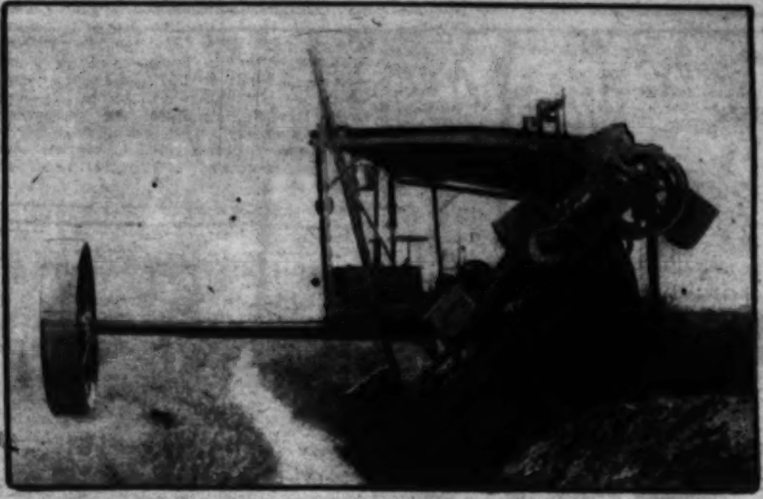
The Conquest of the Desert by Labor-Saving Machines.

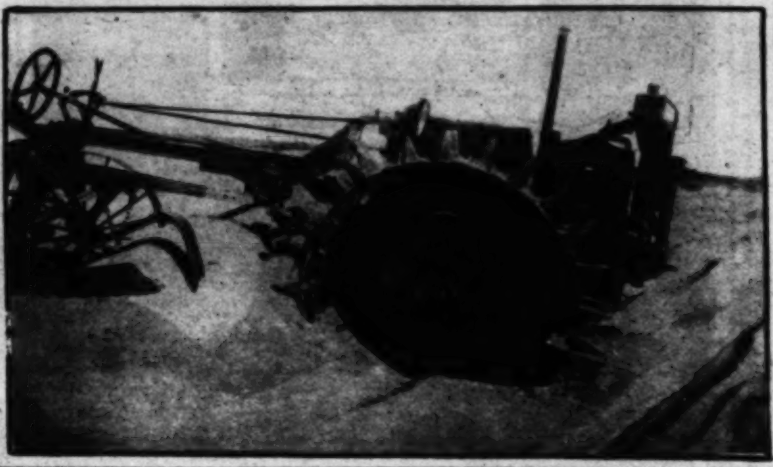


A rank growth of weeds would choke the main canals if they were not cleaned out twice a year with a dredger. This is a special type of dredger, designed for use in Imperial Valley.

Water from the Colorado River carries with it fine silt which, although of great value as a soil renovator, settles in the canals. A "V" dredger drawn by a tractor cleaning a lateral of silt.

NILAND.—"Farthest West" in the Salton basin, a part of which is the Imperial Valley, is Farthest North. When the waters of the Colorado were first turned into the basin, part of which is now the greatest body of irrigated arid land in the world, crops were first planted at the California-Mexican boundary. The green fields are spreading northward each year and as the irrigated area creeps up around the Southern Pacific Railroad's main line and forms a crescent at the edge of the receding Salton Sea, improved methods of subduing the desert are being applied in putting thousands of new acres into production of food and cotton. The experiences of the men who pioneered in irrigation methods in the southern part of the valley are being used to expedite the work of putting a green crown upon the King of Irrigated Valleys.

But the farm-makers of the North End, with the help of tractors and other modern machines, are putting into use new systems which hasten the blossoming of the desert. In some sections where light sandy soil has blown up in ridges and dunes these have been leveled with the use of pumps and jets of water. Thus the four-mule Fresno outfit has succumbed to modern mechanical genius.



The work of the sturdy tractor pulling a fresno scraper in leveling sand dunes has been supplemented with pumps and lines of pipe, the pumped water washing the sand into the low places.

Making a road in the northern section of Imperial Valley. A road grader throws the soil to the center of the road, making a long ridge. Each side is irrigated in turn, to keep down dust and to keep the road well leveled. Often, when both sides of the road are irrigated inadvertently, the ridge is the only means of travel.

A new system of applying water to land in Imperial Valley has recently made its appearance in the northern end of the valley. This is known as the corrugated method of irrigating lands.

In the Imperial Valley north end it has been used with great success where the fall of the land is so great that flooding washes the land. It has been found that where the fall is greater than ten feet per mile the new method is superior to the old.

A second superiority of this method is that land in certain sections of the valley frequently bakes after irrigating and by the use of this method this bad feature is eliminated.

Small furrows perhaps two inches deep and three wide are made in the land after it has been plowed and harrowed by means of a flat, old-fashioned "stone boat" with runners at varying distances underneath, the distance varying with the distance between furrows for the crop desired. Irrigating is then practiced by allowing the water to run down the furrows in small streams. The water gradually works its way out from the furrow on each side until the soil between is thoroughly saturated. Usually a dust mulch forms on top and this effectively prevents baking and newly planted grain or alfalfa, as the case may be, creeps up through the dust mulch unhampered by the thick baked crust on top.

The use of this method on land at the edge of the Salton Sea which is being reclaimed from alkali has been successful and has resulted in the reclamation of hundreds of acres of land which have been exposed through the receding of the lake level.

Silt deposits and consequent clogging of ditches continually trouble farmers of the Imperial Valley. Although there is general complaint in the valley over the difficulty in keeping the ditches and canals clean, the protests are not nearly as great as they would be if it were not realized that this same silt-laden water deposits fertile soil which later turns out to be gold in the farmers' pockets.

The ranchers of the North End in their constant battle against the clogging silt from the Colorado River's waters have developed many means of conveniently and quickly cleaning ditches. It is necessary to clean all small ditches at least twice a year and in the larger canals, where the drop is not enough to carry the silt, the cleaning operation must be performed more frequently.

For the smaller ditches a peculiar "V"-shaped scraper is used. This is usually pulled by a tractor or from four to eight horses. The tractor, usually of the crawler type, has proved very satisfactory for this work. The ditch cleaner takes one side of the ditch at a time and two trips are necessary to thoroughly clean the ditch or canal. So far as is known, these ditches are not in general use anywhere else in the United States.

In the larger canals miniature land dredges are used with great success, the dredge having a long arm reaching across the canal which carries a wheel on the opposite bank. This wheel is adjustable for various sized ditches. Usually this dredger operates on the same principle as a dirt wagon loader, scraping the bank until surplus silt has been removed.

In the largest canals, floating dredges are kept constantly at work. The Imperial Irrigation District owns a number of these. At the river intake these are operated night and day.

Preparing land for irrigation by the corrugating method, near Niland. This method is used where the land has a comparatively steep slope and the soil is not of the heavy type.

NEW BEETLE PEST BEYOND CONTROL.

Recent reports from Riverton, N. J. state that the green Japanese beetle has spread outside of the quarantine area to other parts of that State and also across the Delaware River into Pennsylvania. To California farmers unfamiliar with this new pest, this news may seem to be of small import, but entomologists who have followed the rapid spread of this pest since it was introduced from Japan in 1916, see a danger which threatens every State in the Union and particularly California, which would furnish such a fertile soil for this destructive insect.

The green Japanese beetle feeds on the foliage of almost every fruit tree, vegetable and shrub. So far no method of poisoning has been successful for the simple reason that the beetle refuses to eat any poisoned vegetation. From the time that the eggs are laid by the mature beetle in the soil, the entire cycle of development takes place underground where the grub is free from attack. The mature beetle emerges from the soil in midsummer and is an active flyer exceedingly difficult of control.

This beetle has truly Japanese characteristics in its rate of increase. When first discovered in a large New Jersey nursery, it was only possible to find twelve after a day's search. Now they can be found in millions and in certain areas swarm like bees on a hot day. Very elaborate steps were taken by both State and Federal government to check the spread of this insect until its natural enemies could be found and introduced from Japan.

A veritable war has been waged, the army of fighters including flame throwers, poison squads and trappers. A barrier one mile wide was drawn around the infested area, but in spite of all this the beetle escaped and is now beyond control. With no quarantine in effect in the newly infested area there is danger of the mature beetle or grubs being carried in produce or nursery stock to far distant States where it can obtain the same foothold that it has in New Jersey. California farmers, say careful observers, should keep a lookout for this dangerous pest and take no chances on the addition of a new enemy to their crops.—[By Max Watson.

LARGE IMPORTATION OF DATE OFFSHOOTS.

Seventy tons of date offshoots, about 5000 palms, have arrived at San Pedro from oases of the Sahara and are being transshipped to Indio, in the Coachella Valley, where they will be disinfected and rooted under the direction of Bruce Drummond, chief of the Indio Experiment Station of the United States Department of Agriculture. When the palms are rooted, the greater part of the shipment will be distributed to growers in the Imperial, Coachella and Palo Verde valleys. This is the largest shipment of date offshoots that the Federal government has imported from Africa since 1913.

In the shipment are several dates that have never been extensively tried out in the arid region of California, notably the S'aidi or Saidy date, a semidry date of excellent flavor and shipping qualities. It is said to be one of the best dates of the oases of the Sahara. The offshoots arrived at New York July 12.

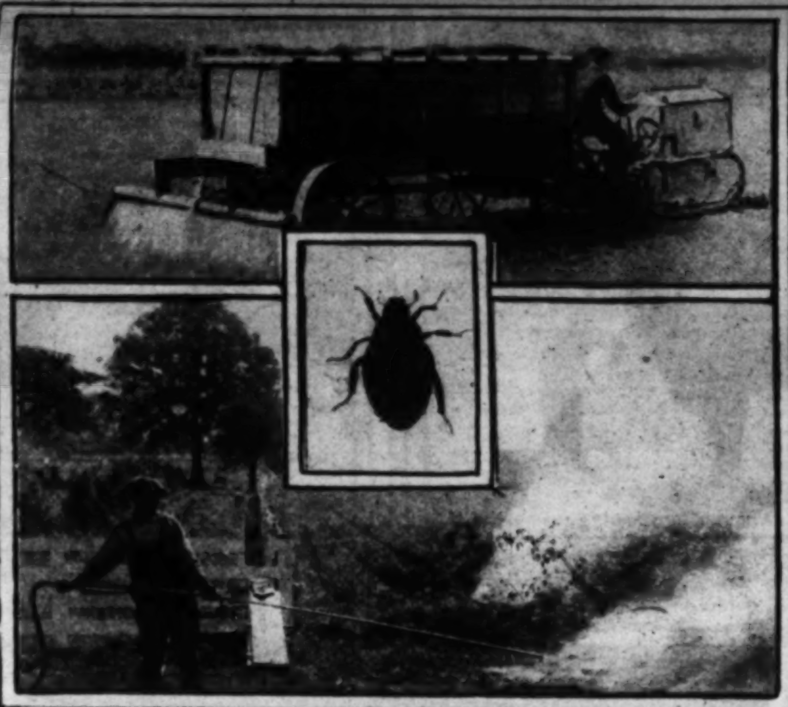
WATER LOSSES DUE TO POCKET GOPHERS.

The common method of control against the pocket gopher in Imperial county does not always work out as satisfactorily as it should, owing to the excessive depth at which these rodents construct their runways, and also due to the fact that a great many are located in walls, levees and ditch banks of the irrigating systems in the valley.

In traveling twenty miles along roads in Imperial Valley, W. C. Jacobsen, of the Pest Control Service, counted fully sixty breaks in irrigation ditches or canals where water was easily allowed to flow in considerable quantities or seep through in small amounts on the roads, making them impassable in several instances. A number of new infestations of the Yuma round-tailed ground squirrel were found and they were discovered to be increasing in considerable numbers in places where they were known to have existed previously but not to such an extent as to warrant alarm.

COTTON PRICE BETTER.

The average price of cotton lint to producers was 35.36 cents per pound in the cotton year 1919-20, or an increase of 23 per cent over 1918-19. Similarly, cotton seed had the average price of $67.18 per ton in 1919-20, which was 3 per cent above 1918-19.



New Jersey's War on the Green Japanese Beetle.

Tractor-drawn tank sprinkling cyanide on the ground to kill grubs, and a "flame thrower" burning brush with direct fuel oil jet. Inset—Adult beetle.

STOP HOUSING AND FEEDING THE RATS.

The California State Department of Agriculture advises that, if we are to exterminate the rat pests, we must stop feeding and housing them. They are not only destroyers of human food but also carriers of many diseases fatal to man. From an agricultural standpoint rats and mice each year destroy in the United States alone crops valued at millions of dollars. Again, if the grain eaten and wasted by these rodents could be sold, the taxes of many a farmer could be paid from the proceeds of such a sale.

The ordinary brown rat breeds from six to ten times a year and each litter usually numbers from eight to ten young. At this rate, a pair of rats, breeding uninterruptedly and without deaths, would at the end of a year—six generations—be increased to 119,902,161 individuals.

There are various methods of combating the rat menace of which the following are very important: Rat-proof construction of buildings; proper disposal of garbage and rubbish; the use of traps, poisons and the keeping of good rat dogs, especially on the ranches and in the warehouses. Detailed information pertaining to the extermination of rats may be obtained by writing to the Director of Agriculture, Sacramento.

Press reports from Detroit state that the production of Folsom tractors for the fiscal year ending July 31, 1920, was 78,006 machines. During the same period, 129,188 trucks were made. The production program for the next fiscal year is stated to call for 200,000 tractors and 1,250,000 cars and trucks.

The Young Aberdeen-Angus Bull, Electo, Braemer Ranch, Santa Barbara. T. McTavish, Herdsman, is Holding Him.

One of the Good Braemer Ranch Heifers, Equatora. The Braemer "doddies" Will be on the Fall Show Circuit.

ALONG about the time that "Bobbie" Burns was struggling with agriculture and making a success at nothing but poetry, some of his thrifty brother Scots, less poetical, but perhaps a bit more practical, were developing a breed of cattle that was to become known in after years as the Aberdeen-Angus. In the breeders' roll of fame the name of Hugh Watson of Keillor in Angus county stands forth prominently for he it was who started in to fix the type by inbreeding, a method which has come to be quite widely practiced among some of our most successful breeders of the present day.

It was fifty years before the breed began to get its stride in the contest for popularity and in the meantime another breeder, William McCombie of Tillyfour in the county of Aberdeen had founded a herd that won a widespread reputation. McCombie it was who set out to bring Angus to the front ranks. How well he succeeded is shown by the fact that he early began winning first prizes in big shows with his share of grand champions over other breeds of fat cattle.

Coming down to a later date, James Kennedy, twenty years ago, founded a herd at Doonholme, only a short distance from the old Burns cottage at Ayr. Mr. Kennedy bred his herd up, selecting the deep-bodied, low-set, early-maturing individuals with strong constitutions. His phenomenal success is shown by his winnings at the English Royal at Newcastle, the Aberdeen Highland Show and the Manchester Royal.

James McTavish is the able herdsman in charge of Mr. Kennedy's fine herd and only this year the former's son, T. McTavish, brought some of Mr. Kennedy's Angus purebreds to America. Some of these he delivered to eastern breeders, but some of the choice ones were brought to California for James Marwick, proprietor of the Braemar Ranch at Santa Barbara. Mr. McTavish is now employed as herdsman for Mr. Marwick and the writer found him on the Braemar Ranch rubbing down the "doddies" which he had brought from Doonholme Castle only a few months previous.

The typical Aberdeen-Angus is all black, except perhaps now and then a little patch of white on the udder, which is allowable. The aim of Angus breeders is to produce cattle with great quantities of high quality meat. To produce this kind it is necessary to develop a low-set, smooth-finished animal with a uniform even covering of flesh; a deep-ribbed animal with full muscular thighs. The head of the Angus is hornless and surmounted by a sharp poll, and it should possess an oblique shoulder fitting close to the body and very smooth on top. Their cylindrical, well-rounded conformation, with even depth of mellow flesh covering and coat of fine hair gives them a general appearance which suggests quality.

Ardshiel Wendy, one of Mr. Marwick's Fine Collies.

Liqui Detrice, Imported Percheron Mare and Foal.

The Braemar herd possesses the type, conformation and quality that is wanted in this breed. The bull, Electo, is an Erica-bred individual showing lots of quality, while the three Erica-bred heifers, Energica, Erguina and Equatora, are all excellent individuals possessing the femininity, quality and evenness of flesh covering that go to make excellence in the breed. Belinda of Doonholme is a fine show heifer coming from the Blackbird family and can hardly be faulted in type, conformation and quality. Her splendid deep, mellow flesh covering over shoulder, back and loin would mark her in any company. This small yet high-quality herd at Braemar Ranch is bound to create admiration for the breed when it is taken on the show circuit this fall.

Besides breeding good cattle, Mr. Marwick is breeding Percheron horses, Buff Orpington chickens and blueblooded dogs. J. A. Dunn, who has charge of the horse department of the ranch, takes great pride in showing the fine Percherons in the Braemar barns, and well he should for the various individuals are all good specimens of Percheron type. The three-year-old stallion, Major, stood first at Denver in 1917 as a suckling colt. He also stood first at Sacramento in 1918 and first at the same show in 1919. Ligni Detrill, an imported eight-year-old iron gray mare, has a remarkable three-months'-old foal that should be a comer in any class. Dora, champion Percheron mare at Sacramento in 1919, was also exhibited by this ranch. This splendid mare has wonderful conformation and excellent action which makes her popular wherever shown. Another fine mare on this ranch is Jewel, a three-year-old. She will undoubtedly make a great brood mare in another year.

The poultry department on this 460-acre ranch is in charge of L. Gwyther, who was in the poultry business in the East for a great many years. He is devoting all his time to the 250 fine prize-winning Braemar Buff Orpingtons and is just now busy picking out the ones which he is confident will win in the fall and winter shows.

In Mr. Marwick's dog kennels are to be found the champion collie bitch, Ardshiel Wendy, said to be one of the very best in the country. Another dog which commands special attention is the Carin dog, Speed Dearg Out of West. This dog was awarded the gold medal at San Francisco last year for best dog in its class.

Mr. Marwick has not gone into any breed of animal on a large scale as yet, but every animal that he buys or raises is of the quality kind.

HOW THE MILITARY SALUTE ORIGINATED

Inside Information on Military Life.

BY M. C. WILE.

THE great World War has brought the military profession and the industrial world into more intimate relations than they have ever been before. There are many little rules in the army regulations that seem of small consequence to the average civilian, and—I am sorry to say—that are not fully understood and appreciated by some few men in the service.

Courtesy is one of the little things that becomes quite a factor in military life, making life more pleasant for the individual and everyone he comes in contact with.

In all walks of life men who are gentlemanly and of good breeding are always respectful and courteous to those about them. It helps to make life move along more smoothly. In civil life this courtesy is shown by the custom of tipping the hat to ladies, shaking hands with friends and greeting persons with a nod or a friendly good morning, etc. In the army courtesy is just as necessary and for the same reason. Courtesy among military men is indispensable to discipline. One method of extending this courtesy is by saluting. When in ranks the question of what a soldier should do is simple. He obeys any command that is given. It is when out of ranks that a soldier must know how and when to salute.

In the old days the freemen of Europe were allowed to carry weapons, and when they met each other would hold up his right hand to show that he had no weapon in it, and that they met as friends. The slaves and serfs, however, were not allowed to carry weapons, and slunk past the freemen without making any sign. In this way the salute came to be a symbol or sign by which the soldiers (freemen) might recognize each other. The lower classes began to imitate the soldier in this respect, although in a clumsy apologetic way, and thence crept into civil life the custom of raising the hand or nodding as one passed an acquaintance. The soldiers, however, kept their individual salute, and purposely made it intricate and difficult to learn in order that it could be acquired only by the constant training all real soldiers receive. To this day armies have preserved their salute, and when correctly did it is at once recognized and never mistaken for that of a civilian. The civilian who tries to imitate the military salute invariably makes some mistake which shows that he is not a soldier; gives it in an apologetic manner, he fails to stand or march at attention, his coat is unbuttoned or he fails to look the person saluted in the eye. There is a wide difference in the method of rendering and meaning between the civilian salute as used by friends in passing, or by servants to their employers, and the military salute, the symbol and sign of the military profession.

In civil life if you are working for a firm or corporation where your manager or foreman and the big boss speak to you only on business matters, never say "good morning or "howdy," and if you should pluck up courage enough to say good morning to him, he gives a grunt and passes you up like a nickel's worth of rat poison? You're going to look for another job "pronto," where there are more pleasant environments. In the army it is a matter of discipline as well as courtesy. An enlisted man must salute an officer and the officer must return the salute. When you meet your troop or company commander you cannot say, "Good morning, lieutenant or captain," whichever the case may be, but you can, and must salute him, and he must return the salute. As a matter of fact you are saluting his rank and uniform. But! In this man's army of today an officer must qualify 99¾ per cent in the training and handling of men to get his commission. To hold his commission he must hold the friendly respect of his men as well as the disciplinary influence. An army without discipline becomes a mob, without discipline it would be like driving a Ford with a broken steering knuckle. After two months' training in the army a recruit—that is really trying to learn the military profession—forgets the salute is a matter of discipline. He finds it one of life's real pleasures to greet an officer with a snappy salute and receive one of the same in return. He goes on about his duties feeling the same as if he had said—"Good morning, major, I hope I find you well this morning," and the major had answered "Quite well, thank you, I hope you are the same." That exchange of snappy salutes means precisely that, in military courtesy. There has been many an army officer called up on the carpet—and in some few cases made to stand trial—for not returning the salute of an enlisted man, or returning it in a careless, lazy manner, but such cases are mighty few in this year of our Lord 1920.

To hold a commission in the United States Regular Army a man must be a gentleman, scholar and soldier by profession. If he does not acquire that other one-fourth of 1 per cent efficiency in the training and commanding of men in a reasonable length of time after receiving his commission, he finds himself out in the cold, cold world looking for another position. A great number of regular army officers today are men who have risen from the ranks, and some of them hold high commissions.

Every young man that is 100 per cent American should have military training in some branch of the service, so that in case of emergency—as we had in 1917—he will be ready and raring to go in a few days, instead of being cooped up in some training camp from four to six months, getting some of that training he should have had before the emergency arose.

Owing to the educational and vocational training bill that has recently been passed, a young man may choose and learn most any trade he desires while serving his enlistment. Tell the recruiting agent the trade you wish to learn, and he will enlist you in the branch of service most suitable for the learning of that trade. When you have finished your enlistment you have to-wit:

Military training in some branch of the service, mechanical skill in the trade you wish to follow and, if you are so inclined, money in the bank.

Your Uncle Sam has at the finish of your enlistment to-wit:

One productive self-supporting citizen, one well-trained soldier, that with enough like him he can look the whole world in the eye and tell them where to go to.

Think it over!

MRS. HUMPHRY WARD.

tion like her own, frequent wars were necessary. Wherefore women ought logically to be governed by the sex who, when called upon, preserve by force the British empire? In later years Mrs. Ward was fated to learn the truth of the old adage that an army marches on its stomach. The great war which Britain was at last forced to fight in her own defense could not long have been carried on, had not the women of England by their productive labor furnished both weapons and food to the men in the trenches. Thus by the inexorable logic of events the anti-suffragist arguments were stultified and Mrs. Ward was one of the first to acknowledge the fact.

The heroine of "Harvest," like thousands of her feminine compatriots with independent means, not only put her available capital into the leasehold of a goodly portion of arable land and the necessary stock and implements for its cultivation, but also by attendance at a "Farm School" had fitted herself both for agricultural management and participation with her "Land Lasses" in the actual work of sowing, cultivating, reaping and threshing her crops. This employment—while not so hazardous as the making of munitions, in which industry English women engaged on so great a scale—is at once the most necessary and the most laborious means by which human life is sustained. Truly, with a great price the women of England have bought their political freedom!

Quite the most interesting book ever written by this woman of many books was her "Recollections of a Writer," so frequently quoted in this article. She lived in a wonderful time and knew many worth-while persons, most of whom were her intimate friends. This proves her a woman of personal charm and likableness, a rare quality in one of the Arnold family.

She did not walk this world as a prophecy of the next age, nor was she in any sense a super-woman. But she added to her talent for the writing of eminently readable books, persistent industry, genuine philanthropy and high moral ideals. To the best of her ability she represented, and in many ways served, her own time and nation. May her laurels remain ever fresh, since they assuredly encircled the brow "Of one who uttered nothing base."

HELEN AND WARREN.

off the other fabrications now deserted her.

"No more lies! You dug that up in some old junk shop and tried to put it over as a family portrait. If Stevens hadn't put you wise you'd have been parading Benjamin Franklin as your 'Uncle William!' And that other one of your great aunt!" with a snort. "'Due about Christmas!' That was a fine yarn!"

The chair creaked under his wrathful weight as he threw himself down. Savagely he bit off the end of a cigar.

"Next thing you'd have trotted out Martha Washington as this bird's wife! Just your dumb luck that Stevens butted in when he did—you'd have made a holy show of us both!"

Rays Change Gems.

The field of radio activity seems practically limitless. Both X-rays and radium have now been found to change the color and add to the luster of precious stones.

While experimenting in his laboratory the scientist to whom credit for this twentieth century magic is due, found that a diamond ring near the apparatus glowed with added brilliancy in the darkness of the apartment, and shortly afterwards its color turned to a brilliant green.

This led to a further test of the gem itself.

The rays from the diamond, when subjected to treatment, were dazzling, and its hue a lovely diamond; in fact, the stone was no longer a diamond but an emerald, and a particularly fine one, too.

Subsequent trials with other stones brought further wonders to light. After prolonged treatment with radium, green sapphires have changed to the glorious wine red of rubies, while faint sapphires are painted with rich colors of the oriental emerald.—[Boston Post.

The California Poppies.

Oh, greet the golden poppies,
Sweet harbingers of love,
Like bits of radiant sunshine
Sent straight from heaven above.
With faces brightly beaming
They come to us each spring;
A message full of gladness
And joy to us they bring.

In gardens bright with color
These floral apostles bloom,
Which bring the light of hope and cheer
To pierce the darkest gloom;
In fields of shining blossoms
Of nature's richest shade,
Are the California poppies,
Which God for us hath made.

High it hangs in the cloud-swept West
Over the dark and lonely sea—
One Who watcheth and knoweth best
Tends to the light for you and me.

Over the hillside and the shore,
Make us a path across the deep—
Call to us from an open door.

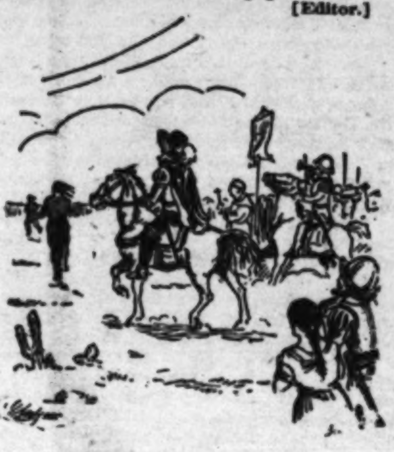
FOUNDING OF THE CITY OF LOS ANGELES

1781.

BY JOHN STEVEN McGROARTY.

John Steven McGroarty, poet, historian and sage of the green Verdugo Hills, whose contributions have illuminated this page for the past two years, has, we learn, like "his neighbor who plays the flute," made a loan from God and has gone forth to spend it. He will be absent for about four weeks. But will immediately upon his return, resume the conduct of this page.

[Editor.]



After an early mass the fateful march began.

THE city of Los Angeles was born on September 4, year of Our Lord, 1781. Consequently, it celebrates this year, the one hundred and thirty-ninth anniversary of its birth.

From this it will be seen that Los Angeles is among the elder cities of America, chronologically. As to population and industrial importance it stands the tenth.

In the Hall of Fame, it takes second place to no other. It is as well known as London, Paris or New York. If you were in the farthest corner of a foreign land addressing a letter to a friend in Los Angeles the letter would reach the friend promptly and without delay though you would place upon the envelope the name of Los Angeles only, without adding either the name of the State or the country.

The way that Los Angeles came to be a city at all is in itself a chapter in romance.

Away back in the old, old times when Spain was first establishing a foothold on the western shores of America, the good king of Castile and Leon planned how things should go over here. His plan was, indeed, a very practical one.

The first step was to establish the missions. Adjacent to each Mission was to be a Presidio so that the soldiers would be handy to protect the Padres from hostile Indians. The third and last step in the plan was to found Pueblos, or towns, between the Missions, in order that the country might be colonized.

Three Pueblos Materialized As Part of the Plan.

THE plan was never carried out to its fullness. Only four or five Presidios ever materialized, and only three Pueblos—San Jose, Los Angeles and Branciforte at Santa Cruz.* The last-named started out the most promising but finally suffered a total collapse. That's another story, however.

San Jose and Los Angeles managed to hang on though they had their own discouragements.

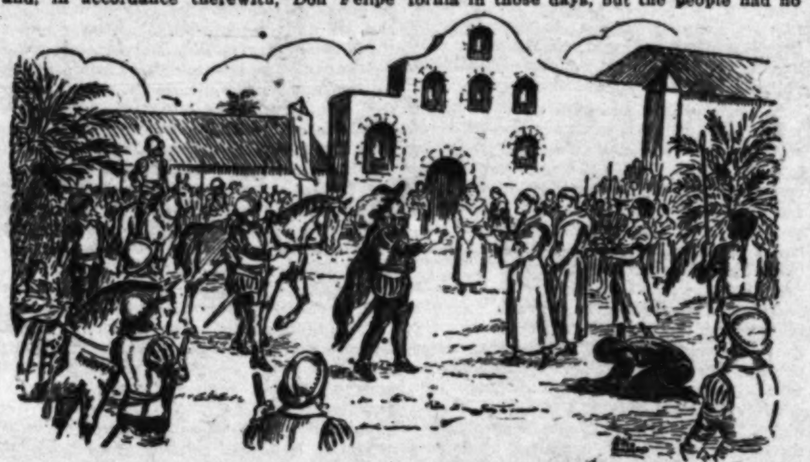
The Missions were the only part of the plan of good King Carlos that really made good from the start. Maybe it was because of the wonderful patience, genius and industry of the Padres in handling the Indians. They got the Indian to work and that was no slight achievement—to either force, cajole, fool or coax a California Indian to work. They were born lazy and shiftless. Why should they work in a land where Nature made it entirely unnecessary and really foolish to do so? Fruit, fish fowl and flesh were here in abundance. All they had to do was to reach out their hands for all these things. As for clothes, they didn't need them and were far more comfortable without them. Consequently, they didn't wear clothes.

Yet the Padres changed all that. The work they induced those "diggers" to do is one of the wonders of the world, even to this day. If anyone doubts it, let him travel the King's Highway from San Diego to Sonoma, and he will see for himself. How they built that great chain of twenty-one Missions, many of them architectural wonders, and massive at that, may well rank with the mystery of the pyramids.

"Queen of the Missions" Founded at San Gabriel.

THE fourth of these Missions, and the greatest, having been justly styled the "Queen of the Missions," was San Gabriel. And this brings us to the romantic tale of how Los Angeles came to be; for San Gabriel is the Mother of Los Angeles.

Ten years after the Mission San Gabriel had been founded, came the order of the King to found the Pueblo of Los Angeles, and, in accordance therewith, Don Felipe de Neve, who was then the Gobernador, proceeded from the capital at Monterey with the Royal Proclamation in his pocket.



In due time the party made its appearance at San Gabriel.

Some time there will be a statue of Don Felipe de Neve erected in the old Plaza, because of the fact that he was the founder of the city. However, he was something of a figure in history outside of that. He was not the greatest of the ten men who were successively governors of California during the time that it was a province of Spain, but he was by no means the least.

He had already founded the Pueblo of San Jose. Before coming to California he was a cavalry officer at Queretaro in Mexico. Soon after he was installed as Governor at Monterey he issued his famous "Reglamento," which was a complete code of laws for the Province of California. It is regarded to this day as a very able and statesmanlike document.

Well, anyway, it was Don Felipe who had the honor of putting Los Angeles on the map, and it must be said that he did it in style and in a manner that the King himself would have approved.

There was no lack of pomp in California, those days. There could be no lack of pomp in anything that then was attached to Spain, ruling half the world, and its court the most gorgeous in Europe.

So, when Don Felipe de Neve, the Gobernador, set out from sun-swept, glamourous Monterey, to found a new city, he set out with all the trimmings.

Founder of City Came Like An Ancient Knight.

HE WAS himself arrayed in the splendor of the trappings that went with his high office—golden sword, ruffled lace shirt and cuffs, rich velvet jacket, slashed breeches appliqued with silver and gold, plumes on his hat, long riding boots. Upon the horse he rode was a saddle and a bridle worth a king's ransom.

Just what was the personal appearance of Don Felipe, that is to say, what manner of looking man he was extraneous of his clothes, will become the subject of important investigation when the sculptor is face to face with the task of making his statue. From the material available in the Spanish archives at Berkeley, however, it would seem that Don Felipe was a man to whom the tall, lean type of Spanish-Californian bears a striking resemblance.

Following Don Felipe out of Monterey on this occasion was his own troop of cavalry, arrayed in their best uniforms, carbines and swords, and their leather jackets that were worn to ward off the arrows of the Indians.

His Excellency and his escort must have greatly enjoyed their ride down through the golden reaches of the sun from Monterey. The King's Highway was then a fairly well-broken trail and they had their choice of a thousand picked spots ideal for camping, with fishes from the rivers and the sea, game everywhere and wild fruit in the lush harvest on every hand.

In due time the party made its appearance at San Gabriel. Indian runners had prepared the Mission for the coming of its illustrious guest. The cavalcade was met far off and guided to the care of the Padres who were waiting with the best of everything.

There was little or no money in California in those days, but the people had no need of money. They had everything that money could buy, without the bother of counting the change.

Los Angeles Founded with Pomp and Circumstance.

WHEN the Governor and his party were well rested at the Mission they set out upon a sunny and forever memorable morning to effect the orders of the King. All was bustle and excitement at San Gabriel. There was early mass and a good breakfast. The bugle flung its wild echoes across the hush of the bright, fruitful valley. The banners of the King and of Our Lady were lifted above the stirrups of the troopers, and then the fateful march began.

It was a motley throng in every sense of the word that followed the lead of the Gobernador, the colors of the rainbow in it, and all sorts and conditions of humanity composing it.

In the center of the procession were the Padres of the Mission in their brown Franciscan robes, white cords around their waists, sandals on their feet. Indians, barefoot or shod with zapatas, old and young Indians, Indian women and, doubtless, some Indian children followed for it would have been pretty difficult to make them all stay at home when there was so much doing. Then there were the pobladores, or settlers, who were to form the first families of this pueblo that was to be.

It was probably a hot morning, as our September mornings are apt to be, and certainly it was very dusty on the King's Highway with so many hoofs and feet to kick up the dust. There must have been at least a couple of thousand persons in the procession. But it is not likely that they were distressed. Sun and wind were sister and brother to them. Walking was an incident and not a task.

Three leagues westward journeyed the cavalcade, and then Don Felipe wheeled on his horse and the bugler called a halt. They had come to the spot. It was probably about where the fountain now splashes on sunny mornings and in the silvery beams of the moon in the old Plaza.

Don Felipe descended from his steed. Unsheathing his sword he drove it into the ground, saying:

"Here, in the name of God and our Sovereign King shall we build the Pueblo of Our Lady the Queen of the Angels."

That was the name they gave it—this wonder city of a thousand domes—on that far day in 1781.

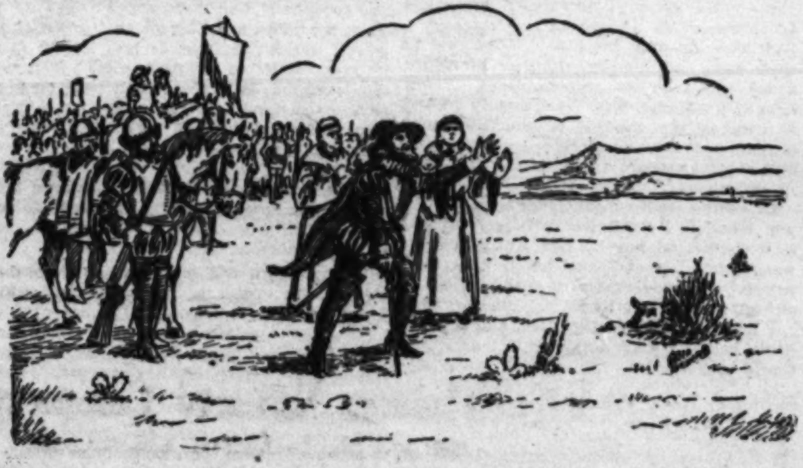
They raised a great cross hewn from timbers that the Indians had felled and drawn with oxen from some distant canyon. The Te Deum was chanted. The Indian Choristers from the Mission sang other hymns, singing them in Latin, and doubtless singing them as well as the Indians sang at Carmel when Robert Louis Stevenson heard them. "They have the Gregorian music at their finger ends," said R.L.S., "and pronounce the Latin so correctly that I could follow the meaning as they sang." The Gobernador read the Proclamation of the King, and likely made a speech. The troopers fired volleys of musketry.

The original population consisted of nine families and, after the Plaza was staked out, these families were apportioned house lots on three sides of the square. In addition they were given lands for cultivation, and an irrigation ditch was surveyed from the Los Angeles River which was then called "Porciuncula."

It was a great day. When, in the purpled dusk of evening, Don Felipe bade the Padres farewell and turned homeward to his capital, he left behind him a new-born city.

Los Angeles had its ups and downs for many a year after that. For a long time it was of no consequence whatever as a place. But it persisted and survived, no doubt because of the great destiny that awaited it in the hidden mists of future times.

It is today one of the most fascinating of cities, but to those who dream and grope into the romances of the past, it has never had an hour so fascinating as the hour of its birth.



"Here in the name of God and our Sovereign King shall we build the Pueblo of Our Lady, the Queen of the Angels."

The Married Life of Helen and Warren.

Helen Purchases an Unknown Portrait and Flaunts it as a Colonial Ancestor.

BY MABEL HERBERT URNER.

IT WAS an oil portrait, darkened with age, and with two cruel holes in the canvas. It stood against the wall of the small shop that boasted a few antiques in the window and much junk within. Carrying it to the light, Helen examined it more closely.

"You can have that cheap if you want it," the shopman was wrapping a pewter plate she had just bought.

It was a distinguished head, the hair brushed sternly back from a broad forehead. The black stock and ruffled waistcoat reminded Helen of the portrait of a great-great-uncle that she had always coveted.

"I was askin' twenty-five—but it got damaged knockin' around here. You can have it for ten."

A daring impulse was brewing. Why could she not pretend that this was her great-great-uncle?

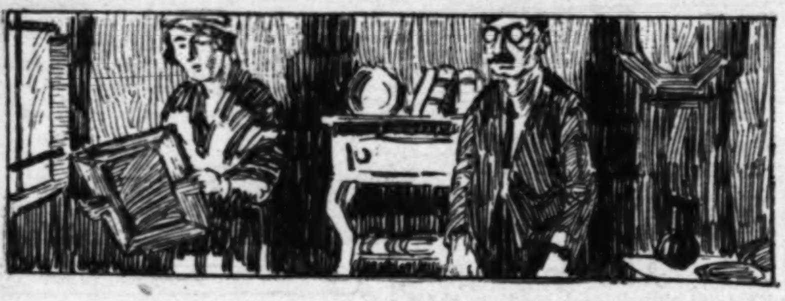
She had read of the newly rich buying ancestral portraits—but this was different. There was such a portrait which had been willed to her Aunt Fannie.

"You can fix them places yourself," misconstruing her hesitation. "Just paste a bit of canvas on the back and paint over it."

"I wonder if I could get an old frame to fit it?"

"Lots of frames in the cellar. We'll go down and look 'em over."

Helen followed him down the steps to the dark, dusty clutter below.



Broken chair, legless tables, and tottering chests of drawers awaited restoring. From a shadowy corner he dragged out some old frames.

"Oh, that looks about the size! And I like plain gilt moulding."

When he wiped it off and laid it over the picture—it was an exact fit. Helen restrained her jubilation, lest it affect the price.

"You can have it for $5. That's real gold leaf—don't make 'em like that nowadays. I'll tell you how to clean it," confidentially. "Just take an onion and rub it over. Nothing like onion juice for old gilt."

Speeding homeward in a taxi, the large flat package against her knees, Helen planned the story she would tell Warren. Aunt Fannie, knowing she had always coveted it, had sent her this family portrait.

Future complications were improbable, as Aunt Fannie would never come to New York, and they were not likely to visit Parktown, Wyo.

With eager expectancy she unwrapped the portrait in the library where it was to be hung. To the left of the bookcase—already she had decided that.

In the glare of the noonday sun, the canvas looked rather grimy. She had not thought to ask about cleaning it. He told her to use an onion on the frame; no doubt he knew of something just as simple for the portrait. But she could not call him up, for his small shop had no telephone.

She racked her memory. Had she not read somewhere that milk was excellent for old oil paintings? At least she could try.

Pussy Purr-mew's saucer of milk and a piece of Warren's old undershirt produced gratifying results. It cleaned off the grime and brought out the deep rich tones. The black smears on the cloth were proof of dirt removed.

Fortunately, both holes were in the background. Carefully she backed them with a scrap of linen, pasting down the frayed edges.

Getting out her paintbox, she mixed burnt sienna with black until she approximated the aged reddish brown. Then carefully she brushed the mended spots.

At a distance of a few feet the repairs were hardly visible. Propping the canvas in the window to dry, she turned her attention to the frame.

From the soap box under the pantry sink, she selected a plump Bermuda onion. Halving this, she proceeded to rub up the moulding. The result was magical. The dark stains vanished, leaving the old gilt clean and lustrous.

Fitting the portrait in the frame was more difficult, as she had only ordinary carpet tacks which threatened to split the moulding.

It was 5 o'clock before the picture was hung. Climbing down from the step ladder she viewed her work with thrilled exultancy. The portrait, harmonizing with their antique furniture, gave dignity and tone to the whole room.

The library straightened and brushed up, there was just time to bathe and dress before Warren came.

So carefully had Helen rehearsed her story that now she almost believed it. Her joyous greeting was without scruples or self-consciousness.

"Dear, what do you think? Aunt Fannie sent me a family portrait, my great-uncle William! I've always been crazy for it—but when grandmother died it went to her."

She dragged him into the library before the portrait.

"There! Isn't it wonderful? Isn't he distinguished?"

"Shrewd looking old boy."

"Oh, he was very prominent—a colonel in the Revolutionary War."

"Eh? How in blazes could your great uncle be in the Revolution?"

"I mean my great-great-uncle—or maybe my great-great-great-uncle. Anyway he was a colonel in some war. Oh, doesn't he give atmosphere to the whole room?"

"Looks all right there," conceded Warren.

"And it's really a wonderful thing to have a fine old family portrait. You know how Mrs. Stevens is always bragging about hers."

"Just met Stevens in the subway. They're going to Long Branch Saturday—so I told them to come tonight. Nothing on, have we?"

"Oh, I'm wild to show them the portrait! It's much more distinguished than her great-grandfather. But she has the pair," wistfully. Then with sudden inspiration, "There's a pair of these! Aunt Fannie may send me the other!"

At dinner, swept on by her fertile imagination, Helen expatiated on the other portrait—her great-great-aunt. She was a little uncertain of how many "greats," but Warren was absorbed in carving a particularly fine roast.

"I don't remember much about it except that she was supposed to be very beautiful," leaving a wide latitude for any portrait she might find reasonably cheap. "I'd hang it

"Better wait till you get it," Warren speared a new boiled potato.

just opposite—over that Sheraton table."

"Some how I think I will get it! I'd not be a bit surprised if she'd send it Christmas."

"Eat your dinner! That's a good cut—but she's cooked it too much."

Helen, too excited to eat, rambled on to unnecessary details about her great-aunt's portrait. While Warren gave his undivided attention to food.

It was a quarter past 8 when the Stevens came for the game of bridge that had been planned for Saturday.

"I hope it's all right—our coming tonight. I told Henry we—"

"Oh, I'm so glad you came! I've something to show you."

Leading them into the library, in dramatic silence Helen presented the portrait. She thought it more impressive to wait for their first admiring comments before she proclaimed it her great-great-uncle.

"What an interesting old portrait!" enthused Mrs. Stevens. "Where did you get it?"

"Yes, that's a very early copy." Mr. Stevens, who was something of an expert, was examining it critically. "I always thought that was the best portrait of Franklin—much better than the later ones you usually see."

"Franklin!" the whispered gasp escaped her.

"Didn't you know?" he turned in amazement.

"Why, my aunt sent it," stammeringly. "It's been in the family for years and I—"

"Well, you're lucky to have it. They're not many early copies of that. I forget where the original is—in some art museum."

Helen dared not look at Warren. His grim silence was corrosive.

"It—it used to hang in my grandmother's sitting-room," her agile mind already seeking a loop-hole. "Beside it hung one of my great-great-uncle. I haven't seen either since I was a child—so I wasn't sure."

"I've made a study of early American portraits," admitted Mr. Stevens. And that's a very good copy. Well, shall we get on with the game?"

Trying to hide her flaming face, Helen got out the table and cards. At least she had not betrayed herself to the Stevenses. Her fortunate silence when she first showed the picture had saved her from that. But Warren knew!

If only she could make him believe she had really thought this was her great-uncle! She had wild visions of wiring Aunt Fannie to make her verify the story of the two portraits that had hung side by side.

Fortunately Warren held all the cards, so her distraction was not so noticeable. She had only to "pass" and let him play the hands.

Though the game had been a period of torture, yet when the Stevenses finally started, Helen tried to delay them. As the dread moment of being left alone with Warren approached—she sought to postpone it.

Their departure was followed by an ominous silence.

In tremulous haste Helen began putting away the cards and table, while Warren stood glaring out the window, his hands thrust deep into his pockets.

At last the menacing silence became unendurable. Recklessly, she plunged into stammered explanations.

"Warren, I did think it was Uncle William! They'd both hung in grandmother's sitting-room," suddenly loathing herself for this lie.

"Where'd you buy it?" sternly.

"Why, dear, I told you Aunt—" She faltered. The excited elation that had carried

Mrs. Humphry Ward--A Critical Estimate.

BY M. F. CUMMINGS.

Mrs. Humphry Ward.

A DISPASSIONATE survey of the recently ended life of Mary Augusta Arnold, wife of Humphry Ward, reveals the fact that in an intellectual sense, it revolved about the subjects discussed and analzyed in "Robert Elsmere" and later reconsidered in "Helsbeck of Bannisdale" and "Eleanor."

Mrs. Ward has wisely said that mastery of the art of novel writing is conditioned upon a clear understanding of the fact that it is a kind of intellectual short hand. The impressions and experiences which are needed or comprehension of the author's argument must pre-exist in the reader's consciousness, and be skillfully appealed to by the writer if the effect aimed at is to be produced. The few readers who are "of imagination all compact" are easily reached, but in most cases continuous suggestion or reference to what is already known, is necessary.

This fact made the theme of "Robert Elsmere" somewhat difficult to handle effectively. The cultivated few must be interested as well as the many whose preparatory equipment had not extended beyond what we in America would describe as a public school education, reinforced on the side of theology by preparation for confirmation, or by a course in the average Sunday-school. It is to Mrs. Ward's eternal literary credit that she so shaped her work as to gain and hold the interest of these differing classes, thus securing for her novel a wider audience than any similar work of fiction had ever reached.

Of course, allowance must be made for the fact that the time was ripe for such an appeal. The era of unquestioning and uncritical faith in professed authority of any and every nature was drawing toward its close, and the number of those who through the study of history, science and philosophy were "using their intellect on the accumulated data of life" was rapidly increasing as educational opportunities were being extended. But the intellectual yeast which was thus gradually leavening the minds of a minority had not yet consciously affected the intellect of the mass of readers. Mrs. Ward had the wit to discern the opportunity thus presented and the mental preparation necessary to take advantage of it. It was, as she has said, a legitimate opening for a book belonging to that class of semi-imaginative literature which was then the modern novel. Being happily pre-Verist, Mrs. Ward merely wished to awaken the interest of the intelligent classes and thus accelerate a certain general mental process to which she was deeply committed.

Of course such a book must be what Oliver Wendell Holmes has wittily described as a medicated novel. But Mrs. Ward always refused to apologize for its character. Instead she says that a work of fiction is, and of right ought to be, the most elastic and adaptable of literary forms and that no critic has any divine right to set arbitrary limits to its range.

Interest in Novel Critical Test Mrs. Ward's View.

THE tests by which a novel should be tried, says Mrs. Ward, are two in number. First, does it interest and appeal to human beings by its contest of real human experience held within artistic forms? Also, aside from its form, does it in any way gratify that sense of beauty which is one of the deepest instincts in human nature? These tests may be applied differently by differing schools of critics. But as Mrs. Ward naively says, "interest is the crucial matter," and the book certainly got itself widely read. Whether or no, by enlightening the minds, it assisted in saving the souls of its author's public, it at all events "sufficed the eyes" of many readers, edition after edition being speedily printed and sold.

Of its general plot Mrs. Ward says: "I wanted to show how a man of noble and sensitive character, born for religion, comes to throw off the orthodoxy of his day and moment and go out into the wilderness where all is experiment, and spiritual life begins again. And with him I wished to contrast a type, no less fine, of the traditional and guided mind and to imagine the clash of two such tendencies of thought, as it might affect all practical life and especially the life of two people who loved each other."

A fatalist might reasonably hold that Mrs. Ward had been born and educated to write upon such topics. For being the child of a father bred in the Anglican church, but who in early manhood "went over to Rome," later returned to the faith of his fathers, and ten years afterward re-entered the Papal fold, she had certainly learned something at first hand of "honest doubts" as well as "warring creeds." Moreover, Mrs. Ward's mother, though long a member of the Church of England, was and remained until her death the spiritual daughter of her Calvinistic, French-Huguenot ancestors.

To such a direct and painful knowledge of varieties of religious experiences Mrs. Ward added a long residence at Oxford, beginning in the late 1860's, when theological controversies had not entirely ceased from troubling those classic shades. Young as she was, Mrs. Ward seems to have mingled freely in Oxford society and—like old Omar, "heard much argument" that had a permanent effect upon her mind. It was at a time when Jowett's thought was greatly stimulating the liberal element among Oxford scholars and was also being anathematized by Pusey and Lidden. We in America, who have been taught not to judge men entirely by their beliefs, but as the Master bade, "by their fruits," can scarcely conceive of the violently opposing influences which shaped Mrs. Ward's growing mind. She also studied widely during her early years at Oxford and says in her "Recollections"—"The great Bodelian library, which I daily frequented, became to me a living and inspiring presence. Regions of it were open to me then that no ordinary reader sees now. For months I explored spaces and distances, all books beneath a painted roof from which gleamed the motto of the university 'Dominus illuminato mea!'"

If Oliver Wendell Holmes spoke truly when he remarked that "The best way to educate a child is to turn him loose in a good library," Mrs. Ward with such august privileges might have been expected to evolve into a super-woman.

Three years after "Robert Elsmere" was published "David Grieve" followed. The second book is a story of what is sometimes called "natural religion" and its author regarded it as "the other side of the Modernist's Message" and "more hopeful, positive and consoling" than her earlier book. As a story it ranks somewhat above "Robert Elsmere," but it's content is less logical and its message by no means as clear. The author explains its purpose as a wish on her part to emphasize the fact that "The true source of religion is life itself; the ordinary human life and experience of every day as it has been slowly evolved through history." To this she, as a good Modernist, adds the study of nature, not in the Wordsworthian or mystical sense, but by means of the physical sciences.

If Mrs. Ward had only stopped here she would have presented an excellent formulary of so-called natural religion, entirely logical and consistent with itself. But she must needs add that man ought also "to listen to the message in his own soul, to the voice of the Eternal Friend speaking through conscience."

In these final words Mrs. Ward passes unexpectedly from the domain of naturalism into that of mysticism and thus breaks the hitherto staunch chain of logic upon which she prided herself. But if her explanation of the novel's theology limps, the book itself went on all fours and had a remarkable sale.

A Writer Who Did Regular Work to Secure an Income.

FOLLOWING the account in her "Recollections" of this novel's immense and immediate success, Mrs. Ward proved her possession of a frugal mind by this naive remark: "I then decided that with regular work I might reasonably look forward to a steady income." We are thus assured that although this author rated the fiction writer as a specific variety of poet, she was herself by no means of a temperamental nature. Nor was she "a pipe through which the breath of Pan doth blow an intermittent music" but a writer who did "regular work to insure a steady income."

Mrs. Ward's next trial of fiction as a vehicle for the expression of serious convictions was entitled "Helbeck of Bannisdale." Its theme is the evil of actual or even prospective "mixed marriages." The principals in this assumed case love each other devotedly but are at opposite theological poles and speedily discover the pertinence of the Apostle Paul's inquiry as to the possibility of two walking together who cannot agree as to the route to be taken. Vexed by many doubts the result is irretrievable tragedy. "Whoso hath ears to hear, let him hear."

Following the placing of this milestone on her literary path Mrs. Ward, like the travelers in children's fairy tales "went on, and on, and on," until she at last reached the peak of her mental powers and wrote "Eleanor." The scenes of this tale are laid in Italy and its plot, technique, characterization and descriptions of places, ceremonies and events are all far and away superior to anything ever before or afterward achieved by this author. The abased and ostracized, but devout and saintly Father Benecke, an apparent combination of St. George Mivart and Father McGlyn—is a real personage, as is the English "Eleanor." The scene in which Eleanor reveals her tortured heart and perverted will to the old cleric has genuine versisimilitude.

The situation of this father, to whom Eleanor has appealed, is embarrassing, for Eleanor is not a member of his church and does not consult him as an agent of the supernatural but as a moral expert for which office his profound learning, his love of truth, his special training and his life of spiritual purity singularly qualified him. He felt it his duty to urge the law of sacrifice upon this half distraught creature in such a form as she could accept, thus like Paul, making himself all things to all men, to attain a righteous end.

"Why is it, my daughter," he asks, "that in those polite and civilized races that lead the world, while creeds and churches divide them, that which touches them most deeply, that which binds them together most surely, is the story of the hideous death of an innocent victim who died on the cross for his brethren? . . . Ah, my daughter, think what you will of the nature and dignity of the Crucified—I speak this to your weakness—but turn your eyes to the cross, sink yourself in that story of supreme sacrifice and its effect upon the world. Then bring it to bear upon your own case. You know that all selfish desire, that which wills the hurt of any man, is sin. There is in you a root of evil mind, an angry desire for vengeance, a cupido, which keeps you from God. But you will cast it out! You would not have come to me if you were not already moved to cast it out! The travail is already begun in you that will form the Christ. You spoke of becoming religious. In other words God offers you one discipline and you would choose another. Embrace His cross, I beseech you. It is not of your own making. You are thus divinely honored in being asked for what only the strongest can give; the bearing unmerited suffering without effort or desire for revenge upon those who caused it. Rejoice then that you have something to give your God before He gives you Himself. . . . You say that creeds and dogmas mean nothing to you; but I bid you ask yourself whether the example of Christ means nothing, and his sacrifice on Calvary nothing."

"Eleanor" a Book Designed to Disavow "Robert Elsmere."

MRS. WARD'S purpose in writing "Eleanor" was by no means to emphasize the fact that "the shadow of the Cross lies athwart the world," or in other words, that sacrifice is a universal law which must be obeyed by each individual if we are to live together as men and not as wrangling animals. But curiously enough, without the author's volition this truism became the dominating note and its passionate enunciation by Father Benecke the emotional peak of the book.

The real object Mrs. Ward had in view when creating "Eleanor" was to withdraw and disavow the doctrine upheld in "Robert Elsmere" to the effect that when an individual, whether priest or layman, can no longer accept the creed and dogmas of his church, he should withdraw from it. Her later conclusion was that such a person ought rather to "remain in the establishment, better than the establishment!" advancing his own beliefs Fabianlike whenever and wherever possible, but yielding and withholding for the time, when and what he must. She held that a reformer can fight more effectively by forming a circle of like-minded persons within, rather than without the shelter of the ancient strongholds. This may be true. Yet the thoughtful reader will call to mind the weighty injunction "to let your yea be yea and your nay be nay since whatever is more than this, cometh of evil."

The cool fortitude with which Mrs. Ward sacrificed Lucy, the finest type of New England maid, by marrying her to the vain, selfish, egotistical, irritable and fickle Manisty, is true to form, since the superior must bleed for the inferior. We are given to understand, however, that Lucy is to be a feminine Daniel, cast by fate into the den of an adoring and remarkably gifted lion; and if her guardian angel does not shut the noble beast's mouth, he will at least enable Lucy to make a harmless vegetarian of the creature.

In a private letter, reproduced with many others from various sources, in Mrs. Ward's "Recollections," Henry James praised this novel warmly, but objected that Eleanor—who was at once protagonist and villain of the story—is not nearly bad enough at her worst moment, to make an effective foil for the noble Lucy. Righteously incensed against Manisty as Eleanor undoubtedly was, she ought at least to have hired a pair of Italian bravos to discipline him. Mrs. Ward may possibly have placated James by assuring him that nature created Eleanor and that she, the author, merely reproduced her. "Dear is art, but dearer, truth."

Following the successful "Eleanor" Mrs. Ward did not, as she might well have done, abandon the creation of literature but like "an abbess on an ambling pad" descended a sunny literary slope, whereon Bank of England notes grew in fair profusion and peans of praise resounded at proper intervals. Her later, like her earlier books, possessed clearness of style and skill in characterization and admirably revealed the thoughtful and thoroughly cultivated mind of their author. But there was always something arid in her nature and she lacked the spontaneity which marks the outpouring of genius. That which William James refers to as "the threshold of consciousness" was in her case never lowered for an instant, that the water of life might inundate and fertilize her mind. In her "Recollections," she records many private words of praise from notable sources, but she redeems herself from the imputation of downright bad taste by doing this with a certain wistfulness, as if she asked "What can I yet lack?" To which a candid critic must reply: "Only the power of at times transcending oneself, which differentiates talent, carefully cultivated and nobly used talent, from genius."

"Unless he can
Above himself erect himself,
How poor a thing is man."

The Candle of Her Literary Light Burned Low Toward the End.

IT IS curiously symbolical that Mrs. Ward's productive life as a writer of fiction should have ended with her novel entitled "Harvest" (1920.) For this comparatively slight, though tragic tale, reveals itself as the gleanings of a reaped field, "The Last Load Home" celebrated in rural English folk song.

Although "Harvest" added nothing to Mrs. Ward's reputation as a writer, it is noteworthy as showing a definite change in the author's attitude toward her own sex. In her speeches and articles opposing the political enfranchisement of women, she had made much of the fact that these were noncombatants and that to an Imperialistic na-

CARE OF THE BODY.

"The past and passing generation of doctors could at least give people moral support—what most people really need. The past generation did more to prevent disease than the present generation are doing to cure it. The doctors of a generation ago had the absolute confidence of those in their communities. They not only drew the laws, but put through the legislation by creating public demand for better sewers, house plumbing, water supply and purer foods.

"Personally, I would not employ a physician under 60 years of age!

"A short time ago a man conspicuously advertised in a Cleveland newspaper for the name and address of an old-time family physician!

"Several years ago I had business before a legislative committee at Columbus, O. A group of doctors from Columbus, Cleveland, Cincinnati and Dayton, together with a number of Christian Scientists from the same cities, sat in an outer room awaiting their turn for an audience, which was before mine. As I came into the presence of the committee and after the two groups had withdrawn, one of the committee, a lawyer from Cleveland, said to me: "I should be prejudiced against what I am going to say, for I am a Roman Catholic, but did you notice that every one of those doctors was a sick man, while every one of those Christian Scientists was a fine specimen of humanity?" I had to acknowledge that he was right.

"Down in Washington, during the war, in a department of gas experimentation, a lot of doctors had a vivisection orgy under government protection and expense, with dogs for the most part gathered from the stray pens of these cities—all under the plea of 'humanity.' I have it from industrial chemists who were in this institution that the results of vivisection were very questionable and most of it was done for the sake of vivisection.

"I am told by students in medical schools that there are always one or two in every class who seem to take a delight and derive pleasure and satisfaction in the sufferings of the animal subjects.

"In the light of all this, it is not difficult to account for the decline in the medical profession.

"The cases of those who derive pleasure and satisfaction by inflicting pain, even on lower animals, are extensively treated in the works of Krafft-Ebing and Havelock Ellis, and the facts and conditions are a matter of common knowledge to the medical profession.

"Is it any wonder that people are turning to drugless healing.

"Vivisection should be legally stopped, not alone for its effect upon the animals, but for its effect upon those who practice it."

Dangers of the Air.

TO THE dodging of "devil wagons" we now must add the necessity of keeping a weather eye on the air above.

A few months ago, in Los Angeles, a typewriter dropped from an airplane, within a few inches of a pedestrian.

A few weeks ago, in Los Angeles county, a balloon fell on a live wire, exploded, and set fire to a wide area.

Perhaps, before long, we shall have to go back to the cave-dwelling age. "Civilisation" is getting too rapid for some of us.

Harmful Athletics.

A LONDON anatomist and sculptor has made four bronze masks, showing the expression on faces of athletes, when undertaking intense efforts. They look like the faces of men undergoing awful torture.

These athletic competitions are altogether bad. Scarcely any great athlete ever reaches advanced age.

And while a few are harmed by excessive work of this kind, millions are suffering for lack of sane physical development.

Why must we always go to extremes?

• • •

Preaching Disease.

FOLLOWING is from an article by George Starr White, M.D., in the Herald of Health:

"Instead of our magazines being filled with articles regarding disease and how to get well, would it not be better if they gave talks on how to live to keep well?

"To teach people that we are born and reared in an atmosphere loaded with disease-giving micro-organisms that are liable to attack us at any time, no matter how we live, is like telling them that a great earthquake is liable at any time to swallow them up. Fear and apprehension are bred in the individual rather than a feeling of security, provided he walks in Nature's footsteps.

"To teach a child that it will be punished, regardless of what it does, would not be conducive to making a lovable person. I believe the great principle of cause and effect should be the first teaching given to a child, and this teaching should be enlarged upon as the child matures.

"If we were all taught that abusing our bodies by over-indulgence of our appetites would mean reaping punishment in direct ratio with the license taken, the incentive for living rightly would be a thousand-fold greater than teaching what to do when we become ill.

"The epidemic of influenza is an example of what wrong teaching and training can do. Instead of being told that by right living only a few would be affected by the disease, news went out broadcast that a great calamity had overtaken the world, and that we were all liable to be engulfed in this great avalanche of horrible micro-organisms, unless we took such and such remedies in the way of drugs.

"The trend of nearly all the popular medical articles is along the lines of germs causing all diseases, and that serums and vaccines are the antidote for all these 'germ bites.' It seems to me that this is wrong. If we were taught that if we ingest more food than our system can well take care of, or if we ingest the wrong kind of food, or if we mistreat our bodies by excesses of any kind, that we will suffer for it and be more liable to be a victim of disease, I believe we would all watch our step more than at the present time.

"Right living and right thinking are the antidotes for all disease. A body trained to think rightly and live rightly is trained to ward off disease. The psychology of believing that germs cause disease is entirely inimical to health. It is a good deal like the old teaching that if we are doomed to eternal punishment we will get it no matter what we do. Most of us have learned that the psychology of this is disastrous, because it makes us reckless.

"If the sanitary engineers believed that mosquitoes made the water stagnant, rather than that the stagnant water attracted the mosquitoes, they would not be draining our miasmatic swamps. It seems to me that we should be taught that instead of germs being enemies and causing disease, they are friends and scavengers, and are attracted by disease."

It Happened in 1850--A Pioneer's Tale.

BY RUBY ARCHER GRAY.

"SEVENTY years ago, my dear, California was made one of the United States. You want the story again? Sit in this chair under the roses, Dorothy girl, where you can see out to the mountains. Seventy years ago, I little thought in those stressful days, that my life would be spared to dream out the end, with my great-grandchildren grown up to bless me—and my sweet Marada." The old gentleman turned his head lovingly to look into the cool shadowy room beyond the porch, where a diminutive old lady sat gently rocking and knitting.

Dorothy settled her white organdie ruffles daintily into the rose-bowered nook happy to await the story that had always seemed new, since the days she first climbed the "foot-horsey" of her hero. Now she was just 18; and it was the 9th of September, Admission Day, a morning of blue and gold. She would hear the tale of the olden years once more, and watch for the escort who was to take her to the gala celebration.

"When I first met your great-grandmother, Marada Arguello," the old man's voice lingered caressingly on the melodious syllables, while his ruddy spare face gently smiled, and his sea-blue eyes took on the far-away look that meant he was gazing into the long ago, "I was a hot-headed lad of 20, run away from college to join the gold-seekers of '49. I had made a swift, intoxicating fortune in the mines, and had rushed on to San Francisco to have my fling. I was just a human piece of driftwood, borne along in that great tidal wave of excitement that swept through the Sacramento Valley and surged into the glittering hells of the lawless city. I was merely one of the horde of 35,000 young men, frenzied with money and freedom, exasperated with the incredible barbarisms of mining life, who hailed the glittering palaces of chance with mad mirth. I suppose there was not a man in the town over 30, and most of us were from 18 to 25—sons of good families back east, running wild with adventurers from all over the world. There were more saloons and gambling halls than dwellings in San Francisco then. We lost and won big sums, we fought and cronied with Englishmen, Frenchmen, Spaniards, Mexicans, Malays, Kanakas, Russians, Turks and a brown and yellow miscellany ranging from Japs to Fiji Islanders.

"We from the mines wore red flannel shirts, our pants in top-boots—and would you believe it—often silk hats, to prove we were prosperous and lucky! Sombreros and slouch hats were also popular with us. The foreigners showed a kaleidoscope of queer rigs and queerer personalities. Two pistols and a Bowie knife showed bravely in our belts, and we had little bags of gold dust and slugs bulging all over us. Swashbucklers!

"The second day I yipped into town, I was smoking a cigarette in the Plaza, watching a cock fight in front of a sweetmeat stall—the most care-free young rapscallion on earth—when Senor Cupid played a mad prank with me. I had leaned back to prod a too-friendly pack-mule in the ribs, turned my head up as I drew breath after my exertions, and looked straight into the loveliest brown eyes a Spanish girl ever had. She was leaning out of a little balcony over a low door that led to a modest eating-house, and was excitedly reporting the cock fight to someone within the room behind her. I took a long draught of heady bliss from her caught glance. She flushed up to the lace of her black mantilla and retreated from my sight.

"I was stunned, I do assure you, as if from the actual impact of a blow. Did you know love could come like that, little Dorothy?

"I wandered about all day in a sort of blur of feeling, and finally I found enough reason to inquire about the senorita. She was barely 18, the only child of an old couple from the southern part of the State. They were real bluebloods, descended from the Spanish Dons, and had lived in genteel poverty on the meager income derived from the restaurant, until the inrush of gold-squandering miners filled their purses with largess.

"I made haste to become a regular patron of the Cafe Isabel, where I had frequent disturbing glimpses of my innocent charmer. She was shy, absorbed in her work of helping the old folks in their serving; and for many days I had no speech with her concerning what was in my heart. She filled my mental vision so that the women I met in the gambling houses and on the streets—frail, richly dressed creatures who follow ever the trail of gold—had no appeal for me. I worshiped youth and purity, in Marada. Even into the madness of my play at faro, monte, rouge-et-noir or vingt-et-un crept a vein of absent-mindedness that would shortly have wrecked my fortunes, had I not met with a timely friend. This was Hall McAllister, a sterling young lawyer, who helped me out one night in an argument with a card sharp. My friend became in after years a great power in the State, leader of the California bar. He, you know, had the greater honor of being the great-grandfather of young Danny McAllister, who is calling on you, Dorothy.

"Well, McAllister was soon glad he chummed up to me, for a week later I had the good luck to save his life from a night attack. In the spring of '49, the town had become overrun with a set of released criminals and ticket-of-leave men from Australia, who called themselves the Regulators and pretended to be guarding the new-rich citizens, those too green to bear wealth safely, from a lot of foreigners that were tenting on the outskirts of the settlement. The campers were harmless enough, poor Peruvians, Chileans, Mexicans and the like, who had come back from the mines with small hoardings and were timidly nibbling at the luxuries of civilization. The Regulators, or 'Hounds,' as the people of San Francisco soon dubbed them in outraged anger, would creep from secret lairs on Telegraph Hill, armed with bludgeons and pistols, to prey alike upon the poor campers and upon the rich gamblers, terrorizing the citizens so that they would scarcely venture forth unarmed in the day, and who would barricade their doors nights. The Alcalde, one Leavenworth, with no police nor jails to reinforce him made no valid effort to suppress the brigands.

"The night that Hall McAllister was set upon and wounded, I carried him, after putting his two assailants to flight, from the corner of California and Montgomery streets to the little inn of the Arguellos. These good people nursed him back to vigor.

"One night, while I was there visiting McAllister, the desperadoes attempted to enter and rob the cafe. I was lucky enough to beat them off, for they were bullies and cowards. It was a dark, foggy night, but I winged two of the villains.

"Marada evinced a slight interest in me from that occasion, but I could see that I had made no great gain in her favor. So I took advantage one morning of finding her not busy—I had come miraculously early to breakfast—and as soon as her hands were free of serving me, I snatched them to my breast, declared my passion, and begged for a kind look from those bewitching eyes. She gave me a look indeed, but not of the sort I craved. It was fiery and reproachful. In impetuous broken English she told me she scorned all men that wasted their lives while there was so much violence and wrong to correct. All these strong young fellows should be working together to get rid of bandits and make a clean city.

"This was an eye-opener for me. I went away sobered, turning the puzzle over in my reckless brain. McAllister was a brighter man than I, and back to him I came for counsel. He grinned when he discovered the cause of my reform zeal, but he helped me plan a campaign against the cut-throats. A band of police was organized—for we had nothing of the kind in San Francisco then, nor any appeal except to the Alcalde, who was merely a nominal representative of the military Governor. After a night of massacre in which the rascals cleaned out those poor foreigners in the tents—plundering, clubbing and even shooting their helpless victims—we had a mass meeting in Portsmouth Square, appointed twenty-three armed constables and we rounded up a score of the villains and jailed them on board a United States ship, the Warren, then anchored in the harbor. Hall McAllister was made associate counsel to assist Hawes, who was appointed District Attorney. McAllister was well enough to prosecute the Regulators, and he made his first brilliant public appearance at that trial. The cut-throats all got terms but as we had no jail we finally had to let them go. However, the scare was sufficient; the scamps were so afraid of lynching that they scattered to the four winds.

"You would imagine that Marada would then have relented and loved me, would you not, Dorothy? But that little Spanish maiden was now a red-hot American, and had the government mania. She wanted California to become a State and have officials and law-makers chosen by the people. She had caught just enough of the glory of our institutions to want to carry them to the ultimate. If that kind of law and order were good anywhere, why not in California? She had us bested from the first. We couldn't make her listen to our notorious American reasons for being patient. We explained to her vainly that this military government was only a temporary hold-over from our Mexican trouble. The ceding of California to the United States had been consummated only in '48 with the signing of the treaty. We must now wait for Congress to decree us some form of territorial government. This had been slow of deciding, because the two great political parties were locking horns over whether California should be a slave State or a free State. The Union consisted then of fifteen free States and fifteen slave States, there being equal representation in the Senate; and the adjusting of California's status as a sixteenth free or slave State would cast the balance one way very decisively. So, while Washington tabled the affair, and passed the time making San Francisco a port of entry, establishing customs and a revenue system there, all the California cities suffered from the want of civic laws and protection, and remained under the anomalous de facto military rule that with countless loose ends gave ample opportunity for every kind of roguery.

"Now Marada was for changing this sorry state of affairs with one strong act, or series of acts, leading to the independent formation of a State, without waiting for the formality of becoming first a territory. We men were startled at her unprecedented yet practical suggestions. One hundred thousand people should do much for themselves. We set about interesting some of the other active spirits of the day—Sutter, Leese, Howard, Colton, Guin, Broderick. We all, in one way or another, began to use our influence to get the idea in motion; and we found the people singularly responsive. Gov. Riley was finally reached and won over; and in August of '49, he issued a call for a constitutional convention, and named an election day for delegates to congregate at Monterey on September 1. They gathered with enthusiasm, went into session for a month, voted against the introduction of slavery into California, and drew up a constitution similar to that of the State of New York, to send to Washington with an appeal for admission to the Union. I remember it began: 'We, the people of California, grateful to Almighty God for our freedom, in order to secure its blessings, do establish this constitution.'

"The people adopted it in November. Burnett was elected Governor; Guin and Fremont made United States Senators; Gilbert and Wright, representatives to Congress, at the first Legislature under the constitution, held at San Jose, December 15 of '49. The new Governor was installed. Riley resigned and departed east.

"Then began the most tedious part of all our waiting. Congress was still unable to reach a decision. We owned no territory. We had no money to pay officials. Our cities had no lights, no laws. Meanwhile our representatives in the capital were kept anxious from the time that President Taylor submitted the official copy of the new constitution to Congress on February 13, 1850, all through that long spring and summer. There was even the painful possibility that Congress might ignore the entire California proceedings and remand the humiliated province back under territorial leading-strings. For Calhoun, aroused by the Californians' vote against slavery, passionately objected that the whole procedure of organizing was unconstitutional and even anarchical. Webster, however, whose sympathies were with the opposing party, declared earnestly that the very formation of the earth, arranged by more than human power in separating California from the slave States by the mountains, precluded the carrying over of the debated institution. Seward also stood up for us manfully. He reviewed the situation in elaborate oratory; stated that four years before, California had been only a Mexican province, scarcely inhabited, unknown to the United States' desires except for a capacious and tranquil harbor, which might prove useful for oriental commerce, in the far distant future; added that one year before it was merely a military dependency of the Union; proved that at the immediate time it was more populous than the least of the States, and richer than several of the greatest—youthful California, queen of the Pacific, in robes of freedom, gorgeously inlaid with gold; a State that doubtless in 1950 would contain 200,000,000 of people, and within even fifty years would have established monuments on the Pacific for which 200 years had been well spent on the Atlantic Coast.

"So the innumerable warring speeches continued all that summer. President Taylor died in July, and Vice-President Fillmore succeeded him. Both Presidents were in favor of the bill to make California a State. Finally, on August 13, the famous bill passed in the Senate; September 7, in the House; and on September 9 it reached President Fillmore, who promptly affixed his signature. Hurrah, hurrah, hurrah! California was one of the States of the Union!

"Did we celebrate? Child, child! How San Francisco whooped it up as soon as the news reached us! Guns, bonfires, bells, pistols, bands, singing, night and day! Barbecues, fandangoes, balls, picnics, parades. The city went wild with joy.

"And then—

"Marada!" called the old man, with commanding tenderness. "Come out here and tell Dorothy what you did to reward your soldier of fortune for doing his bit."

From the shadows of the room a little bent figure softly moved into the dappled sun and shade of the rose-grown porch. The woman's eyes glowed with undying youth. Her brow was fair and her cloud-white hair abundant. She smiled indulgently at her husband and swept her black lace sleeve playfully across his cheek. "I gave you all the love you have never guessed," she murmured enigmatically, and pressed her white hair against his own.

Dorothy sprang up, with a little conscious laugh. "Oh, there comes Danny McAllister. Thank you so much, Great-Gran'dad, for the grand old story. Now I'll be running along to the doin's."

"Yes, child." He breathed deeply of the rose-scented air, and glanced off through the live oaks to where a meadowlark sounded his magic cadence. The old patriot stood proudly erect, and put his arm about Marada. His kindly blue eyes, ever young and vital with love, beamed with appreciation of Danny and Dorothy.

"Great-Gran'dad!" called the girl, with a mischievous note of query, as she passed half way to the gate.

"Yes, Dorothy," the old man challenged.

"I bet you were some boy, in 1850!"

"Tombstone."

West from Naco, conspicuous in the vast grassy stretches of the San Pedro Valley, the straight row of stone monumdnts marches on, to climb into the wooded Huachuca range; and a few miles to the northwest lies the shell of ancient, iniquitous, profligate Tombstone.

The baffling psychology of names is nowhere more strikingly shown than here. From the day in 1878 when Ed Schieffiin, dodging Apaches, slipped into this canyon with his burros and struck the ledge that made him millions, Tombstone achieved fame. Motor parties on the Overland Trail now pass this old prospector's tomb—an odd pyramid of boulders near the spot that made him rich.

Here were such mines as the "Ground Hog" and the "Lucky Cuss." Ore from the latter ran $9000 a ton. The very name of the town drew the world's attention to it. Here one pioneer jester occasionally issued the famous Arizona Kicker, whose heroes used guns that shot around corners and up stovepipes. Another sheet is (or was) named the Epitaph; and hereabouts later on, the lively imagination of Alfred Henry Lewis gave us the "Wolfville" stories.—[Frederick Simpich in the National Geo-

California

I stood upon a wind-swept height
And gazed in rapture, breathlessly,
Knowing God gave my eyes their sight
That I might all thy grandeur see,
Wonderful California.

The velvet hills spread far below—
The valleys with their carpets green;
The sunset over peaks aglow,
And all the purple shades between,
Thine, oh, California!

A breath of pines was on the air,
And scent of flowers, wild and sweet;
The breezes, 'mid the blossoms there,
Untiring their glad song repeat—
Singing "California!"

I live to love thee more and more—
Thy music hear, thy beauties see;
From snow-crowned peak to wave-kissed shore,
A Paradise art thou to me—
Oh, my California!

JUNE MELODY.

CARE OF THE BODY.

States, and that 35,000,000 people, or approximately one-third of the population of the United States, are now numbered as patients of drugless physicians. This in the face of the well-organized opposition of the Medical Trust, which employs many doubtful methods to retain its hold upon the people as sole dispenser of medical advice and treatment.

"In the States of Washington, Oregon, Illinois, Michigan, Pennsylvania, Colorado, Virginia, Kansas, North Dakota, Arkansas, Nebraska, and probably others by this time, drugless physicians are now recognized by statute, and authorized to practice, while in twenty-two or more other States bills legalizing drugless practice have been passed by one or the other branches of the Legislatures. It is only a question of a few years until every State in the Union will have honored itself by passing laws of that nature, to keep step in the march of progress.

"It is merely a matter now of working together in harmony, with a common purpose upon the part of the practitioners of all drugless systems, so as to present a united front to a designing and conscienceless enemy, and the people themselves will soon decide the matter in a verdict for the safe, sane, rational and successful methods employed by practitioners of the various systems."

Hot Weather Diet.

WHAT would you think of a man who, on a broiling summer day, should put on an overcoat and sit before a hot stove?

You would think he was insane, would you not?

Yet that is not a whit more absurd than to eat in summer as you do in winter, food being required mainly to maintain the heat of the body.

Queer Amusement.

A GIRL was seriously injured at Venice, a beach resort near Los Angeles, by being flung headlong from the revolving wheels of one of the mechanical amusement devices.

It is a perpetual wonder to me how sane persons can find pleasure in these mind and body wrenching abominations, that disfigure our beaches, but I suppose it is merely another symptom of this rushing, jazzing, uneasy age.

Healing Power of Nature.

FOLLOWING is from an article in the Medical Standard, by Dr. Axel Emil Gibson:

"A story came to me from a Red Cross nurse, who knew a soldier left in 'No Man's Land,' during an entire week, with his body literally riddled with shrapnel, rolling himself up and down mud-filled shell holes, while feeding on what fragments of food he could find in deserted knapsacks, until finally he was picked up and brought to his trench by a search squad. Though covered by ugly wounds, his condition was declared miraculously good. The heavy layer of mud had stuck to him like plaster paris to a wall, and seemed to have disinfected and healed his sores without the need of any surgical attendance. Mud and fasting had done the miracle—plus the constructive, creative and regenerative agencies of nature. And it has lately become recognized by medical science itself that the healing function even of the most powerful disinfectant consists in arresting, through isolation or exclusion, the putrefactive action of the microbe, rather than by adding healing power to the cell.

"The attitude which most physicians hold to nature is absolutely wrong. The physician should make his patient thoroughly realize that, in her truest state, Nature is self-sustaining and self-sufficient, and that the individual has in his own cell world all the elements that make health not only possible, but inevitable.

"There is no greater menace to life and health today, and nothing that more surely undermines the faith of a patient in his own restorative power, than to regard nature as a vast, blundering mass of irresponsibilities and caprice—a jagging world-machine, depending for his safety upon the ingenuity of science to suppress or lop off such 'anatomical abnormalities' as the vermiform appendix, the adenoids, duodenum, tonsils, lower colon, turbinated bones, coccyx, etc.—structures whose main values, according to modern surgeons, consist in furnishing opportunity for experimental surgery. If half of the psychology which at present is brought to bear upon the popular mind against Nature, as an independent restorative and healing power of evolution, had been used toward a better understanding of her function, the cures she would have been able to accomplish would pass beyond our scope of comprehension.

"In place of rushing headlong to the drug store for some rapid-firing 'symptoms-smother,' either in form of a nerve-lashing stimulant or a sensation-deadening narcotic, the individual would have calmly traced the disturbance to its true source, and by resolutely abstaining from its further indulgence, while at the same time intelligently aiding Nature in throwing off her handicaps, he would not only be able to arrest the disease, but thoroughly eradicate it from the system.

"The most deplorably helpless phase in the entire drug situation is the demoralization of the individual in relying upon the physician to help him out of his disease without the latter insisting on the discontinuing of indulgences which originally gave rise to the disease. As long as the physician, either by ignorance or indifference, encourages his patient to indulge in whatever unhygienic and insane food mixtures the brutal taste of an ignorant cook may be inclined to put before him, the physical and moral integrity of the race are running desperate chances of being extinguished."

"Research."

I HAVE experimented for over fifty years in watching the action of my own body, and the bodies of others, in health and disease. This is quite different from "medical research," as carried on in laboratories, and dissecting rooms, and vivisection chambers. The human stomach is not a test tube, nor is the live human body similar to the body of a corpse or to that of an animal under torture. Such misguided studies lead only into wrong paths.

Brutalizing Effects of Vivisection.

FOLLOWING is by David Gibson of Cleveland, O.:

"There is one view of vivisection that has not been taken, and that is its effect upon those who practice it.

"It is not normal for any human being to witness the sufferings of any animal, unmoved.

"The present, the younger generation of doctors, do not measure up to those of the past generation, either as human characters or social servants. And I am sure that the mark of decline came at the point when medical schools generally became chambers of vivisection horrors.

The Reclamation of the Bullneck Kid.

BY H. O. STECHHAN.

THE Bullneck Kid had "got religion" and joined the Militant Missioners; wherefore Bald Butte was all fussed up. The news spread through the camp like a brush fire.

Some there were in that Wyoming hamlet, who professed to see in this conversion an early fulfillment of the long-promised day, when the grasshopper shall cease to be a burden. Others merely shook their heads and remarked:

"What next?"

The Militant Missioners, however, kneeling reverently in the dust of Main street, only chorused their hallelujahs the more fervently when the bedraggled sinner shuffled into their midst and pleaded:

"If there's still a chance for a guy like me in this prayer game o' your'n—deal me a hand!"

As none ever supplicated in vain of these humble workers in the Master's varied acres, Bullneck's appeal found ready response. And so, in time, after cleansing confession and chastening repentance, he was duly enrolled in the reclamation service of the soul.

In his early days, the Bullneck Kid had been something of a wrestler, whence sprang his name. But later, he turned gambler and no defter finger ever lifted a pasteboard. At the height of his card-shark career, the inevitable hand of hard luck fell heavily on him. Accused of running a crooked game, his departure from the community where he had long operated was involuntarily abrupt.

Despite his resolve to play square henceforth, no lasting good seemed to come to Bullneck's way from that calamitous day. It so happened that when he drifted into Bald Butte sometime later, he was down to the price of "coffee an'," the very last thing a busted sporting man visions when it's time to eat.

However, Bullneck was a philosophic sort and never wasted much sympathy on himself. Through all his vicissitudes, he managed to retain his cleverness with cards. As a swimmer never forgets how to handle himself in the water, so the professional cardman cannot lose his dexterity with the pasteboards, even if fortune does seem to have deserted him.

A stranded frog invariably finds his way to a pond; and, just so, the knight of chance always gravitates to the nearest shrine of the fraternity. Bullneck was no exception. And not long after his arrival in Bald Butte he had made friends with several dilettante tiger-buckers, by giving them valuable pointers on the various games.

They shared their winnings occasionally and, for a time, his prospects seemed to look up. Bullneck's evident experience soon commended him to the watchful one eye of the game-keeper in the Horseshoe, as a man not well to have on the outside. So he was intrusted with a shift at dealing faro bank. But the jinx was still on his trail; for, every time he had charge of the cases, the odds ran steadily against the house.

Followed another precarious period, during which he grabbed at one thing after another, like a drowning man, for life's barest necessities. All the while he was slipping, slipping farther down the social scale—from dishwasher to bouncer, then swamper and finally ending up as a common bum, a worthless down-an'-outer.

During this ebb-tide in his affairs, as he slunk along Main street one summer evening, Bullneck's progress was blocked by the crowd listening to the open-air services of the Militant Missioners. He stopped, for the want of enough energy to elbow his way through the gathering.

As Bullneck stood there, staring vacantly, several songs were sung—songs he might have heard in the long ago. But they made no impression on him. The leader stepped forward and removed his cap.

"My brethren," he spoke earnestly, "why don't you take up the life of service and do something worth while?"

Fervent "Amens" and "Glory be's," from various quarters, punctuated the exhortation, which continued:

"As water is the means for making the wastes of the desert fertile and productive, just so, honest work is the touchstone whereby the arid souls of men and women are reclaimed."

Bullneck listened with ears that did not hear. Nevertheless, he seemed to feel himself drawn forward irresistibly. There was an indescribable thickness inside of his head. Then, of a sudden, it seemed to him as if some one had shot out all the lights of the world.

A glimmer broke in upon him, anon; and, as consciousness began to return hazily, Bullneck realized with a convulsive fright that he was standing in the middle of an exulting mass shouting "Hosanna," "Praise God" and "Bless my soul!"

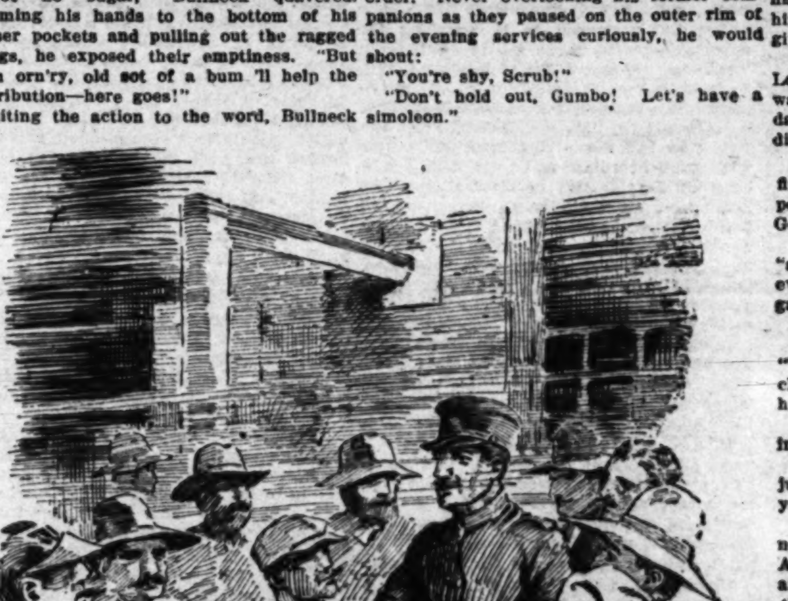
Bullneck hadn't the least idea how long he had been there, or what he had been doing. But it seemed to him that he must have been talking to the grinning assembly, for his mouth was dry and his voice husky.

Beside him stood a big bass drum, which resounded sonorously, whenever coins tossed out of the crowd fell on it.

"Why don't you sweeten the pot, Kid?" some one called to him.

"Got no sugar," Bullneck quavered. Ramming his hands to the bottom of his trouser pockets and pulling out the ragged linings, he exposed their emptiness. "But if an orn'ry, old sot of a bum 'll help the contribution—here goes!"

Suiting the action to the word, Bullneck plumped his entire weight smack down on the drum and went crashing through it. With the report of a Fourth of July cannon-cracker, it burst and sent the money, which had been thrown on it, flying in all directions.



A Thousand on the Ace.

There was pandemonium in the crowd, as the Militant Missioners leaped forward to pick up the scattered collection, as well as to lift their newly won brother from among the fragments of the drum. Like cold water dashed in the face, the uproar speedily brought Bullneck back to his senses again.

On his feet once more, he was for bolting instantly, humiliated at the derision of the onlookers. But retreat was impossible. The M.M.'s held him captive as they circled about joyfully. Then, infected by the spirit, he joined in their rejoicing and permitted himself to be led away by them without protest.

The rescue band's labors had not borne much fruit in the past, for Bald Butte was unresponsive. Yet, undismayed, they kept at their work unflinchingly. And now reward seemed to be at hand at last. The winning of Bullneck, the despised and rejected, proved rejuvenating. It was like an infusion of new blood, direct from the social stratum which the Missioners had long sought in vain to reach, because they knew not how to tap it. Bullneck did.

In his homely way he had the gift of speech. Henceforth there was never a dull moment at any of the meetings in which he took part. Knowing well the devious ways of darkness, Bullneck was able to analyze vividly just how the evil one, whom the Militant Missioners recognized as an actual personality, plied his craftiness among the unstrong.

But his real claim for approbation in the new environment grew out of Bullneck's ability as a money-getter. Thus he strengthened the organization where it had been weakest and proved the direct means for putting it on a substantial footing in short order. Never overlooking his former companions as they paused on the outer rim of the evening services curiously, he would shout:

"You're shy, Scrub!"

"Don't hold out, Gumbo! Let's have a simoleon."

"Come on, Kelly, kick in! We need a five-spot for this month's rent."

The answer was always a loud plunk from the new drum, which had been acquired since Bullneck's precipitous alliance with the organization. As a result of his success, the Bald Butte M.M.'s did not have to skimp, for the first time in their history. Larger activities were projected, in support of which Bullneck enlisted bankers and gamblers—the only moneyed groups in the community.

Bullneck did not remain in the ranks long, but was promoted step by step. With each advance a little more of his uncouthness disappeared. However, the new finish did not efface the natural grain of his character. When the Militant Missioners finally made him treasurer—sincerely humble though he had otherwise become—Bullneck could not restrain a certain feeling of pride.

Although having longed for the place secretly, he had not allowed himself to aspire to it openly, firm in the belief that it would be awarded him at the proper time if he deserved it.

This mark of confidence, vouchsafed by his fellows, meant more to Bullneck than the most valuable order ever conferred on a battlefield. Full was his cup of happiness. Higher rose his resolves for righteousness.

In a notably brief period, the onetime human derelict became one of Bald Butte's best respected citizens, the custodian of sacred money, which, like his own recovered soul, he guarded zealously for the good it was to do. His reformation, now generally regarded as complete, was looked upon as a modern miracle. The faithful pointed to him as living proof that none is ever irredeemably lost.

All that remained of the old Bullneck Kid was his name. He had tried to get away from it; but the people wouldn't let him. Furthermore, it had become valuable like a trademark and stuck.

Hardly a week passed that Bullneck did not visit his former haunts for the purpose of working among those who had not yet seen the light. Once they became used to his new mode of life, few ever suspected him. And Bullneck hadn't the slightest misgivings as to his acquired fortitude.

"'Bout time to shave that pot for the Lord's army," he often interjected, as he watched the play so familiar to him from days not yet remote, though with an entirely different interest now.

On a nod from the owner, the dealer flicked Bullneck a gold eagle which he pocketed with many an unctuous "praise God!"

"Say, Kid," a former pal addressed him, "after all this prayer-cure, don't your fingers ever itch for just one last whirl at the game?"

"Not me!" came the answer resolutely.

"You're a brave sport," taunted another. "Thought sure you'd never lose all your class, even if you did land soft with the hymn-shouters."

There seemed to be a frame-up that morning as the third bystander chirped in:

"Aw, come on, Kid, an' lay the eagle you just got from the house on the table. Try your luck at doubling it—for your treasury."

Bullneck winced, for to question his gameness rolled back the years and stung him. A stiff jolt on the chin wouldn't have hurt any more. What made it doubly worse—there, just behind the dealer, stood the devil grinning at him. Bullneck saw him life-sized as he had so many times before.

"Back of me, for you!" he roared and turned to leave.

"Don't be a piker!" One-Eyed Kelly, owner of the gambling hell, edged into the banter. "Put 'er down, just once for old time's sake! If you can call the turn, I'll pay a hundred."

Bullneck was interested in the proposition—not the treasurer of the Militant Missioners.

"Ten to one," mused the former gambler, "mighty big odds for faro."

"Surest thing you know," Kelly assented.

Impelled by an uncontrollable impulse, Bullneck advanced. His blood was warming up. Shooting a glance at the casekeeper, he slammed the yellow coin on the table with a bang, before the offer could be withdrawn and shouted:

"I'll go you—on the queen!"

A dozen heads craned forward to see what luck Satan brought his regained votary. Two deals proved undeciding, during which it dawned on Bullneck that he was backsliding. Just as he was about to reach for his money to renege, the cards were turned again.

"The queen wins," sang out the dealer and shoved a stack of gold to Bullneck.

The fingers which clutched that money never belonged to a soldier of the Lord. The old gambler had struggled to the surface again. The latent fire in him began to shoot forth flames of consuming desire, fanned by the strongest of all human passions, for one grand final grapple with the goddess Chance. This gamester's were the twitching digits that snatched the gold.

Bullneck's mind was a muddle of confusion. His thoughts—a hundred different ones all at once—snarled into an unintelligible mass. In his bewilderment, he managed to grab the elusive end of one which, followed up, recalled the fact that the organization he had consecrated his now seemingly worthless life to needed $10,000 for a new barracks. Then a brilliant idea thrilled him—an inspiration.

Why not wrest that amount from the devil's own treasury here and now? Since luck was with him, the money could be obtained on the turn of a single card. This would enable the good work to go forward before the Federal authorities there and was again imprisoned in an insane asylum, from which he was released by habeas corpus proceedings. Returning to Utah, he alleges, he was rearrested and for the third time placed in an asylum.

CARE OF THE BODY.

Such charges are not uncommon, and some of them are true.

To railroad a man into an insane asylum is a comparatively easy way of getting rid of him, for we know that there are always to be hired eminent "alienists," who will swear that a man is insane, or sane, as the "alienist's" employer may demand.

Indeed, it is no easy matter to decide, for none of us civilized men and women are at all times thoroughly sane on all subjects, any more than we are thoroughly healthy.

There are far more insane people outside of asylums than there are within them, even as there are many more criminals at large than in jail.

The power to commit a man to a living death should be surrounded with as many safeguards as the power to condemn a man to be hanged. Such power should not be conferred upon "psychological experts."

As I have heretofore said, if the insane were treated by fasting, abstemious diet, colon cleansing and physical labor, a majority of insane patients might be discharged, cured. As it is, they are cooped up and fed so as to promote autointoxication, the main cause of physical and mental maladies.

Waste of Time.

FOLLOWING is from an article by Dr. Beverly Robinson, in the Medical Record (New York:)

"To not a few successful medical men, medical societies, medical organizations and medical associations are rapidly losing importance. By attendance at the meetings of these bodies medical men learn what is really of very little value, if any, in caring for their patients."

A Medical Injunction.

THE medical profession of Illinois has bought a new weapon with which to fight unlicensed drugless practitioners. Injunctions have been secured against fifty or more chiropractors to prevent them from taking advantage of the protection offered by their association. They dare not pay dues into the organization, nor accept money or legal aid from the association, for fear of arrest for violation of the Illinois Medical Practice Act.

As the people show an increasing unwillingness to accept the unnatural, useless and harmful methods of what is misnamed "medical science," the medical trust is now seeking to make them so by force.

Such methods cannot succeed in a democratic country, but the people must be everlastingly alert against these encroachments. "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty."

Raw Green Stuff.

WE ARE told that "Dr. McCollum of Johns Hopkins University and other investigators have by numerous experiments upon rats demonstrated the great importance of simple greens, many of which are commonly regarded as troublesome weeds. These humble plants are rich in iron, lime and particularly so in a special vitamin, the so-called fat-soluble, growth-promoting vitamin which is only scantily found in other foods, with the exception of milk."

Yes, but they must be eaten raw.

Now that "medical science" indorses the use of green stuff it may, perhaps, become popular. I have been preaching this for over twenty years—but then, you know, I am a "quack."

Goiter.

DR. O'DAY of Honolulu, T. H., after some years of practice in the islands, states [illegible] believes Hawaiians to be free from goiter. Other physicians who have practiced for years among the Polynesians of the South Sea Islands declare that they have "never encountered a single case of goiter among the natives."

Commenting on this, Good Health, edited by J. H. Kellogg, M.D., says:

"This fact is interesting, although we are still in the dark as regards the real cause of this disease."

The cause is not obscure. It is regular and long-continued overconsumption of mucus-forming foods; and overstimulation of the thyroid gland, in eliminating waste products.

The diet of the South Sea Islanders is mainly fruit and nuts. Hence, they are free, not only from goiter, but from other ailments of "civilized" man. These ailments they are, however, rapidly acquiring, as they become "civilized."

Enjoying Ill Health.

ANY people actually enjoy being sick, even when they suffer pain. They enjoy the perquisites that go with sickness, being the center of interest, being fussed over, having everything regulated to suit them, and their needs, real or imaginary.

So much do they enjoy being sick, or rather being treated as sick, that even when they are recovering they like to prolong the period of convalescence. In some cases, to appear worse off than they really are, patients will take the thermometer used by the nurse and hold it against the hot water bag!

The inexperienced nurses become terrified. Often they will actually telephone for the doctor.

The concern and excitement the patient enjoys, too.—[H. Addington Bruce.

Growth of Drugless Healing.

FOLLOWING is from the Drugless Physician:

"That the drugless movement is growing in popular favor by leaps and bounds, and will soon be the only recognized method of caring for the sick, is evidenced by the fact that drugless practitioners of the various schools or systems are already legally entitled to practice in a large number of

FIVE-FOOT-TEN FROM KANSAS

BY JOHN FLEMING WILSON

THE sultry table at which we sat was round-ringed with beer stains; the waiter was somnolent; Panama was drowsing in the afternoon of a hot April. Capt. Mallow drummed idly with his fingers and surveyed with disgust the antics of two spider monkeys chained to the beam of the doorway.

"I hate these betwixt-and-between things," he remarked. "They aren't little enough to cuddle in your hand and they're not big enough to interest you."

"I fancy you like elephants," I responded. "You can't tuck them under your jacket; they don't sing, and they keep you busy wondering what they might do if they feel like doing something."

"I was referring to sensible people like you and me," Mallow responded slowly. "Gimme big women and big ships; big men and high seas; gimme a throat burned with thirst or lemme be drunk; I'd rather starve till I was chilled to the bone than have merely three meals. I'd rather lose my temper entirely than be only stirred up."

I had known Mallow for only a week, and he had strangely occupied my thoughts during that period. He was over six feet tall, square shouldered, lean hipped, taciturn, surly. He was also industrious and sober. So far as I knew he spoke to no one but myself. His steamer—a tramp—lay inside Naos Island, flying the British flag.

"Well," I answered, "I suppose all you big fellows like big things. It must be something for you to command respect in any crowd. I'm only five-foot-eight and I have to fight for my right of way."

He scanned me thoughtfully and shook his head. "I didn't mean it just that way. I'm thinking of a girl. She's five-foot-ten and came from Kansas. Last time I saw her she weighed 185 pounds—"

He fell silent and stared into the soundless, dozing street. A vigilante curbed his mount before the doorway and whistled to the monkeys. They screamed back at him. He laughed mirthlessly and rode on.

"She never whistled," Mallow continued seriously. He lit a cigar. I believe I ordered beer. We did not drink it. I myself was too busy studying my companion. He evidently was on the point of making me a confidant; I saw his dark eyes cloud, as if some invisible wind of passion swept them. He spoke:

"She always said I had no imagination. I think that is true. It has bothered me at times. I have been informed that imagination is necessary to the understanding of women. So I will just give you the facts."

"Why!" I demanded coldly.

"Possibly you may understand," he said gravely. He sank into reverie a while.

"You see she was very tall and big. She had been born and raised in this town in Kansas. I have never been there. She told me there were no young men up to her height. Says she to me, 'I couldn't get married there. I was too tall. The boys wouldn't even dance with me.' That was the fact of the case, as I understood it."

"Where did you meet her?" I asked.

"In Honolulu. I was then master of a schooner loading for Shanghai; my cargo was pretty well in and I went for a swim at Waikiki. I went to the reef and was coming in slowly. I was half way to the beach when I heard what I thought was a shark cleaving the water. I turned, and it was a big girl. She forged alongside and we talked. She was a good woman for the water, most as good as a native. . . . She could beat me with that long easy stroke of hers. And now and again she would dive like a porpoise and I would see the shimmer of her shoulders underneath the blue of the water. Once I took her hand and we went down together till the white coral glistened just under us. A lot of little box fishes twinkled away and she looked at me and smiled. Then we came up and went ashore.

"'Who are you?' I asked her, as we dried out on the sand below the Japanese Inn.

"'Mary Flaherty,' she told me. 'I am a stenographer in the big hardware store on King street.'

"I looked at her and saw that she was a tremendous creature, yet trim as an albicore. The colors of the sky were in her eyes. We talked. She told me what I've told you."

"'And no one will marry you because you are tall?' I said at last.

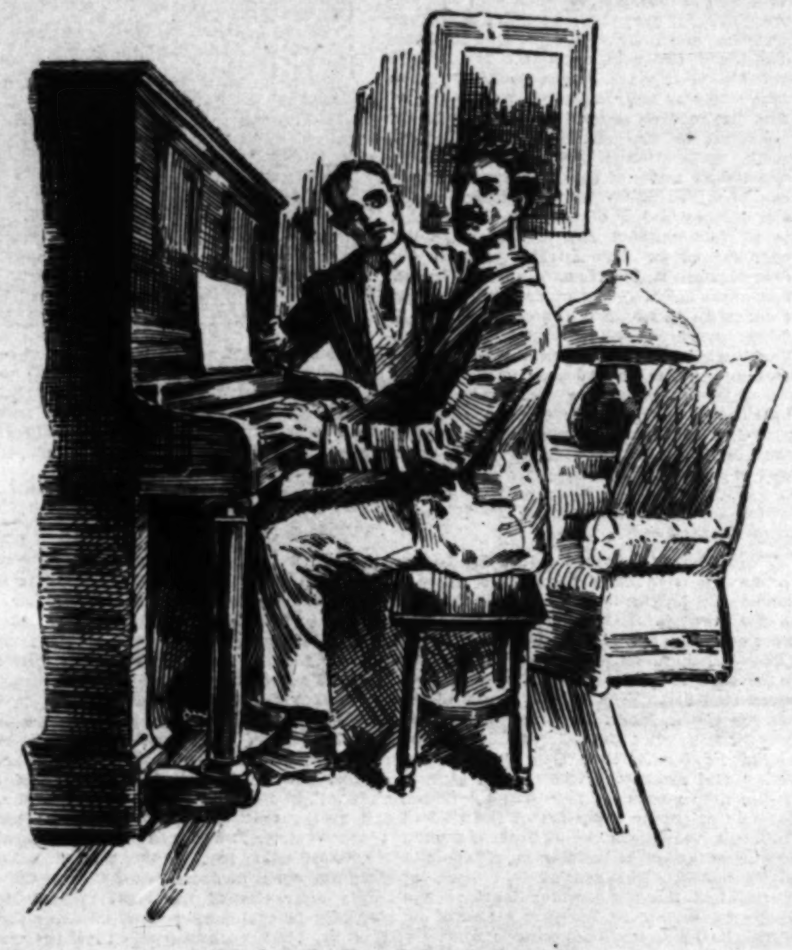
"'No one,' she said in a whisper. Then I knew that she was in trouble. The world is full of women in trouble; they're mostly thin and about five foot tall and wear high heel shoes. She wore sneakers. Her blonde hair fell over her face like rain. Maybe I was crazy. I have no imagination. What I said was, 'I'm six feet tall, and I want you.'

"That was plain enough, wasn't it? She paid no attention to my offer of marriage. She laughed and her lips were red. I don't yet understand what she meant. She asks me, 'Do you like mignonette?'

"'It's my favorite posy,' I told her.

"'When I was a kiddie I used to lie down and put my face into it in gran'ma's garden,' she says.

"'Sure,' I answered. 'I had a gran'ma myself. She wore gray gowns and stuck a bunch of mignonette in her belt.'



I Stared at the Huge Fellow in Astonishment.

"She pulled her bare feet up under her short skirt and thought a while. Then she looked at me oddly. 'You know I was in love once,' she told me softly. 'He was only five-foot-six. The other girls made fun of him when he took me to a dance. I think I'll never forget him.'

"Something in this made me cross. I can't tell why. I simply asked her the reason of her being in Honolulu.

"'Oh, I went to business college instead of to sociables and dances,' she informed me. 'I worked home a while and then I came as far as here with a girl who was going as a missionary to China.'

"We sat there quite a while, as the sun dropped, and presently I inquired whether she couldn't forget that little fellow in Kansas.

"'I'm not sure,' says she. 'What did you mean when you said you wanted me?'

"'For my wife,' I told her. 'I'm taller than you are and I feel lonesome. Still—' I stopped right there. I meant what I said, but a man can't be too careful. The service reads "Till Death do Us Part." That means that either the husband or the wife must go first. And we hadn't gone through all the preliminaries . . . we hadn't met by lamplight . . . I don't know anything about Kansas. I looked at her a while and then I said, 'Yes, I'll marry you.' I meant it.

"Pretty soon she put her slender hand over to me. I tucked it into my own. The sun went down and the lights were lit on the hotel lanais."

Mallow looked owlish in the sunlight that streamed in the doorway. The spider monkeys swung endlessly on their chains.

"For heaven's sake, man," I said irritably, "keep to your yarn."

He looked at me soberly. "I see you don't know what marriage means," he resumed. "It is exactly love; it's serious—'Till death do us part. I'm not religious especially. But a promise is a promise—unless divorced. That's different. But ordinarily it has always struck me that it would be fairer if both went together."

I lost my temper at this preposterous statement.

"She never liked profanity," he said simply, this dull skipper. "So I never use it."

"I beg your pardon," I muttered.

"That's all right," he said, amiably enough. "Her rules apply only to me."

"Well?" I responded.

"We talked it over in the moonlight. I persuaded her that she wasn't thinking of that little fellow of Kansas.

"'Let's get married,' I said finally.

"We stood up there on the beach in our bathing suits and I saw again how big and splendid she was . . . I have seen figureheads of ships as full breasted and strong. She held out her hand.

"'I'll marry you,' she said quietly, and walked away.

"I went down to the schooner and I couldn't sleep. It seemed as if the ship were lonesome. I could see her standing by the weather rail in a gale of wind and smiling at me. I have no imagination, so it was very real to me.

"Next morning I went to the hardware shop. She was sitting at a desk, dressed all in trim white, typing letters. I was right in front of her before she looked up. She blushed.

"'I've come for you,' I told her. 'I've found a preacher to tie the knot.'

"She looked at me a long time, sighed, closed her desk and went into the inside office. Pretty soon she came out with her hat on. We went and were married. When that was over I told her that we sailed that night and to get her stuff aboard. 'I'll send a couple of hands to fetch it down,' I promised.

"She came down at noon and the cook fixed up a good meal. We sat there in the saloon, with the rumble of the winch in our ears, and didn't talk much. I never felt so lonely in my life, for I could see she wasn't thinking of me; I wonder what she was dreaming about . . . she never told me. . . .

"That night we made out the pass and I laid our course for the China coast. The trades were blowing strongly. When I came down about 11 o'clock she was sitting in a chair by the table, crying, with her face in her hands. So I slipped away to my own room. One mustn't worry women when they are crying, you know. But when I came back—I couldn't sleep—she was gone. I went on deck and stayed there until breakfast time. I went down and she was there, with a light red gown on, and her shoulders shone through it, and she looked at me and laughed. I didn't understand, but I laughed, too. I felt happy.

"That day we swept out before the trade wind into the open Pacific. She stood beside me all the time, swinging back and forth to the plunge of the close-hauled schooner. She still wore her red gown and she had on silk stockings over her ankles and white shoes with a red bow. Once she touched me on the arm with her light fingers. I had to pull away. I am only a rough seaman. Women are a mystery . . . one must respect one's wife. . . ."

That impossible mariner and unspeakable fool stared out into the silent street and sighed. The monkeys swung on their beam and squeaked childishly. A lottery ticket seller passed before the doorway and mumbled, her black-and-gray hair frizzling in the heat.

Mallow went on: "We were twenty-two days in the Riu Kiu Islands and she stood my watch with me all that time; but every evening she sat by the table and cried into her hands. Of course, I didn't worry her. She was thinking of that little fellow in Kansas. I went to my room and tried to sleep. But sometimes I could hear her singing in her room, in a kind of sweet voice. I remember those songs . . . she sang 'em so often. They were kind of chantey-like."

He paused, looked down at the table and said, "I will always remember them."

"What were they?" I demanded. "Women sing instead of talking sometimes."

He looked around with a stern expression on his face. "This is no—I can't repeat them in here."

So we went out and over to the room I had in the International. As we passed through the upper corridor he spied a piano in a large reception-room. Without further words he went and sat down and struck a chord with his strong, stiff fingers. With the simplicity of a child he began to sing:

"Mother Mary, I am lonely,
  Mother, I am cold;
Give me arms that warm me, mother,
  Clinging arms that hold.
Mother Mary, I am greeting,
  Hear a daughter's cry;
Warm me! gentle Mother Mary!
  Warm me, or I die!"

I stared at the huge fellow in astonishment. His eyes were damp and he was staring at the blank wall.

"That was what she sang till we left the Riu Kiu's behind us. By this time she knew that I would never intrude on her. I respected her too much. And she was so splendidly and greatly beautiful. She wore clothes that seemed like veils." He sighed, and was silent.

"And where is she now?" I demanded.

"We went back with a cargo to Los Angeles," he said dully. "Then she left me. I send her a hundred a month and she writes to me."

"Where are you going now?" I asked.

"To Callao. That will take me still further away. But she writes that she is happy. I haven't seen her for a year."

"Where from Callao?" I demanded.

He got up from the piano bench and sighed. "To Honolulu," he answered. "I'll Medical Missions.

A CAMPAIGN to evangelize all Latin-American people on the continent was launched at a banquet in Los Angeles attended by notable Methodists.

I sometimes wonder whether these missionary efforts should not begin at home.

How many of our church members are really Christians? That is to say, how many of them, in their daily lives, follow the teachings of Jesus, the founder of the Christian religion?

It was often said, during the war, that we should never again have the assurance to send missionaries to convert the "heathen," after the exhibition we had made to them of Christians blowing each other to pieces, and poisoning each other with deadly gas. All in the name of God and civilization. Yet already the religious press is urging the adoption of a tithing system among the faithful, to create a vast fund to "convert" the world.

In former years magnificent races of people we call "savages" were decimated and wiped out by such blessings of "civilization" as unnecessary clothing from missionaries, which produced tuberculosis, rum from traders, and syphilis from sailors. To this has now been added all the horrors of "modern medical science."

I received a copy of a new magazine called Missions. It is mainly devoted to medical missions. The leading article quotes from the Bible: "He sent them to preach the kingdom of God and to heal the sick." Yes, but He did not send them out to dope men and women and poison their blood. The article is illustrated with a picture of a fine Baptist hospital building at Nellore, India. The writer begins as follows:

"Medical missions touch the whole of human need. To the dead soul, waiting for the message that alone can bring it life; to the obscured mind, needing the illumination that the knowledge born of Christianity can afford; to the diseased body, stricken with the ravages of unchecked sickness—to all these medical missions bring something that spells help and healing. Their ministry is to 'man as man.' Truly we may speak of this work as the very instinct of humanity impregnated with the spirit of Jesus Christ. . . .

"The first victory which the gospel of Jesus Christ gains among animistic peoples is the freeing them from 'the awful bondage of fear under which they have cowered for centuries.'"

In commenting on the above, I submit this extract from a letter from an Englishwoman, who has lived many years in India:

"I wonder if people, when they are asked to contribute generously to foreign medical missions and such like funds, know what the effect of their generosity will be? Does anyone realize, that, before we came with our civilization, and its methods of living and eating, with their attendant ills, the natives of Africa, Australasia and of most of Asia, were living in a simple, healthful way, not in need of drugs, serums and operations that the white medical missionary brings in his train—endeavoring by these unnatural methods to 'cure' a state of things that his race and creed are in a great degree responsible for having brought about. . . .

"The healing methods of the natives of several Asiatic countries in which I have lived consist in the administration of the simplest and mildest herbs, and of the most beneficent and soothing massage, an art in which old Indian and Malay women especially are highly skilled. Now, having erected costly and beautifully equipped hosiptals, to relieve the suffering for which we are in a large part responsible, we deprive the sick people of their natural surroundings and drug them, inoculate them, and operate upon them after the approved medical manner. During a cholera plague or smallpox epidemic, a mistress will summon her servants and insist on them all being inoculated against these diseases. They are even told to bring their wives and families and all are inoculated down to the tiniest baby. Statistics show that the mortality from these diseases (plague, etc.) has decreased—largely owing to sanitary measures—but on the other hand, any observant person who has lived long in India or Malay, will tell you that the general health and longevity of the natives has decreased to a marked degree. As an ignorant old Hindu woman once said to me: 'You only know how to cut us up and stick poisoned needles into us, you white people. You do not know how to cure us or keep us well.' And it is true."

In the same number Missions attacks the Red Cross for trying to take from the churches all foreign medical work, now conducted by the missions.

Woman Suffrage.

AMERICAN women now have the suffrage. What will they do with it?

Miss Bock, former suffrage leader, has this to say about woman suffrage:

"I was one of the prominent workers who helped to bring suffrage to California, and I regret it. A year in politics has taught me that women are intolerant, radical, revolutionary and more corrupt in politics than men. Also, all this so-called reform leads to the Socialist co-operative commonwealth. Woman suffrage has made cowards and puppets of men. It has coarsened and cheapened woman. Were the men to vote on suffrage in California today it would not carry. Suffragists asked suffrage that they might put only good men in office; now they clamor for a fifty-fifty show for all offices."

Miss Bock is pessimistic. Something must have ruffled her. This is the opposite extreme from the attitude I recently criticised, namely, that in woman alone lies the salvation of the race.

Not all women are angels, nor are all men devils. Women have much to learn, in regard to politics, but I opine that the effect of their entry into the political field will, in the main, be beneficial to the country, if not to themselves.

"The Next Number."

WHY will correspondents continue to ask me to write something in the "next number" of The Times, when, as I have explained, over and over again, the magazine is printed a week before it is published, and my stuff is turned in two weeks before it is printed. Also, I always have enough urgent matter on hand to fill the department for over a month.

I fear that many of my esteemed correspondents read superficially.

Beginning to Learn.

FOLLOWING is from an Inglewood (Cal.) correspondent:

"We have recently started taking The Times, and my husband and I are getting much interested in your 'Care of the Body.'

"Our bill of fare has always consisted of quite a mixture of food, having starch, fat, protein, etc., served at each meal, with nothing in its natural state, if it was possible to disguise it with vinegar, heaps of sugar and cream, or seasoning of any kind.

"I have noticed such an unpleasant change in the dispositions and the complexions of our two little girls—6 and 9½ years old—since they have been eating at the same table with us, for over two years now. They had previously been served certain simple foods, at their own little table. I was beginning to realize that there was something wrong with their diet, and since reading your articles have begun to suspect that it is not much better for my husband and myself.

"It is interesting to note that flour is sold with all the bran taken out, and then this bran sold separately as a 'health food.' Why not leave it in the flour?"

Dope Doctors.

THE municipal drug clinic in Los Angeles was ordered closed, by order of the Federal authorities. Dr. W. H. Bucher, head of the clinic, admitted that "clinics" are a failure, and actually encourage the practice they seek to overcome.

A great majority of drug addicts are made by the reckless administration of drugs by physicians, many of whom are themselves victims of habit-forming drugs.

Dr. Thomas S. Blair, chief of Pennsylvania's Bureau of Drug Control, tells in the Survey (New York) that "dope doctors" are "commercialists, pure and simple."

"After thirty years of medical practice," Dr. Blair writes, "it comes as a distinct shock to be obliged to admit that the narcotic evil must be largely laid at the feet of my own profession." Continuing, he says:

"The writer has figured the matter up and down, across and back again; he has estimated available supplies and where they go in regular trade; he is in a position to know with fair accuracy how much narcotic drugs are used in professional channels; he has investigated intimately the industrial situation, and he has visited the large proprietary medicine plants throughout the Union. The result is that he is, with infinite regret, compelled to admit that the dope-selling professional man is the main narcotic menace in this country, though there are other traffickers in the illicit trade who procure part of their supplies from inveigled and stolen professional stocks, and another portion from smuggling. No one knows how much smuggled narcotics is secured by peddlers.

"There are peddlers of narcotics in all of our large cities and in some of the smaller ones; but there are dope-selling professional men in nearly every community, and in the aggregate they vastly outnumber the peddlers. The per capita consumption of narcotics in small towns is much larger than it is in the big cities. . . . The narcotic laws must be enforced in the full recognition of the fact that professional people are responsible for a large proportion of drug addiction. The great body of ethical and capable professional people must join in the crusade against the physician, dentist, or druggist who is catering to narcotic addiction. They owe it to the public to do so, and they owe it to the professions of which they are members to run to earth the degenerates therein who are trafficking in human weakness and vicious habits."

As I have heretofore said, the only possible way to overcome a drug habit, without driving the patient insane, is by fasting, exercise and natural breathing, followed by a strictly abstemious, nonstimulating dietary.

Fasting.

AFTER a sojourn of several years in New Zealand, Dr. Linda Burfield Hazzard has returned to her old home in Olalla, Wash., where she is at present devoting her time mainly to teaching and correspondence. While in New Zealand, Dr. Hazzard published a condensed edition of her book on fasting. It is entitled, "Diet in Disease and Systemic Cleansing." The author treats of disease, symptoms, diet, the enema, and hygienic accessories, and gives some receipts for health foods.

Getting Sense.

THERE comes a clear day when one realizes that clothes are to keep the weather off you, that food is to give you health, that home is shelter and inspiration; that, aside from being clean and inoffensive, one's personal appearance does not signify very much; that the main thing in life is to be going along toward the goal of your ideals. That isn't getting old, it's getting sense. From then on Time is not master, but friend.—[Collier's.

Hale and hearty, he claims he is going to do better than his father, who was 96 years old when he died, after serving forty years as postmaster. And here is how "Uncle Charley" lays claim to being Illinois' perfect male specimen:

He never drank in his life.

He never whipped any of his five children.

He never spoke a cross word to his wife.

He never called on any woman but his wife.

He always went to bed at or before 9 o'clock.

Meat Not Necessary.

IT IS a vulgar error to regard meat in any form as necessary to life. All that is necessary to the human body can be supplied by the vegetable kingdom. . . . The vegetarian can extract from his food all the principles necessary for the growth and support of the body, as well as for the production of heat and force. It must be admitted as a fact beyond all question that some persons are stronger and more healthy who live on that food. I know how much of the prevailing meat diet is not merely a wasteful extravagance, but a source of serious evil to the consumer. Mr. Henry Thompson, F.R.C.S.

HEALING TO ALL LININGS

Nervousness

AMETROPATHY is the most modern, the least understood, yet the most rational method of dealing with disorders of the nerves and internal organs. It is not suited to conditions due to organic lesion or infection. It cannot, for instance, cure tuberculosis (though it may remove the cause of the depletion that brought on consumption); but it will produce positive results in cases of Neuritis, Neuralgia, Nervous Heart, Epilepsy, St. Vitus's Dance, Stuttering, and in functional derangements manifested by states of Fear, Despondency, Headaches, Insomnia, Asthma or Indigestion.

Persons who (in spite of sound organs) are suffering physically or mentally, particularly those subject to spells of unnatural fatigue, and to whom the known methods of treatment do not bring lasting relief, will probably find in AMETROPATHY the solution of their difficulties.

Pelicans Stock Salton Sea With Fish.

BY JOHN EDWIN HOGG.

(Illustrations by the Author.)

THE sight of a pelican soaring gracefully overhead, or waddling awkwardly about a seaside pleasure pier usually elicits that familiar verse about him as to the capacity of his beak as compared with another part of his anatomy. We have two kinds of pelicans in California, the brown ones which abound along the seacoast, and the big white pelicans which are found about our inland lakes and larger streams. The sole diet of the pelican the world over is fish. In consequence his flesh is unfit for human food, and since he is an extremely voracious feeder, it is only natural that many of us should ask—why are pelicans protected under the game laws throughout the United States?

Downy half-grown pelican chicks on one of the islands of the Salton Sea.

About nine fishermen out of every ten are convinced that war to extermination should be waged upon the pelican. They argue that he is not only a useless bird, and because he lives on fish, that he is destructive to angling and commercial fishing, and should therefore be eliminated. He is, in fact, a sort of wandering freebooter among our fisheries, but the arguments against him lose weight under a scientific understanding of his habits. Our laws protecting him were not enacted without reason; for in reality the pelican is a valuable economic bird. Even though he does consume great quantities of fish that might otherwise go to the markets or into the creel of the angler, he doesn't take away from us without giving something in return. The good he does more than offsets his sins, and without regard for any humanitarian ideals for letting him live, he is entitled to every protection that mankind is capable of giving him.

The pelican's service to mankind is that of stocking fishless waters which may later develop into suitable fishing grounds for the pleasure angler and the commercial fisherman. There is many an isolated mountain lake and stream in which excellent angling obtains that would not have a fish if it were not for the pelicans, and in at least one instance we are able to trace the development of a valuable commercial fishing industry to the piscatorial activities of these great fish eating birds. As indicated by the title of this story, it is to deal with the stocking of the Salton Sea by the pelicans to convert a fishless desert pool into the State's newest of commercial fisheries. But in order to understand what has happened at the Salton Sea a few words about the character and habits of the pelican are necessary.

Pelicans Co-operate with the State Fish and Game Commission.

THE pelican does not work at cross purposes with the State Fish and Game Commission, but rather in co-operation with that constructive organization. He was busy stocking lakes and streams with fish long before civilized man conceived such an idea, and what he has accomplished along this line is in evidence without looking far to find it. When white men first came to California there was a mystery in accounting for the fact that there were fish in certain isolated lakes and streams having no water communication with any possible source of fish supply. Some of these lakes and streams in which fish were found when they were discovered discharged their waters down the desert slopes of our mountains and disappeared in the sands. Others flowed into salt water from which fresh water fish could not have come, hence the early day scientists were puzzled to understand how the fish got there. They had either to accept the theory of spontaneous generation of fish, or trace out some artificial method by which the fish were introduced. The latter explanation was easy, because it didn't take long to saddle the responsibility onto the pelicans.

The propagation of fish in these isolated streams and lakes was deduced as follows: If these great fish-eating birds, equipped by nature with a dip-net for catching fish alive, chose to nest upon the shore of some fishless inland lake, they had to fly elsewhere for their food. Mileage doesn't mean much to a pelican because he can travel seventy-five miles for every hour he stays in the air, and can take the shortest possible route between any two points. Thus it is only reasonable to suppose that a mother pelican flying fifty or sixty miles for a pouchful of fish, might drop several on the ground in condition to flop off into the water and thrive while attempting to poke them down the hungry necks of her little ones. A pelican does not injure fish in catching them, and if they are swallowed on the spot it is so done without any funeral ceremony over the catch. The interior of their big dip-net pouch is, furthermore, soft and moist, and since the majority of fish will live for a considerable length of time out of water if taken uninjured, there is no reason to believe that a pelican could not carry fish several hundred miles and then drop them in the water in condition to live. Some of the best ornithological authorities are also convinced that pelicans have instinct by which they deliberately bring fish into a fishless pool and liberate them there for the purpose of propagating a new source of food supply. If this is true mankind is usually the ultimate beneficiary.

The presence of desirable food fish in the Salton Sea in sufficient numbers to create a commercial fishing industry is thus credited to the pelicans. It was formerly a fishless body of water, and since it has no outlet to tidewater, there seems to be no other way to account for its becoming stocked with ocean food fish. Very little is known of the fish life of the Salton Sea prior to the great flood of 1905 when the Colorado River overflowed its banks, inundated the Imperial Valley, and discharged into the Salton Sea. It should be mentioned here that the Salton Sea was originally a portion of the Gulf of California which was cut off from the main body of water by the building up of the delta at its mouth. The sea at that time, of course, had the same water level as the Pacific Ocean, but by the evaporation of its waters it shrunk until its surface went far below sea level. The water being originally saline, became saltier as the evaporation took place. Just prior to the flood of 1905 it had reached a degree of salinity approaching six times that of ocean water, and obviously, if there were any fish in the sea prior to that time they must have perished. The water just before the flood was almost a saturated solution of salt, and certainly no ordinary salt water fish could have lived in it. It is the belief of geographers that during the ages when the Colorado River was depositing its delta to form the land that is now the Imperial Valley, that the river periodically overflowed, and discharged into the Salton Sea as it did during the flood of 1905. There is no telling how many times this occurrence took place, but during the long periods that the river flowed into the Gulf of California the Salton Sea lost area through evaporation, and, of course, increased in salinity until freshened again by the next flood. This constant changing from partly fresh to excessively saline water every few years would have undoubtedly prevented the survival of either fresh water or ocean fish.

A few of the pelicans on Pelican Island in the Salton Sea. Note the eggs and young birds on the ground.

These Birds are Easily the Oldest Inhabitants of Region.

AS FAR back as we have any authentic records the several volcanic islands in the Salton Sea have been the nesting places of tens of thousands of pelicans, and other aquatic fish-eating birds. These birds undoubtedly had to fly to the Gulf of California for food for themselves and their progeny, and if they ever succeeded in establishing a supply nearer home their efforts were in vain because of the ever-changing salinity of the water. The great flood of 1905 of course, greatly freshened the Salton Sea water. The flood lasted for nearly a year, and during that time the water from the Colorado River flowed into it at the rate of 160,000,000 cubic feet per day. In 1906 the river was again turned into the Gulf of California after one of the most spectacular struggles in engineering history. After the flood had been controlled strong levees were built that the Imperial Valley might be irrigated and safe from the flooding of the river in the future. With the completion of the levees it was generally predicted that the Salton Sea, being cut off from its periodical rations of water supply, would soon dry up; but time has failed to bear out this prediction. The sea did recede somewhat, to be sure, but not as fast as had been expected. Then it seemed to reach a stationary level about which it has remained ever since. It is now believed that the sea has underground sources of water supply which are maintaining its area against the losses from evaporation. The surface of the water is now 257 feet below ocean level, as compared with 266 feet before the flood, and 248 feet immediately after the flood was checked. The only known sources of fresh water supply at present are the New and Alamo rivers, two streams which flow into the sea bringing vast quantities of overflow irrigation waters from the Imperial Valley. Late in the summer when the Colorado River gets very low, and practically all of its water is needed for irrigation, the flow of the New and Alamo rivers is almost curtailed. It seems a strange phenomenon, therefore, that last summer at a time when the two rivers had almost ceased to flow, the Salton Sea receded two feet, and then without any apparent reason came back up four feet. This leads old residents about the sea to believe that it has unknown sources of water supply which will maintain its present level, and present degree of salinity, against the losses from evaporation.

Flood Theory of Stocking Salton Sea Discounted.

A YEAR or two atfer the flood had been checked the Pacific Coast mullet, a desirable food fish, began to appear in abundance in the Salton Sea. They are the identical mullets which abound in the Gulf of California, and were undoubtedly introduced into the sea by the pelicans. Another explanation to account for how the fish got there is that they swam up into the Colorado River from the gulf, and were carried into the Salton Sea by the flood. This theory seems faulty, however, because the mullet is a salt water fish which, according to the best authorities on piscatorial subjects, has never been known to swim into the fresh water of streams—much less into a muddy torrent like the Colorado River when it is in flood.

Another feature which seems to clinch the argument that the fish were introduced by the pelicans is that in recent months specimens of salmon trout have been taken by the mullet fishermen from the waters of the Salton Sea. Scientific examination of these fish has proved them to be the identical salmon trout that we know in Big Bear Lake, and if they got into the sea from the latter body of water it would seem that their being carried in by the pelicans offers the only answer as to how they got there. The salmon trout, of course, is a fresh water fish, and the Salton Sea at present is slightly saltier than ocean water. They seem to be a very hardy fish, however, and like their relative, the Colorado River salmon, capable of living in either fresh or salt water. The salmon trout taken thus far have all appeared to be strong, healthy fish, and a few years hence it is possible that anglers will have the pelicans to thank for the creation of a Salton Sea trout fishing attraction that will rival Big Bear Lake.

By 1911 the Salton Sea mullets became so numerous that a colony of fishermen settled

PEACE, OR NARCOTIC SLUMBER—WHICH?

(II.)

BY EVA G. TAYLOR.

AFTER a mental resume of present-day conditions, with its intermittent stupors falsely called "peace," alternating with strife, unrest and carriage, the Cynic increases in stature. He has plenty of material upon which to feed. He remembers about the legacy bequeathed to the humanity of 2000 years ago—and wonders what became of it. Being a student of history he knows that all past civilizations have risen, flourished and decayed under similar conditions to those confronting us today. With singular egotistic credulity each age believes that it has discovered new and improved methods of continuing its experiments with life. It always has an autocracy of some kind. In our republics the imperialism is skilfully camouflaged but through all the fraternizing and equalizing policies it sounds its dominant note. A grip must be maintained on something—a grip of power. The submerged masses usually furnish the material for this conquest of souls and bodies. So long as they submit with apathetic indifference to the fate that grips them there is a time of "peace!" When ominous mutterings of the coming tempest begin to stir through the sultry silence the Solons meet in solemn conclave and the nations again prepare for war. Thus the little circle goes round—such were the peace conditions of the past centuries! Wrongs vested with robes of official dignity, injustice clad in purple and ermine, cruelty sitting on the thrones of power!

The stage set had been changed for the twentieth century drama. There is less purple and ermine—more overalls and jumpers, but the dominant note is selfish power. The lifted hand of tyranny dyed red in the blood of humanity may wield the scepter of an emperor or the tools of a Bolshevik—the result is the same. Dulled submission to inevitable conditions holds not the secret of peace. In the ominous stillness of opprésed and stifled misery lies a hidden danger. We may find a simile of this type of "peace" in the sultry calm of a summer day when all nature is conscious of electrical disturbance—somewhere. The senses and emotional centers feel the subtle vibration of ruffled atmospheric currents. Presently there is a movement of air, an onrushing energy, a sigh from bending forests—and a fierce elemental battle is on. Sometimes it is felt that the battle was the needful release from the abnormal pressure. Evidently then, repressed forces hold not the secret of true peace. The pathetic indifference to fate which the submerged masses show at times beneath the iron hand of greed and avarice is not indicative of "peace." Such forced submission either paralyzes all outreaching endeavor or feeds an inner fire of hatred which eventually will burst all bounds.

Another simile for the false peace with which the world drugs its votaries may be found in the still pool in whose dark stag- may be narcotio stupor in the lotus leaves may be narcotic stupor in the lotusleaves of pleasure, but not peace. Mankind having chosen to be drugged and duped stumbles blindly on and when beginning to be awakened to a sense of its miseries raves against Fate. Feeling the pressure of the false civilization which it has built up out of selfish greed and cruelty it seeks to dodge the issue while parleying with Fate.

The Cynic, being not quite blinded by the serenely complacent optimism of the age, ventures to suggest that if we really desire a positive peace—something enduring and potential—it might be well to pause and take an inventory of ourselves. Having thoroughly tested all the powers and possibilities of the type which the world in its temporizing policy offers—having lived under its false promises through the ages, suffering incalculably from its far-reaching and disastrous consequences—it would indeed seem the part of wisdom to try the other kind. When the Cynic asks if the humanity of this rather loud and vulgar age will ever be ready for the true and lasting peace—the kind of which the Great Master spoke nearly twenty centuries ago—the answer comes out of the blue—with qualifications and reservations. Briefly it is this.

There is much preparatory work to be done before humanity can catch even a faint glimmer of this wonderful peace which will bring a finer civilization to earth than hope has yet visualized. A broken wire cannot conduct the electrical current from the dynamo to the mechanism that is to be moved by its power. Human life at present affords a sorry spectacle of misapplied and wasted power. Even after the proper connections are made there is much debris of untrained and useless thought, of idle fancy and foolish speculation, of selfish interest and desire to be cleared away. All the arbitrary and false distinctions of our patched-up "civilization" must be abolished and all our concepts based upon the world's ignoble standards must be reversed. The only standard of excellence must be based upon the unfoldment of the finer and brighter sea qualities.

This legacy of the Master which neither the church nor the world has apprehended is far more than external calm—more than emotion lulled into momentary rest. More even than outward fusion of interests which often hide a festering discord beneath the surface. It is more than the nepenthe-stilled senses which for a brief interval see not, feel not, hear not. It is more than cessation of martial movement—more than the awing into quietude of elemental forces through the power of a Master's will. In its bright enfolding aura there is no stupid acceptance of false conditions, of glossed-over conditions which possibly are fair on the surface but evil at the core. Within its radiant atmosphere there is no place for the impractical visionary or the dilletante dreamer. It demands life, energy, activity, used always in the interests of the highest to be conceived. With this understanding of peace the Cynic may well question the status of the jazz-crazed humanity of the age.

Something within the Cynic which will not down at the skeptic's sneer proclaims the true peace to be radiant energy, glowing life, moving flame from a pure center of light. In his dreams which are not merely dreams he can see its bright altruism (in distant ages) enfolding the heart of humanity. Then he seems to know that when this peace reaches the heart of the world the nations will no longer be at war—there will be no race-rivalry, no desire for power to use in selfish monopoly, no outreaching tentacles of avarice to grip helpless victims. When ploughshares and pruning hooks take the place of bayonets and machine guns the profiteer and his kind will also vanish. The world will then be a safe and fit place—not merely for the Democratic party as we have paraphrased our war slogan—but for those who would really live.

Will humanity continue in its mad destructive career for ages to come—satisfied with the type of peace which the world gives to its votaries between the great offensives? Will it ever realize that at best it is but a negative makeshift—a mere concession to policies—or politics? Will the fact ever dawn upon its dulled consciousness that this paltry temporizing with militant potentialities while polishing the weapons for the next fray is farcical if not tragical? Will it ever awaken to the full responsibility of life and refuse longer to allow its forces to be drugged into insensibility or bedizined by the mad whirl of Babylonian revels?

We are told that the true peace passes understanding—the bounds of the human intellect. Mind cannot grasp it but vaguely apprehends it. Yet its vivifying power touches and electrifies all the life—when the conditions are acceded to. The Cynic is dumb before the vision of its power.

Deserted Palaces of Cambodia.

In the jungles of Cambodia, where the monkeys chatter and swing from the knotted vines and the snake sheds his skin on the marble steps high over the stagnant pool, where parakeets hang like jewels in the trees and tigers glide by with muffled step, stand temples, long forgotten, palaces, moats, gates and walls, with stones wrenched apart by the violent urge of the tropic trees and vines. Once kings stepped forth, hung with jewels and robed in glittering fabrics, to mount their elephants and go a-hunting; once, damsels danced age-old steps before the altars of the gods, and simple folk went about their household tasks as simpler folk have always done. For about 600 years Cambodia was the center of a brilliant civilization; after that, a land of savage tribes forgetful of the great past. Today this country, now a province of French Indo-China, is forsaken save by occasional half-naked priests, who climb the great palms to tap the upper leaves for sugar-water, or pause to grin at their own reflections in the pools when they are tired of staring, uncomprehending, at the forms that decorate the temple walls.—[Asia Magazine.

on the shores and began the establishment of a brand new commercial fishing enterprise. They experienced considerable difficulty in establishing a market for their catch in competition with all the well known food fishes of the Pacific Ocean, but their efforts laid the foundation for a later heavy demand. In 1912 a canning plant was set up on Mullet Island, and "Salton Sea Mullet" also became a product of several canning plants at Los Angeles Harbor. The first fishermen to ply their nets in the sea were a group of Americans who had taken up unprofitable mineral claims on Mullet Island. As soon as they had developed the market and began to make profitable catches they began having competition. Greek, Austrian, and Japanese fishermen settled about the sea. The Japs, however, couldn't work in peace with the other fishermen, and the rest united to make life so miserable for them that the yellow man finally packed up and moved out. The present catch of mullet averages from 300 to 350 pounds per fisherman daily. The fish are dressed and iced on fishing boats at sea, and are then trucked to Niland on the Southern Pacific lines for shipment to market. The fishermen receive 15 cents per pound for the catch delivered at Niland. This newest of California's fisheries gives favorable indications of becoming one of vast commercial importance, and we have only the pelicans to thank for the creation of it.

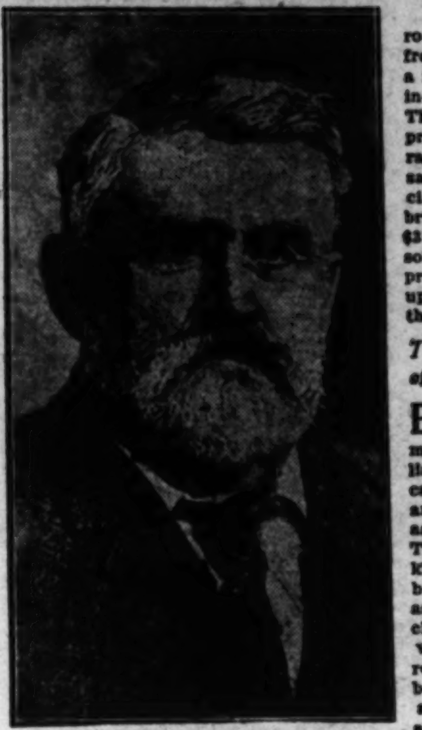
The Largest Buffalo Herd in Captivity..

BY W. D. HORNADAY.



Capt. Charles Goodnight.

NO MAN in the world knows more about the buffalo than Capt. Charles Goodnight of Goodnight, Tex. For more than fifty years he has been in almost daily contact with these animals. He is today the owner of the largest private herd of buffaloes in existence. It numbers a little more than 200 head and at this particular season the cows are calving and the number will have probably reached about 250 head within the next few weeks. Capt. Goodnight has made no special effort to bring about a great increase in the number of his buffalo herd, his chief purpose being to maintain only enough of them to perpetuate the species. Whenever he desires buffalo meat for his table he kills one of the animals. He has probably eaten more buffalo steaks than any living man.

There are at this time about 975 captive or domesticated buffaloes in the United States, forty-one in Canada and 109 in Europe. It is estimated that there are about thirty wild buffaloes in this country and probably 500 wild ones in Canada.

Notwithstanding the fact that Capt. Goodnight is in his eighty-first year of age he is still possessed of great physical and mental vigor. He is one of the few remaining typical plainsmen who form a connecting link between the distant past and modern times. He was born on a farm near Macoupin, Ill. When he was 20 years old he settled upon the extreme western frontier of Texas, where he and other daring adventurers were subjected to frequent attacks by Indians. In those days countless millions of buffaloes roamed over the plains of that part of Texas where he made his home. For several years Capt. Goodnight operated a large ranch on a share basis, finally accumulating enough money to buy a big landed estate and to engage in the business on his own account. It was not long until he had a herd of more than 25,000 cattle. It was during the Civil War that he won his title of captain, having been placed in command of a detachment of frontiersmen to guard the remote settlers against attacks by Indians and raiders. With the encroachment of civilization he moved his large herds of cattle farther west and nearly thirty years ago he established his present ranch here, the property embracing a landed domain of almost an empire in size. He had been a witness to the ruthless slaughter of the buffaloes and the fact was impressed upon him most forcibly that unless some means were taken to preserve these animals, they would soon become extinct. He had seen them killed by the thousands for their hides by professional hunters. Each hide sold for $2.50 to $3, and even as low as $1.

It was at the suggestion of Capt. Goodnight's wife that he entered upon the plan of preserving for future generations specimens of pure buffaloes. No one had thought of domesticating them up to that time, but, acting on the suggestion, Capt. Goodnight rode out onto the plains and found a herd, from which he roped two calves, a male and a female. Some few days later his brother-in-law, Lee Dyer, roped two other calves. These four formed the beginning of the present herd found upon the ranch. The wild, ragged brakes of the Paloduro Canyon, with sagebrush flats here and there, made a specially inviting habitat for the animals. A cow brings Capt. Goodnight $500, a heifer calf, $350, and a male calf, $250. Although he has sold a large number of buffaloes at these prices from time to time he has not built up his herd for the purpose of profiting therefrom.

The Buffalo Resents the Presence of Human Beings.

BY HIS long experience with these animals, Capt. Goodnight has become familiar with many of their traits and peculiarities. They hold their age better than cattle. Several of them now upon the ranch are more than thirty-five years old, and are as active and vigorous as the younger ones. The buffalo is a social animal only with its kind. They resent the presence of human beings among them; however, they are not as dangerous if a person will not get too close to them. You can coax a buffalo to go where you never could drive him. In this respect they resemble a stubborn mule. The buffalo likes home; once they have become accustomed to a place, they will not stray away from it. In the summertime the buffalo delights to wallow; every one will have an individual wallow hole, and in turning over and over on their backs they are very expert. An old buffalo takes it as a challenge to fight when another intrudes in his wallow. All over the plains of the Panhandle these wallows are found at the present day, indicating the vast number of these animals that in time past roamed over that region. Frequently their horns are to be found in the canyons or in secluded places.

Ranch Home of Capt. Charles Goodnight.

Some wild aimals will dwarf or become unhealthy in domestication, but not so with the buffalo. It thrives. Perhaps it does better with care than in its wild state. Again, the buffalo is absolutely free from all cattle diseases, such as blackleg, Texas fever and other ailments. This may account to some extent for the remarkable health of the American Indians before they came in touch with the white man. They subsisted chiefly on buffalo meat, and it was free of disease. Capt. Goodnight declares the buffalo is the easiest animal to care for in the world, and will endure the coldest and severest winters. It is fed cottonseed cake and meal, together with hay. Only a small feed keeps them in prime condition throughout the winter. Also, once a buffalo is fat, it will hold its flesh longer than a prime-fed steer and dress a larger net weight—over 70 per cent. Owing to the peculiar build of the buffalo, powerful forequarters with rather weak or small hindquarters, he has a very long back. He also has fourteen ribs in place of thirteen, as the ox. This gives a longer and deeper loin, and the lump on the shoulders increases the weight about 150 pounds. Not among the least traits of the female buffalo is the strong maternal instinct. Being a wild animal by nature, where conditions demanded vigilance for the preservation of the young, the buffalo cow guards jealously her calf. Until the calf is several months old it is difficult to approach within several hundred yards of it, as the mother will begin running in the opposite direction, keeping the calf on the off side from you. The calf while young resembles a Jersey calf more than a buffalo. The hump and prominent forequarters do not become so marked for some time.

Cross Breeding the Buffalo a Difficult Problem.

IN 1885 CAPT. GOODNIGHT decided to experiment with his stock by cross-breeding. To this end he selected the Polled Angus stock of cattle, owing to their hardy qualities, for the first cross. The crossing is effected in the following manner: A male buffalo calf is taken from the mother while quite young and given to a cow to raise. At weaning time it is grazed with the domestic cattle and when grown will cross with any cow. The first calves are always heifers. The males all die, and in many cases the cow as well. Only a small per cent of the calves survive. After the first cross, however, it is comparatively easy to make further crosses. By such cross-breeding, Capt. Goodnight now has twenty-two cattaloes of one-half and three-quarter stock, and 100 of one-eighth and one-sixteenth stock. In appearance the cattalo is slightly lighter in color than the buffalo; the hump and prominence of the forequarters not so characteristic. They have a fiercer look, perhaps, but are not dangerous in the least.

In commenting upon the advantages of cattaloes over common cattle, Capt. Goodnight said that the cattalo in the first place is almost entirely free from the diseases common to cattle, this trait being inherited from the buffalo. Again, the cattalo is easily adapted to climate, exposure and conditions. They can resist hunger and thirst better than cattle, will dress 70 per cent or more net, which is higher than cattle, fatten easily, and when killed the meat will not toughen as will beef when packed. They likewise have the fourteen ribs of the buffalo, increasing their weight about 100 pounds or more. More can be grazed on the same number of acres than cattle, thus economizing grass and acreage.

There are other interesting features about the buffalo which they have in common with the cattaloes. In place of drifting with storms and blizzards, they face them; they do not run from heel flies, and when getting up they always rise on their forefeet, never on their hind, as they can thus get up better when weak or poor. Cattle lie down with their backs downhill, but cattaloes and buffaloes never. This enables them to spring up more quickly and easily.

The Goodnight Ranch and Herd Offered to State of Texas.

CAPT. GOODNIGHT'S buffalo ranch embrace a part of Paloduro Canyon, which contains some of the most picturesque scenery to be found in the whole country. The canyon is a great slit in the level plains of the Panhandle. It has a width of two to five miles and a depth of 500 to 1000 feet. Its walls are almost perpendicular except in a few places where entrance to the valley of the canyon may be had. Although the surrounding plains are treeless, this scenic valley, through which flows Paloduro Creek, is a verdant paradise of giant forest trees, intermingled with various kinds of shrubs. The open spaces and in fact most of the forest portion of the remarkable canyon valley is covered with grass and affords splendid grazing for the buffaloes throughout the year.

In order that his cherished plan of preserving and protecting these animals of a past generation in order that posterity may obtain a personal knowledge of the animals that formerly inhabited the wide spaces of the West in vast multitudes, Capt. Goodnight has offered to donate his herd to the State of Texas, together with his ranch to be used as a site for an educational institution of higher learning or as a public park

No man of corresponding wealth has perhaps done more in the matter of educating young men and women than Capt. Goodnight. One of his greatest pleasures is to provide poor boys and girls with a finished education. He has up to this time educated at his own expense ninety-seven young people. He can never be induced to discuss his benefactions along these lines, but he said the other day that he has been repaid over and over again for his free educational work in the form of letters and expressions of gratitude that come to him almost daily from men and women who have gone out into the world after receiving an education through his financial aid.

The Shadow Play.

Life is not a vale of tears and sadness—
A wailing place, though some would have it so;
The measure of its joys, and sum of gladness,
By far outweighs the measure of its woe.

Life is a shadow play of joy and sorrow;
Twin-born are they, and never far apart,
But from their crystal prisms we may borrow
Enough of rainbow tints to span a heart.

My Arcady.

I weary of my air castles
And of their dizzy height,
My heart goes homing earthward
For its castle of delight;
Somewhere upon the solid earth
My citadel shall be,
And there I'll rear my castle walls,
And make my Arcady.

I want no stately villa
That well might house a king;
I want no towers nor turrets,
Nor any such vain thing;
A simple, vine-clad cottage
Were quite enough for me,
Where I might welcome kindred souls
To share my Arcady.

HE RECLAMATION OF THE BULLNECK KID.

much sooner than if it waited on the passing of an all-too-slow-growing subscription list.

Bullneck carried the total hoard of the Militant Missioners in his blouse, as he was on his way to bank it, that morning. Adding to this the little clean-up just made gave him $1000. At ten to one, which the house had offered, the calling of the right card would net the entire amount needed for the new building.

The Horseshoe was filling up rapidly, for word had gone out that the Bullneck Kid was up to his old tricks again. Few believed the report. They must see for themselves. With furrowed brow, as he was trying to make up his mind on the plunge, Bullneck knew nothing of the crowd he had been the means of attracting.

There was a hush as he drew a bulging wallet from his inside pocket.

"A thousand on the ace!"

And down went every cent he had, with as much confidence as he ever displayed in the days of his sporting prime. The crowd gasped.

"You mean it, Kid?" Kelly queried, cocking his one good eye on the player. "A thousand dollars?"

"Betcher sweet life!" Bullneck roared and darted a withering look at the fellow who had questioned his gameness, a minute before.

"You're on!" Kelly rejoined, after a precautionary glance at the contents of the wallet. "Ten to one—my ten thousand the ace don't show to your thousand she does!"

Bullneck nodded complacently.

"Then I'll deal the hand myself," the master cardman smirked and mounted the stool, "if you have no objection."

"Go to it!" Bullneck laconicked.

He paid little attention as Kelly picked up the box to deal. The play in progress being the largest Bald Butte had ever known, there was more intentness among the spectators as to the outcome than in Bullneck. His attitude was always one of indifference when he sensed his lucky day. If ever he felt sure, this was the time.

Kelly hoisted his shirt sleeves deliberately for freer action, moistened a thumb and forefinger and began to turn the cards cautiously. Some one remarked that the regular dealer had been right-handed, while Kelly used his left. Bullneck had turned to jest with a fellow behind him, to ward off this ill omen, when Kelly shouted:

"The ace loses!" and he pounced on the wallet like a lion on a mouse.

Bullneck never stopped to investigate whether the ace had really lost. Satisfied without, he kept right on completing the turn and left the Horseshoe with never a word of comment or regret.

Once again the name of the Bullneck Kid was on every tongue in Bald Butte. His yielding to temptation occasioned almost as much surprise as the conversion had a year before. The only difference was that his forsaking of evil ways had been regarded as unusual; while the latter lapse was considered as a natural move along the line of least resistance or just what might have been expected.

Bullneck went straight back to the Militant Missioners' headquarters. It had been his first real home and he returned to it with a newly mad resolve, firmer than ever to begin all over again. He joined the other workers as if nothing had happened.

Concerning his adventure Bullneck said not a word. Some disjointed gossip filtered down the barracks, during the day; but no attention was paid to it, for the Missioners all had implicit confidence in their treasurer.

That evening when the little band set out for the open-air meeting in Main street, Bullneck was in his place as usual. They marched proudly to the measured drum beat, which sounded assembly for the major part of Bald Butte's curious citizenship. As one man, the population turned out to see if Bullneck would appear.

To those present merely out of curiosity, who did not enter into its spirit, the service seemed to drag until the leader of the Militants announced: "And now, our Brother Treasurer, who has proved himself such a valiant host in building up this organization's finances, will tell us once more the glorious story of how he was redeemed from evil's engulfing ways."

The Bullneck Kid walked straight into the middle of the semicircle. He faced the now breathless crowd, which had snickered only a moment before, in his customary, whole-hearted manner that had become so familiar to Bald Butte. It was far from the same man who had stood before the gambling layout earlier in the day.

As jibes and jeers were hurled at him from the crowd, the Militant Missioners looked bewildered at one another. It was such an unusual exhibition. Yet undismayed Bullneck bared his head under the sputtering torches and raised his hand for silence.

"I had a little experience today," he began matter-of-factly, "that I must tell you all about."

The crowd subsided instantly under a spell of expectancy as he continued:

"As I stood in the Horseshoe, watching for an opening to square away at him, the devil grabbed me by the seat of the pants with one hand"—Bullneck acted it all out realistically—"and the back of my neck with the other. Then when I wasn't looking he slammed me bang up against One-Eyed Kelly's blamed old faro bank. So help me God, he did! As a teaser, the son-of-a-witch shelled me out a yellow boy to play and then forced a hundred on me on the turn of the queen."

"Can you beat that guy?" was only one of the many comments rising above the laughter of the crowd as a result of Bullneck's boldness. The Missioners' amazement grew, for never since the day he had plumped through the drum into their midst had his testimony been received with such derision.

"My brothers and sisters," Bullneck resumed naively, "during all this time I was fighting my hardest against old Man Satan. 'Deed I was!"

At intervals his coworkers chimed in encouraging "Glory be's" and "Bless my soul's," confidently expecting Bullneck's climax to disclose the ignominious defeat of the arch tempter.

"But he refused to stay behind. Would you believe it?" Here Bullneck paused for rhetorical effect. "That lousy old troublemaker dug his mitts right down into my pockets, jerked out all your money, planked it on the layout and called for the ace."

There was a momentary silence. The crowd was undecided whether to cheer or hoot. Squaring his shoulders righteously, Bullneck talked straight at his former companions:

Now all you boys know me well enough to realize that if it had really been me, the Bullneck Kid, playing that hand—well, I'd never have covered the ace, with the cases standing against the measly card the way they did."

"All I got to say," and he shrugged disparagingly, "it was a danged bad day for the ace. Old Nick, co-operating with Kelly, made a clean sweep of all our money. But I'm mighty glad to be able to be here tonight and testify that the pilferin' pair didn't get me bodily. And, after this narrow escape, I'm for our army stronger than ever. Praise God!"

As Bullneck dropped back into his place meekly, the meeting broke up in an uproar. But the clamorous mockery of those who doubted his story was speedily drowned out by the ecstatic jubilation of his comrades. Circling about joyfully, the Militant Missioners gave enthusiastic utterance to their gratitude to God that the reclamation service of the soul had triumphed, even if their little hoard was lost, and drew off singing lustily though somewhat discordantly:

"There were ninety and nine that safely lay
In the shelter of the fold;
But one was out in the hills away
Far off from the gates of gold—"

Fooled the Grocer.

"Half a dozen black hens' eggs?" said the grocer. "You've got me! I can't tell black hens' eggs from any other kind."

"I can," said the boy. "Mother told me how to."

"Well, here you are," said the grocer. "Let me see you pick out half a dozen black hens' eggs."

The boy selected six of the biggest in the box. "These are black hens' eggs," he said, and the grocer, feeling that he had been done, took the money offered for them and let him go.—[Boston Transcript.

against a wheel. "How'd you do it?" he asked me, without much force back of his neck.

"I didn't do it," I says. "Corney did it—he owned up to 'em."

"Say," said Kittler. "He didn't!" He stood staring up at me, and then over my shoulder, in the dust, he saw the busses coming. "He's God's own kind from the home town," he said softly, "and I knew it."

"Where's Binney by now?" I ask him.

"Horse tent," says Kittler. "And he's the same kind!" he yelled after me as White Fox started. I think that he said something about "so was I"—like a maniac.

We drove down to the horse tent, and I tied White Fox to some place in the atmosphere, and we went in. Lottie Moody and I. A great, dim, partly open place, filled with beautiful sensitive creatures, moving, whinnying, neighing, tossing splendid manes and pawing. They heard the music, they knew that their parts were to play, they were conscious of unknown influences and contracts. I stood dumb as I saw them—I always stand dumb before the marvel of these beings which are somehow more than we know them to be.

And in their midst, Binney. We saw him before he saw us. He was close beside a magnificent gray, and the horse, pawing with one delicate hoof, yet held his head close down to Binney's head. Binney's arm was thrown across the beautiful neck, and then as we looked we saw him move on, talking to them.

" . . . Now, now now," he was saying to one and another, "look who's here. Steady, now, steady. Don't you know your own boy? That's the ticket. Good boy, good boy, good boy."

He was going among them, his head up, his face bright, his eyes shining, his voice like the voice of a mother talking to her children. Then he saw us, and he came running toward us.

"Heavenly day," he said; "did you ever see such horses?"

He smiled at Lottie with a kind of tender familiarity, as if they had just been talking. He spoke only of the horses, the points of this one, the spirit of that one, little raw place on a shoulder. . . . He was erect, he was alive, he was himself. I saw Lottie looking at him as if she were seeing him for the first time.

"We got 'em all watered and fed," he said. "It's a job," he added, solemnly, "for a king."

We were still there when the men arrived from the station, and some tumbled into their clothes, and some came in with gorgeous housings and trappings. And Binney couldn't keep his hands off. He kept moving among the horses, fastening a buckle, tightening a girth, twitching at a ribbon, and not one of the men resented it, and I doubt that Binney would have noticed it if one had.

He trotted here and there until the last horse had been led away for the "imperial spectacle of the gigantic opening pageantry." Not till then did it occur to Binney to think of seats.

When we were comfortably in our places and the gigantic opening pageant had passed and merely lions claimed our attention, Old Kittler came round to where we were.

"They been telling me about it," he mumbled. "And don't neither of you ever try to pay for no seats to none of my shows," he growled, in the showman's extreme of homage. "Say," he added casually to Binney, "I wish't I had you on my stock farm up in the country."

Binney looked up at him—that look on Binney's face was the look of a man who meets in the visible flesh an ancient dream.

"St-stock? Did you say stock?" Binney babbled.

"Horses," said Kittler. "Peaches. Eleven of 'em ready to go on the road next season. S'pose you wouldn't consider—"

"Heavenly day," said Binney; "wouldn't I? Wouldn't I—"

And then, the moment after:

"Look," said Lottie Moody. "There's mother and Aaron Hawley, waving at us; next section."

Binney looked, and all that this combination involved I saw settle upon his face like a light.

"Lottie," I heard him say, "will—will you go to live on that stock farm?"

"Why, of course, Silly," she said.

GHOSTS IN BOBBIE BURNS' LAND.

BY G. C. K. MacLENNAN.

IT WAS in the county of Ayrshire about twelve miles from the "braw toon of Ayr," outside a neat little country village, that my father's manse stood. The house was perched on a hill and was surrounded by tall trees and a hedge which enclosed about an acre of ground. The grounds were divided into a beautiful green lawn dotted with rhododendron bushes and relieved by plots of beautiful flowers, a serpent shaped driveway wending its way up to the front door, and beyond on the side a vegetable garden, shut off from the front by a thick hedge. In summer it was a veritable "Garden of Eden" but in winter a regular "bleak house" in appearance, although the interior of the house was cosy. The house was so solidly built that nothing but an upheaval could shake it.

In summer we came home for the holidays and one summer was particularly impressed upon my memory as we had a very heavy storm which blew down many trees and killed many cattle.

Well do I remember sitting away back in the farthest corner of my father's library with my heart in my mouth, listening to the perpetual peals of thunder and watching the flashes of lightning until my eyes ached. Then there was the swish, swish of the trees as they tossed back and forth and the whistling of the wind through the keyholes.

Towards dusk the storm abated, the thunder rumbled in the distance and occasional flashes of lightning could be seen against the black receding clouds, and we all thought the storm was over and came out to breathe the fresh air and stretch our stiff limbs. But the respite was short. The wind changed and worked up into a fresh gale and the rain battered against the windows with merciless force, and not until early morning did the storm pass. But what a morning! The sun rose in a clear sky, the birds whistled the music of nature, which seemed to say, "God's in His Heaven, all's right with the world."

By noon the whole village was in a buzz of excitement over the damage done by the storm. Macfadyen had lost three cows by lightning and two by drowning in the river. Dunlop's barn was struck by lightning and burned to the ground, and the village school was damaged by a fallen tree; but worst of all, Rab McCutcheon and his two sons had seen a ghost near the ruins of Blair's farm which was destroyed by fire three years previously, leaving the two gable walls standing and a portion of the roof over the east gable where the chimney stood. The farm house stood on a rising piece of ground about 100 yards off the main road to Kirkmichael, and looked very bleak and forbidding.

I was on my way to McCutcheon's grocery shop on an errand for my mother and was attracted by a group of village worthies standing near McCutcheon's door listening to Rab's account of the adventure of himself and two sons with the ghost at Blair's farm. When I joined the throng Rab was saying: (I will modify the vernacular as it could not be understood by the average reader.) "We were driving doon frae Kirkmichael last night and reached Blair's farm aboot 9 o'clock. It was pitch dark and too stormy to licht our lamp. We drove slowly as we coudna see as far aheed as the mare's tail. As we neared Blair's farm we saw bricht licht in the ruins and dark figures passing back and forth, but when we came nearer we heard the rattling of chains and saw a great white ghost, bout eight feet high, swaying back and forth and throwing up its arms. The mare shied to one side of the road, took the bit in its teeth and bolted and it was only after a race of twa miles that I got her under control by talking soothingly to her." Rab took a long breath and then exclaimed: "Hecht man! it was an awful sicht."

Jim McWhirter, the Free Kirk Elder, shook his head and said: "It seems tae me, Rab, that the speerit of old drunken Blair is haunting the place where he drank himself to deeth; the rattling of chains were the chains of hell and the shadows the evil speerits from hell which follow him." McWhirter shook his sanctimonious old head as if he had made a very learned remark. Some shook their heads and some laughed, but they all in their hearts feared the ghost more or less. John Darroch, who had been educated at Ayr High School, laughed and said: "Ah, McWhirter shame tae ye, can't ye forget the ten shillings Blair owed ye when he deed?" "Well," says McWhirter, "will ye go with me the nicht to Blair's farm tae see the ghost?" "Ah will that," says Darroch. Two others agreed to go (I forget their names now.) They were all to meet at 10 o'clock and drive in McWhirter's gig.

The little crowd dispersed and I completed my errand and ran home quickly to mother to tell her all about the ghost. I was scared to death and mother asked me what was wrong. I told her all about it. Mother laughed and said it was a "mental delusion" and told me to run away and play as there were no such things as ghosts. I did run away and play but still thought about the ghost and could not quite see that a "mental delusion" sounded any less gruesome than "ghost." I asked my big brother Fred what a "mental delusion" was, and he, not wanting to admit he did not know, said: "When we come home from school to have a holiday and have to saw wood or weed the garden every morning, our holiday is a "mental delusion." With that he continued to saw viciously, but I, not being satisfied wandered round to the kitchen door where I met Mrs. McNab, the washerwoman. I asked her what a "mental delusion" was and she laughed and said: "Weel laddie, I dinna ken, but mebbe its brain fever," which seemed to me so reasonable that I accepted the definition.

Well, to cut a long story short, the four men went to Blair's farm that night and saw the same spectacle, the bright light, the moving dark figures and the monster white ghost which threw its arms in the air and rattled its chains. Three of the men took to their heels at the first glimpse of the ghost, but Darroch stood his ground, his hair standing on end and his nails digging into the palms of his hands; but when the ghost rattled its chains and threw its great arms high in the air, it was too much for Darroch, he took to his heels and didn't stop until he reached the gig, half a mile down the road. The other three men were huddled in the gig, and Darroch jumped in and drove rapidly back to the village. Not a word was spoken the whole way back.

They told such a tale next day that the whole village was stirred up about it and a deputation came to see my father and asked him what to do. Father listened to them patiently and said it was no doubt some perfectly natural cause which seemed supernatural in the dark; but as he would be riding home late that night from Kirkmichael he would stop and investigate the ghost. They beseeched my father not to go alone but father smiled and said: "No one is ever alone if he is a good Christian." (I remember distinctly the quotation he used) "You know what Christ said: 'Fear not for I am with you always.'"

Father hired McCulloch's black stallion to ride to Kirkmichael, and many faces could be seen, as he rode through the village, peering out of windows watching him take what they thought was "his last ride" and as evening began to close the village housewives gathered on each others doorsteps to talk about the meenister's ride home. Everything was quiet till about 9 o'clock that night when the whole village was seized with a sudden terror—McCulloch's black stallion raced through the village riderless, and into its stable, where it was trembling in every limb and covered with foam. Of course exaggerated stories spread thick and fast. Some said the ghost rode the horse carrying the minister's head, others that a black headless figure was riding the horse before the village was reached; but no one ventured to go and search for the minister. Then rumor spread that another wild horse was coming down the road and everyone scurried into their cottages and bolted their doors, and sure enough a horse and dog-cart did race through the village, but it happened to be some drunken fishermen who were returning from the market and were not over particular how fast they drove their poor nag, but of course it was all attributed to the ghost.

The news reached the manse of the returned riderless horse and mother was greatly worried in case an accident had happened to father and would have gone herself to search for him, but could not leave the children as the maid was scared to death to stay alone in the house. However, in a couple of hours father arrived home safely, apparently none the worse for the venture, as his foot was firm and quick on the gravel walk leading up to the front door.

Next morning at breakfast father related his encounter with the ghost, and his strong sense of humor made him shake with laughter and the tears pour down his cheeks, as they always did when he laughed heartily. Father said: "As I approached Blair's farm I saw a bright light and heard the rattling of chains and my horse became so restive that I had to dismount and lead him. As we passed near the ghost appeared, threw up his arms and rattled its chains, and before I knew where I was my horse shied, and with one bound tore the reins out of my hands and dashed down the road. It being useless to try and catch my horse I at once jumped the ditch at the side of the road and crept through an opening in the hedge into the field between me and Blair's house. The ghost was standing quite still when I approached and puzzled me and it was so dark that I could not make out what it was. Then all of a sudden it threw up its arms, rattled its chains and thundered on the ground—and neighed—it was a horse. I approached the horse and found some gypsies camping there who told me they were helping with the harvest on the neighboring farms. They had a white horse and had to keep the harness on him to prevent him from wandering, and of course each time he threw up his head to shift the collar on his neck the chains rattled." Then father had another fit of laughter exuding tears galore. When he sobered down mother said with a smile: "John, do be careful not to laugh when you tell the villagers."

"There's luck in finding a horseshoe," said Miss Quotes.

Behold, Our God Is Here!

Have you stood on the beach at dawn
  And watched the approach of day?
Have you seen the tints of morn
  Or the rainbow in the spray?
Have you heard the birds a-singing
  From their perch in the lofty trees?
Have you heard the woods a-ringing
  With the song of the birds and bees?
Have you stood by violets in bloom
  And breathed their fragrance rare?
Have you seen a rising silver moon
  Or felt the fluff of baby hair?
Have you wandered in the fields at night
  With the stars so bright o'erhead?
Have you seen the world all filled with light
  With nothing to fear or dread?
Have you seen and felt all these
  From your post on this mundane sphere?
Then cry aloud as you bow your knees:
  "Behold, our God is here!"

WILLIAM JUSTICE.

Why he Died Rich.

Not long ago an old fellow died out in Kansas, leaving a barrel of money. He had a household of children—ten or a dozen. It cost considerable to feed them. The old man evolved a scheme. He would say to the children in the evening, "Now, how many of you will take a dime and go to bed without supper?" They all took dimes and went to bed hungry. Next morning the old man would say, "Now, children, how many of you will give me a dime for a nice, warm breakfast?" And, of course, they would all cough up their dimes. The old man thus saved the cost of the children's supper. This was just one of his schemes; he had others. That's why he died rich.—[Boston Transcript.

SENATOR CALDER said at a luncheon in Brooklyn:

"Prohibition is not being enforced. We hear a lot of loud talk about the dryness of our cities, and this loud talk but drowns the pop of corks, the clink of glasses and much bacchanalian laughter.

"The thing reminds me of a Brooklyn girl. This girl's father sat on his doorstep with a neighbor. The neighbor shouted:

"'Say, Bill, is that your Helen playin' the piano in there?'

"'What say? Speak louder,' roared Bill.

"The neighbor roared back:

"'Is that your Helen playin' the piano?'

"'Sure is? Some little player, ain't she?'

"'Yes, but'—the neighbor's face was red with exertion—'but does she always play as all-fired loud as that, Bill?'

"'Of course not,' said Bill. And he explained:

"'You see, she's got her feller in the parlor, and she's poundin' out that loud music so as to drown the sound of her mother washin' the dishes and growlin' in the kitchen.'"

One Point of View.

THE hundred or more spurious Renoirs that have recently been foisted on the millionaire art collectors of America led Robert Henri to say at a Fifth avenue dinner party:

"These millionaire dupes all claim to be connoisseurs, too. I'm afraid, though, that as a matter of fact they are only connoisseurs in the sense in which Vandyke Brown employs the word.

"'What's a connoisseur, pop?' Vandyke's little son once asked him.

"'Well, Willie,' Van answered, 'did you notice the fat gentleman with the enormous diamond studs at my studio tea last week?'

"'The one with the sealskin overcoat who ate his cake with his knife? Oh, yes, I noticed him,' said Willie.

"'Well, son, he is a connoisseur.'

"'But how do you know he is a connoisseur, pop?'

"'By his actions, son.'

"'His actions?'

"'Yes, his actions. The other guests at my studio tea drank my orange pekoe, smoked my Egyptian cigarettes, devoured my foie gras sandwiches and took leave. But he—he, son, bought a picture.'"

"YOU can't argue with a Red. Arguing with a Red is like—well, it's like telling a prohibitionist a joke."

The speaker was Adolph Hellerman, the ice cream king of San Francisco. Mr. Hellerman was formerly a brewer of steam beer.

"I told a prohibitionist a joke the other day," he went on. "The poor fish couldn't see it, so finally I said:

"'By gosh, to get a joke into that head of yours, I'd have to fire it out of a shotgun.'

"'Humph,' said the prohibitionist, 'how could not get a joke into a gun?'"

Mr. Hellerman laughed scornfully; then he resumed:

"I told another prohibitionist afterwards about his thick friend.

"'He couldn't see a joke,' I said, 'and when I told him it ought to be fired into his head out of a gun he asked me how on earth I could ever get a joke inside a gun.'

"The second prohibitionist grinned at me when he heard this.

"'He had you there, Mr. Hellerman,' he said. 'Ha, ha, ha! He had you there!'"

Over the Top.

GOING uptown in a Broadway (New York) subway express, a short pudgy man with a package about one foot high clutched between his knees gave the pasengers a surprise that would be worth an increase of fare to at least 7 cents if it would be repeated at regular intervals.

Sitting next to the stranger was a professional looking passenger recognized as former United States Senator James A. O'Gorman.

The train was rapidly approaching Times Square Station and the oscillating motion caused something to happen inside the package. Without the slightest warning there was a loud report as though a fuse had blown out. But the train did not stop.

All the passengers, however, understood the situation at once. For the cork hit the roof of the car and rebounded into the lap of a woman who sat directly across the aisle. The bottle sailed out of its wrappings and there was a spiral gush of foam which drenched the car windows and the clothing of half a dozen passengers, including the coat sleeve of Senator O'Gorman.

The odor was deliciously alcoholic.

The man who owned this wasted treasure ran from the train as soon as it drew into Times Square Station. Senator O'Gorman, who has both dignity and an appreciative sense of humor, did not quit laughing until he reached One Hundred and Tenth street.

Leang Mow, a Chief of the Piute Indians.

BY JOHN L. VON BLON.

Leang Mow on the doorstep of his restaurant at Bishop, Cal., with a group of his Ppente friends.

THE most daring fictionists, including even the writers of the wildest scenarios, never have had the temerity to suggest such an anomaly as a Chinese leader of an Indian tribe. It would seem a bit too much for the imagination to encompass. Yet here is the real thing, demonstrating again that fact is more novel than fabrication, for the de facto chief of the 1400 Piutes of Eastern California is Leang Mow, a bland, smiling, forceful and resourceful son of the Flowery Kingdom He goes further than that—he is a father to the primitive natives of a land in which he is an alien. He counsels, feeds, clothes, marries and buries them, which surely is all anybody could do aside from keeping them out of jail. I doubt that there is a stranger relationship in the world than that between this Celestial and these aboriginal Americans. It is an undying bond of pure affection between representatives of the ancient orient and occident. We paleface newcomers cannot comprehend it. Is it the tie of racial kinship, a link between ancient continents of both hemispheres? Some ethnologists will say "yes;" others as emphatically "no."

Eight thousand Piutes remain. Their habitat is Western Nevada and Eastern California. Those in the Golden State comprise three bands—the Mono Lake, Owens Valley and Olancha—and they are scattered several hundred miles along the sunrise side of the Sierra Nevadas, mostly in Inyo county. The principal center of that rich farm and mineral region is Bishop, a modern white man's city and also Indian headquarters. There the remarkable Mow, yellow chieftain of red subjects, benevolently holds forth. There, also, is the government Indian school. Practically every one of the 1400 Piutes not too old or too young to know anything knows Mow. Not half of them are acquainted with any one official or employee of the United States Indian service. They travel all the way from Death Valley, 150 miles, to visit the old Chinaman. And he will go far to see any of them, especially if they be in distress. He looks upon them as a downtrodden people and possibly is doing more than any other agency for their uplift.

Mow is 63 years of age, and has been forty-three years in the western mining country. He is rated a wealthy man, with varied interests in two States. In Bishop, long his home, he conducts an unpretentious restaurant and lunch counter and has by far the largest business of its kind among numerous white rivals. This is the haven—heaven if you like—of the Piutes. He feeds them at less than the regular rates, free if they are broke—a somewhat chronic affliction. For the children's meals he never charges. Usually he gives them money for the picture-show as an after-meal treat. He is as popular with the papooses as with their elders. In connection with the eating-house he has fitted up a comfortable rest and dining-room exclusively for squaws, girls and kiddies, one of the attractions of which is a phonograph (working overtime) and hundreds of records. There is no intrusion. Were the Mayor of the city to try to set foot into that room he'd be bounced out on his head. Mow's rules are infrangible.

If an Indian needs money for any useful purpose, such as buying a horse or wagon or suit of clothes, Mow will lend him $50 or $100 without hesitation, exact no interest, and set no time limit. Invariably he gets it back in due course, if he desires it; but in many instances, where sickness or other causes would make repayment a hardship, he gives outright. And this amounts to thousands of dollars yearly. When red tape prevents immediate response to a sick call on the part of the government doctor the Chinaman will send a physician in a hurry at his expense. When an Indian dies he generally buys the coffin and pays for the funeral and there's nothing cheap about it. No matter what an Indian's trouble is, provided it is not due to drink, Mow will come to the rescue. But he always has been bitterly opposed to intoxicants of all kinds and drugs. Cards and games of chance he does not tolerate, whereas the average Chinese is the most inveterate gambler on earth. Because of his determined stand on these and other moral issues a few bad bucks oppose him. These are their own enemies.

Mow and the Indians visit much together. Every day he is surrounded by groups of them on the steps in front of his place of business in the city's main street. There is much joking and loud laughter. He doesn't know their language nor they his, but there appears to be a striking similarity in the two tongues. They get along understandingly in "pidgin" English. He never undertakes to boss them and does not deal with them collectively, but visits a powerful and magnetic individual influence which the Indian bureau could not break. When a festival is proposed, and that is often, it first is discussed with this yellow oracle, who promptly sanctions or disapproves and makes clear his reasons. If the latter they drop it. If his verdict be favorable the subject is presented to the proper authorities and it's a pretty safe bet that it will be pulled off with or without their consent; but he strives for observance of laws and regulations although comparatively few of the Piutes actually come within the Indian bureau's jurisdiction. And that doesn't always do them good.

Generosity is the dominant trait of this "heathen," whose good deeds would put many an assumptive "Christian" to shame. He is ever ready to aid any good cause. Every Christmas he puts up much of the money for a number of celebrations and useful gifts to hundreds of children and grownups. He is a faithful member of the Presbyterian mission—faithful as he is to everything and everyone worthy. He is a member of the Bishop Chamber of Commerce and a community booster. His reputation is the same all the years he has been in the United States. He never has been known to take advantage of any person, financially or otherwise, though he has the keen commercial instinct of his race. His forte is giving, wherefore he also receives.

Romance came into Mow's life but to sadden and he never married. Some years ago he fell deeply in love with a beautiful Piute maiden of 16, an age at which the Indian girls reach virtual maturity. He had known her from babyhood and dandled her while she still was carried in a pretty wicker basket on her mother's back. She reciprocated his fondness, had been the recipient of gifts which only wealth can procure, and plans were under way for such a wedding as the valley never had known. Then a young brave of another band happened along, the intended bride forsook Mow, and the charming story was spoiled. He never will recover from the blow, but his faith in her people remains unshaken. It is a singular fact that a Chinese can legally marry an Indian, and so can a negro; and that though a Chinese cannot legally carry a Caucasian an Indian can.

FIVE FOOT TEN FROM KANSAS.

have to go . . . I'd like to go back to Los Angeles. You see she's my wife. I'd like to see that she's comfortable."

"I'm sailing tomorrow for San Pedro on the City of Para," I told him. "Let me have your address there."

He gave it to me. "I'll call and see how she is getting on," I told him.

"I wish you would," he responded duly. "Tell her—you might see whether she—well, she might make another voyage with me."

Three weeks later I landed in San Pedro and took the trolley for Los Angeles. In my hand I held a bit of paper with 11,171 Figueroa street written on it in a cramped hand. That street, I knew, is one of the longest in the world. At Third and Main streets I caught a taxi. Forty-five minutes later I was ringing the bell of a pleasant-looking bungalow. The door was opened by a woman at least five-foot-ten. She blushed when she saw me.

"My husband sent me a wireless about you," she said quietly. "Will you come in?"

"I don't know," I replied. "What did he say?"

She pulled a bluish-white paper from her bodice, and handed it to me. It read:

SS. Maurice via San Juan del Sur.
Mrs. Harry Mallow:
Friend from Panama will arrive SS. Para.
MALLOW.

I reread it and then looked at the magnificent creature before me. She was dressed in green.

"He has gone to Callao," I said briefly. "He will be in Honolulu in ten days, he needs you."

"Is he sick?" she demanded anxiously.

"He is a fool," I replied. "I am sailing for the islands day after tomorrow. Will you come with me and meet him?"

Womanlike she glanced back at the room opening into the hallway. She seemed to consider a great many things. Then she said curtly, "I'll go, of course. Will you—?"

"I'll book you on the Ventura," I told her. "I'll be here at 9 o'clock day after tomorrow and take you down."

She dipped into housewifely details of what she must do in the meanwhile. I listened. She spoke vaguely of arrangements about the house. I broke in:

"Madam, you must meet him in Honolulu. I give you my word your husband is in need of you."

"I'll go anyway," she sighed. The door closed behind me.

Prompt to the minute I called for her two days later. She had but one trunk and a couple of suit cases.

"Most of my stuff is aboard the Maurice," she told me.

Once aboard the Ventura she vanished. Eight days later she touched me on the arm. "He's not in yet," she whispered.

I pointed to a smudge of smoke down Molokai channel. "That's him coming," I said.

"But he won't know I'm here!" she breathed.

"He's thinking of you," I replied. "Go to the Moana down at Waikiki, and I'll meet him."

The liner docked and she went off in a hack, a great figure of a woman, with her slender hand in her lap. I went to George's and had an alligator pear salad. Then I wandered down to Wilder's wharf and watched the Maurice berth. Mallow stared at me wonderingly when he came ashore with his papers for the customhouse.

"I don't see how you came—"

"Ask no questions," I responded. "I saw your wife. She is well and sends her love to you."

He stiffened. "She was quite comfortable?" he said quietly.

"Perfectly," I answered him. "How soon will you be through. Come and have a swim at Waikiki."

He considered this thoughtfully. At last, as we were entering the customshouse, he spoke. "Yes . . . you know I met her there. . . "

So at dusk we drove to Moana. The tide was in and the beach was covered with bathers. He left me to get a bathing suit. I feed the driver and reached the hotel a minute later. I found her seated in the big lounge, her eyes filled with fear.

"Into your bathing clothes!" I said sharply! "We are going for a swim."

Without a word she retired, her supple figure attracting all eyes.

I met her on the beach. "Now for the reef," I said as I waded in.

She swam powerfully, breasting the breakers as they roared in, with absolute aplomb. Soon we were out where the waves did not break. I saw the shimmer of her white body as she dived. Then I distinguished another figure ahead. I recognized the master of the Maurice. He was swimming slowly, looking always sunward as he topped a swell. I touched her arm,

"There he is—your husband," I said.

She trod water a moment and stared. Then she dived and I fought a crested swell, ducked under a canoe that was rushing inshore and turned. On the beach I sat long, drying out in the tepid air that eddied in the bight. It was quite dark when two figures emerged from the water. They did not see me. They were both tall. The woman spoke in a broken voice:

"You never could understand."

He answered her triumphantly.

Comparison of Ages.

Sparrows can live to be forty years old. A horse does not live much more than twenty-seven years. Cats get to be about thirteen years old. The tortoise is supposed to live to be between 300 and 400 years old. Some persons say toads can live forever, but, of course, that has not been proved, though certainly they live to an exceedingly great age. Both an eagle and a crow have been known to live to be 100, but the wren lives only about three years. An elephant's lifetime is about 100 years, but he isn't regarded as grown up until he is about twenty-five years old.

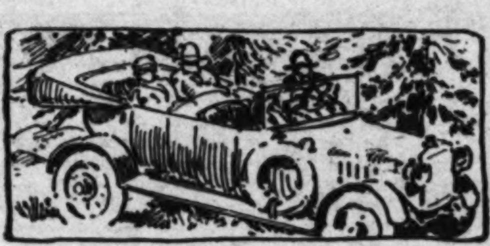
DOWN PINE

by Zono



"It's a Passing Fad" (the Automobile,) Said Binney, but He Found It Wasn't.

IT WAS the old tragedy of the rise of the automobile industry which interrupted the life of Binney Holley. When the first garage was opened in Pine Bluff Binney had his livery barn half paid for and was looking about for a house. After that it was to be Lottie Moody forever, if Binney had his way.

"This automobile business is going to put a crimp into you, Binney," I told him.

"It's a passin' fad," said Binney. "Seen my new grays?"

If Lottie Moody had married him then they would have faced together that which followed. But in the meantime Aaron Hawley, the new garage man, had arrived, and from the first he was seen in no home in Pine Bluff save Lottie's home on Morning Glory street. Manifestly Lottie liked flashing about in Aaron's brown roadster, and by the look of all she liked Aaron, too. So did her mother, who was sometimes fitted into the roadster with them. And this Lottie complication so worried Binney that his business situation burst upon him almost unaware. From the understanding that he was merely turning over his money every month he woke one day to the understanding that he was sitting in his livery stable door alone a good part of the time, while his overhead slowly ate him up.

"Not so cussed slow, either," he said to me.

He was wide eyed as he said it, like a little boy amazed that the universe had not been laid in his hand, cozy, like an apple. It was in those days that the look of astonishment settled permanently in his pointed blue eyes and even upon his curly brown pompadour.

Binney was the son of Mary Holley, who kept the little boarding house by the drawbridge, where for ten years now I have lived my so-called life. I'm not much—just a worn-out book-keeper who was always going to and never did. Mary Holley was scraping along as best she could, wishing that one chop would serve two, and Binney had been helping her as he was able, out of his livery business. She had another son—Corney—but Corney had gone with Kittler's circus, and we saw him only once in two years when the show struck Pine Bluff way. Corney was always writing home about all that he was going to do for her, but he never did it, and the closing of Binney's livery business was pretty hard on her.

On the afternoon that Binney's sale was begun I stood talking with him among his buggies and cutters, all drawn up and somehow indecently exposed on the little triangle before his stable.

"I can't understand it, Jake," he said to me. "Why, wouldn't you have said that horses was staple, like—like sugar? Heavenly day, how could folks ever stop using horses?—"

He shook his head, gave it up, stared down the street, and averted his gaze with a snap. It was too bad of Aaron Hawley, in his new brown roadster, to drive by Binney's door in the very hour of discomfiture—with Lottie Moody and her mother tucked in the seat.

I have a memory gallery full of Lottie Moody as she looked that day—something blue and ruffled on her, a hat tilted and blue, cheeks like sunrise, when sunrises look as good as her cheeks did. Her mother was a crisp little thing too—one of them widows that wear pale pink and pale blue cut quite short. I couldn't blame Binney when he sank down on the old three-seated rig and showed clean discouraged.

"Ain't it queer, Jake," he says to me, "how some fellows seem to run all to luck while others—"

"How'd you think that up?" I says sarcastic. "You buck up and find you a new business. You made one go—and the guy that can make one thing go can most generally always shove another."

"What would I go into, tell me that?" says Binney simple.

What would he? I'd never known of his doing a thing in his life but to be with horses. He'd sit and hold the head of a sick horse all night long; but what else he knew, I gave it up.

"Try the garage business yourself," I said.

"I don't know a nut from a flange when it comes to machinery," he says, "I had a fellow trying to explain to me about the gears, and it sounded like a recipe. Have you ever looked in the dash of one of them things? I could no more fool with the electricity in there than I could talk to a wireless."

"Lots of folks," I says, "that don't know a nut from a flange are running cars and taking their families out Sundays."

"Not me," says Binney. "The streets ain't laid out wide enough yet for one to drive the darned things."

"Don't drive 'em. Rent 'em," says I, resourceful.

"No, sir," says Binney. "When I have a business I knew all about that business, egg and bird. I won't operate where I'm ignorant."

"Binney," I says, "what do you know?"

"I know horses," says he, "and there ain't any other occupation I'm interested in, without it's the graveyard," says he, mournful. Poor little dud, I felt bad for him.

"Tomorrow," says he, "my horses go. All but one—I'm going to keep White Fox to sell to the circus folks when they come next month. I'd ought to sell her big. . . ." He stopped and swore about it, softly.

"Best sell White Fox," I says hearty. "She ain't fit for a sane man to drive."

In fact, driving Binney's White Fox was my favorite nightmare. I used to wake up stone cold, sometimes, dreaming I was behind that colt with the reins.

"But the circus folks shan't have her," said Binney, "till after their performance here, Jake. Because I'm going to drive Lottie to that show, afternoon and evening. She's promised me that. And Lottie loves that horse—" He stopped again.

Then he came close to me, and his round little face was saddened to egg shape.

"It ain't only Lottie and the business," he says. "I'm worried about my mother, too. She ain't got the house paid for yet—there's five hundred to pay pretty soon now. We've wrote to Corney to see what he can do—but I ain't much hopes out of Corney."

"Corney'll be here with the circus, won't he?" I says. "He'll think up some way."

"That's what I thought," said Binney. "I don't believe he'd come right here to town without doing something for ma. Corney's awful fond of ma. . . ."

The next day, when his horses were to be sold, Binney and White Fox went off in the country.

"Get what you can," he said to the auctioneer, "and make 'em take 'em. I ain't going to be anywhere around."

That night, he told me afterward, when he came back, he went to Morning Glory street to see Lottie. He told her what he had to start in on and told her this thing more. That it was all one to him what he did now that horses were out of the question, and he'd try to go into any business that she thought she'd enjoy being the wife of—or words to that effect—if only she would wait for him "till he had a nice start."

I asked him pointblank what she said.

"She didn't say," said Binney, "but she give me to understand."

"That's the best kind," says I. "That is, it is if it is."

"Aaron Hawley came walking in, though—right while I was there," says Binney, dark.

But evidently Binney thought he had a footing, and he set out to find himself some work. Right there in Pine Bluff, mind you; you couldn't get Binney off up to the city with that motor garage chap loose in town. No, Binney made up his mind to fight on his own field.

I've seen men in the city looking for work—seen them reading want ads, and lined up in front of agencies, and marching in and out of shops, with a slanting look—a spectacle which some day we'll see no more and shall be ashamed also to remember. But I give you my word that I've seen nothing in the city to compare with Binney looking for a job in Pine lub. Pine Bluff has three thousand folks in it, and every applicant for a job is Pussy, with no corner till he makes one.

"Jake," Binney said at the end of the first two weeks of this. "It's going to be harder than I thought."

"Go on," I says, "Binney. Men have got jobs before now."

"Not me," says Binney, "I was born on my job."

That was true enough—his father before him had kept the Pine Bluff livery.

"Try some more."

"I have!"

"Well, Morning Glory street—don't that cheer you up?"

Binney shifted. "I ain't seen Lottie for two weeks," he owned. "Her mother sort o' riled me," he explained, "and I told them the very next time I come to the house I'd have a nice opening to hand to Lottie or I wouldn't come."

"And nothing's opened?"

"How'd you guess?" says Binney, with his nice, one-sided grin.

As a matter of fact, however, two-three things did open.

"Nate Shay wants me to go in with him and start a restaurant," Binney told me. "I don't know anything about a restaurant and Nate don't either, but he says everybody's got to eat and his wife'll do the cooking, and what more do we need?"

"And you don't like that?"

Binney said no, with a short word previous. "Dishes and grub," says Binney. "What kind of a life is that?"

"Lottie might like taking her meals out," I suggested. "They say women do."

"Well," said Binney, "I wouldn't. Why, man, one of the things I'm getting married for is to have a little table, with a lamp hanging over it—" His look grew dreamy and he said no more.

Then the lumber yard offered him something, with a chance to work up.

"I thought mebbe," said Binney, "I could stand it, and I took out and walked through the yard. Heavenly day, but it felt dead in there—why, nothin' knew you was around! Lumber—piles of lumber, and do them piles know when you come into the yard? S'pose they'd nicker at you, do you?"

Meanwhile Pine Bluff was treated to alternate sights. One night it'd be the brown roadster glancing along, Aaron Hawley slouched down careless and gentlemanlike at the wheel, Lottie, and often as not Lottie's mother, sitting alongside. Hawley was a nice enough fellow, but we all liked best the other nights when it'd be Lottie and Binney and White Fox—a handsome sight. A prancing, snowy thing was White Fox—"satin was her coat and silk was her mane," as the feller says, and pride was in every inch of her arched neck. Pink nose and lively eye, she had, and all the circus attributes. In his cart with yellow wheels Binney would sit up like dukes and Lottie—somehow the girl always seemed to banner herself out, blue or rosy red like a tulip.

"You two make a glorious spectacle," I told Binney. "But I wouldn't drive that horse of yours for golden ducats—not knowing a ducat's Christian denomination, either."

Meanwhile also Pine Bluff had bloomed out in circus posters abundant. Even Mrs. Holley brightened up 'count of Corney coming home. He'd written that he'd see what he could do about the money when he got there and that always sounds grand, no matter how often it is that it ain't.

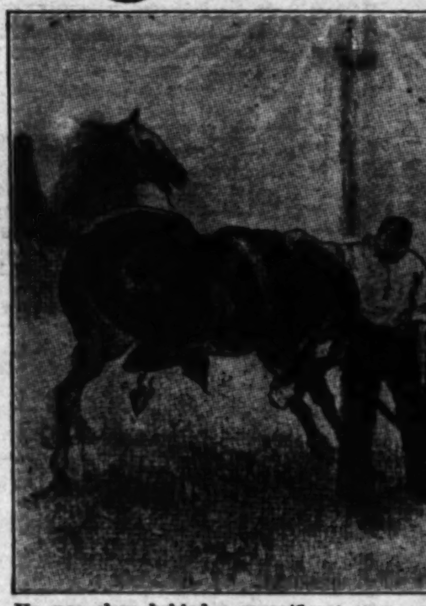
The day before the circus was to be with us I was tramping it and Binney overtook me coming home. White Fox walking, for a wonder, and Binney sitting with his head down and his eyebrows up. He never saw me until I hailed him and invited myself to ride.

"See here," I said, "you looking for a job down on the swale or what?"

"Say," says Binney, not turning my way. "Just now I drove down to the silica plant—thought mebbe they'd need a man, but they didn't, thank God. And what do you think? Two horses pasturing on the Plow place. Danged if they didn't both canter up to the fence and whinner. Danged if it wasn't the grays. . . ."

"They knew you?"

"Of course they would," said Binney. "Say, I sat on that rail fence and rubbed noses till they sent the hired man out to see what was the matter. I give Plow an offer, but he wouldn't listen—"



He was close behind a magnificent gray, a leg, yet held his head d

"An offer! What were you going to do with the grays?"

"I dunno," said Binney, "but I'll tell you something I do know. I'll be jumped up if I take any job that ain't got a hoss in it."

"So, it's come to that," says I. "You'd rather have a horse to take care of than Lottie. Don't you love her, man?"

He looked up at me then—I have never seen such a depth of devotion in any man's eyes.

"It ain't that," he said. "I love her, but I can't take care of her unless I can do it with horses. I don't know enough any other way. You don't understand," he cried fiercely. "When I'm with 'em I feel like somebody—I am somebody! They know me—I can work 'em like—like they were stuff to work with. But every place else I ain't me—I tell you, I ain't me! I couldn't keep Lottie loving me if I had to work like that."

"Binney," I says, "this minute thousands of grocers and salesmen and what not are hurrying home from a job that ain't them, either, to some woman that knows their job ain't bringing out the best in them and yet that it's helping them to be men, anyway. Are you and Lottie any better than they are?"

Binney swept me aside simply. "It's different with a man," he said, "when he likes horses."

And I see then that this was just naturally something that life and Binney would have to work out together. Or else get it worked out for them, as now and then occurs.

Kittler's Combined Great Western Tent and Animal Shows were scheduled for Pine Bluff solely because the proprietor had been born there. There was no reason on earth for that sparkling collection to be unloaded at our town, as it was one August morning, save that old Kittler himself, as a little boy, had held his first circus in a Pine Bluff backyard. Every other year Kittler's Shows favored us, and this was the year.

They were late in getting in, so late that they dressed in their cars and paraded through town to the fair grounds where the show was to be, arriving there not above an hour before the show was to open.

Corney Holley hadn't been in the parade, when it passed his mother's house. We looked for him, sitting in a little cart with one of the silk hat men, as he had been doing late years, but he wasn't there. I recollect I was just starting out of the house for the afternoon's performance when I met Corney coming into his mother's yard. He wasn't looking altogether like himself I thought, and seemed to want to get away from me when I speak to him. I let him go in alone to meet his mother, and I kept on down to the circus grounds.

I'd got within a block or two of the tents, and was just seeing them rise festive in the trees when I see a crowd coming toward me—forty or fifty strangers, larking along, all carrying handbags. Some of them were laughing, some were talking excitable, and when I met them I thought I could just about place them.

"Show folks," I says to myself. "As sure as the world, show folks. But why are they leaving the circus show? And with hand bags?"

It was too early for the crowds, too early for the bands, too early for the barkers, and yet the regular circus air was there just the same. Picture pennons blowing, concession folks rushing up and down, and an occasional rounded sounding roar from a lion. I walked down by the ticket wagon—I thought maybe I'd get a glimpse of old Kittler that I used to play circus with. And while I was looking for him somebody grabs me from the back and there, sure enough, was Kittler himself, square and pink and thick. But he no more saw my hand put out than as if I hadn't any. And I took it in that his face looked drawn and small, and his own hands opening and shutting at his sides.

"Don't you let on a word, Jake," he says, "but the whole bloomin' show has struck on me."

"Struck!" I yelled.

"S-h-h. Fifty of 'em," he said. "We're going ahead as far as we can—no use turning folks back till we got to. I've sent a man after 'em to reason with 'em—but if they get that 1:35 out o' town, like they're aiming to do, the show is dished for today. And it's all a mistake, too. . . ."

I pieced together what it was he was trying to tell, though he mixed it up something crazy to hear. It went about like this:

"I fired the best man I had—fired him," says he, "because I caught him with the goods. He's a man that had come right up from the horses, and I'd shoved him on because I thought he was God's kind. But I caught him with the goods—he shelled it out, five hundred plunks cash he had, mind you. I wouldn't have believed it of him on his own oath. And I give him his getaway and I kept my mouth shut—never told a soul. But the men, they didn't understand. And every one of my horsemen, from hostlers, to trick riders and their wives and kids that are in the show, they walked out on me and sent word they'd come back when I took him back. They've gone to the depot for the 1:35."

It came to me, quick as a flash, who it was had taken that five hundred and who he had taken it for.

"That was Corney," I said to him; "Corney Holley, that was."

"No it wasn't, either! Say, how'd you know that?" says Kittler. "Why, he's a good chap—I know that. He's God's kind, from the home town, but he's slipped up this time. I can't take him back, though—can't do it, you know. But I hate like blazes to," says Kitler. "Ain't that Binney over there?"

I looked and trotting through the gateway to the grounds was White Fox. The place excited her—she was prancing, arching, neighing. Sitting up proud on the seat of the yellow cart was Binney—but when I looked by his side, there was no Lottie. No little thing bannered out in blue and rosy red, same as a tulip. Binney was alone.

I forgot Kittler and his strike and his show, all together.

"Confound that garage chap," I said, and ran toward Binney.

Kittler was coming behind me, breathing like a boy. "I wonder," I heard him saying, "whether Binney couldn't do something."

Then somebody stopped Kittler about something and I went on alone to meet Binney.

"Boy!" I cried "Where's Lottie?"

"Hello, Jake!" he said, and seemed not to be listening to me.

"Didn't you go for her?" I asked.

"I went for her, all right," he says, "but at the gate stood Hawley's roadster—and Lottie and her mother all dressed up, standing beside it, and him handing her mother in. I drove by. I'm goin' to sell the mare and get out o' this town—what's that?" He asked, of a sudden.

"But are you sure they were going to the circus with him?" I cried.

"Looked something like it, didn't he?" said Binney, weary—and then I see him lift his head and listen. "Something's the matter down there," he said.

Kittler came breathing up, and began trying to ask Binney if he wouldn't take his horse and do something, but Binney didn't even hear him. I can see Binney now as he looked, peering over the heads of us, listening to a sound he knew.

"What's the trouble down there?" Binney shouted.

"Strike," said Kittler. "That's what I'm telling you—"

"No, no," cried Binney. "That! I hear horses!"

"Well, we couldn't feed 'em from the cars," says Kittler, querulous. "There wasn't time—it was way past time for anythin'. We watered 'em and paraded 'em down here, and then I tell you the men struck—they struck, and the horses haven't had a thing today—"

"Jake," says Binney, "take White Fox."

"Good Lord!" I said. "I can't manage White Fox."

"You've got to," he said, and jammed the lines in my hands and dropped to the ground and ran.

White Fox whinnied and tugged at the lines. I think it was that tugging that put back into me something of the days when a horse might have been to me what it was now to Binney. A tension went over me like daring and like fire, the will to risk, the will to win were in me.

"Kittler!" I shouted "I'll make that 1:35, I'll do something—something."

I leaped into the cart and White Fox sprang free and wheeled.

"Don't you give the boy away!" yelled Kittler. "Don't you peach on Corney." And I left him.

We were off. White Fox and I, who have driven no horse for years and who feel toward one, and toward this one in particular, much as Binney feels toward an automobile. As White Fox feels toward an automobile, too—she never has got over shying at them. I saw myself about to meet the full tide of the circus crowd now flowing down the Plank road, dust flying, horns honking . . . and I, a bewildered old man, driving a colt that I never could persuade myself had ever been broken at all.

And right in the gateway to the fair ground we had our first encounter, and survived it. A great brown glossy roadster all but winged us, but when we passed it and I looked into it what I saw there set her tingling so that I shouted at White Fox and even touched at the whip in the socket, a thing she loathed as a gad fly. She was off up the road, a white streak in the dust—and I behind her was actually laughing. For the brown roadster was Aaron Hawley's, and in it, sitting alone by Hawley's side, was Lottie Moody's mother.

We beat the world that half block back to town. That half mile back to the cottage by the drawbridge where Mary Holley lives. I tied White Fox at the gate and pounded up onto the porch, sick for fear she and Corney wouldn't be there. But they were. The outside door stood ajar—I saw the red cotton spread, the plants in the window, the cat in the sun, and Mary Holley, with her hat on, stood looking up, the way only mothers can look up at a son whom they haven't seen for two years. Corney was petting her, calling her tender names—even in that minute it came to me that everybody actually is to his mother what his mother thinks he is.

"Corney," I called out, and shook his hand again—a man of twenty-odd now, but a boy still to Mary Holley and me. "Why aren't you at the show?" I asked him—not a very delicate way to open the subject, but I didn't have much chance to step among my words.

"I've quit 'em," he says, easy—but his eyes flinched away from mine, and that gave me heart. If he had brassed it out, eyes and all, staring me down with the guilt in his heart, I should have given him up. But when his eyes locked ashamed, I took my courage up.

"Mary," I says, "I want to borrow Corney for a few minutes. You sit here and wait for us. Come along, son."

He came with me, laughing, but looking anxious, too I could see, under the laughs. Out by the horse block White Fox was pawing and neighing, and I says:

"Here—take the lines. I'd as soon drive an airplane. Drive up that way—and now you listen to me."

"What you getting at, Jake?" he says to me, uneasy, and twisted his handsome head around and looked at me—Corney had all the good looks for the family.

"Listen to me," I said. "It's 1:23 now—seven minutes of time for the show to begin. And up here at the end of the street are fifty or so of Kittler's show folks waiting to take the 1:35 mail. They've quit him—quit Kittler cold, because he's fired you."

"They have," he cried first. "How do you know he's—" he tried to go on with it. Then his face changed and he sat staring at White Fox's head.

"I know," I said, "I know what you took, and I know why you took it. And Kittler didn't give you away to the show folks—and what's more, he ain't going to. They don't know why you're fired. Now, I want you should go up to the depot with me and tell them what he fired you for, so's they'll go back down there in time to go on with Kittler's show."

"Oh my God!" said Corney. "I can't do that."

"Think it over," I says.

"My mother," he says; "my mother—"

I said: "It's for your mother, lad, as much as for you. Wouldn't it be death for her to have her house saved like this?"

"I could have paid Kittler back—" Corney began, but did not finish.

We drove up Pine Bluff main street without saying very much more. It seems to me, as I look back on it now, that every one of the little houses, lying peaceful and shut up, with all their folks gone to the circus, sort of stood out like each one was a person, listening to see what Corney'd do. I did say this:

"Corney," I said, "Kid—you're under 30 and I'm over 60, and I tell you this: There comes times when just five minutes, just one minute, settles your whole life. After that you go up or you drop down—no changing it. Well, I believe this is one of those minutes for you."

Still he didn't say anything. He drove on up the main street, and as we came near the depot corner my heart stood still for fear he'd drive by it. Stiller than ever it stood when I heard the 1:35 whistling for the crossing. I didn't know the boy—whether he was sound, or whether he'd cave like rotten fruit.

At last he began muttering at me, a kind of angry growl that I thought at first I wasn't going to catch. But I did get it, just as he turned White Fox at the depot corner.

"I ain't going to do it for that," he said. "It's because if Kittler's covered me like this I can't do him dirt on the show today. Can I?"

"No," says I; you can't." I ought to have said some more—I know that—but I'm such a dub I couldn't think of anything.

At the depot steps he jumped out of the cart, and I think he thought I wouldn't follow. But I squandered a quarter on somebody to hold White Fox, and tumbled out after him. The little Pine Bluff station lay baking in the sun—and trying to get into the shade of a six-inch cornice were the whole fifty or so of the show folks that were leaving.

When they saw Corney they began to shout—they thought he was going with them. And Corney—it seems he didn't do things by half, that kid. He didn't care who heard him now—station agent, one-legged baggage man, and all of them might listen. He ran up to his show folks and he shouts out:

"Don't you take that train! Don't you dare to take it! You get back down there and run off that show. Kittler fired me because I stole off'n him—but he wouldn't tell on me. You can't do him dirt, boys, even if I did. . . ."

The 1:35 was down by the roundhouse now, and I didn't know whether I could make them hear me, or not; but I know I had to try.

"The blamed little runt," I yelled at them. "He never told you he stole that money to help somebody else. Well, that's what he done—that's what he done. Get into them busses, quick!"

They swooped down on the busses, carrying Corney with them.

"Pick up his mother on the way," I managed to say to one of them.

For, as for White Fox and me, we had something else to do—or I thought we had. And we went tearing back down the street—by this time, I actually urging her on. Not down the main street now, but down Morning Glory 'street and right straight up to the door of Lottie Moody's house.

And it was as I thought. There on the porch, under the vines, I caught the blue of her dress, even before I got there. I drew up at the gate and the blue never moved—spunky blue it was, I could tell that by the look of it. So I shouted, more anxious than gallant:

"Mis Lottie—Miss Lottie! Come quick, I've got to take you to Binney."

She came running then. And I saw with satisfaction like pure delight that her face was pale and anxious at my words.

"What's happened," she cried, and as I didn't answer while I helped her in with one hand and ruled White Fox with the other, she says: "Not to Binney? Nothing's happened to Binney?" in a tone that made me feel the world is round, in spite of all the fault that's been found with the corners.

But I wasn't going to set her mind at rest too soon.

"No," I says; "no, not that. But Binney," I says, "has just about got the whole circus on his shoulders."

"Perhaps," she says, the little red spots showing in her cheeks, "that's why he didn't call for me, but drove right by."

"Perhaps it is," says I, dry; and said no more.

We were ahead of the busses, I could see that; and I wanted to be first to give the news to Kittler. The way White Fox went over the ground was something to make my slow blood run normal and my heart beat young. Yes, if ever you think life has passed you by, get hold of a piece of fire like White Fox—and let her out. That is, if you don't know any saner way.

The grounds were empty by now—they'd let the people into the tents. With the splendid audacity bred of the whole show business, they had them in there, with fifty of their performers missing—bound to hang on to the last thin edge before they confessed to failure and gave the money back. The band was blaring away inside, playing against time. And running unevenly toward me from the ticket wagon came Kittler, his face beginning to look like the moon in the last quarter.

"They're coming!" I yelled. "They're coming. The busses are bringing them.

I reined up, and he actually leaned limp

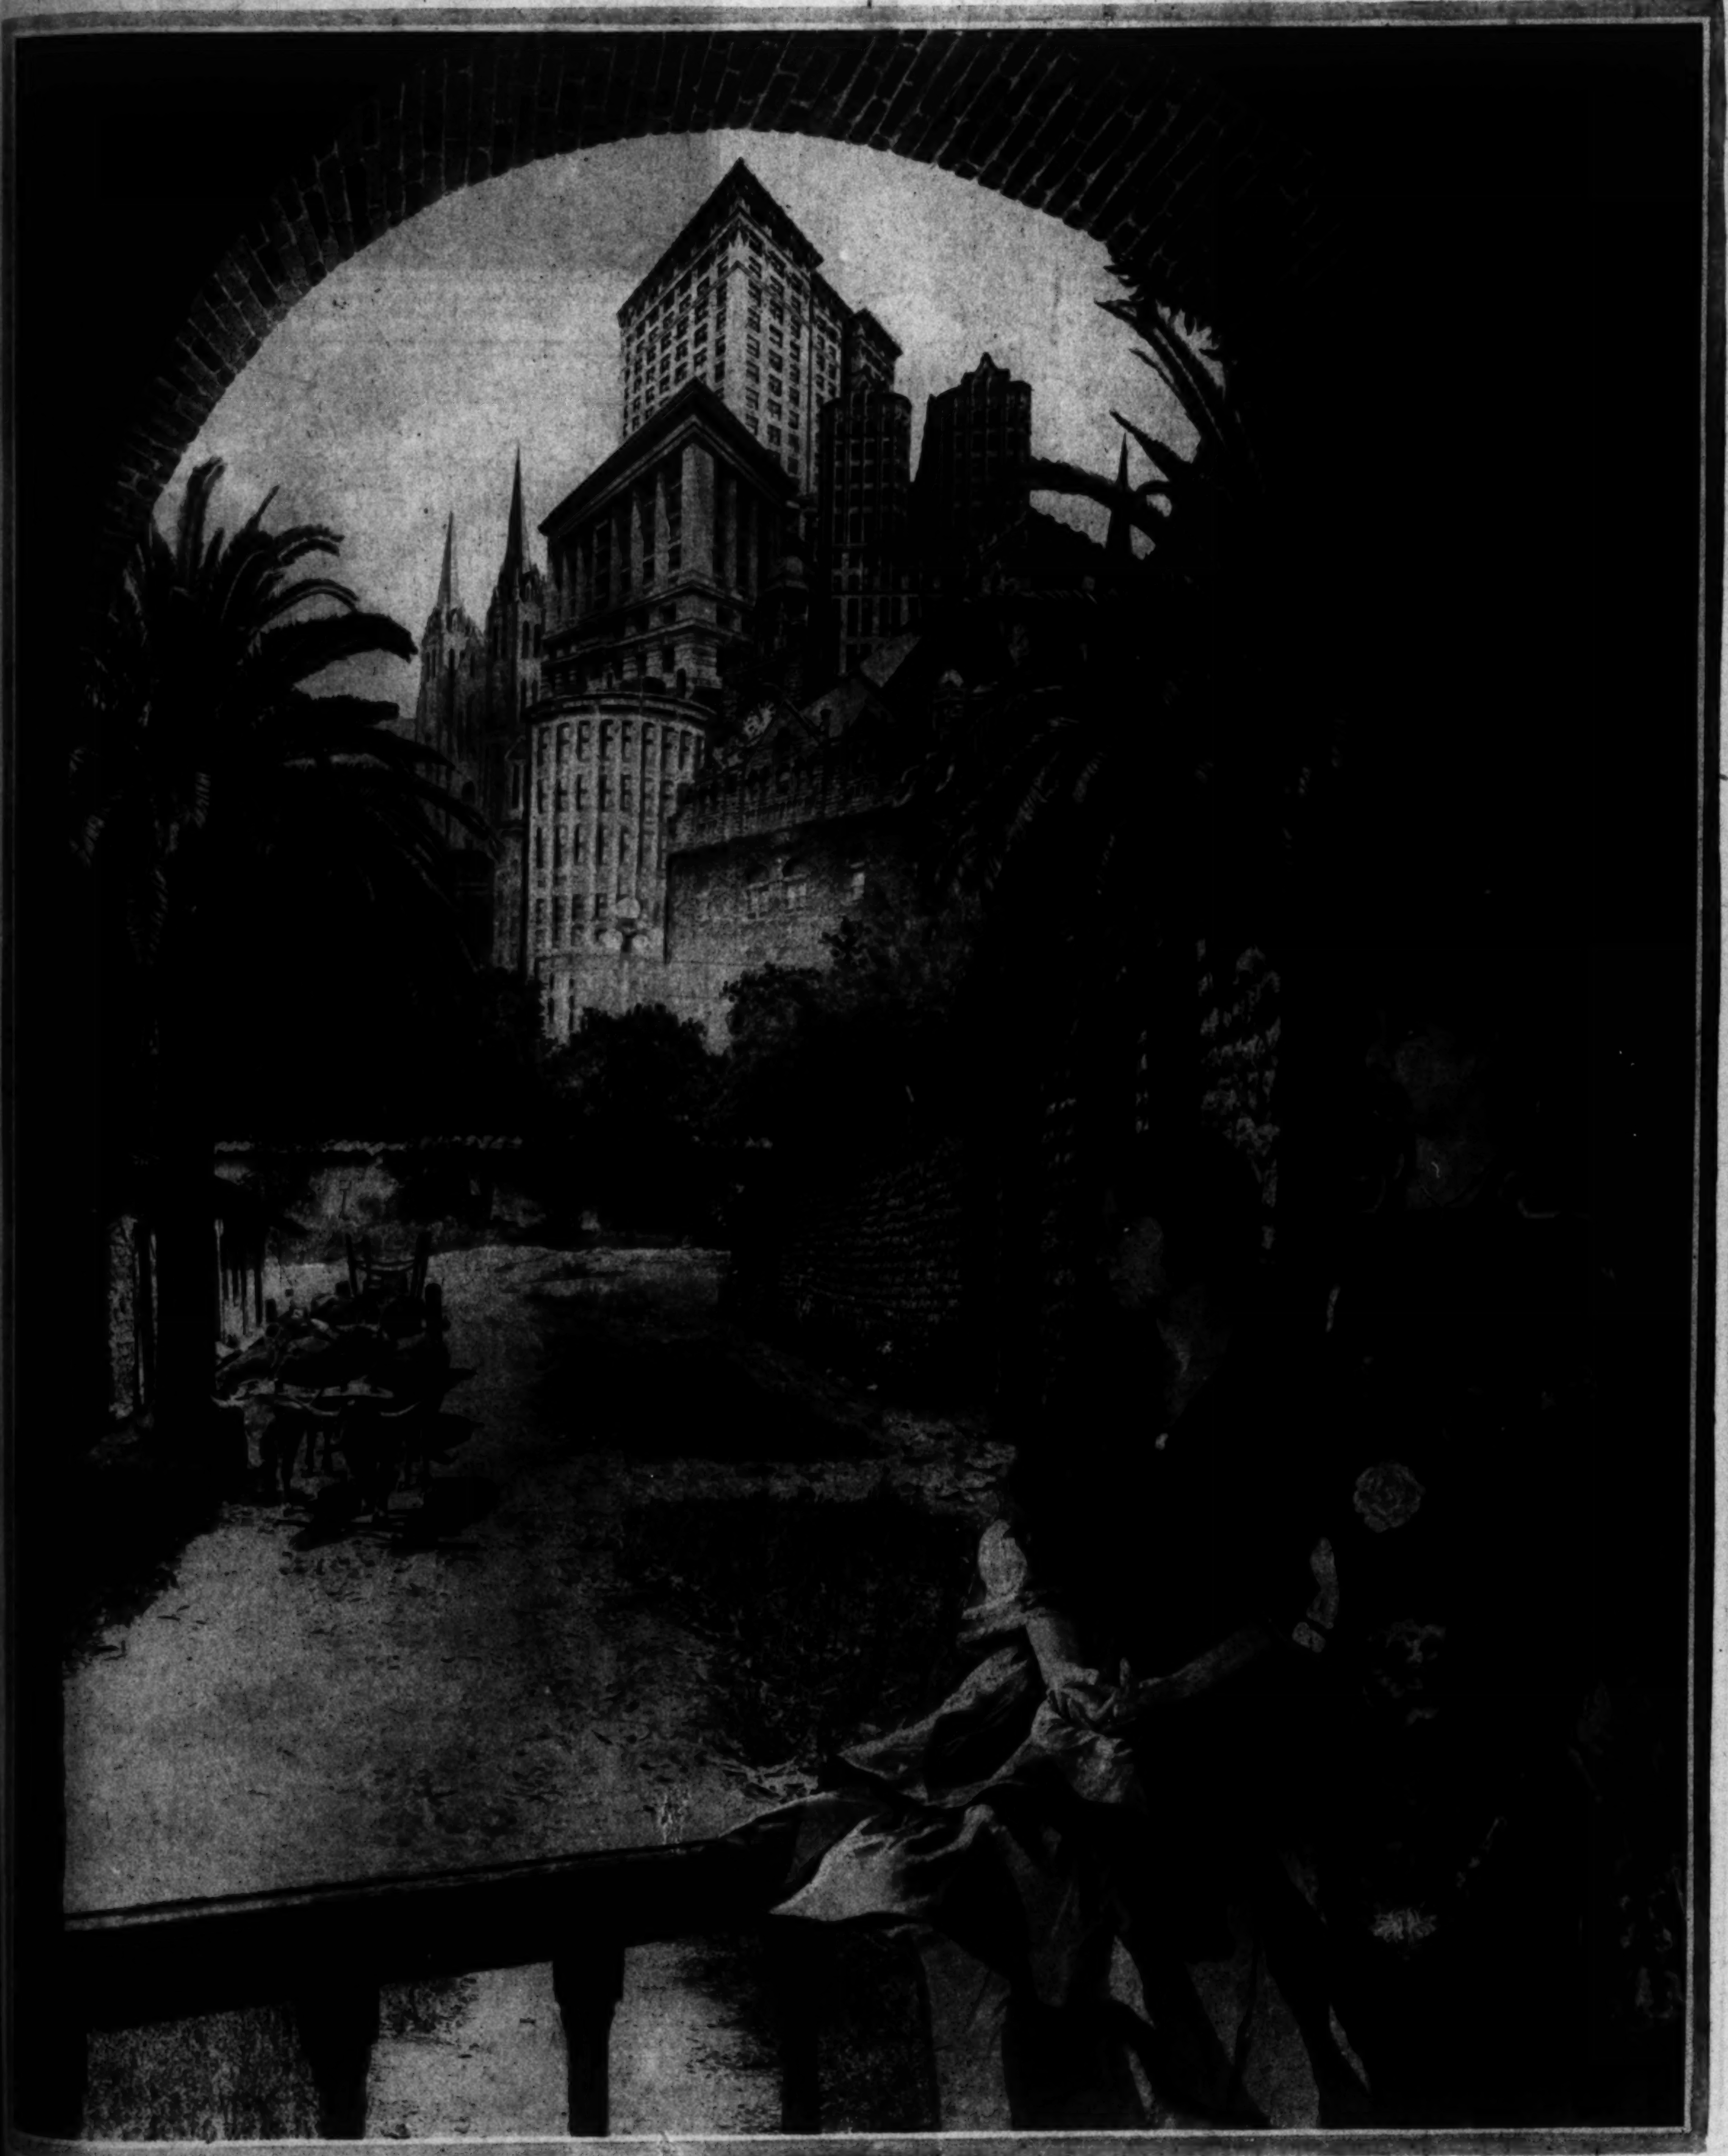
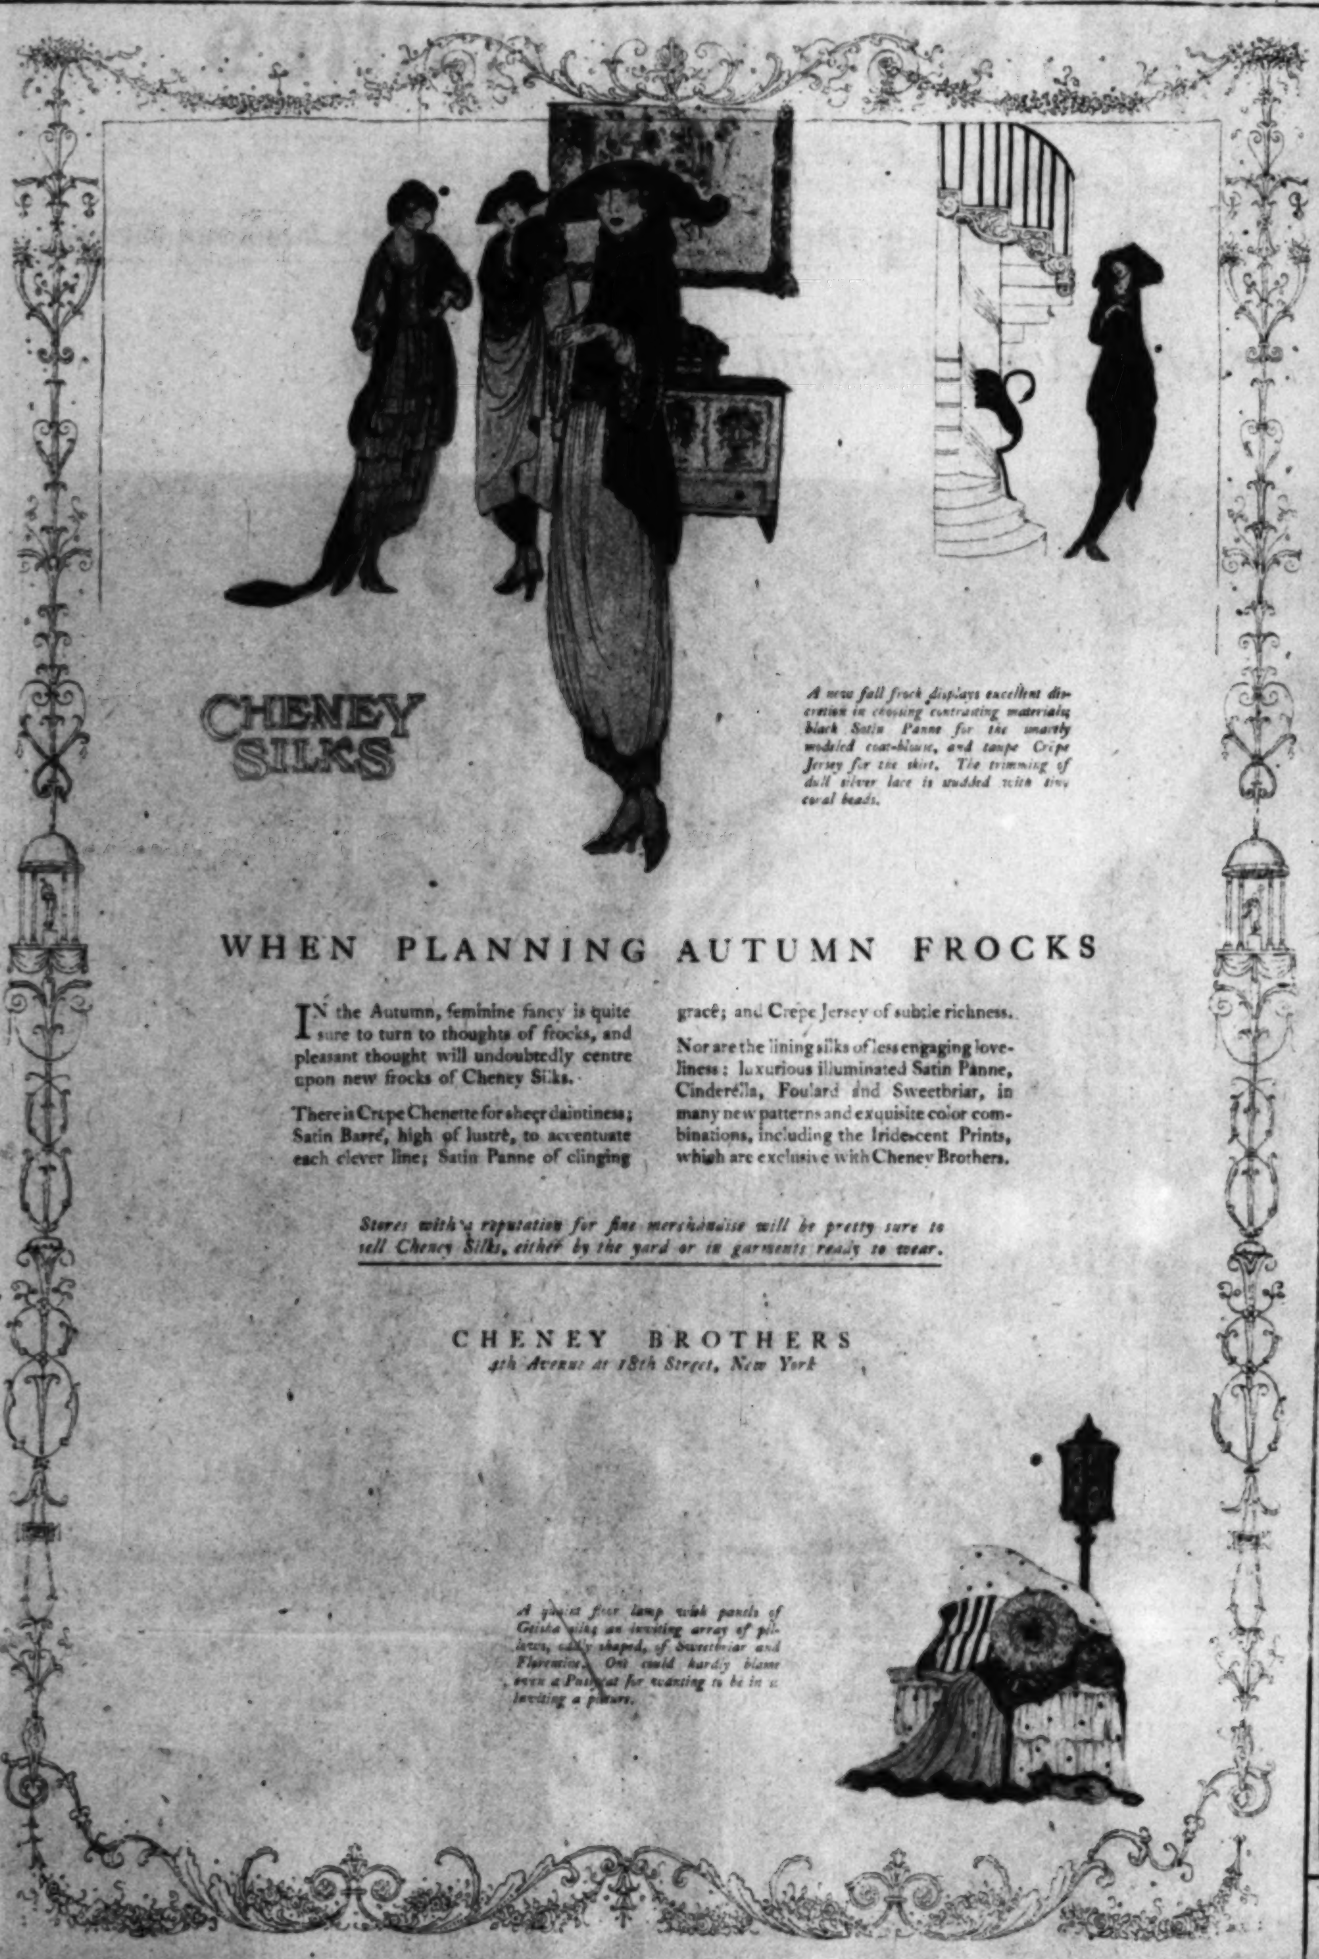
THE ONLY NEWSPAPER ROTOGRAVURE SECTION WEST OF THE ROCKIES

LAST WORD IN MODERN PRINTING

Los Angeles, Today and Yesterday--A Vision and Its Realization.



By E. J. Spencer. Times Photographer.



A new fall frock displays excellent discretion in choosing contrasting materials; black Satin Panne for the smartly modeled coat-blouse, and taupe Crêpe Jersey for the skirt. The trimming of dull silver lace is studded with tiny coral beads.

WHEN PLANNING AUTUMN FROCKS

In the Autumn, feminine fancy is quite sure to turn to thoughts of frocks, and pleasant thought will undoubtedly centre upon new frocks of Cheney Silks.

There is Crepe Chenette for sheer daintiness; Satin Barré, high of lustre, to accentuate each clever line; Satin Panne of clinging grace; and Crepe Jersey of subtle richness.

Nor are the lining silks of less engaging loveliness: luxurious illuminated Satin Panne, Cinderella, Foulard and Sweetbriar, in many new patterns and exquisite color combinations, including the Iridescent Prints, which are exclusive with Cheney Brothers.

Stores with a reputation for fine merchandise will be pretty sure to sell Cheney Silks, either by the yard or in garments ready to wear.

How much must you pay for Good Shoes?

THE measure of a good shoe is style, fit and wear. But it must be wear that leaves the original grace and shapeliness of the shoe unchanged as the months go by.

Measured by this standard, "Queen Quality" shoes are good shoes. And "Queen Quality" prices are the lowest at which good shoes can be sold. To pay less is false economy, to pay more is extravagance.

SHOE SOAP KID

Because reputation is valued above all else, "Queen Quality" fine black kid shoes are made of SHOE-SOAP Kid. Eight years of consistent use in "Queen Quality" shoes have proved its leadership. This association of "Queen Quality" endeavor with that of the tanner and retailer enables women to obtain exceptional shoes made from SHOE-SOAP leather which they have long tested and now demand.

Queen Quality SHOES

There is something trim and mannish and a trifle English in the lines of this "Queen Quality" Brogue, made of a substantial, rich chestnut calf, with a sensible military heel, and a distinctly masculine welt sole. Exceedingly smart, yet utterly comfortable, it is a splendid shoe for street wear and walking.

This is just the daintiest pump imaginable. Its lines are such as to make one's foot appear its very smallest. Made of black ooze of a soft suede finish, with a shapely French heel and turn sole. It is wonderfully light, graceful and dressy, yet exceedingly comfortable and will yield a substantial wear.

Why Should YOU Have Gray Hair?

"Remember how dull and lifeless my hair was—and mixed with gray? See how live, vigorous and silky it is now—and not a gray hair in it. All I used was Kolor-Bak. No, it's not a dye or a stain. It is colorless, stainless, harmless and restores color to gray hair simply by putting the hair and scalp in healthy condition. It also prevents my hair from falling out and keeps my scalp free from dandruff and itching. You will be happy if you try it too and see what wonderful 'life' and beauty it will put into your hair."

The above is exactly what you can say after using Kolor-Bak. This is positively guaranteed or you pay nothing for the treatment.

Vanity Fair SILK UNDERWEAR

The Vantie, illustrated above, is the newest of the Vanity Fair creations! It takes the place of the knicker for those who prefer the coolness of the open drawer. It has a waist elastic but is not caught at the knee—the sides hang free as in the step-in envelope with both sides slashed.

Other articles of Vanity Fair glove silk are the extra length vest, the sure-lap Union, the Petti-bocker which is petticoat and knicker combined, the Step-In, without snaps or buttons and Camisoles of tailored simplicity. Be sure that in all silk under-apparel there is the Vanity Fair label.
